COMPLAINTS STILL MADE

About Collectors Failing to Call for Garbage

That the garbage system in the city is still far from being a smooth working machine is quite evident from the numerous complaints that are being received by the Sanitary Inspector, daily, in regard to the collectors of garbage failing to put in an appearance as some houses.

During a conversation with Mr. Spence in regard to the system, a lady resident on Aylmer street phoned and complained that the collectors had not called at her place for two weeks.

Mr. Spence reports other lines in his department to be in fairly [illegible] condition.

MISS QUINN ON VISIT TO CITY

Is Expected Here on Saturday Night

The many friends in Peterborough of Miss M. Quinn, missionary to China, will be pleased to learn that Miss Quinn is expected to arrive in the city Saturday night.

Miss Quinn has seen over fourteen years of service as a missionary in China. It is quite probable that she will tell of her work at the Bethany Tabernacle.

On the shady side of 140 Pounds

If your weight exceeds 140 lbs. the tell-tale scale urges the wearing of the La Diva No. 809 corset known as the "NU MODE" sustaining.

This corset not only improves the appearance by reducing the abdomen by as much as six inches, while helping a graceful and erect figure, but it gives great comfort either sitting or standing—freedom from pressures which soon turn to pain—freedom from breaking over the hips;—these qualities being assured by their patented construction. Its price is only $4.00.

La Diva NON RUSTABLE CORSET

Many imported so-called reducing corsets, which on account of customs duties are sold at from $1.00 to $3.00 more than the NU MODE are neither as comfortable nor as stylish.

There is a D. & A. or a La Diva model for every figure. Our catalogue, sent free on request, will help you to choose the best for yours.

See "The Whip" when in Toronto

The greatest production of the decade in the way of varied thrills and startling stage effects is "The Whip," the Drury Lane sensation, which will be the attraction at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, Toronto, week of October 27th. The new entertainment by Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton comes to Toronto after a two years run in London and a season's stay at the Manhattan Opera House, New York. It comprises four acts and thirteen scenes, and the massiveness of the production may be gauged from the fact that five special trains are necessary to carry the scenery, and taking into consideration the company of one hundred, and the horses and dogs used during the performance.

The story of "The Whip" is based upon a race horse bearing that name, who has been bred by a titled nobleman. It shares his affections with his daughter, who insists, however upon sharing her affections with a certain lordling. Various things happen to interrupt the course of true love. An adventuress, who loves him, goes so far as to make a captain, a disappointed suitor for the hand of the heroine, marry her, pretending he is the lordling in order that there may be no marriage with the daughter of the titled sportsman. Their engagement is announced but the adventures here brings forward her proofs of marriage and they are therefore separated.

The ruined suitor for the heroine's hand is interested in what horse will win the great race at Newmarket. In the meantime the heroine gives the hero a tip that "The Whip" will win, and he plunges heavily with the bookmakers.

The villain now sees that the only thing to do is to render it impossible for the horse to win this race. So he plots to have the car in which the animal is to be taken to Newmarket, uncoupled from the train and wrecked. The faithful trainer of the horse gets wind of the plot, but too late to take immediate action. But the train is pursued by an automobile and the horse is pursued by an automobile and the horse is rescued just as the following express comes along and smashes the box car into splinters.

The villain then decides to have the jockey who will ride "The Whip" arrested just as the race is about to start. He does this, but the sporting spirit of the crowd at Newmarket stands in the way, and the jockey is dragged away from the detectives and thrown on the horse. He wins the race and makes a rich man out of the young lord, who aspires to the heroine's hand. Now only the fraudulent marriage marriage stands between him and the girl of his choice. The clergyman who performed that ceremony acknowledges his guilt and everything ends happily.

As regards stage spectacles "The Whip" has been proclaimed unsurpassed by press and public. There are in all three great scenic effects, any one of which would make for the success of an ordinary entertainment, namely, an automobile accident, a train wreck, and a great horse race scene. The cast of one hundred is an imposing one. Matinees will be given on Thursday and Saturday.

NEW STRUCTURE WILL MAKE FINE CORNER

The new building for the corner of George and Simcoe streets, will, it is understood, be of steel and brick and four storeys. The plans arrived from Toronto but were sent back for a few changes.

There are to be two main entrances, one on Simcoe street and one on George street and they will be something after the style of the Grand Opera House. The Simcoe [illegible] will be fitted with large [illegible] glass show windows which will no doubt add greatly to the general appearance of the corner. The style for the George St. section will be up-to-date in every particular. Two large elevators will be installed, one for freight and the other for passengers. One very important feature will be a sprinkler system for the purpose of fire protection. This system has been installed in every modern factory and has proven to be a marked success. Taken on the whole the new structure is to be one of the finest in this section of the province.

The building is to be erected by the Toronto Savings and Loan Company and Mr. Wm. Langford has the contract. The building will be taken possession of by the J. C. Turnbull Co., whose managerial reins rest in the hands of Mr. F. J. Might.

SPRAINED WRIST — CRANKING AUTO

Rev. J. V. McCauley Met With Mishap at Wooler

No doubt the many friends and acquaintances of Rev. J. V. He was cranking his brother's auto and when it backfired a painful sprain of the wrist was sustained.

SONGSTER BRIGADE WELL RECEIVED

Campbellford Herald. The Songsters' Brigade of Peterboro visited Campbellford on Saturday and Sunday, under the auspices of the local corps of the Salvation Army. The meetings were held in the Opera House and were well attended. On Saturday evening the programme consisted of vocal selections, readings, selections by the band, orchestra, and saxaphone sextette. A Holiness service was held on Sunday morning and in the afternoon and evening gospel meetings were held. Staff Captain Walton of Montreal and Adjutant and Mrs. McElheney conducted the Sunday services. The band and orchestra are assured of a hearty welcome on their return to Campbellford.

SATURDAY RECITAL

Saturday Afternoon Recital will be, this year again, a feature of the J. M. Greene Music Company Limited, of Charlotte Street. Last year these weekly programs of music and entertainment were enjoyed by hundreds of people, and were such a success that the Music Company intend running them again this season. The opening one will be tomorrow, Saturday, Oct. 25th, and an excellent programme has been arranged, some of the numbers being: 'Lo Hear the Gentle Lark,' sung by Mme. Melba; 'Home to Our Mountains,' from Trovatore, sung by Homer and Caruso; 'Calm As The Night,' by Gotze; 'Humoresque' by Dvorak and 'Madam Sherry' selection, the last two numbers being given on the Player Piano. The programme is at 3.30. There is no admission fee. All are welcome. 43.

LECTURE ON ENGLAND AND GERMANY

Dr. Horning, Professor of Modern Languages at Victoria College, Toronto, will deliver a lecture on the evening of November 7th, in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall on England.

Dr. Horning is well and favorably known in Peterborough and the subject of his lecture should be of great interest to every Canadian, and we trust a large audience will be present. The admission will be 25 cts.

PETERBORO BOY FOR THE MISSION FIELD

Mr. W. H. Johnston is Leaving for West Coast of South America

Mr. W. H. Johnston, the son of Mr. A. J. Johnston of Dennistoun Avenue, will on Sunday morning in Bethany Tabernacle give his farewell address prior to his leaving for Ecquador, on the West Coast of South America, where his field of labor will be as a missionary, under the Christian and Missionary Alliance.

Herbert, as he is known among his friends, was born and brought up in Peterboro. His education was received in our public schools and Collegiate Institute. From here he went to the C. and M.A. Missionary Institute at Nyack, N.Y., where he spent three years, graduating from there in May, 1911. Since then he has been in charge of a branch of the C. and M. A. in Hornell, N.Y.

His many friends in this city will be pleased to hear of his success in the new sphere of labor now opened up to him.

A sponge in a porcelain umbrella stand will keep the umbrellas from striking the bottom of the jar, which is often broken in this way, and will also absorb the rainwater from a wet umbrella.

DEATH OF REV. DR. J. L. MURRAY

Well Known Presbyterian Minister Dies at Toronto

The death of Rev. Dr. J. L. Murray, of Toronto, removes one of the well known ministers of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. He retired four years ago.

For 36 years Dr. Murray occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church at Kincardine. Previous to that he held the Woodville church in the Lindsay district, and before that again the Baltimore Presbyterian church in the Peterborough district.

He was born near the Scotch Highland settlement of Embro 76 years ago, and is said to have exercised that wholesome influence of his personality wherever he lived, both in the church and as a citizen.

Dr. Murray is survived by two sons, Rev. John Lovell Murray, of New York and Mr. Frank Allister Murray, the first having served for some years as a Y.M.C.A. missionary in India. Of three daughters, two are at home and one is the wife of the Rev. S. Anderson, of Orillia Presbyterian church.

The funeral takes place on Saturday to Prospect Cemetery, Toronto.

SISTER OF MRS. B. F. FREDERICK PASSES

Miss Elizabeth Steen, of Campbellford, passed away at Campbellford on Tuesday. The funeral took place yesterday. The late Miss Steen was a sister of Mrs. B. F. Frederick, of this city.

LAID TO REST

The funeral of the late Thomas Cunningham took place this afternoon from his late residence, 109 Edinburgh street, to Omemee. Service was held at the house by Rev. R. Pogue.

FUNERAL TO BE HELD SUNDAY

The remains of the late Herbert Miller, who met death at Winnipeg, will arrive in the city on the 1.07 a.m. C.P.R. train on Sunday, Mr. F. W. Miller having received a telegram to this effect, from his son, George, of Chicago, who went to Winnipeg to take charge of the body.

The funeral will be held from Mr. Miller's residence, Water street, on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, under the auspices of Sherwood Forest Camp, Woodmen of the World.

PUBLIC NOTICE

I the undersigned hereby give notice that I do not want any moneys, favors or any assistance from a drunkard, as I feel quite capable to settle or pay my own debts, as I have paid most of my husband's in the past. No doubt the citizens of Peterboro would much more take my word than his name and, as has been remarked in the past, the name of my husband would not be worth the paper it would be written thereon, and I am at any future time willing to prove same.

Hasty [illegible]

Half a dozen delicious little loaves of bread may be made in a few minutes by any one who has [illegible] a pound of flour, a cupful of milk, a pinch of salt, a saucepan, a fork and a very hot oven. Place the flour [illegible] in the saucepan, take the fork in the right hand, and with the left pour in the milk gradually, stirring all the time until you have a nice light dry lump of dough. Knead gently with the hands and divide into six pieces, which may be shaped according to fancy, but much handling is not advisable. Dredge a shelf in the oven with flour, place the loaves on it and bake from twelve to fifteen minutes. If the flour is not self raising a good half teaspoonful of baking powder must invariably be used.

Turkish Postage Stamps.

Every one who has collected stamps must have noticed the absence of sovereigns' heads from those of Turkey. That this is so is due to the fact that Mohammedans think a representation of the human face or figure unlawful. Therefore Turkish stamps carry the crescent, which the Turks borrowed from the Byzantines after the fall of Constantinople. They also used a complicated, arbitrary sign, supposed to be the signature of the sultan.

TRUSTEE GENEST TAKES REFUGE IN DOMINION LAW

Advocate of Bilingualism Issues a Defi to the Ontario Government.

Hon. I. B. Lucas Says Government Will Stick.

OTTAWA, Oct 25.—Speaking of the withdrawal of the Ontario Government's grant from the local separate school board because of the latter's failure to carry out the bilingual regulations, Chairman Samuel Genest yesterday issued a hot defi to the Educational Department.

"We are deprived of the grant because we fail to obey the law," he declared. "The Government forgets that we base our conduct on a Dominion law, a higher authority than theirs; and when the Ontario Government or the Department of Education enacts legislation which, besides being unjust and despotic, is in conflict with the British North America Act, it is the duty of the Separate School Board trustees to tell the Government that it is exceeding its rights and to demur. This action of withholding the Government's educational grant from the separate schools, which have an undeniable right to it in virtue of the British North America Act, is as flagrant an injustice as one could imagine. It is mere blackmail; they want to rob us of our children, for what else does it mean to deprive us, the parents, of our control over their education? This despicable move is in the same class as the ransoms exacted from the parents by the kidnapping gangsters of New York City. To my mind, it is worse."

Mr. Genest, in a further statement on the latest developments on the bilingual trouble, said yesterday afternoon: "We are prepared to stand to our guns and I may state that they are not, as in Ulster, wooden guns. They may take my position, property and income away from me, but still I will fight them. This is indeed a serious matter with me, as well as with a great many of my countrymen."

Will Stick, Says Lucas.

BOLTON, Ont., Oct. 25.—"The Government will stick to its bilingual regulations," declared Hon. I. B. Lucas, Provincial Treasurer, who came here last night to speak in the interest of Mr. J. R. Fallis, Conservative candidate in the Peel County bye-election. He stated that these same regulations would be enforced regardless of opposition. Mr. Lucas also charged that the present administration's political opponents were behind the bilingual agitation.

Some 300 people turned out to hear the Provincial Treasurer, who was supported by Messrs. James Downey, president of Peel County Conservative Association, J. J. Donaghy of Brampton, J. R. Fallis, and Richard Blain, M.P. for Peel.

WANT INCREASE

Forty Thousand Railroad Men Seek Readjustment.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Forty thousand locomotive engineers and firemen employed by ninety railroads running west of Chicago have notified officials of the lines that they will terminate their present labor agreements Nov. 10 and demand a wage increase aggregating $50,000,000 a year according to statements in railroad offices here. The railroads in turn notified Warren S. Stone, chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and W. S. Carter, chief of the firemen, that they would welcome a readjustment of wages schedules.

In addition to a wage increase, the firemen and engineers are asking for a joint contract with the roads. The advance sought ranges between 25 cents and $1 a hundred miles, according to the nature of the services.

WOLF AT THE DOOR

Canadian Lawyer Wrongfully Convicted Wants to Practice Again.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Chas. H. Hyde, a native of Truro, N.S., and former city chamberlain, who was debarred automatically on his conviction on a charge of bribery growing out of his relations with the Carnegie Trust Co. and the Northern Bank, applied through his attorney, John B. Stanchfield, to the appellate division yesterday for reinstatement. Unless he is allowed to practice his profession he and his family may suffer privation, Mr. Stanchfield said.

Since Hyde's disbarment the appellate division itself has decided that he was wrongfully convicted, the lawyer pointed out, and although the state had taken the case to the Court of Appeals he pleaded that Hyde be allowed to resume his law practice while the appeal was pending.

"He is utterly without means, and has a family dependent upon him," said Mr. Stanchfield. "Unless he is allowed to resume the practice of law I don't know how he will be able to exist."

No action was taken on the application.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT HAS RETURNED

Party Was Met at Quebec by Premier Borden

Canadian Press Despatch.

QUEBEC, Oct. 25.—The Duke of Connaught and party who arrived on the Empress of Britain at midnight, left the steamer shortly before nine this morning and went aboard their special train which steamed away for Ottawa a few minutes later.

They arrived and went like ordinary travellers. In accordance with their special request there was no reception, no guard of honor provided and no city dignitaries called on them. At seven-thirty the Duke with his aides motored up to the Citadel and spent half an hour inspecting the recently renovated Vice-regal quarters. Returning to the steamer he met Mr. Borden who had called to extend a welcome back to Canada. The Governor General and Prime Minister chatted freely for some time.

Tells Vivid Story.

HAMILTON, Oct. 25.—Another Volturno survivor reached this city yesterday afternoon, according to Heming Bros., whose office he visited en route to his new home with his compatriots in the northeast section of the city.

The newcomer, Francisco Neplouf, a Bulgarian, described the scenes enacted on the burning vessel with all his native fervor and vividness. He told of having lost six of his friends in the disaster by drowning or being burned to death.

MURDER PUZZLE

Ottawa Inquest Concludes With Very Little New Evidence.

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.—"That Abraham Rubenstein came to his death by violence, consisting of a blow on the head, followed by strangulation, by a person or persons unknown to the jury."

The above verdict was returned last night at the adjourned enquiry into the death of "Abe" Rubenstein of Brooklyn, N.Y., the bookmaker's clerk, whose body was found in a vacant shop on Somerset street following the fall meeting at Connaught Park. But little new was produced at the concluding session of the inquest last night. A witness swore that he saw two negroes carrying a trunk along Somerset street, and identified a photograph of a negro named Slinn as one of the men. Slinn's whereabouts are at present unknown.

Twin Towns To Co-operate.

BERLIN, Ont., Oct. 25—Waterloo, Berlin's twin sister, is fast becoming a part of Berlin, and the time is not far distant when she will volunteer annexation.

The Board of Trade of Waterloo will on Monday next discuss the advisability of co-operating with the Berlin civic association in getting out a comprehensive plan of the twin corporations which will provide for a city of 75,000.

AN ATTACK ON MONTEREY

Rebel Assault on Important Northern Mexican City Resumed.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 25.—The rebel forces resumed their attacks on Monterey at 7 o'clock yesterday morning.

At 9 o'clock the telegraph operators in the station near the centre of the town sent word that they would have to leave, as the rebels were entering the place and their fire was becoming dangerous. This was the last report heard from them, the wires going dead immediately afterward. No late advices have reached here concerning the situation in Monterey, and it is generally believed that the place has fallen into the hands of the rebels, as it would be indefensible once their forces had got inside.

All the railway lines entering Monterey were cut Thursday night.

Reports which came from Monterey early in the morning stated that fighting was in progress at Saltillo, and that the rebels had penetrated into the streets of the town. The loss of Saltillo would be a serious blow to the federal cause, fairly comparable to the capture of Torreon by the rebels. It would isolate a great part of Huerta's army, and give the rebels an open path to the capitol, aside from possible separate movements by bands of Zapitastis and Pueblo Indians.

The force of federal troops now in Mexico City is insufficient to make a stand against the rebels in case of a serious attack is made on the place.

TOOK HIS LIFE ON DOORSTEP

WINNIPEG, MAN., Oct. 23.—After living for six years with a woman whom he said was his wife, John Greggson, of Brandon, handed her over to William Grant, 662 William Ave., this city, who took her and her two children to live with him.

Violent regret took possession of Greggson and he vowed to shoot Grant and the woman, but finally went to Grant's house and standing on the doorstep blew out his own brains.

Austria Making C. P. R. Scapegoat.

VIENNA, Oct. 25.—The revelation yesterday before the sub-commission appointed by the budget committee to report on the American shipping service that Baron Weichs Dergion, new manager of the Hamburg-American line in Austria, carried on a vigorous agitation for the emigration of Austrian peasants to Brazil by the Austro-American line while he was formerly a high official in the Ministry of Commerce and against the advice of the Austrian consuls in Brazil, is regarded as very embarrassing to the Government in its action against the Canadian Pacific line, which is considered to have been made the scapegoat of the affair.

The newspapers demand a thorough sifting of the situation.

A little learning is almost as dangerous as a little widow.

NEW GOVERNOR OF NEW YORK STATE AND HIS WIFE.

MR. AND MRS. MARTIN H. GLYNN

Upon the removal of Governor William Sulzer, of New York State, by the Impeachment Court, Mr. Martin H. Glynn automatically became Governor, for he was Lieutenant Governor under Mr. Sulzer. In a long statement Governor Glynn declared he would give an honest, peaceful, progressive and wise conduct of public affairs. He will insist upon a business administration, which means, he said, an economical, clean, orderly and efficient transaction of the State's business.

NEGLECT OF DUTY IS DENIED BY OFFICIALS

Prison Enquiry at Kingston Elicits Evidence Concerning Inexperienced Convicts Who Were Set to Work Dressing Wounds.

KINGSTON, Oct. 25.—Convict evidence for the most part took the attention of the Prison Reform Commission at yesterday afternoon's session, when charges against Guard Frederick Ingledew was aired.

Ingledew was accused of neglect of duty and the violation of prison rules, in having brought in food for convicts and having provided them with tobacco.

He conducted his own defence and gave most emphatic denials to all charges, backed up by Deputy Warden O'Leary, who states he had never had any reason to believe Ingledew had neglected duty.

Chief Night Watchman Holland swore he had never found the accused guilty of any prison irregularities.

Interesting evidence of two convicts without any qualification for the work dressing wounds of patients at operations in the penitentiary hospital, was given by "F 292" yesterday morning.

Witness also told of the crowding of the meals on holidays and Sundays. The three meals were served within five hours—breakfast at eight, dinner at 11, supper at 1.30. Nothing more was served till eight o'clock the next morning. These conditions did not obtain in the penitentiary generally. Convicts not in the hospital for dinner had rations served sometimes after two o'clock, and could eat it when they liked. In the hospital the convicts were supposed to eat their dinner at once, as the orderlies were supposed to remove all the dishes from the cells.

The testimony of "E 551," a convict who was a professional nurse, was very strong against conditions in the hospital. The stench from some of the patients was terrible.

Sessions will be resumed the first or second week in November.

It is the intention of the commissioners to hold a session in Toronto next week to secure expert evidence regarding the Central Prison, and the prison farm at Guelph.

BANDIT SLAYS TWO

Five Pedestrians Are Held up by a Desperado.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 25.—A bandit running amuck near the heart of the city early yesterday held up five pedestrians within a few blocks, and shot and instantly killed T. J. Chase of Palmer Lake, Col., and mortally wounded E. A. Clark of this city. The bandit fled before an automobile filled with police, who tracked him from the scene of one hold-up to another, only to arrive too late.

The shooting began when the bandit held up Antonio Fuguris, a street sweeper, sending a bullet through his hat. A few minutes later F. A. Clark staggered into a drug store with a bullet through his right lung. Four blocks away, Chase met his death. Without a word the bandit shot him through the heart. He held up and robbed two others without shooting them.

Students Take Revenge.

BRISTOL, Eng., Oct. 25.—Students of Bristol University yesterday avenged the burning of the sports pavilion of the university Thursday by suffragettes by smashing the windows of the office of the militants, dumping the furniture in the streets and making a bonfire of it. The students were cheered by a large crowd as they wreaked their vengeance upon the suffragettes.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Declaring that the character of "Mac" in his wife's novel, "The Golden Hollow," libels him, Justus P. Seffield is trying to stop the circulation of the book.

To Fix Election Date.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 25.—A meeting of the executive of the Conservatives of East Middlesex will be held to-day to set a date for the convention to select a candidate to contest the seat made vacant by the death of George M. Neely, M.P.P. It is expected that the convention will be held a week from Saturday and the election take place within five weeks.

QUEEN AS CENSOR

Her Majesty's Expurgations Caused Private Film to be Dropped.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Queen Mary has again shown that she has no sympathy with the latitudinarian views which obtain in modern society in regard to matters which our grandmothers considered improper, and has incidentally upset the plans arranged for her Majesty's entertainment by no less a personage than the Duchess of Devonshire.

Miss Violet Keppel, the daughter of Mrs. George Keppell, a little while ago wrote a short five-character sketch for cinematograph films for private exhibition. In accordance with custom, the films were privately shown to Queen Mary last week at Buckingham Palace, in order that her Majesty might give her consent to the proposed exhibition at Chatsworth. The Queen, however, wished to have so many alterations made in the sketch—and particularly to have a bedroom scene, in which the husband has rather a violent altercation with his wife, completely eleminated—that the idea of the performance was entirely abandoned.

POWERS WILL NOT BE TOLERATED IN MEXIC

Striking Miners Attack Renegades.

TRINIDAD, Col., Oct. 25.—One striker killed, two strikers reported seriously wounded, and one mine guard slightly wounded, are the net results of attempts by strikers, it is said, to prevent defection in their ranks at Walsenberg yesterday afternoon.

Shortly after four o'clock two wagonloads of former strikers, with their wives, who had decided to return to work at the Walsenberg mine, were on their way to the mine under guard, when news of the defection brought a mob of strikers about the vehicles. Stones were thrown, and a shot was fired by a striker in the mob, it is reported, and the guards used their weapons in reply.

Triennial Session of W.C.T.U. Opens.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The triennial convention of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union opened at the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, yesterday with nearly a thousand delegates representing every state in the union and thirty foreign countries in attendance. The women were welcomed by Moyar Adolph Kline and Lewis H. Pounds, borough president of Brooklyn.

MAN WITH AXE BROKE INTO CHURCH

Threatened Priests Life and Assaulted Constable.

MONTREAL, Oct. 25.—Battering down a locked door at the entrance to the gallery in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, a man named Lebel was interrupted in his work of destruction by Rev. Father Dube, who was reading his office at the altar.

"What are you doing here?" asked the reverend father as the intruder, axe in hand, awaited his coming.

"None of your business," came the answer, and the man moved forward. "Get out of my way as quick as you can or I'll kill you," he added.

The startled priest tried to calm the man before him, and was once more threatened with his life. Hastening to the rectory, the police were informed of what had occurred, and Constables Clement and Girard were despatched. In the meantime the intruder had left the church, after splintering the gallery door, and disappeared, axe in hand.

He was overtaken. Lebel eyed the two uniformed men until but a few feet separated him from the enemy, when he suddenly drew back his arms at the same time raising the axe for a blow at his pursuers.

Before they could prevent him the axe descended, and Constable Girard came within a few inches of having his head opened by the sharp blade, being saved by the quick work of Constable Clement, who threw his whole weight on his brother officer in time to move his body from the direction of the descending axe blade. As it was, the weapon grazed the right arm of Constable Girard, ripping the sleeve of his coat, and penetrating to the muscle of his arm.

The force of the blow overbalanced the furious assailant, who staggered under the effort, and before he could right himself he was overpowered and disarmed.

Big Vote Is Expected.

ROME, Oct. 25.—The campaign for the general elections which will take place next Sunday is a most active one, due to the widespread participation in it of all classes of the people of Italy. It is foreseen that the number of persons who will cast ballots will surpass that of any former election. It is estimated that about 6,000,000 persons will vote Sunday, three times as many as did so in 1909.

Beware Suffragettes!

LONDON, Oct. 25.—A warning that militant suffragettes have planned to place bombs simultaneously in the parcels offices of all the great railroad stations throughout the country has been received by the general managers of the railway companies, according to an official notification issued here yesterday.

NAVAL HOLIDAY

espite the protests of innocence, the part of Germany, of any agssive intention in her naval pol there is still the abiding and unwered question as to what she ts with such a big navy. Admiral Tirpitz has been trying to exn the position in answer to Mr. ston Churchill's "holiday" protion.

Admiral Von Tirpitz laid stress n the fact that the German navy a purely defensive function and aggressive purpose. Like the y, it is to maintain the security the Empire and its trade, besides bling Germany to raise her voice the affairs of the world. He was ble to see why this should be ied her.

He regards a war of aggression unthinkable to Germany, and he ost in wonder at Germany's navy rewarded as a danger or men-

Great navies are rising everyre. France, Russia, the United tes even Greece and the South erican states, not to speak of tria-Hungary and Italy, are all ding great fleets. France and sia are allied, he says, and toher are spending far more than many on naval construction. Is Germany, then, to have a fleet her protection!

In short, the Grand Admiral was ttle inclined to ridicule the alarm in England as to the objects of German fleets" here is a touch of ingenuousness ut Mr. Churchill's offer of a "naholiday." But it is more than ly that he is not so "simple" as appears. There may be a little y in the "offer." The boyish st Lord of the Admiralty may be wing the German out in order to ertain his motives.

n the abstract, of course, Gerny can build as many battleships she pleases, but only a mad-man uld build a fleet of deadly eadnoughts for fun. As for the ument that the German Navy "for purposes of defence,"—that uld be reasonable if Germany had coast-line like Britain to defend had an extensive Empire whose erests were in danger.

The Grand Admiral is inclined to icule the alarm felt in England." is is just where Germany misunstands the position. There is real alarm on the part of Great tain of a German invasion; the rm is chiefly an economical one. eat Britain is merely asking: hat do you want with that big vy anyway?" Admiral Tirpitz has not answered that question; he has merely evaded it by ridicule, which amounts to something like a a charge of cowardice.

Germany might as well admit that she is jealous of the British Empire, and that the chief motive behind her naval aggression is a desire to get as big an e[illegible]e as Great Britain. But it is [illegible] late in time, except she goe[illegible] helping herself to other [illegible] property. Of course there is [illegible]zil—there is also the accursed Monroe Doctrine.

THE LURE OF THE STREETS

(From the Ottawa Journal.)

Last week Deputy Magistrate Askwith made some forcible, and at the same time justifiable, remarks on the number of young girls, many of them under the age of fourteen years, who parade Ottawa streets at night. He stated his belief that the enforcement of the curfew by-law in Ottawa would put a stop to this form of street walking.

The great pity is that such a bylaw should be at all necessary. Enforced acts of civic parentage like this are not nearly so satisfactory as those that come of the parents' own free will. And surely there is no doubt that it is the duty of every thoughtful parent to discourage this nightly exodus to the streets of the children. The right place for children at night is in the home and this is particularly so in the case of young girls. The lure of the gaily lighted street with its store windows is a dangerous charm for a young girl to pursue. Too immature to understand their danger these primmed up little school maids already take a secret joy in the admiring eyes that greet them at street corners. They have no full comprehension that this half-baked ogling is but the prelude perhaps to a real street walking whose wages are shame and death. The fault is not with the children themselves. They are not old enough to know any better. The blame rests on the parents, who are so careless of their children's welfare. A realization of the moral responsibilities of fatherhood and motherhood is more necessary than a civic by-law.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Orillia Packet is noted for its editorials in small Packets; it deals out snappy little epigrams on all the editors in its vicinity, here is one Packet editorial:

> Peterborough, the Review says, is the only city in Canada which is void of conceit! Was it not something like that the Pharisee said in his prayer?

It does not concern us what the Pharisee said. We merely stated a fact which is common knowledge in Peterborough. Can it be that Orillia is jealous?

Wrapped in another packet, the Packet sends the following neat little brick at the head of the editor of the Review:

> The Peterborough Review says "many people regard the Baptists as a rather exclusive body." We shall have to send Mr. R. O. Smith down to disabuse, in his diplomatic way, the editor's mind. Mr. Smith will explain, no doubt, that the Baptists exclude nobody who is willing to enter in by the door, and in the way prescribed by the Scriptures.

There is a slight mistake here Baptists do not enter in by the "door," by by the water. And many people who do not like to be ducked into the Kingdom regard the Baptists as exclusive.

The wife of a chauffeur of Bath, England, was burnt to death through the petrol with which she was washing her hair becoming ignited.

In the London Daily News there appears "A Hymn of Conciliation," written by Mr. William Watson. The woes of Ireland are the burden of its three stanzes, from which we quote one:

We cannot live for evermore
With nought but "Nay" upon our tongue,
And ever hear a voice implore,
And ever vaunt a heart unwrung.
She cries aloud and will not cease,
She bids us blush for all the Past.
If what she craves can bring her peace,
Oh, be it hers at last!

These last two lines are a little impatient in tone, and are not too complimentary to Ireland. It is like a father's impatience with the baby —"O give it anything to stop it crying!"

Loan Shark Loses Appeal.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Daniel H. Tolman, known to many cities in the United States and Canada as "King of the Loan Sharks," must serve six months in jail for usury. The Supreme Court so decided yesterday in denying his appeal from conviction on Oct. 9 of having violated the law in charging a bonus of $5 for a $10 loan for three months. Although he may appeal to the Court of Appeals, the court decided that pending the outcome of such appeal he must be sent to jail.

NOTES ON NEWS BOOKS

Novels in Nut-shell

"THE PRINCE'S SHADOW"

By Baillie Saunders

(Hodder & Stoughton, $1.25.)

This is a sparkling and vigorous study of a morganatic romance—that of a Franco-Italian prince in exile in England in the "seventies." He meets a young photographer's assistant in a Dover studio. Clara Mullins, owing to a chance coincidence, conceives the idea that she is to be the lucky talisman of his broken fortunes. Half humorously half seriously, obsessed by this fantastic notion, he pursues her with his attentions, which she resists in fear and girlish scorn. They meet again by chance in London, where he is now living the pseudo-society life of Louis Napoleon in the 'fifties' and he renews his pursuit of the mascotte girl, now a fine young woman who, in her turn, has conceived and idealistic vision of a prince's calling to destiny, and will not stoop to the life tacitly offered her. She is eventually persuaded into a civil marriage with him, and from that moment the fortunes of Emmanuel Salvatori rise rapidly. At last his highest ambition is realized—he is offered the throne of a small country adjacent to Bohemia the Republic of Kreongaria. Eagerly he accepts, only to find that his new Constitution will not acknowledge the morganatic union, and demands that he shall make a royal marriage. This is the great testing of his character. What choice he makes; how the magnificently English Clara meets and faces this awful problem; how she is chivalrously loved by another man, who helps her through her fierce trial, is the central point of this story, and must be left to the reader to find out.

"THE UNWILLING ADVENTURER"

By Austin Freeman

(Hodder & Stoughton, $1.25.)

Robert Hawk, a young Kentish yeoman, falsely accused of a murder, flees from the law and falls into the hands of the press-gang. After some adventures on a sloop-of-war he is marooned on an uninhabited island, from which he makes his escape, to be picked up by a pirate schooner. From this too, he escapes with the captain—who is no conventional pirate, but a character quite new to fiction—boards a slaver, where presently he is confined to his berth and put in irons, but regains his liberty when the slaves break out and set fire to the ship. Finally he returns home to find a fortune and sweet Prudence Leigh awaiting him, and so in a jovial strain, the story ends.

"NOVEMBER JOE"

By Hesketh Prichard.

(Hodder & Stoughton, $1.25.)

"November Joe" is the one really original detective of recent fiction. He unravels the mysteries of the wilds. He lives the woodman's strenuous life. He can read the evidence of a handful of earth or a broken bough like an open book. The scenes of his exploits are not the crowded haunts of civilization, but the vast forests of Canada. The hero is of a type that is absolutely new. A youthful and apparently ingenuous Canadian woodsman, he is a detective, the brilliance of whose exploits rival those of Sherlock Holmes. His humorous adventures offer a fine field for the exercise of Mr. Prichard's ingenuity — a quality which, as everyone knows, is always predominant in his books. The Canadian background is sketched in with complete truth and accuracy.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

INVITING DISASTER

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—It is greatly to be regretted that those advancing the non-cooperative Laurier Navy do not see that they are dealing a severe blow to the principle of human brotherhood. If nations refuse to co-operate with each other on the ground that it is only manly to be free, etc., etc., of all entangling alliances even with our own kith and kin how are we ever to reach that happy state of universal unity of which so much is being said at present?

The Borden policy of co-operation, of arranging before-hand to act in matters of defence and not at the moment when confusion will render it useless, leads directly to the fulfilment of that principle of worldwide alliance in the cause of peace. The Laurier individualists will have much to answer for if they ever succeed in having Canada parade the seas inviting disaster.

NEW CONVENIENT TRAIN TO WINNIPEG

Canadian Pacific

The popularity of Canadian Pacific service, and the excellence of that road's equipment, has been so greatly appreciated by the travelling public that it has been found necessary to put into service an entirely new Through Standard Express Train between Toronto and Winnipeg.

Commencing Sunday, October 27th, the "Gate City Express" will leave Toronto at 2.30 p.m., and will run daily thereafter, arriving Winnipeg at 6.00 a.m. second morning. The train will consist of the highest-class modern equipment; Compartment Library Observation Car, Standard Sleeping Cars, Tourist Sleeping Car, Dining Car, First-class Coach and Colonist Car. This will be found the most convenient and best train between Toronto and Winnipeg on account of the daylight departure from Toronto at an hour when the Union Station is not badly congested, and also on account of the early hour of arrival at Winnipeg.

The present "Vancouver Express" will continue to leave Toronto at 10.20 p.m. daily and will consist of the same equipment as the "Gate City Express." This train is the best to take for points west of Winnipeg but for Winnipeg and east the "Gate City Express" is the right train to travel by.

Full particulars from any Canadian Pacific Agent, or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto. 50

Babies Suffocate In Shack.

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask., Oct. 25.—Two colored children, aged 16 and 28 months, were suffocated by smoke in a shack off Railway avenue, North Battleford. The mother, Mrs. Mark Daniels, left the children in a perambulator, apparently asleep, while she went up to the city. Shortly after smoke was noticed coming from the building. On the arrival of the fire brigade the perambulator containing the children was wheeled out, and both were dead.

Storm In Louisiana.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 24.—A terrific storm, that is reported to have taken at least nine lives, injured almost half a hundred persons, and done great property damage, swept over a narrow strip of southern Louisiana early yesterday.

New University Governor.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 25.—Arthur Little has been appointed to succeed his father, the late Lieut.-Col. White, as governor of the Western University. The board has recommended that Hon. Adam Beck and Philip Pocock be made governors.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

THE "DON'T" VICTIM.

No matter what you have to say
  Or what you want to do,
There 'pears to be some special "don't"
  Thet lies in wait fur you—
"Don't eat nor drink the things you like,"
  "Don't give your thoughts away,"
"Don't work too hard," "Don't be a drone,"
  "Don't worry," "Don't git gay!"

Whene'er, with energy renewed,
  You seek to make a start
Some "don't" bobs up to fit the case
  An' leaves you faint o' heart.
So here I be with little gained
  In worldly goods or fun.
I've been so busy mindin' "don'ts"
  I don't git nuthin' done!

Didn't Know Him.

A drill sergeant was drilling the recruit squad in the use of the rifle. Everything went smoothly until blank cartridges were distributed. The recruits were instructed to load their pieces and stand at the "ready," and then the sergeant gave the command:

"Fire at will!"

Private Lunn was puzzled. He lowered his gun.

"Which one is Will?" he asked.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine a mother can give her little ones. They are absolutely safe, being guaranteed by a government analyst to contain neither opiates, narcotics or other harmful drugs. They are good for all children from the newborn babe to the growing child. They cure constipation, indigestion, expel worms, break up colds and make teething easy. In fact they are a cure for all minor ills of little ones and a box should always be kept in the house as a safeguard against sudden attacks of stomach or bowel troubles. Mrs. J. P. Richards, St. Norbert, N.B., says: "I have found Baby's Own Tablets all that is claimed for them. My baby suffered from his stomach and bowels and the Tablets certainly did him good." They are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25c. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BY THE GREEN MONSTER

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

Janeway's business called him often away from home. One afternoon he returned from one of these trips glad to get back and, opening the door with his latchkey, went upstairs. In the upper hall he found himself face to face with a man he had never seen. He was well dressed, and Janeway, instead of taking him for a burglar and supposing there might be some mistake about his being there, awaited an explanation.

"I admit," said the man, "that this looks bad for your wife, but any man who will leave his wife at home for weeks, sometimes months at a time, deserves"—

"What do you mean, sir? Why are you in my house?"

"Come! Maintain your equanimity. Consider that by making a scandal you will injure not only yourself, but will ruin your wife's reputation."

Janeway was too paralyzed to speak. He simply glared at the man, who continued:

"Take your revenge on me, not on her. I will meet you at any time or place you wish and enable you to inflict vengeance upon me to your heart's content. I will give you an opportunity to do by me as, I confess, I would do by you under reversed similar circumstances. But the real cause of our quarrel need not be known. We can invent some pretext."

"Where is my wife?" thundered Janeway.

"For heaven's sake keep away from her, at least for awhile! In your present state of mind you are liable to commit murder."

Janeway hesitated. A fiery furnace was within him. He knew the man spoke the truth. It was all he could do to avoid clinching with him.

If he had had a weapon he would have killed him. But one idea took possession of him—to get away, somewhere, anywhere, that he might free himself from a temptation that would put him behind bars and might bring him to the scaffold. He turned, descended several steps, stopped short and said:

"Your name! And where can you be found?"

"Edmond Trowbridge, Calumet club."

Janeway stopped for no more. Descending the stairs that a few moments before he had mounted with such pleasurable expectation, he rushed through the hall to the front door and went out. What he did during the next hour he has never been able to distinctly recall. The time was occupied walking the streets, but what streets are a blank to him. His brain was in a turmoil. Should he find a friend and send him to the man who had ruined him with a challenge? Not yet. He was unwilling to give his confidence to any one. Should he go to his wife and hear what she had to say? Doubtless her visitor had told her what had occurred and she was prepared for the worst.

He was lost in wonder how the woman with whom he had lived happily for a dozen years could have so deceived him. Could this person who had done this thing really be his wife? Was he not asleep and suffering from a horrible nightmare? Was there not some mistake? Gradually his feelings so far subsided as to permit him to exercise common sense. What did common sense dictate as the first thing to do? Why, to go to his wife and hear her story.

It was 9 o'clock when he again opened his front door and stepped into the house.

"Is that you, dear?" came his wife's voice from upstairs. "Why are you so late? You telegraphed you would be home to dinner."

Janeway did not deign any reply to these remarks. He was trying to make up his mind to the disagreeable work before him. He staggered into the living room and, throwing himself into an easy chair, covered his face with his hands. Hearing a step in the hall he withdrew them and saw his wife, standing in the doorway gazing at him with a frightened look.

"Frank!" she said. "What under heaven is the matter?"

There was a ring at the telephone. She paid no attention to it, but, advancing, kneeled beside him and took his hand.

"Answer the phone," he said, in order to gain time.

Going to the instrument she took down the receiver. Then she said to her husband:

"It's the chief of police. He says a man has been brought in with articles on him with our name on them."

Janeway jumped from his chair as though raised by an electric shock. Rushing to the phone he snatched the receiver from his wife and called for a description of the man arrested. When he had heard he took her in his arms and hugged her till she cried out.

"What does it all mean?" she asked.

"I came home at 5 o'clock and found the thief here."

"When I was out? Why did you let him go?"

"He told me a cock and bull story."

"What story?"

"Why he said—he said—that you were dead and he was the undertaker come to measure you for your coffin."

"What assurance! Now I understand what you were suffering when I came into the room."

They clung together in an embrace. Fortunately for him there was no need for a confession.

GUARD THEIR HEALTH!

Children Who Grow Very Fast Need Careful Watching.

Next to infancy, the years between ten or twelve and eighteen are the most critical in life, especially for the boys and girls who grow too fast. Rapid growth and the physical changes that are taking place render them particularly liable to weakness and disorders of the digestive system, kidneys or lungs that very frequently, when allowed to run on, condemn them to a lifetime of suffering.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills would make her healthy and happy.

It is most important that at this period of life those organs which carry off the body's waste and impurities—the bowels, the kidneys and the skin—should be kept active and vigorous.

Nothing will do this more effectively than that good old-fashioned remedy, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills. It acts directly on each of these organs, enabling them to do their work properly, and thus keeps the whole system pure and healthy.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are still made from precisely the same formula as when our grandparents used them, for nothing better has ever been devised.

GIRLS WHO ARE PALE, NERVOUS

May Find Help in Mrs. Elston's Letter About Her Daughter.

Burlington, Iowa.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured my daughter of weakness. She was troubled almost a year with it and complained of backache, so that I thought she would be an invalid. She was entirely run down, pale, nervous and without appetite. I was very much discouraged but heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound through friends and now I praise it because it has cured my daughter."—Mrs. F. M. ELSTON, R. D. No. 3, Burlington, Iowa.

Case of Another Girl.

Scanlon, Minn.—"I used to be bothered with nervous spells, and would cry if anyone was cross to me. I got awful weak spells especially in the morning, and my appetite was poor. I also had a tender place in my right side which pained when I did any hard work. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and my symptoms all changed, and I am certainly feeling fine. I recommend it to every suffering woman or girl. You may use this letter for the good of others."—Miss ELLA OLSON, 171 5th St., Virginia, Minn.

Young Girls, Heed This Advice.

Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should immediately seek restoration to health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Definitions.

Man.—A two legged animal that spends most of his time trying to get something to put into his mouth.

Woman.—Impossible to classify. Habitat, bridge parties, theaters and cafes. Occupation, wearing the least possible amount of the best possible clothes.

Babies.—Necessary evils found everywhere except in certain flats and much more numerous in hovels than in mansions.

Music.—An invention of the ancients originally intended for pleasure, but which has degenerated into torture. (See phonograph.)

Courtesy.—At one time a mark of respect for women. Passed into oblivion with the advent of street cars.—Judge.

Woman's World

At the Wrist.

A very pretty finish for the end of the sleeve is in the shape of a fan. The entire sleeve is cut over a plain pattern, but when it nears the wrist the material is drawn in, so that the edge falls over the hand in fan shape. A piping of black velvet and a frill of lace peeping beneath add to the daintiness.

The sleeves slashed at the wrist are a fine accompaniment for slashed skirts. If the sides of the slash in the skirt are curved the same effect is seen in the sleeves. If they are cut off square they are treated so in the sleeves.

Deep cuffs are prominent on many long sleeves. Some are only three inches wide, while others reach the elbow.

Form Versus Food.

A famous humorist says that a new rich family in Cleveland, who were beginning to put on a lot of airs, hired a colored girl just arrived from the south to act as their serving maid. Her new mistress insisted that all meals should be served in courses. Even when there wasn't very much to eat it was brought to the table in courses.

At the end of the week the girl threw up her job. Being pressed for a reason for quitting so suddenly, she said:

"I'll tell you, lady. In dis yere house dere's too much shiftin' of de dishes fur de fewness of de vittles."

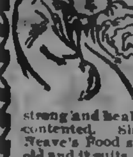
Harvard Women's Club.

Mothers, sisters, daughters and wives of men holding degrees from Harvard university are eligible to membership in the new Harvard Women's club. This is an outgrowth of the Harvard Dames, wives of the members of the faculty, organized in 1886. One of the past presidents of the Dames, Mrs. R. E. Hellman, will go with her husband to Iowa, he having been called to the university of that state, and many other members of the Dames are in other parts of the country; hence the establishing of the new club.

Farming For Women.

Mrs. Kate Trimble Woolsey of New York has a plan for women farmers. She says that intensive farming made it possible for 350 persons to be supported for a year on the proceeds of an acre in Japan. Mrs. Woolsey's idea is to have a central community house from which are to radiate little farms in all directions. These farms are to be run by women who would thus be saved from loneliness.

A scratch on polished furniture can be almost obliterated by rubbing vigorously with linseed oil.



Neave's Food

FOR INFANTS

What a Mother who has raised two fine boys on it says.

33 Boultbee Ave.,
Toronto, 29 March, 1913.

"In addition to our two sturdy boys, we have a dear little baby girl aged 5 months. Her name is Eva Muriel, and of course we are bringing her up entirely on Neave's Food, as we believe that to be the very best food in the world for babies. She is getting along fine and is strong and healthy, and so bright and contented. She has been fed on Neave's Food since she was two days old and it suits her admirably, as I am sure it would suit every other child if it was properly made. That little "Jack" I spoke of is such a sturdy little boy now. Neave's Food certainly saved his life." Mrs. J. W. PATEMAN.

Mothers and prospective mothers may obtain a free tin of Neave's Food and a valuable book "Hints About Baby" by writing Edwin Utley, 14 Front Street East, Toronto, Agent for Canada, and mentioning this paper. Neave's Food is sold in 1 lb. tins by all Druggists in Canada. 47

The warmest friends of Red Rose Tea are those who have tried some other brand said to be "as good as Red Rose." Very easy to say a thing is "as good" but not so easy to "make good." Will you try it.

RED ROSE TEA
"is good tea"

Salmon well minced and mixed with a yolk of egg and sufficient lemon, pepper and salt to season well, makes a delicious filling for sandwiches. It is equally good with white or brown bread.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Harbour Improvements at Port Hope, Ont.," will be received at this office until 4.00 P.M., on Monday, November 17th, 1913, for the construction of Harbour Improvements at Port Hope, Durham County, Ontario.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the office of J. G. Sing, Esq., District Engineer, Confederation Life Building, Toronto, Ont., and on application to the Postmaster at Port Hope, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted, the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

HOW HERB MILLER MET HIS DEATH

Was Splicing Cable and His Hand Struck Circuit Breaker

Died While Being Taken to the Hospital

The funeral of the late Herbert Miller will be held on Monday afternoon, at three o'clock, and not Sunday as stated in Friday's issue The following particulars as to his death are from the Winnipeg Free Press:

Short circuiting a current of 2,200 volts of electricity through his body while working on a cable at the top of a pole at the corner of Roslyn road and Osborne street at 3.15 yesterday afternoon Herbert Miller, 23 years of age, received a shock from which he died while on the way to the General Hospital shortly after. His parents reside in Peterborough. In his hip pocket were found a pair of rubber gloves which if worn would probably have saved his life.

Miller was engaged as a lineman by the Winnipeg civic light and power department, for which he had been working for the past year. He was at work splicing a 2,200 volt cable at the top of the 40 foot pole when his hand, covered only with a pair of light leather gloves, came in contact with a circuit breaker. The current went through his body and his hands were terribly burned, the palms of the gloves being burned to a crisp.

His partner, Jack H. Macdonald, No. 3 Empire block, who was working with him on top of the pole grasped Miller and seeing that he was in a serious condition, immediately fastened a rope around his body under his arms and lowered him to the ground, where he was taken in charge of by E. Thomas, 236 Carlton street, another lineman. He was unconscious. Thomas called to a woman to notify a policeman and soon Constable Johnston and Badgley and Sergeant Outerson were on the scene. Together with Dr. Mattice of the Roslyn Block they rendered first aid and the injured man was then removed to the hospital in the police ambulance. He was dead when he arrived there.

When the dead man's pockets were searched a pair of new rubber gloves were found in a hip pocket. Apparently, because of the cold or because he was not used to their newness and did not like to work with them he had not worn them, but used a pair of old leather gloves. His partners were also wearing leather gloves.

Miller's body was removed to Clark Bros. & Hughes' undertaking rooms to await orders from Coroner Rogers.

Miller lived in Peterborough Ont., for many years and received his education there. While going to school he became acquainted with a girl and the friendship grew to love. Letters contained in his pocket show that they had come to an agreement and were to be married shortly. Miller came to Winnipeg a year ago from Calgary, where he had worked for a short time. He has made his home while here at the Iroquois hotel.

Miller's fellow-workman, Jack Macdonald, showed rare presence of mind when he saw his companion in trouble. He kept his head and did not lose a second in getting Miller to the ground.

WHERE ARE THE PARENTS? WORK FOR CHILDREN'S AID

A Reader Makes Some Comments as to Actions of Young People on the Streets

To The Editor of The Review.

Dear Sir— Upon reading in The Review the humane appeals, on behalf of the Children's Aid Society, for aid on Tag-Day, I am moved to call attention to those neglected children, who, daily and nightly, frequent a certain resort in this city, open as it is to all idlers and blackguards of both sexes, who choose to loiter there. These children are worse than homeless; for if they were homeless they might be helped in the Shelter, where they would be subject to care and discipline they do not get now. The bad environment and example mentioned in The Review on Thursday last, as tending to the development of corrupt and criminal tendencies in children are surely evident at the resort mentioned. In and about it we see little boys loiter afternoon and evening, often as late as 10 o'clock — many of them were infants. They smoke cigarettes, and witness fights and other blackguard behavior common among the older boys, and idle young men present. Their baby voices are heard in profane and vile language, which only the rowdy example about them could inspire or teach. What environment for children could be worse?

Children subjected as these are to excitement, loss of sleep, bad company and the inclemencies of the weather cannot grow strong, neither physically nor mentally. They would be better at home no matter what sort of a home it is.

Many of these little fellows, though schooled in rowdyism, have not yet lost all the childish innocence natural to their years— the mark of the divine in their natures. The admonition of Christ seems appealingly appropriate to them. "Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones, for I say unto you, that in heaven their angels do always behold the face of My Father which is in heaven.'

Unprotected girls are in even greater danger. Regarding the white slave traffic is might be said that the handwriting is already upon the wall for those who do not refuse to see it.

There is strange inconsistency between the energetic activities of the churches toward foreign missions and the neglect of our young people at home. We learn through our daily papers and other sources that very young girls are seen at late hours in company with middle aged men in residential parts of our city, which are not patrolled by the police.

When the need of vigilance over the young is so apparent, and the city cannot bear the expense of increased police force, is it not humane, business like and Christian to expect the churches, out of the large sums collected for missionary purposes, to furnish proper officials, either men or women, to patrol the parts of the city where the danger is greatest. The situation, as acknowledged by those who know is dangerous and in need of attention. The children referred to are neglected in a three-fold sense, by the home the church and the city. It was to benefit these that the amendment to the Children's Protection Act was enacted, which, if enforced, would ensure in a measure their safety, at least, after 9 o'clock.

Parents have been justly criticised for neglecting their children, but those of us who are not guilty of this neglect, have the bad example of unrestrained rowdyism indulged in daily and nightly before our very doors. For the sake of our children as well as freedom from annoyance for ourselves, we think we have a right to expect those in authority to enforce the curfew law, and regulate or abolish unfit resorts for children.

We hope those good persons who displayed so great an interest in the success of tag-day, will not refuse the opportunity on behalf of children which the present situation offers.

READING AND ITS PLEASURES

Biography Part II

No greater mistake can be made than to regard the title of a book as an accurate index to its contents. This caution holds good in Biography. Take for instance, 'The Heart of Ashbury's Journal." What can that title possibly convey to the mind of anyone ignorant of the early histroy of Methodism in America? Absolutely nothing. On opening the volume, however, one finds it to be the cream of the journal of Francis Ashbury, first bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church in America, who for no less a period than forty-five years acted as a peripatetic preacher, working sedulously for the establishment of that church. Opinion may vary as to his claim to rank in the Apostolic Succession, but all must agree as to the beauty of his character, and the self-denial that marked his whole career. There is a succinct account of Ashbury in a little volume entitled "Bright and Shining Lights," which is also to be found in the Biographical section.

GALAXY OF POETS.

In "Personal Traits of British Authors" one lights on a veritable feast of reading. It deals with almost every writer of note, poet, prose-writer or novelist, who flourished in the late Georgian and early Victorian days. Shelley, Wilson, Wordsworth, the Brontes, Coleridge, Byron, Lamb, in fact, the whole glittering galaxy is made to pass in review before us. Sydney Smith is there with his inexhaustible fund of humor and animal spirits; Walter Savage Landor (the original of Lawrence Boythorne in 'Bleak House") that strange medley of ungovernable fury and tenderness, who lived in a perfect maelstrom of quarrels with friends, and estrangements from his family and libel suits with his enemies. DeQuincey also, whose "Confessions of an Opium-eater" ranks in regard to style and eloquence amongst the most remarkable products of English literature. Here too we are brought face to face with Hogg, the Ettrick Shepherd, not the least interesting amongst the wonderful personalities of that period. Hogg was a man, who, bred in a humble sphere of life, raised himself by his own exertions to a level with the noted literati of the day. He did not learn to read till he had attained the age of eighteen, nor to write till a much later date. When he did start he labored long and eagerly and one can picture him, seated on the bleak hill-side, using his knees as a desk, his ink-horn suspended from a button of his clothing, copying the Italian alphabet. In his twenty-sixth year he first essayed to write verses and seems to have looked on the occupation as a sort of wrestling bout, for we are told that he always took off his coat and waistcoat for the undertaking. It was not till his fortieth year that he commenced his career as a man of letters. We are given an insight into Hogg's character and his rough upbringing in an account of a dinner party in Edinburgh to which he was invited to meet Byron and a distinguished and aristocratic company. He arrived "reeking with the unsavoury odours of sheep and pigs and oxen, in whose company he had been for hours. Nevertheless he soon made himself at home with the fair ladies on each side of him; somewhat too much so; for supper over, the cloth withdrawn and the toddy introduced, the song going round and his next door neighbours being too languid in their manner of joining in the chorus to please him, he turned first to the right hand, then to the left and slapped both of them on their backs with such good-will as to make their blade-bones ring again; then with the yell of an Ojibway Indian he shouted out "Now then, leddies, follow me! Heigh, tutti! tutti! Heigh, tutti! tutti!

BEAUX AND OTHERS.

For those tastes lie in the direction of light and gossipy biography "The Wits and Beaux of Society" will introduce them to Beau Nash, Beau Fielding, the Earl of Chesterfield, Scarron, Congreve, Walpole, Selwyn, Sheridan, Hook and many others. It is a mine of information concerning the more famous of a long departed race of society butterflies.

"Stories of Remarkable Persons" deals with several historical characters, among others Taylor, the Water-Poet of whom so little is known by the average reader notwithstanding the fact that references to him are constantly met with in one's daily reading. Years ago, there lived in Clifton, England, an old man of the name of Gabbitass. He had a stall on the Suspension Bridge where he sold leaflets of his won poetry or wrote verses for you whilst you waited. No subject came amiss. He was just as willing to rhyme away on the hidden mysteries of Creation as on the last speech of Gladstone, or the Oxford and Cambridge boat-race. As a boy I knew him well and remember distinctly looking upon him as a genius of the first order. Some years afterwards I came upon a specimen of his lucubrations and regret to say that a re-perusal of it lowered him sadly in my eyes. Such a man as this was Taylor, the Water-Poet, who received his name and title from no less a person than King James I—for what reason it is hard to conceive. The distinction conferred upon him was "The King's Majesties' Water Poet and Queen's Waterman." Taylor was a London waterman, but he varied this employment by frequent incursions into the realm of poesy and was ready to write for anyone at any time, anything from an elegy to an anagram. His most noted production is entitled "The Pennylesse Pilgrimage" and is an account of a journey on foot made by him from London to Edinburgh. He published his account of his travels by subscription, much in the style of some present day authors, and seems to have had trouble in collecting money from certain of his so-called patrons for in 1619 he issued a satirical poem taking them to task. It was entitled "A Kicksey Winsey; or a Leary-come-Twang: wherein John Taylor hath suited. Eight hundred of his bad debtors that will not pay him for his return of his Journey from Scotland Other well-known characters mentioned in "Stories of Remarkable Persons" are William and Dorothy Wordsworth Camille Desmoulins, Thomas Edward the Scotch shoemaker and naturalist, Horace Greeley, the Astor family, the Herschels, DeLesseps and A. T. Stewart, the New York merchant.

GEORGE BORROW

"Brief Biographies" by Samuel Smiles, gives short description of no less than 35 notables in the fields of literature, science, art, statesmanship and philantropy. Amongst others it introduces us to that strange personality, George Borrow the author of the "Bible in Spain" 'The Romany Rye" and "Lavengro" The last named work is professed by autobiography of the author but is in reality, as Smiles very aptly describes it, "a kind of poetic rhapsody" where fact is liberally mixed with fiction. To quote further from Smiles: "Here was a travelling missionary of the Bible Society, who knew all about gipsy life and lingo, was familiar with the lowest haunts of field thieves and mendicants and up to all their gibberish; a horse sorcerer and whisperer, a student of pugilism under Thurtell and himself no mean practitioner in the "noble art of self-defence," but withal a man of the most varied intellectual gifts and accomplishments—a philologist or wordmaster —"knowing nearly every language in Europe and the East— a racy and original writer with the force of Cobbett and the learning of Parr— the translator of the Bible or parts of it into Mantchu, Basque, Rommany or Gipsy tongue and many other languages, and of old Danish ballads into English—a person of fascinating conversation and of powerful eloquence. Fancy these varied gifts embodied in a man standing six feet two in his stocking soles, his frame one of iron, his daring and intrepidity unmatched and you have placed before your mind's eye George Borrow, the Bible missionary the Gipsy Hogarth Lavengro the word-painter."

"Borrow's Life," (2 vols.,) and all of Borrow's books, save his earliest "The gypsies of Spain" are to be found in the Library.

LIFE'S SUNSHINE

Gladdens Those Who Regain New Health and Strength

When the glow of health comes back to sallow cheeks; when languid weakness gives place to vigor; when oyu notice some pale, exhausted invalid restored to active health—enquire. More than likely you will find the cure to have been yet another of the thousands already wrought by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Headache and neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance and twitching of the limbs, indigestion and rheumatism, eczema and disfiguring eruptions, and the ailments of growing girls and women all disappear when the veins are filled with the new, rich red blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make. Here is one instance among thousands; Mr. F Ashford, Haileybury, Ont., says: "Some years ago I completed a lengthy term of service in India, the last three years being spent in the beautiful but treacherous Poshawar Valley. Ague and degue fever were rife, and although I was fortunate enough to escape a severe attack of either, on my return home it soon became apparent that the enervating climatic conditions had left their ravages on my constitution. In short the reaction had set in, and inexorable nature was exacting a severe toll from years of strenuous labor. My first warning of the impending breakdown were severe pains in the back of the head and eyes, insomina, irritability, a general anaemic condition and an indefinable nervousness Life had lost its zest, work became impossible and companionship intolerable. It really seemed that I was swiftly passing to that stage where nervousness ends and insanity begins, when by chance I read an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I confess I was skeptical of them doing what doctors had failed to do, but concluded that the cost was small, and perhaps, the chance in their favor, and so decided to try them. To my joy there was soon an improvement, and a continuance of the treatment effected a complete cure. I was now as fit and as healthy as any man and am ever grateful that the lucky perusal of an advertisement brought to my notice the wonderful curative properties of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

BROOKLYN TABERNACLE BIBLE STUDY ON A GOOD MAN'S SIN.

—October 26.—Numbers 20:1-13.—

"Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in Thy sight, O Lord, my Strength, and my Redeemer."—Psalm 91:14.

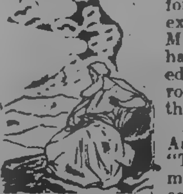
FOR thirty-eight years the Israelites resided in the wilderness, making Kadesh-Barnea their camp centre, but occupying a considerable portion of the wilderness with their flocks and herds. In April of the fortieth year after leaving Egypt, by Divine command through Moses, they assembled at Kadesh, prepared to enter the Land of Promise.

But the water supply was scant. Murmurings arose, and inquiries whether it were not as well to have perished in Egypt or elsewhere as to perish there from thirst. Moses and Aaron went to the Lord with the matter, desiring Divine guidance.

"The glory of the Lord appeared unto them." This glory is surmised to have been a ray of light emanating from the Mercy Seat in the Most Holy. They were instructed to take the rod, presumably "Aaron's rod that budded," and that was kept in the Ark in the Most Holy. That rod would remind the people of the Lord's special acceptance of Aaron as the high priest and Moses' assistant. It would be a sign of the Divine favor that hitherto had guided them, and that would continue to guide all who trusted in the Lord.

Smiting the Rock a Sin.

The Lord particularly directed that Moses should speak to the rock; and that in response waters would rush forth. About thirty-eight years before, in a similar experience near Mt. Sinai, Moses had been instructed to smite the rock, but not in this case.



Moses views the land.

Here Moses and Aaron sinned. "The meekest man in all the earth" forgot himself, and allowed a spirit somewhat akin to pride, self-sufficiency and anger to control him for a moment. Smiting the rock, he cried aloud to the people, "Ye rebels, must I bring you water out of the rock?"

The water indeed came forth, as the Lord had promised. The people indeed got the blessing needed, but one of God's most illustrious servants fell under Divine disapprobation. The Lord's decree was that neither Moses nor his brother should enter Canaan. Moses, however, was permitted to go with the people to their journey's end, and then from Mt. Nebo to see the land across the Jordan.

This condemnation does not signify Divine reprobation to eternal torment or to any lasting dishonor. Moses got his entire punishment then and there, before death, as do all of God's saintly ones. Whatever stripes, chastisements, punishments, of the future shall be meted out to mankind in general because of wrong-doings in the present life, there are none reserved for the saints.

They Drank of the Rock—Christ.

St. Paul points out that the smiting of the rock was symbolical. The refreshing water from the rock symbolized the blessings flowing from Christ's sacrifice. The smiting of the rock at the beginning of Israel's experience was authorized of God. It was necessary that upon Jesus should fall the rod of affliction, even unto death.—Isaiah 53 5, 6.

Just what was symbolized by the second smiting, which God did not authorize, is not explain by St. Paul. The fact that it was punished indicates that it was wrong, and that it symbolizes some improper course on the part of the professed people of God. Two suggestions come to us, either or both of which may be applicable.

(1) This second smiting, just as the people were about to be led into the Promised Land, may symbolize a smiting of the Body of Christ, the Church. A number of Scriptures appertaining to the Gospel Age give the inference that some of the saintly members of the Body of Christ at the end of the Age will be put to shame, or perhaps to death—and thus enter into glory, as did the Master.

Moses made a brazen serpent.

(2) The other thought is that any denial of the Redeemer on the part of His consecrated followers signifies a crucifying afresh, a putting to shame, a smiting of the Rock a second time. St. Paul explains that such a repudiation by those once enlightened would mean unworthiness of any place in the Heavenly Kingdom—they would die the Second Death.

The fact that neither Moses nor Aaron entered Canaan signifies that the very highest dignitaries and most enlightened members of the Royal Priesthood might be in danger of committing the sin typified—the second and unauthorized smiting of the Rock. There never was a time when the honesty and the faithfulness of the Lord's servants was more severely tested than now.

The time came for entering Canaan. The nearest route from Kadesh was through Edom. Permission to cross Edom being refused, Israel detoured south, and passed through Moab. This detour was disheartening. Again there was murmuring against Moses, who really represented God to Israel.

The murmurings of the people were promptly punished. They were not protected from the serpents prevailing in that vicinity. Many died. Then Moses made a brazen serpent and erected it upon a pole. Throughout the Camp went messages, directing the people to look at the brazen serpent, exercise faith and be healed.

OUR first range was a Peerless too

Pure white porcelain oven and fuel doors. All nickel warming-closet-door. Adjustable damper. Broiling and toasting lever. Sliding top-section.

—and she has it yet. The Peerless of to-day is of course a much better range than the one grandmother bought. Looks better. Cooks better. And uses less coal. The oven is of quick-heating steel—the flues perfectly proportioned—all of which saves fuel. The doors drop, forming shelves to draw out the cooking dishes. The top raises for broiling. The grates work without sticking. And the appearance! Grandmother admires the new Peerless with its plain heavy nickel and its pure white porcelain doors. But yet—she clings to her own Peerless. The faithful old companion of her earlier culinary adventures still has—and always will have—a place in her home.

TWELVE YEARS HORRIBLE TORTURE

Ontario Lady Suffered Tortures for 12 Years with Burning Eczema. "Fruit-a-tives" and "Sootha-Salva" Completely Cured Her.

MISS LAURA E. MATTICE

NEWINGTON ONT., Jan. 21st. 1913

"I was a dreadful sufferer from that awful complaint Eczema, or Salt Rheum, and this trouble bothered me for about 12 years. My hands and arms were chiefly attacked, and the pain and irritation were terrible. I consulted several doctors and tried every remedy I heard of, but nothing did me any good. Last June, when in Ottawa, a friend asked me to try "Sootha-Salva" Ointment and to take "Fruit-a-tives" at the same time. I had little hopes that this would be any better than the other remedies, but after I had taken two boxes of "Fruit-a-tives" and used one box of "Sootha-Salva", I was entirely cured and all the irritation and annoyance left me. My hands have been, ever since, perfectly free from the Salt Rheum, and I have had no return of the disease. I look upon the cure as wonderful, inasmuch as no physician was able to cure me, and I had tried every remedy that I had been told about, yet without the slightest benefit, until I used "Sootha-Salva" Ointment and took "Fruit-a-tives". "Fruit-a-tives" cooled the blood, and practically relieved the disease and the Ointment completed the cure.

I cannot sufficiently thank the proprietors of these medicines for my relief and I make this statement with the hope that some sufferers from Chronic Eczema or Salt Rheum, will read my testimony and try this wonderful ointment and "Fruit-a-tives", and get well. No one can estimate the torture of this terrible disease who has not suffered from it, and I want the good news, that a remedy has been found, to be known everywhere".

(Miss) LAURA E. MATTICE

"Fruit-a-tives" and "Sootha-Salva" will cure any case of Eczema, no matter how severe or how long you have suffered. Eczema is caused by impure blood, chronic indigestion, constipation and nervousness, but there is usually a tiny parasite or germ which attacks the skin and causes the burning and itching. "Fruit-a-tives" removes all impurities from the blood, tones up the stomach, improves digestion, and regulates the bowels. "Sootha-Salva" kills the germs of Eczema, allays the burning and inflammation, and stops the intense itching. If you are suffering with Eczema, no matter what you have tried for it, take the advice of Miss Mattice and use the wonderful combination of "Fruit-a-tives" and "Sootha-Salva".

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. "Sootha-Salva" is 50c box. Sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

SIX LIVES LOST.

Gas Oven Explodes In New York and Building Is Destroyed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—A gas oven in which metal was being enamelled on the top floor of a six-storey factory building in Canal street, exploded yesterday, killing six persons. More than a score of others were injured or burned in the fire that succeeded the explosion and some of them may die. The identity of the dead was not known many hours after the bodies had been removed to the morgue. Three of the killed were women. All were workers in the building.

Searchlights played on the ruins last night while firemen sought for more bodies which it was thought might have been overlooked when entry into the building was effected after the flames had been brought under control, but at nine o'clock, after six bodies had been removed, it was believed all the dead had been found. The district attorney's office began an investigation. About 200 persons were employed in the building, which was occupied by manufacturers of machinery, mirrors, clothing and other goods.

The escape of some of the trapped workers was spectacular. With their clothing ablaze they climbed through flame-swept windows on to fire-escapes and leaped to the sidewalks. Many were badly injured by the drop from upper floors. Spectators beat out the flames from their clothing and saved them from burning to death.

A floor covering of good linoleum should hold its own for at least five years. It needs no soap, ammonia or any strong cleansing agent. A simple wiping with a cloth, just moist with warm water is all that is needed.

L. J. PETTIT PRESIDENT

Of Local Teachers Institute — Mr. M. H. Park Sec. Treas.

The Teachers' Convention was brought to a close this morning at the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute after a most instructive and interesting session.

This morning's session opened with Mr. W. H. Walkey presiding. The minutes of the last convention were read and approved, after which the treasurer's report was presented, showing a balance of $193.87 to the credit of the Association. Miss Elliott and Mr. Yenney, the delegates to the O. E. A. Convention, gave comprehensive reports. Mr. Yenney's criticism of the lack of business methods in the general association and the tardiness of the public school section evoked an inresting discussion and ended in a commitee being appointed o draft a resolution and to send it to other Teachers' Institutes in the Province, suggesting that the voting members of the public school section be credited members from the Teachers' Institutes.

The Library Committee asked for an additional grant and suggested that the Institute pay fifty cents towards the subscription of certain magazines for the teachers, and that certain other magazines be purchased for each school.

The election of the officers resulted as follows:

President— L. J. Pettit, B.A.
Vice President— Miss E. L. Thomas
Sec. Treasurer— Mr. M. H. Park.
Executive Committee— Miss O'Connell, Sister Demetrie, Mr. Roszell, Miss Jean Jackson, Miss Stubbs, Mr. Morris.
Auditors— Mr. C. E. Jamieson, Mr. Voaden
Representatives to O. E. A. Convention— Miss Cunnings and Mr. Kerr.
Representative on Library Board— Mr. W. J. Firth.

Yesterday afternoon's session opened with Mr. Walkey in the chair and a discussion on modern methods in geography, after which Mr. N. Clark B.A., dealt with the subject of "Entrance Literature." Considerable enthusiasm was evinced in the lecture on "School Hygiene," by D. White, B.A., of the Toronto Normal school.

Mr R. G. Lawlor, B.A., Principal of the Norwood High School gave several valuable illustrations in dealing with the subject of the "Rural Teachers relations to the Cityward Tend."

MISSION BAND ENTERTAINED JUNIOR LEAGUE

The Fidelis Mission Band of the George street Methodist, entertained the members of the Junior League in the lecture hall, last night, and a very enjoyable evening was spent. The gathering numbered about sixty, and at the close of the program refreshments were served. The winners of a guessing contest were: Evelyn McKin, Mary Gardiner, Phylis Young, Mrs. Peever, Howard Copt and Wallace Simpson. Mrs. Lewis won the booby prize.

The program was as follows:

Solo— Clanisa Hinds.
Piano Duet— Mable and Mary Gardener.
Piano Solo— Florence Johnston.
Readings— Josephine McGill, Eva Stewart, Hazel Outram, Laura Gardener, Lottie Hamilton.

So many different varieties of tunics are fashionable this season that a choice depends only on which is most becoming. Long, short, pointed, cutaway, pleated or puffed—all are conservative rivals to the extreme wire edged minaret models which are reserved for special occasions and elaborate dresses. Women seem to have the same secret satisfaction in wearing tunic styles that a man has when he has donned a frock coat.

A gown with a tunic of some kind seems much more elaborate than one that has not. Lacking a tunic, it immediately takes on the informal look of a one piece dress. Now that simplicity has disappeared from feminine apparel the one piece dress is relegated to morning wear, and a much more elegant type of gown has taken its place for afternoon, to be worn with the lovely long and short coats, according to whether one goes afoot or not.

Charmeuse is still in style for afternoon gowns, though a crêpe satin is rapidly replacing it. Velvet is very fashionable, and there is a type of velvet as thin as a supple cloth that drapes beautifully. Faille and Ottoman weaves are used, made so that they are very soft and supple. Taffeta is more in vogue in Paris than in America. Velvet and satin are combined more often than used separately, but of course this has to be done in artistic proportions not to look patchy.

Tunics of tulle are posed over satin or velvet brocade foundation dresses and have a certain illusive and barbaric charm. In thinner dresses lace tunics are posed over or lined with satin. A unique combination is a draped skirt of mousseline de soie lined only with chiffon, with a waistless tunic of velvet, hemmed with the [illegible] line, all in rich ruby coloring. The belt is also of the velvet. Above, the transparent shoulder and sleeve covering are of flesh colored chiffon. Such dresses, of course, are extreme, to be worn by those who are sure they can carry them off with an air of ease and grace and without vulgarity.

A very conservative, yet up to date tunic, is shown here; it descends into two long points in the back that almost touch the hem. Both tunic and skirt are of one of the warm yellow autumn leaf shades that are now the vogue; embroideries are in black and gold. The skirt [illegible] movement in the [illegible] that [illegible] in [illegible] At the [illegible] of the [illegible] the embroidery is placed just above the belt. A cutaway tunic is used on another frock shown here. The gown and tunic both are of black satin; the skirt, slashed in front, is buttoned down to a little below the knee, filled in with a black lace scant flounce, veiling the ankles. A red moiré sash ties in front in a bow wider even than the waist, with short ends. White satin revers are embroidered in vivid colors; buttons and overbound buttonholes are of white satin.

A quaint simple little taffeta frock has a puffed tunic of the same material. The skirt is pulled up slightly in the centre front to get the correct contour, though the hem is even. The tunic, puffed on the lower edge, is pleated into the waist line. The girdle is cleverly combined with the surplice top to look like the lower edge of a bolero. A pretty touch to the drop shoulder sleeves is the wrist shaping. This is done by taking some little vertical tucks in the sleeve to shape it to the wrist, covering them with a smart little double looped bow.

White tulle frills and a little inside fichu finish the V shaped décolleté.

A striking contrast is the white velvet vest-like bolero on original lines, sleeveless and posed over a black velvet dress. The skirt crosses and drapes in the front, folding into long pleats in the waist line. The pleated satin tunic drops into a point at the back.

Simulating a tunic, some of the most recent models have yokes that seem to be a continuation of the waist. These new yokes generally follow cutaway coat lines, into which the skirt is fulled, and are shorter than hip depth so that the fulness of the lower skirt will enlarge the hips to the vase-like contour demanded by present styles.

Sleeves are more often long than short on these daytime gowns and the transparent tops that were so much a part of [illegible] last year are missing in the newer models. The V-shaped corsage finish remains, but there are many variations on this theme. Sleeves are often of another color and texture from the tunic; sometimes the loose sleeve is gathered in at the wrist, sometimes the plain long fitted sleeve has a little dainty tulle frill peeping out from below.

When the tunic is not used on an afternoon gown, the cutaway coat is often cut in this form.

"THE PREMIER" HOTEL AT PRINCE RUPERT

Within a few months Prince Rupert, B.C., the Pacific Coast terminus of the Grand Trunk Railway will have its first permanent hotel building. This will be "The Premier," now well advanced in construction, and which is being completed as quickly as possible. The building is the first modern fireproof, brick, steel and concrete hotel ever erected north of Vancouver, in either Canadian or American territory. The building has a frontage of 50 feet on Second Ave and 100 feet on Sixth St., and overlooks the Grand Trunk Pacific reserve which is to be laid out in a park. The hotel is five stories high and contains eighty bedrooms with hot and cold running water in every room, the majority of the rooms being furnished with private baths. The cost of the building is $100,000 and before the spring of 1914 the hotel will be in operation and open for the reception of guests. 50

CHANGE OF CLIMATE DID NOT HELP

But GIN PILLS Conquered His Rheumatism

THE fact that men of standing and responsibility do not hesitate to come out and state frankly how much good GIN PILLS have done them, speaks volumes for this good old remedy.

Mr. W. G. Reid, of Hamilton, whose statement we publish below, with his permission, is one of the best known commercial men in Canada. His many friends throughout the country will be delighted to learn that he is quite himself again. He says:

"I have been for the last two years a cripple with Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I have tried almost everything known to medical science to relieve me of the intense pain and inflammation. I sought change of climate in Kentucky and other Southern points without relief. Your manager in this city recommended GIN PILLS and I have since taken eight boxes and am now cured. I consider GIN PILLS the conqueror of Rheumatism and Kidney Disease".

(Signed) W. G. REID.

Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica and all other troubles arising from weak, inactive or diseased kidneys, have little chance against GIN PILLS.

The curative properties in these pills go straight to the root of the trouble—the failure of the kidneys to keep the blood free from the irritating Uric Acid which is continually being formed in the body. GIN PILLS help the Kidneys to perform this function properly, and the train of troubles vanish.

Just try it and prove it to your own satisfaction. There is no risk—money back if GIN PILLS do not help you.

RAINFALL IN PETERBORO

Only 18 1-4 Inches for This Year

CONSERVATION

The rainfall in Peterboro for this year up to the last week in October is not more than 18 1-4 inches. The average rainfall is 32 1-2 inches Last year the rainfall was nearly 40 inches.

This year the mark in the rainfall was away low and this will no doubt account for much of the trouble on the river. It shows also the great necessity of conservation If we want to be able to conserve the water for a steady flow we have got to make provisions. Running the water out in the spring will leave us with an empty pail in the autumn of such years as 1913.

RECORD WEEK FOR MARKS CO.

When the May A. Bell Marks Co. closes the local engagement at the Grand to-night, in the neighborhood of $2,000 will have been taken in at the box office. This is a record for the Company in Peterborough. The presentation of "Wife in Name Only" was well received last night, as were also the amateur performances. "The Ranch Queen" is the bill for to-night.

Music and Drama

The annual concert given by the music pupils of St. Mary's Convent, held last night in St. Alphonsus Lyceum, proved to be a decided success in every way and in particular, as it brought to light one of Canada's most promising violinists, in the person of Miss Mignon Telgmann, formerly of Kingston, but at present on the teaching staff of St. Mary's Convent His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, D.D., remarked in addressing the audience that the staff was indeed fortunate in having such a master of the violin among its number. This young artiste has surely imbibed the talent of her father, who was at one time recognized as one of the greatest masters of this soul-stirring instrument. Her entrancing rendition of the "Angel's Lullaby" left very pleasant memories in the minds of all present.

The Sisters of St. Joseph, under whose careful tutleage the pupils were trained along the musical lines, both instrumental and vocal, are to be highly complimented. During the past year, one pupil, Miss Bernice Giroux, who needs no introduction to local music lovers, received her diploma enabling her to be termed, "Associate Toronto College of Music." Very Rev. Dean McColl, in complimenting Miss Giroux, said that it gave him very great pleasure to see the pupils not only become cultured, but pursuing this art to such an extent as to receive a degree, and thereby be among the recognized masters. Miss Giroux was presented with a bouquet after her rendering of "Marche Triumphale." Miss Teresa McNamara, who took fist-class honors in third year piano, was presented with the gold medal donated by Very Rev. Dean McColl, and was also made the recipient of a bouquet. The following is a complete list of the prizes awarded:

Testimonial awarded to Alma La Fountain for Pimary Piano Examination.

Testimonial awarded to Kathleen Burke for Primary Piano with honors.

Testimonial awarded to Annie O'Brien for Prrimarry Piano with honors.

Testimonial awarded to Francis Connor for Primary Piano with honors.

Testimonial and prize awarded to Genevieve McCarthy for Primary Piano with first class honors.

Testimonial awarded to Marguerite Weatherhead for Senior First Prize with honors.

Testimonial awarded to Agnes Grant for Senior First Piano with first-class honors.

Testimonial awarded to Mamie Allen for first year vocal with honors.

Testimonial awarded to Harriette Pierce for first year Harmony and History with first-class honors.

Testimonial awarded to Mary Crough for Senior Second Piano.

Testimonial awarded to Beatrice Malane for Senior Second Piano with honors.

Testimonial awarded to Mary Quinlan for Second Year Vocal with honors.

Testimonial and prize awarded to Lillian Hill for Senior Second Piano with first-class honors.

Testimonial and prize awarded to Winnie Connor for senior Piano with first class honors.

Testimonial awarded to Teresa McNamara for Third Year Piano with first-class honors, also Gold Medal, presented by Very Rev. Dean McColl.

Diploma awarded to Bernice Giroux entitling her to be termed, "Associate Toronto College of Music."

The various prizes won at the entrance examinations were also donated, namely:

Five Dollars in Gold, presented by Mr. James Lynch. Awarded to Helen Halstead for highest standing in Entrance Exam.

Five Dollars in Gold, presented by Mr. James Lynch. Awarded to Tom Rutherford for highest standing of Catholic boys in Entrance Exam.

Five Dollars in Gold, presented by Rev. Father Fitzpatrick. Awarded to Tom Rutherford for highest standing of St. Peter's School candidates in Entrance Examinations.

Short addresses were made by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, D.D.; Vicar-General Casey and Very Rev. Dean McColl, all congratulating the Sisters and staff of the Convent on their excellent work, and complimenting the pupils on their good showing, urging them to further pursue this art and become masters of it, so that in years to come the St. Mary's Convent may become even more prominent as a school of music.

The following musical program was rendered, every number of which was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience, which embraced relatives and all those interested in the pupils:

MORNING MUSICAL SOCIETY.

The second meeting of "The Morning Musical Society" was held at Mrs. Fessneden's on Thursday last

A most interesting paper on Sir Edward Elgar, the eminent English composer, was read by Mrs. Allan; after which several numbers of his works were ably rendered by members, the program being as follows:

Paper—Mrs. Allan
Song—Miss Ruby Quartermaine.
Violin Solo—Mrs. Boyd
Song, Salut D'Amour—Mrs. Massey-Cooke.
Piano solo, Minuet—Miss Fair.
Duet, Pomp and Circumstance — Mrs. Gliddon and Miss Gladman

The next meeting will be held on Thursday, November 6th, at Mrs. W. H Hill's, Bethune street, when Mendelsshon will be the master studied.

LITTLE—GREGG.

At the home of Mrs. Gregg, on October 23rd, a quiet but pretty wedding was held, the occasion being the marriage of her daughter, Miss E. A Gregg to Mr. S. J. Little, of Toronto. Very pretty in a gown of lace over white satin and with a bouquet of chrysanthemums the bride was given away by her uncle, Mr. W. R. Ashworth. The Rev. Mr Turnbull conducted the services, about 50 guests being present. The high esteem in which Mr and Mrs. Little are held was marked by the many beautiful gifts they received.—Guelph Herald.

Probably the most exacting court in Europe from a social standpoint is that of Vienna, and for this reason the wife of the American ambassador to Austria has a peculiarly difficult role to fill

Mrs Frederic C. Penfield, wife of the recently appointed representative from this country, has nothing to fear on this score, as she is the possessor of unusual social qualities. Besides this she is an accomplished linguist, speaking Italian, French, German and Spanish fluently.

Mrs. Penfield, too, is keenly appreciative of good music and her brilliant musicales have long been a theme of admiring comment in New York society.

Before her marriage to Mr. Penfield, the distinguished author, diplomatist and traveler several years ago, Mrs Penfield was the widow Weightman Walker, and the only surviving child of the late William Weightman of Philadelphia, whose entire fortune of $70,000,000 descended to his daughter.

Mrs. Penfield is very charitable, and for her benefactions in the cause of Catholic education, especially to the American college at Rome, she has been created a marchioness by the pope.

The Penfield home in New York city is a veritable museum of art, and among the art objects are wonderful collections of pictures, fans, miniatures, ivories and laces. One room is devoted to works by the English painter of the eighteenth century, George Morland.

MINE WORKERS ENGAGE IN CONFLICT WITH POLICE

Firing is Kept up Between Mine Guards and Workmen and Two Are Reported Killed—Seven Hundred Armed Miners Are in the Field and Communication With a Number of Camps is Cut Off.

LUDLOW, Colo., Oct. 27.—A general battle between strikers, mine guards and deputy sheriffs, was waged for twelve hours yesterday in Berwin Canyon at Hastings and in the vicinity of the Colorado and southern station at Ludlow.

Firing started at three o'clock yesterday morning and continued intermittently until nearly four o'clock in the afternoon. One mine guard was killed and, according to union men, one striker is missing.

The situation is extremely critical to-day. More than seven hundred armed strikers are reported to be in the field against the mine guards.

Armed strikers patrol the entire district in the vicinity of Ludlow and communication with the camps of Cedar Hill, Tollerburg, Berwin, Hastings, Del Augua and Tobasco has practically been cut off.

The firing started in the vicinity of the Colorado and Southern Bridge, the zone of Saturday's battle. At daylight yesterday the strikers from the Ludlow tent colony made their way along the hills past Cedar Hill to Tobasco and opened a heavy fire on that camp.

The guard who was killed was struck while returning the fire of the strikers near the Mine Tipple at Tobasco.

The attack on Hastings began at about 11 o'clock. Shots rained on the camp from two-quarters for nearly two hours, but according to the officials of the Victor American Fuel Co. no serious damage was done.

The final skirmish of the day was an attack by the strikers along the Colorado and Southern tracks, near Barnes Station, on a passing Denver and Rio Grande train, which the strikers declared was carrying mine guards.

VICE-REGAL PARTY

Their Royal Highnesses and and Suite Welcomed at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Oct. 27.—Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and the Princess Patricia with the royal suite were given an undemonstrative yet warm welcome home at six o'clock Saturday evening by nearly all the members of the Cabinet Council and their wives, a few other prominent people and a big crowd of the general public. The special C.P.R. train of nine coaches steamed into the Central Station sharp on scheduled time.

When Their Royal Highnesses alighted they shook hands with the Cabinet Ministers and their wives and others. Contrary to reports the duchess was in excellent health, and for a few minutes she and the Princess Patricia held animated conversation with Mrs. Borden, wife of the Premier. Mr. Borden was with the royal party on their trip from Quebec.

Their Royal Highnesses and suite left Ottawa for England on March 19 last owing to the severe illness of the duchess.

Shortly after their arrival the party were driven immediately to Government House, which was entirely renovated during their absence. They remained indoors yesterday owing to the inclement weather.

GOVERNMENT IS RETURNED

Many Catholics Voted in Italian General Elections.

ROME, Oct. 27.—General elections were held throughout Italy yesterday. The disorders were not as grave as expected, although one person was killed and many were wounded.

Numerous arrests were made in various quarters.

The balloting was light, because, on account of the spring-like weather, the people preferred to go on excursions rather than to the polls. Results of the elections will not be definitely known until late Monday, but already the Government is assured of a large majority.

Giovanni Giolitti, the Premier, has been re-elected almost unanimously with the other members of the Cabinet. Others elected include ex-Premiers Baron Sidney Sonnino and Luigi Luzzatti, the ex-governor of Erythrea; Ferdinando Martini, the Socialist leader; Leonida Bissolati-Bergamaschi, the Republican leader; Signor Barzilai and the former Minister of Public Instruction, Nunzio Nasi, who served a term in prison for embezzlement and later was elected several times to the Chamber of Deputies, only to have his election annulled.

In a hundred constituencies a fierce struggle was waged, especially between the Socialists and Catholics, and in these a second ballot will be taken next Sunday.

In some constituencies, particularly in the Venetian Provinces, ecclesiastics voted openly. At Cesena the bishop was the first to go to the polls.

So far as returns have been received, 197 Liberals or Ministerialists have been elected, as well as 23 Moderates, 17 Socialists, 14 Republicans and 10 Clericals.

JEWS ARE ANXIOUS

Anti-Semites at Kiev Are Planning Jewish Prosecutions.

KIEV, Oct. 27.—As the trial of Mendel Beiliss, charged with murdering the Christian boy, Andrew Yushinsky, in March, 1911, proceeds, the uneasy feeling is growing that, whatever its result, attempts at Jewish persecutions will follow. Despatches from various quarters indicate active preparations in this direction. The Black Hundred Organ, The Two-Headed Eagle, in its inflammatory article yesterday, commenting on alleged Jewish threats against Russia, published in the Viennese press, calls on its readers "to remember always and everywhere the infamous words uttered by Jewish publicists, and that the Jews dare to insult the sacred name of our adored emperor and menace his sacred person and the whole imperial family."

Vera Tcheberiak's convict brother, Singalevsky, and his accomplice, Rudzincky, testified Saturday. Both were in prison uniform. Singalevsky denied that he had ever seen Yushinsky. Rudzinsky denied knowing Vera.

At the trial Saturday two secret police agents, in confirming former chief of Police Krassovsky's evidence, testified that while posing as criminals, they had learned from Singalevsky that he, with Rudzinsky and Latisheff had killed Yushinsky in Vera's house.

The police yesterday arrested many persons in the suburbs of Kiev on the charge of attempting to incite riots against the Jews.

WOMAN MURDERED

Robbery is Probable Motive For a Brutal Crime in Bouville.

ST. HILAIRE, Que., Oct. 27.—Lying in a pool of blood with her throat gashed and her skull crushed in from a blow behind the ear, Mrs. Chevalier, a defenceless old lady who lived alone, was found dead Saturday afternoon in the outskirts of St. Hilaire in the parish of St. Jean Baptiste Rouville. Mrs. Chevalier had been dead at least twelve hours when her body was discovered.

Robbery is the supposed motive of the deed. The house was completely ransacked, Mrs. Chevalier's clothing was badly torn, showing that there was a struggle before she was felled to the floor, probably by a piece of iron pipe which lay near the body. In the kitchen, a table knife, covered with blood, was found.

Level Crossing Tragedy.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Oct. 27.—Garfield Fleming, aged 22, drove a traveler in a livery right from Tillsonburg to Aylmer, and on his return was struck and killed by a G.T.R. train at a crossing near Glencoe.

Carbolic Acid For Medicine.

DESERONTO, Oct. 27.—Little Aileen Gamble, the two-year-old granddaughter of Capt. and Mrs. Gowan of this place, died early Saturday morning from the effects of a dose of carbolic acid given in mistake for medicine. The babe had been ailing for some time, and the doctor was called in and had left the necessary medicine. On Thursday, towards dusk, the child was given a dose and instantly became ill. Investigation showed that carbolic acid had been given instead of the medicine.

GRAPE JUICE URGED

W.C.T.U. Presses Claims Upon Anglican Clergymen.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—The convention of the World's Women's Christian Temperance Union adopted a resolution Saturday requesting the house of bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church to "consider the propriety" of using unfermented wine at the communion sacrament in place of fermented wine, "which contains the narcotic poison alcohol."

The resolution was a substitute for one originally offered setting forth that fermented wine "could not truly represent the blood of Christ."

This phrase was objected to by English delegates, who declared that it would antagonize the Church of England. The English delegates also objected to an amendment declaring that "Jesus commanded unfermented wine in the holy communion."

Accused Tried To End Life.

MONTREAL, Oct. 27. — Charles Paul, C.E., 59 years old, charged with misappropriation of money entrusted to him by foreigners, attempted suicide by cutting his throat yesterday while en route to police headquarters under arrest. Paul was treated at a hospital and later locked up.

Laborers employed on the Transcontinental Railway allege that Paul was given money to forward to Italy. The money never reached its destination, they claim.

SHOT BY FRIEND

Toronto Youth is Victim of Revolver Accident.

TORONTO, Oct. 27.—Laying down an automatic 22-calibre rifle with which he had been shooting, Cecil Seal, aged 19, 193 Leslie street, accidentally touched the trigger and shot his companion, Samuel Robb, aged 18, of 244 River street, in the back, inflicting a wound of such a serious nature that Robb expired a few minutes later.

The fatality occurred about 6.30 Saturday afternoon at Seal's residence, where Seal had invited Robb for supper and some shooting practice. The boys had been shooting for some minutes when Robb ran towards the target to see where the bullet went. Seal started to lay down the rifle and follow him, when another cartridge exploded, the bullet entering Robb's left shoulder and lodging in the chest.

The chief coroner announced last night that as the occurrence was undoubtedly accidental no inquest will be held.

Seal is under arrest and will appear in the police court to-day.

TO TAKE OVER EXHIBITION

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Earl Grey, ex Governor-General of Canada, and the Earl of Kintore, with an influential committee, have taken over the proposed Anglo-American Exhibition, which is to be held in London in 1914, and having eliminated the commencial element, have made it a part of the centenary peace celebrations which are to occur on both sides of the Atlantic in that year.

Organizers have leased the exposition buildings, which are ready for occupation, and all the profits will be handed over to the American-British peace committees for the purpose of scholarships and prizes in connection with the educational, social and commercial economics of both countries.

Hunger Striker Released.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The Government was obliged to capitulate Saturday in the matter of the announcement made by the Home Secretary on Oct. 9, that suffragettes imprisoned for crimes of violence would not be given their freedom under the cat-and-mouse act. On that date the Home Secretary refused to release Miss May Richardson, who was arrested on Oct. 4, on the charge of arson, and forcible feeding was resorted to two weeks ago. Her condition became so serious that her release was ordered yesterday.

In his previous announcement the Home Secretary declared that the act would be applied only to minor suffragette offenders, whose crimes did not include acts of serious violence.

PREMIER ASQUITH IS READY TO SETTLE HOME RULE BY CONSENT

In Notable Speech at Ladybank, Scotland, British Prime Minister Says Time Has Come to Pass Irish Measure Over Heads of Lords, But Apart From Main Principles Government Consents to Compromise.

LONDON, Oct. 27—(Through Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Right Hon. H. H. Asquith, Prime Minister, addressed an enthusiastic meeting of his constituents at Ladybank, East Fife, Scotland, Saturday evening. He dealt exclusively with the question of home rule and emphasized the Government intention to make use of the Parliament Act in order to give Liberal legislation something approaching an equal chance with their opponents. The Government, he said, had declared in favor of home rule when they had an overwhelming majority over all parties, and the last election was fought with the knowledge that home rule would come next to the passing of the Parliament Act. It would have been the grossest breach of public faith to put off this legislation.

Mr. Asquith affirmed that the Government still believed that as the bill now stood the Irish Legislature which it would bring into existence, even if it had the disposition, which the Government did not believe it to have, would not and could not have the power to be guilty of acts of oppression against the minority. He pointed out that the Lords had not attempted to modify, amend or improve the bill. The Prime Minister paid a tribute to the loyalty and self-sacrifice of the Irish party in the House of Commons.

The bill as it left the Commons, continued the Prime Minister, had been twice rejected by the House of Lords, but had the hearty approval of the whole Liberal party in Great Britain and of the vast majority of the Nationalists, and there was abundant evidence that it had practically the united support of all the great self-governing dominions. (Cheers.)

"In these circumstances," proceeded Mr. Asquith, "there is in my opinion a complete constitutional case for proceeding in the next session with the Irish government bill and for applying to it the provisions of the Parliament Act. Ought the action of statesmen to be affected or deflected by the menace of forcible resistance to the execution of the law? (Long and continued cheering.) The doctrines preached during the last two years in the North of Ireland, which I regret to say have received countenance in responsible quarters in this country, are a negation of the first principle of Parliamentary, still more of democratic, government. No, we need not, and shall not be intimidated by the threat of force." (Prolonged cheering.)

Then speaking slowly and deliberately the Prime Minister said: "I have more than once expressed the hope and belief that the new system of governemnt in Ireland would be brought into operation without recourse to armed forces by the crown but if a statute deliberately enacted by Parliament were to be met by organized armed resistance it would clearly be not only the right but the duty of the executive to assert the authority of the law by every appropriate and adequate means." (Loud cheers.)

There were two obvious reasons why all patriotic men should desire a settlement of the Home Rule problem by consent. In the first place there was the supreme importance of the future well-being of Ireland. The new system should not start with the apparent triumph of one section however preponderent in numbers nor with the apparent humiliation of another section. He firmly believed that the ties binding Irishmen would prove more durable and effective than their differences, if the unifying process were given a fair chance of success. It was worth paying even a considerable price to secure the absence of ill-will and the possibility of co-operation.

Then the second reason was that whatever was done should be regarded by all parties as resting upon a solid foundation and capable of future development beyond the risks of party vicissitudes. Ireland had far too long been the cockpit of British politics, (Cheers.) Proposals, however, made in perfectly good faith and good will, for a mormal conference of the party leaders, did not appear to him to be practically helpful. A conference without defined limits would be almost certainly abortive and would probably leave matters worse: nor was a conference necessary if there was a genuine disposition in all quarters, by an interchange of suggestions, free and frank, without prejudice, to contribute to the common stock.

"I invite that interchange," added Mr. Asquith. "Both I and my colleagues are ready to take part in it. (Cheers.) We should not depart, however, from the root and principle of the bill—a subordinate Irish Parliament at Dublin with an executive responsible to it. (Cheers.) In the second place, nothing must be done to erect a permanent barrier to Irish unity. Thirdly, while the importance of the extension of devolution to the United Kingdom is fully realized, the claim of Ireland is prior in point of urgency."

Extra Prizes For Poultry.

GUELPH, Oct. 27.—One thousand dollars was the amount of cash for special prizes to supplement the general list of poultry prizes, announced at the meeting of the poultry committee of the Winter Fair, on Saturday. Beside this, there are many cups, medals and championship ribbons, etc., from the fanciers' clubs.

CHOKED TO DEATH AT SUPPER

Emily Man Died Before Doctor Arrived.

LINDSAY, Oct. 27.—John O'Connor, from the Township of Emily, aged 45, and unmarried, choked to death at the supper table in the King Edward Hotel here Saturday evening.

O'Connor was seated at the table with Mr. Martin Carrell and others, and while he was eating some meat a piece lodged in his throat. Those at the table, seeing his struggles, came to his assistance and carried him to an upstairs room. Dr. Blanchard was summoned, but before he arrived the man had expired.

Fired Explosives by Rays.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Naval authorities at Portsmouth have just carried out important experiments in firing explosives at a distance by means of concerted electrical rays. A mine charged with explosives was secured to the hull of the cruiser Terpsichore several feet below the waterline, and from a distance said to have been eight miles, was exploded by means of concerted rays. The ship's bottom was so badly damaged that the ship was only saved from sinking by prompt action of five tugs.

Noted German Dead.

BERLIN, Oct. 27.—Privy Councillor Ludwig Max Goldberger, the well-known capitalist and economist, died at his residence in Berlin Friday evening, aged 65 years. The immediate cause of death was arterio-sclerosis, combined with heart disease.

Meighen Now K.C.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 27.—Hon. Arthur Meighen, according to yesterday's Manitoba Gazette, has been appointed "His Majesty's Counsel learned in the law."

Yeggmen Held Up Alderman.

OTTAWA, Oct. 27.—Ald. J. B. La Rose of Hull was held up at the point of a revolver by two men whom he discovered early yesterday morning attempting to burglarize his bakery on Montcalm street. They made a clean getaway after intimidating the alderman. It was discovered that the men, who are believed to be experienced yeggmen, had drilled the combination knob off the safe in the office of the bakery.

Spanish Cabinet Resigns.

MADRID, Oct. 27.—At the opening of the Spanish Parliament yesterday, a vote of confidence in the Government was rejected, 106 to 100. A number of the Deputies abstained from voting. Marquis Manuel Garcia Prieto and other dissentient Liberals refused to support Premier Romanones. The Cabinet, as a result, tendered their resignations to King Alfonso.

PRELATE PASSES

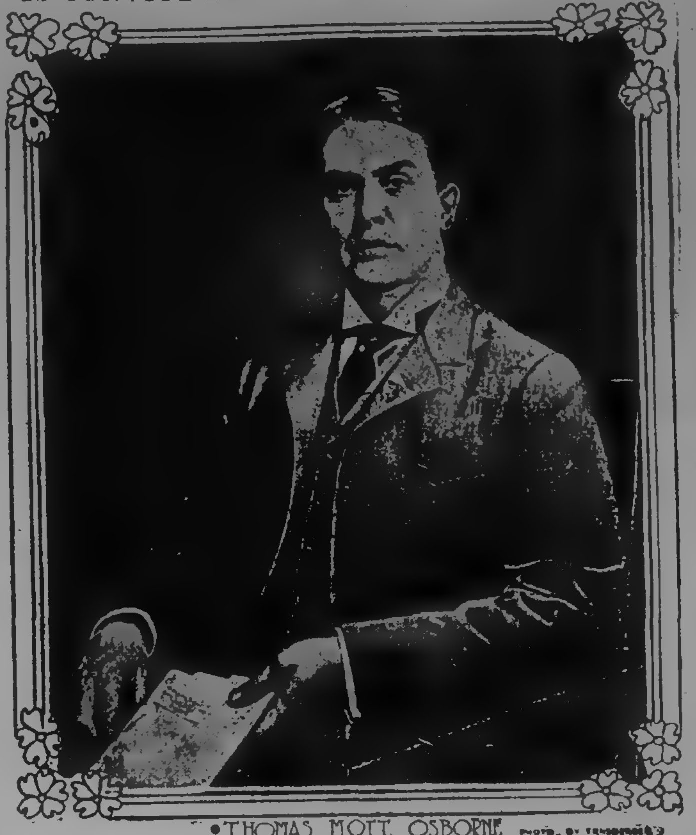
Mons. Montagnini's Death Causes Grief at Vatican.

ROME, Oct. 27.—The death of Mons. Montagnini, reported to the pope Saturday from Berlin, has caused great grief at the Vatican. He had been suffering recently from an affection of the throat and was operated on a few days ago.

Mons. Montagnini was very popular at the Vatican and was much esteemed by Cardinal Merry Del Val, who took him to London when he went to attend King Edward's coronation.

At the time of the rupture between France and the Vatican Cardinal Merry Del Val entrusted Mons. Montagnini with the charge of the Nunciature after the Papal Nuncio, Mons. Lorenzelli, left Paris. When former Premier Clemenceau later expelled Mons. Montagnini, Cardinal Merry Del Val appointed the distinguished prelate to a post in the office of the papal secretary of state, where he remained until last winter, when he was nominated special envoy from the Vatican to Colombia.

IS CONVICT FOR BENEFIT OF HUMANITY.



THOMAS MOTT, OSBORNE — PHOTO. BY [illegible]

Voluntarily Thomas Mott Osborne, president of the New York State Prison Reform Commission, has become a prisoner in Auburn Prison. He has donned the garb of a convict, is eating the same food, marching in their lines, working with them, and, in fact, he has become one of them in every particular so far as their incarceration is concerned.

Mr. Osborne is going through the ordeal for the benefit of humanity and to make known to the world whether the present system of putting men in cells is the only way to reform them.

HUERTA TO REMAIN PROVISIONAL PRESIDENT

Election in Mexico is Certain to be Declared Void —Only Small Proportion Voted.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 27.—There are eighty thousand voters in Mexico but more of them turned out yesterday afternoon at the usual Sunday bull fight than chose to exercise the right of franchise at the Presidential elections held yesterday.

The election passed off without a ripple. So far as outward evidence may be taken there was not the slightest interest to the average Mexican citizen in what was going on at the polls. There was less curiosity, if anything as to what the result of the polls would show. Police and soldiers had an idle day, in anticipation of possible disturbances, the entire force of gendarmes remained on duty, while several hundred troops were drawn into the city from other parts of the federal districts. Soldiers loafed in their barracks and the police sunned themselves, smoked cigarettes and gossiped.

The leaders of the Catholic party claimed a long lead, although they were unable to estimate the number of votes polled for their candidates, Federico Gamboa and Gen. Rascon.

If this claim is correct it is generally thought that Gen. Felix Diaz and Senor Requenza ran second.

The Liberal candidates, Manuel Calero and Flores Magon, had no printed ticket at their polling places, their constituents being obliged to write their names in blank ballots.

Since the Deputies and Senators are not subject to the election provisions governing the Presidential election, it is said that the choice of Congress is assured. It is assumed, on the showing so far as known, the Catholic party will secure a majority in both Chamber and Senate.

No police and soldiers were on guard at the polls. Observations made at thirty polling places in widely separated sections of the city by correspondents shows no intimidation or effort by the authorities to influence the vote in any manner.

It was estimated that fewer than 10,000 eligible voters in the republic went to the polls. It is regarded as certain that Congress, the members of which also were voted for yesterday, will declare the election void, thus continuing Huerta in office.

Gen. Huerta did not vote. He spent the day in his Popola suburban home.

Manuel Calero, the Liberal candidate, did not vote. Instead he took his family early in the day into the country. After he returned last night, he said:

"I understand the voting was exceedingly dull. Nobody appears to believe in the seriousness of the election. On account of the political condition many refused to vote. I myself did not. Had we indirect balloting I would have done so, but since it was otherwise I did not care to cast a vote either for myself or any other candidate."

Federico Gamboa, the candidate of the Catholic party, on the other hand, cast his ballot for Senor Calero. Neither of these candidates cared to express an opinion as to whether a sufficient number of ballots had been deposited to make the election effective.

Diaz Has Broken Free.

VERA CRUZ, Oct. 27.—The last shred binding Gen. Felix Diaz and Gen. Huerta was severed yesterday when Gen. Diaz telegraphed to the Department of War his resignation as brigadier general of the army. The negotiations regarding his return to the capital, on invitation of the provisional President, ended by his flat refusal to accompany Col. Vidaurrazaga, secretary to Gen. Blanquet, War Minister, giving as his reason the illness of his wife. Col. Vidaurrazaga continued his efforts to induce Gen. Diaz to change his decision, but finally left for the capital on a special train last night. Diaz and his family remained here.

The few partisans of Diaz who have stood guard in his room at the hotel for the past few days, also left for their homes in Mexico City, but a handful of supporters are still here subject to the orders of their political chief. The building is being closely watched by plain clothesmen and police from points of vantage in the streets and on roofs.

SEVEN KILLED

Milwaukee Conflagration Results in Heavy Death List.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 27.—Seven dead firemen and 24 injured were taken from the store of the Goodyear Rubber Co. here last night in a fire which caused a loss of $500,000. It is believed there are several more bodies in the ruins.

The flames broke out on the second floor and while the firemen were fighting the blaze from the front and rear an explosion sent the walls crashing down on fifty firemen. Windows for blocks around were smashed and the flames spread to adjoining buildings.

Rescuers were sent into the blazing ruins and the bodies of the dead and injured were taken out.

Practically the entire fire-fighting apparatus of the city was called to the scene, which is in the heart of the business section of the city.

Cargo on Fire.

HALIFAX, N.S., Oct. 27.—The British freight steamer Sowwell, bound from Savannah for Havre, France, put in here yesterday with her cargo of cotton on fire. On Friday morning, when 380 miles southeast of Halifax, fire was discovered in the forehold. The fire had gained such headway that the deck was almost at white heat, but the engineers succeeded in cutting holes through which steam pipes were inserted.

Killed at Crossing.

CHATHAM, Oct. 27.—While returning from church about 1.30 yesterday, Thomas Sparks of North Buxton, was struck by a westbound M.C.R. express at the North Buxton crossing and instantly killed. Sparks, who was about 70 years of age, has lived in the town for the last eighteen years and in the vicinity of Buxton for the past forty years. He at one time owned a farm, but in later years he has been working for others. He leaves a wife.

A WORD WITH OUR NEIGHBOR

Within the last week or so the Examiner has made what the police would describe as an "improvoked assault' upon The Review. Now we have no desire to quarrel with any of our neighbors. The Review did have a "round" in a friendly short of way, with the Toronto Star recently on military matters and effectually silenced that orb at the second blow, unless it is merely getting "its wind' and will return to the attack later.

But this challenge from The Examiner is somewhat unexpected and unwarrantable, and before we begin to fight back, it would be well to know what it is all about.

As we have already remarked; we dont want to fight The Examiner, but to quote an old rhyme, with slight variations, we would say or sing—

We don't want to fight,
But by jingo if we do,
We've got the brains,
We've got the ink,
And we've got the metal too!

But we would rather use these in a nobler cause than squabbling with a neighbor.

But what is the matter? The first attack by the Examiner was over the Baptist Convention. It seems the Examiner told its readers that the best reports of the convention had appeared in its columns and it generally boosted itself at the expense of the other paper. The Review did not notice this attack, but bore it with Christian charity.

The last attack appeared in The Examiner of Saturday last; it had reference to the enforcement of the Curfew Law, of which The Examiner claims to be the sole champion, and accuses The Review of neglecting this civic problem.

Now on both these charges we plead "not guilty.'

As to the Convention, if The Examiner has whereof to boast, The Review has as much or perhaps more. The Review contained more real, uncopied reports of the convention and the special meetings than The Examiner. As for the general detailed accounts of the sessions and the discussion, these were all written by the Rev. Dr. Stobo, and The Examiner as well as The Review used Dr. Stobo's reports, but with this difference. The Review acknowledged it and gave Dr. Stobo his due and liberal thanks.

Then as to the curfew "neglect." Upon this score The Review can certainly claim to have presented this important matter before the public as much—and again we would venture to say—more than The Examiner. We need not quote our editorial on the subject. The Examiner reprints its own contribution to the subject. We need not do this, our readers read these columns, and we have no need to repeat what they have already read and digested.

This boasting may sound very foolish, and we would say with St. Paul—"we speak as a fool."

The Examiner also has a fling at the lady who is agitating for more vigilance in regard to the children on the streets at night, and says that this lady should subscribe to The Examiner and she would see that at least one paper was wideawake on the subject.

As a matter of fact, the lady in question has always subscribed to The Examiner till recently, being under the dilusion, like a good many more people, that it was the best newspaper. She became an examiner on her own and discovered her mistake.

This is all we have to say on these things, and having scrapped The Examiner along with its dear and loud lamented "Rainbow and Niobe" policy, we beg our readers pardon for wasting their time.

HOME LESSONS

The Kingston Standard wants to know, "Are home lessons a farce?" They are certainly regarded as a nuisance by the youngsters. The same question might be asked in regard to parents—how many of them attend seriously to their Home Lessons? The consequence of this neglect is that the home itself becomes a farce.

THOU SHALT NOT---

The Emigration Information Office has published some useful hints to English people about to settle in Canada. The edict is a sort of an addition to the ten commandments, it begins: "Remember that Canada is a great Dominion." Another paragraph begins; "Do not above all things try to impress," etc., all of which means, "Thou shalt have no other gods but Canada." What an awful thing it must be to be an imigrant!

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught have arrived very quietly, no flourish of trumpets announced their coming. Ours is a most business-like Duke and has become quite Canadianized. A year or two of Canadian life would do Royalty all the good in the world, and perhaps do us a little good in return.

"Huerta defies Wilson." If this is a personal quarrel between two Presidents, let them fight it out between them, but with well-padded gloves, for it would be a pity for one President to Hurta-nother. The Toronto Star was originally responsible for this atrocious pun.

If imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, the German Emporer does not care for being flattered. An actor in Berlin who has a strong resemblence to the Kaiser has been ordered to change his "make up" to look like an ordinary man. Evidently His Majesty puts a high value on his personal appearance.

A hunger for gold gave way to a hunger for bread, among the men who made for Chisana. "Men, gaunt for want of food and hollow-eyed for lack of sleep, staggering over the mountain passes and wading perilous mountain streams in quest for gold." This is one account of their experiences.

"Eggs took a decided jump," was the startling report of Saturday's market. These reporters are getting "too derned realistic."

EXCERPTS

Two Kinds of Snobs.

An interesting sense history is that of the word snob, a term of obscure origin. In its earliest use, in 1871 meaning a shoemaker or cobbler. Now here is a distinction between the English and the American use of snob—a distinction due to the influence of aristocratic as compared with democratic traditions. An English snob is a man who falls short of the perfect aristocrat through a taint of democratic vulgarity. An American snob is a man who falls short of the perfect democrat through a taint of aristocratic exclusiveness.—New York Post.

Canalboat Travel Before Railroads.

So prodigiously good was the eating and drinking on board these sluggish but most comfortable canalboats that there are legends extant of an English traveler who, coming to Belgium for a week and travelling in one of these vessels, was so delighted with the fare there that he went backward and forward from Ghent to Bruges all the rest of his life.—From Timbs' "English Eccentrics."

Even the vegetarian may try to make both ends meet.

APPLES AND HOW TO PACK THEM

The price received for an article depends much on the manner in which it is presented for sale. This has become especially true in regard to food products whether offered in the natural or manufactured state. Fruit growers have recognized this change in public taste and have, during recent years, greatly improved their methods of putting up fresh products. Reputable apple growers no longer think of marketing their products in second hand barrels or boxes, or those that are soiled or clumsily made. It is regarded important not only that the packages suggest contents of fine quality, but that when opened the fruit shall present an undamaged and otherwise attractive appearance.

The packing of fruit in barrels and boxes involves a few general principles, easily mastered in the case of barrel packing but more difficult when box packing is concerned. In the opinion of Mr. Alex. McNeil, Chief of the Fruit Division at Ottawa, it is not too much to expect that a season's practice will make a fair box packer, working on right principles. To teach just how the packing of apples and pears in barrels and boxes should be done, Mr. McNeil has prepared an illustrated pamphlet on the subject which is designated Bulletin No. 34 of the Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner's Series. In his letter of transmission, Mr. J. A. Ruddick, the Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner points out that this work contains a large amount of new material setting forth the more recent developments in fruit packing. The book constitutes an exhaustive treatise of sixty-seven pages, showing many helpful illustrations. It is published for free distribution to all who apply for it to the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa.

NEW CONVENIENT TRAIN TO WINNIPEG

Canadian Pacific

The popularity of Canadian Pacific service, and the excellence of that road's equipment, has been so greatly appreciated by the travelling public that it has been found necessary to put into service an entirely new Through Standard Express Train between Toronto and Winnipeg.

Commencing Sunday, October 27th, the "Gate City Express" will leave Toronto at 2.30 p.m., and will run daily thereafter, arriving Winnipeg at 8.00 a.m. second morning. The train will consist of the highest-class modern equipment; Compartment Library Observation Car, Standard Sleeping Cars, Tourist Sleeping Car, Dining Car, First-class Coach and Colonist Car. This will be found the most convenient and best train between Toronto and Winnipeg on account of the daylight departure from Toronto at an hour when the Union Station is not badly congested, and also on account of the early hour of arrival at Winnipeg.

The present "Vancouver Express" will continue to leave Toronto at 10.20 p.m. daily and will consist of the same equipment as the "Gate City Express." This train is the best to take for points west of Winnipeg but for Winnipeg and east the "Gate City Express" is the right train to travel by.

Control of Native Races.

The Earl of Selborne, former governor of the Transvaal and High Commissioner to South Africa, who has had plenty of opportunity of studying the colored situation, told the British Church Congress the other day that backward races could not exist permanently in independence, side by side with the civilized race.

There must, he said, be effective control, full and complete, and exercised in the light of day by the civilized races. If any of these conditions should be absent, he said, there would be a state of anarchy resulting in the demoralization and decay of the native race.

Natives, he concluded, who were found unfit for the ~~vote, ought~~ to have constitutional means for expressing their grievances and wants.

Parrot Crippled Service.

The entire street railway system of a city in Australia was tied up when a pet parrot escaped from its home and dragged its chain across two wires, causing a short circuit.

A Cure For Hiccups.

Fill a glass tumbler with clear, cold water and place on a table. Then let the patient stand where he or she can look directly into the glass and fix the attention about the center of the bottom of the glass for about a minute, when the patient will find that the hiccups have entirely disappeared. This has been known to cure the most violent cases of this uncomfortable disorder.—London Family Herald.

To Make Vinegar.

Save the parings and cores of apples and put them in a jar with warm water enough to more than cover them. Set in a warm place for several days then strain and add one pint of molasses to a gallon of the water. Put in a jar, tie a thin cloth over it, keep in a warm place and in a few weeks this will be good vinegar.—National Magazine.

Silas Findlebury's Ghost

And Why It Ceased to Walk

By REBECCA STEVENS

Alida Loyd panted heavily as she came into her aunt's kitchen, for she was very fat and quivered like a mold of jelly when she moved. She was an idle, shallow minded woman, much given to gossip of a harmless sort, and, as might be expected, she was a poor housekeeper. Her husband, Finney Loyd, was a little wisp of a man who did odd jobs around the shipyard.

"Well, Aunt Betsey," said Alida in her slow drawl, "any news?"

"News of what?" snapped Betsey Findlebury.

"Oh, anything," was Alida's reply, but her little eyes narrowed watchfully as she swayed to and fro in the Boston rocker.

"No news." Mrs. Findlebury clipped her words sharply, as she always did when speaking to her niece.

For the past six months Alida had carried much news from Betsey Findlebury's neat white house.

"Haven't you heard a word from Uncle Silas?" asked Alida.

"I can't communicate with the dead," persisted Alida.

"Of course," and Betsey's lips shut tight.

"Then Mrs. Moore was wondering why you don't wear black for him or lavender," went on Alida.

"Mamie Moore's always wondering about something," retorted Betsey dryly. "Once she wondered what Finney Loyd ever saw about you that was wuth falling in love with."

Alida's fat cheeks reddened dully. "Mamie Moore's always been jealous of me marrying Finney," she said with some difficulty.

"Hum. Seeing's she gave Finney the mitten two years before you kept company with him, I don't see how she's got anything to complain of," nodded Aunt Betsey. "Now, you was talking about your Uncle Silas, Alida."

Mrs. Loyd glared resentfully at the quiet little white haired woman knitting so serenely by the west window.

"I ain't the only one Mamie Moore talks about," she muttered as she got upon her feet. "She says, says she, 'I hear that Silas Findlebury's ghost is walking again,' and, being as he was my own uncle, I felt it a duty to myself, me having been a Findlebury, to come over and find out about it."

Betsey's soft lips settled into a straight line, and for a moment she made no reply. Then:

"Your Uncle Silas was drownded off the White Rock six months ago—to be exact, on the 17th day of February. Leastways, we think he was drownded, and now we're sure he was drownded because he never came home, and the empty boat, all stove in amidships, came ashore one day. You know all that I know, Alida." Betsey was quite pale when she finished.

Alida stared at her with round eyes.

"Well, Humbolt Pedrick declared he saw Uncle Silas plowing the south field in April," she said boldly, "at night."

"Fiddle!" snapped Betsey crossly.

"Well, who plowed it then?" demanded Alida triumphantly. "Humbolt says he's asked every man in Little River, and there ain't one that done it. Who did it, Aunt Betsey?"

"Goodby, Alida," said Mrs. Findlebury coldly. "I'm sorry you're in such a hurry, but it's most supper time, and I expect your dinner dishes ain't washed up yet, and it might be that your beds ain't made. I saw a pillow hanging out of Finney's winder just now." She smiled grimly as the door slammed after Mrs. Loyd's bulky form.

When she was alone her sweet face grew suddenly pinched as if with mental suffering. She hid her face in her worn hands and rocked gently to and fro.

"I wonder—I wonder who did it," she murmured over and over again.

She wondered what Alida and her inquisitive friends would say if they knew that Silas Findlebury had quarreled bitterly with his wife the day before he disappeared.

No one but herself knew of that quarrel, the outgrowth of Silas' desire to build a new barn on the place. They had been saving money for two years to pay off the little mortgage remaining on the farm. The $500, together with $18 for the six months' interest, would build the barn that Silas declared he needed for the proper housing of his stock.

Betsey believed that the old barn would do for awhile longer. She was eager to remove the last encumbrance from her home. They had quarreled for the first time during their happy married life.

The very next day Silas had announced his intention of going fishing, and that was the last Betsey had seen of him. The money had been in his pockets, for Silas placed no faith in banks.

Early in April Mrs. Findlebury awoke one morning to find her south field plowed and harrowed, ready for the corn. It had been Silas' habit to have his corn in before the 10th. The field was plowed on the 7th, and Betsey planted the corn herself on the 8th and 9th.

Humbolt Pedrick declared that he saw Silas Findlebury driving two white horses before a white plow, plowing his own cornfield at midnight.

He also said that Silas was dressed in white robes and that a cold wind blew over the field as he watched. Suddenly he was stricken with the truth. It was the ghost of Silas plowing his own cornfield!

Betsey Findlebury grew very white when she heard what the gossips were saying, but she said nothing.

If she only knew whether Silas—but what else could have happened to a middle aged man of his sober habits? The sound had been rough that day, and the sea was quite high, and near the mouth of the river there was a strong tide, and White rock was a dangerous reef.

Well, there was the empty boat floating bottom upward. The oars were missing, and there was the broken side!

"It can't be explained," muttered Betsey Findlebury as she arose and began to get supper. "There's more things in heaven and earth than—I've forgotten the rest—but I guess it means there's more queer happenings than we poor mortals can explain."

After supper she went out to feed the chickens. On her way back she looked up at the roof of the old house. The two wide mouthed chimneys needed repainting, and if Silas had been alive she knew that he would have painted the bricks a fresh red, with neat white stripes outlining the mortar. A big locust tree overhung the house and trailed drooping branches along the ridgepole.

"That limb needs lopping off," sighed Betsey as she went indoors.

* * * * * * * *

At 12 o'clock that night Betsey Findlebury awoke suddenly and sat up in bed.

What was that sound? She listened intently. It was a gentle pattering overhead and occasionally a heavy creaking sound.

Betsey Findlebury slipped from her bed and went to the garret stairs. Again she harkened. Now the sounds were plainer, and they appeared to come from the roof.

What could it be? She sniffed the air.

In five minutes Betsey had dressed herself in the dark and noiselessly gone down stairs. The front door opened and closed, and Betsey tiptoed out to the porch, down the steps and on to the grass of the front yard. When she had reached the shadow of a tall shrub she peered up at the roof of her house, and her nervous fingers clutched her throat.

Silhouetted against the midnight sky, in the radiance of the full moon, was a man's tall, white clad form. Betsey saw him stepping carefully to and fro, bending now and then. His arm went back and forth, back and forth, and, although the shrill chorus of the katydids drowned any sounds he might have made, Betsey imagined she could hear the pat-pat-pat of a paint brush passing over the bricks of the shabby chimney.

Betsey stole into the house and went to the kitchen, where, with shades carefully drawn, she lighted the oil stove and put coffee on to boil. Then she stepped from pantry to table until she had a tablecloth laid and places set for two. When everything was in readiness she went out into the front yard and looked up at the roof.

The midnight painter was quietly letting himself down into the branches of the locust. By the time he had slipped down to the ground beside the back porch Betsey had flung wide the kitchen door and was saying in a cheery voice that she tried to hold steady:

"Hurry up, Silas. Your breakfast is waiting for you. Seems to me you've been a powerful long while over them chimneys."

For an instant there was silence. Then the tall form, clothed in painter's overalls, stepped forward on to the porch.

Silas Findlebury appeared worn and haggard and very tired. His eyes looked anxiously at Betsey's face, beautiful with its tender, tremulous smile.

"Betsey, Betsey, do you want me?" he whispered brokenly.

"Silas Findlebury, you'll ketch your death a-standing out there!" scolded Betsey, and so, drawing her lost husband within the house, Betsey Findlebury once and forever laid his ghost.

Over that midnight meal Silas Findlebury told how he had gone fishing that February day, how the wind and tide had carried him off shore and into the path of a sound steamer and how a deck hand had flung him a rope and pulled him aboard.

He told of their arrival in New York and of his sudden inspiration to speculate with the $518 contained in his pocket. If he could return home with double that amount of money they could pay off the mortgage and build the new barn as well.

Silas speculated and lost. Then he went to Millton, where his brother lived, and obtained work there in one of the mills. Little by little he was saving money, trying to make up the sum he had lost. At different times he had walked the ten miles to Little River to do something on his own farm, to help Betsey, to catch a glimpse of her sitting beside her lonely lamp. To night he had come to paint the chimneys. They had worried him, he said. Here Betsey's arms around him stopped his narrative.

It mattered not that he had saved only a paltry $25 of the needed amount; it mattered nothing to Betsey that it would take two more years of saving to acquire another amount sufficient to pay off the mortgage. Silas had come home, they were together, and his ghost would walk no more.

And Betsey was so happy that she gave the glad news to Finney Loyd's wife so that Lida could have the pleasure of spreading the tidings from one end of Little River to the other.

BOATS GROW ON TREES.

West Indian Boys Can Get All of Them They Want.

When a West Indian boy wants a toy boat all he has to do is to visit a cocoanut tree. These trees bear great bunches of nuts among their drooping green leaves, and when the bunch first spouts out in the form of a big bud it is inclosed within a hard, tough, woody case or spathe two or three feet long, eight or ten inches in diameter and tapering to a point at one end and to a slender stern at the other. In fact, it looks very much like a huge wooden cigar.

As the buds and flowers develop the spathe splits open, and the flower bunch continues to grow out beyond it until the nuts begins to ripen. By this time the spathes have become dry and hard and break off and drop to the ground of their own accord.

It is the spathes or bud coverings that the West Indian boys use for toy boats, and, while the dry and fallen ones will answer, better boats are made from the more flexible and partly green spathes still clinging to the flower stem.

The spathe as gathered from the tree is almost in the shape of a boat, and all that is necessary to transform it to a very seaworthy and fast sailing toy canoe is to sew the open end together and fit rudder, sail and seats or thwarts.

When this is done the boat is almost an exact model of the big dugout canoes that the boys' fathers use in fishing. In fact, these dugouts were probably copied from one of the tree grown boats.—From "Harper's Book For Young Naturalists."

A Perpetual Error.

A printer's error in perpetuity! How many know that when joining in the "Te Deum" they are carrying on, in one phrase of that song of praise, an ancient blunder? "Make them to be numbered with thy saints;" so it runs. And so when manuscript copies gave place to printed books was it rendered in the medieval Latin then in use, "numerari"—"to be numbered," as we say in English. Transpose the first and third letters and you get "munerari," "to be rewarded," which is what all prayer books would be printing today and congregations singing were it not for that fifteenth century printer's error.—London Tatler.

Wrong Hunch, No Lunch.

"Here, my boy," said his new employer, "take this quarter and go out and get three ham sandwiches."

The boy vanished and did not return for half an hour.

"See here. Where have you been loitering," demanded the boss, "and where are my sandwiches?"

"Scissors!" gasped the boy. "I thought they were for me!"—New York World.

Upbringing.

"Aren't you having your daughter taught to play or sing?"

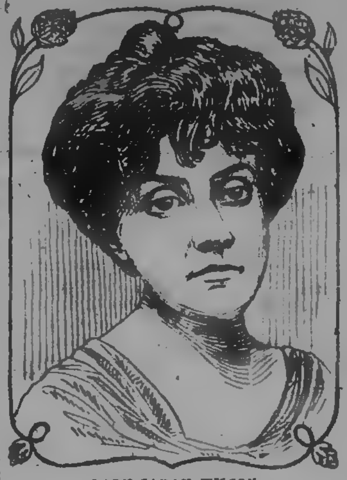
"No," replied Mrs. Flimgilt. "I have decided that she shall have no accomplishments whatever. Instead of striving for approval I want her to have the superior pose that enables her to observe the efforts of others with tolerant interest."—Washington Star.

HEROINE OF MAFEKING

LADY SARAH WILSON WAS A FRIEND OF KING EDWARD.

London Social Favorite Will Be Remembered For Many Years as the Woman Who Cared For the Soldiers In Beleaguered Mafeking During the Boer War — She Is Known as Splendid Equestrienne.

Lady Sarah Wilson, youngest daughter of the seventh Duke of Marlborough, was a great favorite of the late King Edward. She was the heroine of the seige of Mafeking during the Boer war and had the direction of the nursing of all the sick and wounded in the beleaguered town. With her maid she made a daring attempt to ride through the Boer line with despatches. She was captured and exchanged, returning to have a still more narrow escape from death. While she was talking to her husband and another man in a room of one of the hospitals, a Boer shell came through the wall and passed between them without exploding.



LADY SARAH WILSON.

Lady Sarah's husband is Maj. Wilson. Few women are better known in London than Lady Sarah. She is a splendid horsewoman, devoted to hunting, and has hunted and shot in almost every country in the world. She is sharp-tongued, clever and independent and accustomed to speak her mind, no matter who is hit. She has dark hair, strongly marked eyebrows and possesses an excellent complexion.

Father of the Little Cherub.

Sir John Benn is in danger of becoming known simply as the father of Mr. Wedgwood Benn. The young hopeful is forging ahead so rapidly in the British House of Commons that there is no telling where he will end. Still Sir John can fairly claim that he has other titles to recognition besides being the father of the little cherub.

He has served as chairman of the London County Council, and has always been a staunch supporter of the Liberal party. Nonconformity also numbers him as one of its strongest adherents, which is not surprising seeing that his father was a Congregational minister. By profession he is a journalist and printer. From 1892 to 1895 he served as Liberal M.P. for St. George's East, and in 1904 was returned for Devonport, but eventually he was turned down by the free independent, and there was sorrow in the Benn household when Clapham gave him the cold shoulder. Possibly this was a fitting punishment for the statement he made on one occasion that the House of Commons "is like one of the ancient clocks in the Guildhall Museum, a splendid piece of old work which excites the admiration of everyone but useless for modern timekeeping. It wants a new mainspring, and the latest improvements to make it go." Maybe he thinks more kindly of the old talking shop as he see little Wedgwood acting as the new mainspring, and introducing all manner of improvements.

Men Unfair To Women.

The custody of women's interests is not safe in the hands of men, according to a declaration made recently at the resumption of the Church of England Congress at Southampton, Eng., by the Rt. Rev. James Welldon, dean of Manchester.

The contention that they were safe in men's custody was disproved, he asserted, by the legislative inequalities which for too long a time had determined the relations of the sexes, both in the political and moral spheres. He considered it to be a social, no less than a spiritual, error to aim at the assimilation of women to men.

The chivalry of man toward woman was only a half learned lesson, he declared; otherwise, how could the enactment of a law against white slavery have been delayed until the twentieth century.

Her Verdict.

Husband—You can put this down a settled. If I ever get out of it you will never catch me in matrimony again.

Wife—You won't if you depend on me for reference.—Philadelphia Ledger.

RENTING ROOMS
The total amount of rent money paid for furnished rooms in this city each week is enormous! Nobody knows how much. It goes to thrifty people, who like to lessen their own rent or living expense by sub-letting one or more spare rooms to an agreeable person. If YOU have a desirable extra room you can become a receiver of rent by ordering a "Furnished Room to Let" ad. in the Review. The cost is nominal—one cent a word for first insertion and half a cent a word for subsequent insertions, run consecutively.

INTERESTING SERVICES AT PARK STREET

There were large congregations at Park street Church on Sunday, when the Harvest Home services were held. The pastor Rev. F. A. Conners preached at the morning service, his subject being "Thinkfulness and Thankfulness," and Rev. W Carey Sage occupied the pulpit at the evening service.

The anthem, Praise the Lord. O Jerusalem. was given in pleasing manner by the choir and a solo, Jesus Lover of My Soul, by Mr. Jones, was also given in good voice.

This evening supper will be served in the lecture hall and afterwards a program will be carried out. Revs. Lowe, Sage, Gregory and McLaren will take part.

C.P.R. MEN GET PRIZES

Agent at Jack Fish, Lake Superior, Winner

To have merited the distinction of having the most beautiful station garden on the whole Lake Superior division of the Canadian Pacific Railway is to have won the admiration of every stationmaster on the Company's lines reaching from ocean to ocean. This honor has just been awarded to P. A Nicol, station agent at Jack Fish, in winning the general superintendent's prize of twenty-five dollars. Since the C.P.R. inaugurated the system of beautifying the station houses, roundhouses and section houses by supplying seeds and offering prizes for the best gardens, competition has become keen among the officials at various points of the system. Each year has brought forth better results until a perfection has been reached, and now the railway station, which was ever unsightly, has assumed the aspect of the Swiss chalet. Each property, by the individuality of its respective official, has its own unique characteristics, and is artistic and wholly beautiful.

The other prize-winners of the Lake Superior division were as follows:

W. Chandler, locomotive foreman, first prize for the best roundhouse garden, $10.

A. Dresti, section foreman, Kama, first prize for the best section house garden, $10.

F. Zanna, section foreman, Craigs, Ont., second prize for the section house garden $5.

W. J Summers, agent, Cache Bay, first flower garden on district No. 1, $10; second prize, $5, won by N. W. Vansycle, agent, Clamsford

District No. 3, first prize, $10, won by P. Barr, agent at Pearl; second prize, $5, awarded to J. Nichol, at Rossport. 54

His Parents Receive Telegram Telling of Accident

ROSENEATH, Oct. 27— Mr. John Burrison of Roseneath received a telegram on Saturday notifying him of a serious accident which befell his son, Archie, who has been in Saskatchewan for a year or more.

Archie was badly scalded when an engine exploded and the request was made that Mr. or Mrs. Burrison come at once.

FOOD SUPERSTITIONS

Dyak Warriors Won't Eat Deer For Fear of Becoming Timid.

In rural Germany one still meets with a superstition that he who eats during a thunderstorm will be struck by lightning. Abstaining from food during an eclipse is common among savages; also a belief that in eating the flesh of any animal one absorbs that animal's characteristics. Thus an Indian tribe highly prizes tigers' flesh as food for men, but forbids women to eat it lest it make them too aggressive.

In the Kongo women are forbidden to eat birds of prey on the same principle, but are encouraged to eat frogs, which the men on no account ever touch. In the Caroline islands black birds are a favorite dish with women, but men must not eat them, because if one did and afterward climbed a cocoa tree he would surely fall to the ground and be killed.

Among the Dyaks warriors must not eat venison because it would make them as timid as the deer. Fowls and eggs are forbidden to women of a Bantu tribe because on eating either a woman would certainly fly into the brush and never again be seen. Again, the flesh of many animals is forbidden because the animals themselves—for example, swine—are disagreeable to the eye or have untidy habits.—Exchange.

A Record In Writing.

One of the oldest and certainly the most distinguished of journalists still in harness is Sir Edward Russell. He has witnessed many strange revolutions in the newspaper world. He began his career when the telegraph was regarded as of little use for the transmission of news, when the journalist was compelled to work under more laborious conditions than he does to-day.

The amount of work Sir Edward was accustomed to turn out will astound any person who has any acquaintance with the writing profession. "For four years," he asserts, "while I was on The Morning Star, I made $5,500 a year, and I was rarely paid more than a guinea a column." From this it follows that Sir Edward Russell turned out some three columns a day, or about thirty thousand words a week. Now the length of the average novel does not usually exceed sixty thousand words so that during these four years Sir Edward turned out an amount of work equal to over eighty novels. Literary aspirants may well gaze on this picture—and refrain from doing likewise.

SAFETY FIRST

The Grand Trunk System has issued broadcast the following pledge, neatly printed, in colors on a large card in relation to the safety first campaign which is now being vigorously pushed both in the United States and Canada.

"I will railroad according to the book of rules. I will do all in my power to guard against unsafe acts onp my part. If I see a fellow-employe doing his work in an unsafe manner, I will speak to him as a friend and use my moral influence to have him perform his duties in the safest possible manner. I will remember and practice at all times safety first."

At the foot of the card is this statement:

"Eighty-three per cent of all persons injured on railroads are young men who work for the roads. Sixty-six per cent of all preventable injuries are sustained by you are due to unsafe practices, which you could avoid 54

THREE GREAT COUNTRIES LOOK TO THE CATHOLIC CHURCH TO SAVE THEM

As Did Constantine When He Issued the "Edict of Milan" — Rev. Father Galvin at the Church of the Sacred Heart

Last night the Church of the Sacred Heart was taxed to its utmost capacity by an audience embracing many non-Catholics, to hear Rev. Father Galvin's eloquent sermon on the 'Edict of Milan' by which Christians were given liberty of worship in 313 A.D.

The subject was very timely as yesterday morning the Episcopal letter proclaiming a universal jubilee to take place next month, in commemoration of the event was read.

The Reverend speaker chose as his text; "In the world you shall have distress, but have confidence, I have overcome the world.'—St. John 16—33.

"My dear friends," he began, "sixteen hundred years ago the world differed greatly from what it is to-day. The population was not as great then as it is now; the countries were not so numerous, or the scientific achievements were not so varied. It was not an age of electric lights or steam engines, it was not an age of automobiles or of airships, still that age had many similarities to our own age. There were men and women the same as there are men and women to-day. They had bodies and souls; were nourished by food not greatly different from the food of to-day; they were as we are, subject to hunger and they were injured by the same weapons as we are. Although our age differs greatly from a period of 1600 years ago, we have interests in common, one in particular, my dear friends, that binds us to the past, one link that binds us to the people of that age and causes us to weep with them in affliction and commands us to rejoice with them in their freedom from calamity. Pope Pius Tenth, after rehearsing the many evils the people of that age had to combat, has called upon the whole Catholic World to rejoice over their deliverance from these evils. There, my dear friends, is that tie—that tie is the Catholic Church, and she is asking us through her chief pastor to summon up in our minds the terrible persecution the Catholics of that age were subject to, and to rejoice in commemoration of their deliverance from them. This will be done by a universal jubilee proclaimed in the letter read here this morning."

Rev. Father Galvin went on to state how at that time the Roman Empire contained the then known world, but its people were gradually becoming victims of the inevitable result of wealth. They descended to a level worse than the barbarians and were satisfied only when human blood was being shed. The emperors set up their images and commanded them to be adored, and when the Christians refused, the Romans found no torture too cruel for them. The Romans hated the Christians because they preached the doctrine of humility and purity and because they believed in one God.

The artists, sculptors and pagan priests who had made a livelihood through paganism, joined in the opposition against the Church and this opposition soon took definite form. The prosecutions of early Christians were subject to, is unbelievable, and they continued till Constantine came to power in 312 A.D. In 313 he issued the Edict of Milan give Christians a right to practice their religion. The joy of the Christians were compared by the reverend speaker to joy of Ireland, when the Penal Code was relaxed, and Catholic Emancipation passed, and to the joy that will fill every heart when the infidel government in France will be no more. He stated that the Christians were put on an equal footing with the pagans, and that was the only privilege the Catholic Church ever demanded. He went on to show how some acts of violence such as the Spanish Inquisition and St. Bartholomew's massacre, which are credited to the Catholic Church, rested on parties which were not in any way connected with the Catholic Church.

"I said," Father Galvin exclaimed, "this decree was remarkable because Constantine was not then a Catholic, but he saw that the Catholic Church was the only body to keep the Empire together, if possible at all, for the Empire was tottering. She was the only body or institution that was united, and Constantine looked to her to save it just as three great countries are at the present time, namely, England, Germany and United States. In England, where a few centuries ago a price was put on a priest's head, there is a continual procession into the Catholic Church, because learned men can see that the Catholic Church, and she alone, can save England from the evils that are coming on her, caused by women suffrage and socialism.

In Germany, where only 26,000,000 people out of 70,000,000 people are Catholics, the Emperor looks toward the Catholic party to have any important steps taken, and he depends on the Catholic Church to suppress socialism.

In United States, although only 15,000,000 out of 90,000,000 are Catholics, the true American statesman who is thinking of the future of this country, admits that the Catholic Church, and she alone, can combat with that country's great three evils, namely, race suicide, divorce and socialism, and if these evils are not stamped out the country will go back to a state far worse than it was when the Indian reigned supreme."

"And now, my dear friends," the speaker concluded, "how are we to assist in these great battles? We are requested to pray during the jubilee with four intentions. First, that heresy and schism may be stamped out of the world; second, that the Church may triumph over the world; third, that the faithful may stand united; fourth, that there may be peace among all Christian people. By praying fervently for these intentions you will be aiding the Church in her combats, and, my dear friends, pray very fervently that Christ will triumph and that there will be one fold under one guidance, the Catholic Church, to lead us to eternal life."

It isn't the easiest thing in the world to transform duty into desire.

When the suede belt or purse becomes greasy looking, try rubbing it with a fine emery paper. It will look like new.

THEY PUZZLE GREAT MINDS

Simple Words Too Profound For Human Understanding.

Q.—Can there be two kinds of infinities or two infinite spaces?

A.—The writer of this question must decide. The nearest star is distant twenty-five trillion miles. Write a row of units 111111.., to the star and let each unit represent one mile; then the distance represented by a line of 1's, twenty-five trillion miles long, submerges all human powers of imagination. But write a row of 222222.., twenty-five trillion miles long; then the number of miles represented would be twice as great. Then write a row of 999999... equally long, and the distance expressed would be nine times as great as that represented by the 1's.

But no human can think of the distance expressed by the 1's. Let the first row of figures extend twenty-five trillion or fifty or a thousand trillion miles to the east; then a row could be extended toward the west. Many millions of years would be required to write the long rows. Suppose that you write 9's both ways during a thousand million years each. Then the distance in miles would be thinner than a spider's thread when compared to an infinite distance.

There are possibly fifty persons now living able to think one new thought. They are the mighty of the earth, and are all transcendent mathematicians. Not one of these even tries to begin to think of infinity or eternity. They all know better. Only the superficial strive to think of the two words, so my questioner must answer his own question, for I cannot even hope to secure a glimpse, lasting a thousandth part of one second, of the meaning of one of the following list of words: Mind, space, time, duration, infinity, eternity, beginning, end, space and electrons.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

FOUR SOULS EACH.

Curious Beliefs of the Savages of West Africa.

West African religion is particularly generous to the human beings, to each of whom it allots several souls, four being the usual number. Only one is immortal, however. The others, though troublesome enough during the owner's life, cease to be at the same time as the body. They are the shadow soul, the dream soul and the bush soul.

One soul seems more than many of us can manage, but the poor African has a bad time between the four of them. He never knows when some enemy may plunge a knife into his shadow, thus causing him to sicken and die, or when his bush soul, which takes the form of an animal, may rush into danger and get hurt, and, as for his dream soul, that is particularly troublesome, as it wanders from his body during sleep and runs the risk of being caught by witch traps. When this happens its place is often taken by a nasty stranger spirit called a "sisa," which seems to have no other object but to cause misfortune and sickness to the being who forms its temporary habitation.

Most of the tribes have the idea of an underworld after death, neither heaven nor hell, but much like the existing world, only dimmer. Among the Tschwi tribes this idea is well defined. Their shadow world has a name—srahmandayi—and they even know the way to the entrance, which is across the Volta river. This place has its markets, its town and its interests, but everything is felt in a more indistinct way.

FARMERS GLAD TO SEE RAIN

Will Greatly Assist in Ploughing Operations

The farmers around this section of the country are more than pleased with the rain which fell last week. The dry spell which had been prevalent dried the ground to such an extent that it was impossible to plow some parts of fields. Here and there along the country roads it will be noticed that between headlands a space of some few rods wide were left unturned. These will now be softened to such an extent that they can be ploughed and cultivated. One farmer remarked to the Review that one good feature of the dry spells was that great headway was made this year in threshing. The hard ground enabled the owners of machines to move them easily, which is quite a contrast from last fall, for it was then a weekly occurrence to be stuck in mud for a day or so.

Owing to many of the rural mail boxes being placed too close to the road, thereby endangering the travelling public, the Council desires to call the attention of persons so obstructing the highway to the provisions of the following by-law, which will cover mail boxes or any other obstruction placed on the highway:

First—That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to obstruct any road or bridge within the said municipality, either by placing anything thereon or upon any part thereof, or by allowing anything to be placed thereon or upon any part thereof.

Second—That in case any obstruction has been placed upon or may hereafter be placed upon any road or bridge within the said municipality or upon any part thereof, by any person or persons, that then such person or persons shall at once forthwith remove such obstructions, and in case default is made by any such person or persons in removing such obstruction or obstructions, that then it shall be lawful for the said municipal corporation to have the said obstruction or obstructions removed at the expense of the party or parties in default, and they may recover the expense of removing the said obstruction or obstructions with costs, by action or distress, and in case of non-payment thereof, that then the same shall be recovered in same manner as municipal taxes.

Third—Any person or persons guilty of committing a breach of any of the provisions of this by-law, shall, in addition to any pecuniary liability under section two, be liable on conviction thereof before any Justice of the Peace having jurisdiction in the premises, to such pecuniary penalty as such Justice may think proper, not exceeding the sum of fifty dollars and costs.

ANNIVERSARY AT SACRED HEART

Father Doyle of Guelph Will Give Sermons

Yesterday morning at the Church of the Sacred Heart, Rev. Father O'Brien announced that the fourth anniversary ceremonies would be held on Sunday, November 16th. His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, D.D., will sing pontifical high mass, while the sermons in the morning and in the evening will be delivered by Rev. Father Doyle, Superior of the Jesuit House in Guelph. The jubilee in commemoration of the "Edict of Milan" will also terminate on that day.

DR. SYMONDS AS UNIVERSITY HEAD

Is Wanted as President of Western University

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 26— Arthur Little has been appointed to succeed his father, the late Lieut. Col. Little as Governor of the Western University. The Board also recommended that Hon. Adam Beck and Philip Pocock be made Governors. A committee was in Montreal to interview Rev. Dr. Symonds, M.A., who may be induced to take over the Presidency of the University.

AN OLD INDIAN LEGEND.

The Incidents That Led Up to the Naming of Poughkeepsie.

During the days when the Indians still held sway on the banks of the Hudson there was a fierce battle between the Delaware and the Pequot tribes. The former won, and among their captives was a handsome young Pequot brave. He was offered his life if he would swear allegiance to the Delawares and be branded with their tribal mark—the turtle. He refused, and preparations were then made to kill him. As his enemies were on the point of doing this a young Indian girl broke into the circle and begged for his life. She had at one time been a Pequot, but had been captured by the Delawares and forced to join their tribe. Her appeals were so touching that the warriors were debating the matter when the party was attacked by still another enemy, the Huron Indians. In the excitement the girl cut her lover's bonds, but the two found themselves in the midst of a fierce battle and eventually became separated. The young warrior escaped, but the girl was captured by a Huron chief.

Determined to rescue her at any cost, the Pequot brave disguised himself as a medicine man and entered the camp of the Hurons. By some pretext he gained admission to the tent where the girl was kept prisoner, and late at night they managed to escape in the darkness. Their flight was soon discovered and pursuit began, but the young couple reached the river far enough in advance of their pursuers to embark in a canoe and push off from shore. They were still followed, but the warrior was young and strong and succeeded in getting his little craft safely into a cove at the junction of the great river and a little stream entering into it between two high, protecting banks, where they hid, and later found a friendly tribe.

Rejoicing that the place had been a "safe harbor" for the girl and her lover in time of peril, it was so designated in the Pequot tongue, the Indian equivalent being "Apa-keep-sinck." Today after having filtered through the Dutch and English tongues, it is known as Poughkeepsie.—Ladies' Home Journal.

CURIOUS HERMIT CRABS.

They Keep Housemaids, and Also Use Sponges For Protection.

It has been said that crabs are as artful as "a barrow load of monkeys," and no one who has read Professor Edward Step's "Messmates; A Book of Strange Companionships In Nature," will deny that there is considerable truth in the remark. Amazing indeed are some of the revelations which the professor makes regarding crabs.

He relates, for instance, how the common hermit crab actually keeps a housemaid to clean out his house. When he first starts life this particular species of crab hunts for some large shellfish's shell in which he can live at ease, rent free. He usually chooses a large whelk shell and introduces a large seaworm, belonging to what is known as the "nereis" family and which grows to a length of six or eight inches, to keep the interior of the shell clean. The crab feeds heartily on sea creatures that wander carelessly into the shell and throws the indigestible parts of them about the floor. The nereis worm promptly consumes these remains and keeps the shell as clean as a new pin.

The artfulness of this crab, too, is strikingly illustrated by the ingenious manner in which he protects himself against the large fish which look upon him as an excellent article of food. Sometimes he induces a sponge to grow on his shell. Sponges in a living condition give out a strong odor, which is distinctly unpleasant to fish, and even a dogfish will not attack a crab protected in this manner.

When books become badly soiled if not gilt edged, close the book tightly, then erase the marks with an ink eraser. This will cut off all rough edges, all soiled marks and leave the book very clean.

Reaping REAL RESULTS

Almost every day we have people call, simply to tell us how pleased they are with the Glasses we fitted them with. These customers of ours will tell their friends, and their friends will send others, because they are satisfied—that is why. We take this occasion to acknowledge our indebtedness to our friends and patrons, our appreciation of their good will and faith in us, which have helped to make our success so great.

THE SUGAR SCOOP MODEL

Ribbon Hat Trimming Exceptionally Smart.

PIQUANT SHAPE OF THE SEASON.

The piquant face with small features is the only type that looks well in the hat illustrated, which is an adaptation of the niniche shape that Frenchwomen adore. In order to make it more becoming to American women the brim in front is often broken, but in this model the tilt over the face is perfectly flat, and the high flare at the back is filled in with a huge black moire bow.

Ribbon, preferably moire, is used to trim most of these saucy little hats. Loops of ribbon are an easy method of obtaining height, and arranged against the upturned brim in the back they are generally becoming.

Small clusters of bright colored, unnatural looking fruit give the desired touch of color to many of these shapes, and the confection in the cut has a few reddish purple plums for a garniture.

Women Healthier Than Men.

Professor Doctor Elster of Jena has sprung into fame, like Byron, in a single night, because he said "peekaboo" blouses, corsets, decollete dresses and split skirts did more good than harm. Their influence, he argued, was mainly mental. They brought variety and interest into a woman's life.

Professor Elster produces as trump card the fact that women, victims of fashion, have a higher longevity rate and a lower morbidity rate than men, who are free from fashion's bane. The exposure of parts of the body entailed by fashion makes women hardy. "If fashion exposure really caused disease, then women in particular would suffer more than men in particular from the diseases which begin with a cold; but, as a fact, women suffer far less than men from bronchitis, catarrh, inflammation of the lungs and consumption."

Dr. Elster further justifies against the hygienomaniacs the corset and the high heeled shoes. The corset distributes certain bodily pressures, and "it has never been shown in what way the high heeled shoe is bad for the health. It might be argued that such shoes render a service, inasmuch as they keep thin soles out of the wet."

A Furry Suggestion.

The long fur coat will not be seen in the land of the modish this winter, so say the furriers, and in its stead will reign the smart little hip wrap, which is very dressy, and to a slender figure very becoming.

Pictured is a short afternoon wrap of baby caracal fur. The new full lines give grace and ease to the garment. A deep shawl collar of satin sets off the smaller collar of fur.

Hot Vinegar In Sauces.

If hot vinegar is used instead of cold when making meat sauce, it will greatly improve the flavor and give the sauce a better color.

Points for Mothers

The Child Beautiful.

No matter what a fond mother declares she wishes the fairy godmother to bestow on her child at its birth, in her heart of hearts she wishes her child to be beautiful. No amount of wishing seems to have any power in the matter, and what the fates decree has to be submitted to. No matter whether the beauty be much or little, it is impossible to add to it, but with care it can be preserved, for, sad to relate, many people spoil their good looks in early childhood through being allowed to form undesirable habits of those funny little ways which are peculiar to the early stages of life.

Who is there who has not reveled in the delight of the pastime which grownups call "gargoyling?" It consists in making the face fascinatingly ugly by stretching the mouth to its fullest extent, pushing the nose up and pulling the ears forward. It is disastrous to the very young, who by this means obtain very premature wrinkles and find their ears permanently outstanding. It should be severely discouraged in young children, and on no account should such antics be rewarded by a smile, no matter how comical the child may look.

Similarly the frowns of bad temper should be avoided, and this can only be done by removing the cause. Temper, whether of the passionate or the sulky variety, is largely a matter of habit, and a very undesirable one, too, but a child must be taken in hand at a very early age if it is to be taught to control its temper. A child's feelings are all on the surface, and it is easily possible to divert the mind to some other subject than that which caused the outburst of temper. Sulkiness generally arises from resentment on the part of an elder. It is extremely infectious, and the parent who sulks with a child need not be astonished if the child shows symptoms of the same complaint.

Another trick of childhood which is also associated with bad temper is the dangerous habit of biting the nails. The ill result, which is apparent to all, is short and ugly finger nails, which can never be made beautiful again even by the most skillful manicurists. The real danger of the habit, however, lies in the sharpness of the small particles swallowed, which are quite capable of giving rise to an attack of appendicitis.

Connected with the fingers also is the habit of thumb sucking, which commences when the gums are swollen and painful at the time of cutting the teeth. At the earliest signs of thumb sucking the thumb should be taken out and a rubber ring given as a substitute, or, better still, the child should be given a little drop of cold water to drink. It seems hard to check a habit which may soothe and comfort a young child, but there is the future to be considered, and a continuance of the habit leaves its mark in an ugly, pointed thumb and deformed mouth, in which the upper lip and the top teeth are unduly projecting, while the lower parts of the mouth are receding.

The evils arising from sucking a "dummy" resemble those of thumb sucking as far as deformity of the mouth is concerned, and with both there is the evil of overexcited salivary glands through the constant sucking. It would be a good thing if the sale of this injurious article were illegal, as in France.

Nursery Quilts.

Distinctive quilts for the little tots' room are a joy to the children and a delightful task for mothers. They are very expensive if bought and less individual, of course. Here are a few ideas for the homemade designs that will make nursery quilts things to be remembered in after years, besides being present joys.

The flower quilt always holds great attraction for youngsters. If the nursery be papered in daisy paper the carrying out of this idea is one of the easiest things imaginable. On a foundation of silk poplin, or, best of all, unbleached muslin, arrange the daisies in a straight border, the stems growing from a plain band on the edge of the quilt, continuing around the four sides.

To make the daisies, cut an oval four inches long and one inch at its greatest width. Make a pattern of a petal three inches by about three-quarters of an inch. Cut out sixteen of these from white muslin if your background is a color. Make the center yellow in this case. If you are going to have yellow petals the center should be a golden brown.

Stems in this quilt should be straight, with here and there a leaf.

Arrange the petals around the center—under it—and place the stem under one edge. Sew around the edges without turning in, using the sewing machine or quick running stitches by hand.

This is a very attractive design, the idea being capable of many different treatments in the field of flowers. Poppies, tulips, roses, daffodils, clematis may be used, and one flower quilt has a huge basket, upset, from which are tumbling in confusion dear to the child's heart all kinds of blossoms that spread out to the corners of the quilt. In this pattern all colors of materials are used. The variegated effect is of continuous interest to the little owner.

Many an earthly saint has a face that scares away temptation.

WOMEN WARRIORS.

One That Was Made a Heroine In Spite of Herself.

There are few countries that have not at one time or another had women soldiers in their ranks—either in disguise or openly accepted despite their sex. England, France and Germany have all had military heroines. Germany, which traditionally demands of its women only softness and domesticity, has nevertheless had its full share. One of them, Eleonore Prochaska, had saved her wages as a cook to buy her man's equipment. In her last battle, when storming some heights under heavy fire, she snatched a drum from a fallen Frenchman and beat the charge as she advanced.

"You can sew, cook, wash, sing and shoot better than any of us," said the comrade at her side admiringly, "and now it seems you can drum too!"

A moment later she was mortally wounded. As she fell she called to the nearest officer, with a dying flash of pride and humor:

"Lieutenant, I'm a girl!"

Another girl, Anna Luhring, only eighteen, was traced and claimed by her father after she had enlisted, but her captain refused to dismiss so fine a soldier.

A young dressmaker, Sophie Kruger, who made her own uniform before enlisting, won the Iron Cross for bravery.

Maria Werder, a farmer's wife, served, undiscovered, with her husband and was promoted to be a sergeant, although he remained a private.

An amusing contrast to these genuinely gallant women is afforded by Johanna Stegen, who quite by accident won a reputation for heroism. She and a companion, Caroline Berger, were caught by chance in the fighting lines at the battle of Luneberg. Caroline fled to what cover she could find, tore off her apron and began binding the hurts of the wounded who had crawled there also.

Johanna, spying a heap of cartridges, tore off her apron also and began to fill it, for she mistook them for rouleaux of coin. A passing officer supposed naturally she was carrying ammunition to the front and gave her orders where to take it, orders which she dared not disobey. Apronful after apronful of cartridges she carried—and the next day found herself acclaimed a heroine!

Her apron was tied to a staff and borne proudly at the head of the regiment. Men cheered her, the king praised her, and she sat at his right hand at a banquet. Later she married and was lionized by the fashionable ladies of Berlin.—London Tatler.

If a young man marries a slender girl and she develops into a heavy weight in after years he can see where he got more than he bargained for.

RHEUMA DRIVES OUT RHEUMATISM

After 25 Years of Misery, this Man Walks, Works and Feels Fine Again

Right away—the first day you start to take RHEUMA— the Uric Acid poison begins to dissolve and dissolve and leave the sore joints and muscles. Its action is little less than magical.

RHEUMA works so speedily—you actually can feel the Rheumatism leaving the body. A bottle costs but 50 cents and if you are not satisfied, the Warne Drug Company will return your money. Read this:

"I wish to state to you the facts and nothing but the facts. I bless the day a friend brought me a 50 cent bottle of RHEUMA. I used one-half of it and it did me more good than all the other medicines I ever tried. I had been afflicted with Rheumatism all over my body for more than 25 years. I could not walk, and was a broken-down man. During that time I spent a small fortune, trying to get rid of the horrible disease, but without help. However, RHEUMA reached my case and I thank God I can again use my feet and do my work.

"Before taking your medicine I was staying with a daughter on her farm, and despite her loving efforts to tempt my appetite I could not eat. After I had taken RHEUMA two days my appetite returned. Yours for prosperity."—Prof. H. H. Kolling 7 S. Ninth St., Richmond, Ind., Oct. 10, 1912.

ADVERTISING

A STORE'S importance is rightly judged by its advertising. Not altogether by the size of the advertisement, but by size and tone, and quality of announcement.

What the store has to say is one thing. Quite as important is how it says it.

Given that the clerical force is competent and up-to-date, it will say, over the counter, the very best to be said in reference to the goods enquired for. It may, and should, suggest other goods, not in the customers view.

This implies that the customer is in the store. But what brings him or her there? The wish to buy and the belief it is a good place to buy at.

How is this learned of?

By advertising. The advertisement is a message, an intelligent middleman, doing service between seller and buyer. The space talks to thousands, even while the store is closed for the night.

Use The REVIEW and tell the story of your store and its opportunities for good service.

QUESTION UNASKED

Not Propounded In Court, but Makes Subsequent Proposal Very Easy.

By GERTRUDE MARY SHERIDAN.

The flashlights of the camera men boomed from every angle of the courtroom. There was a suppressed cheer following the solemn announcement of the foreman of the jury:

"Not guilty."

Cameras and eyes sought one especial corner of the place. It was where a dignified, fine faced old man had sat all through the trial—where he sat now. He was the accused, Robert Dayton. A faint expression of gratification crossed his face. Then it softened down to extreme tenderness. Evelyn, his daughter, his constant companion during the trying ordeal of the past few days, had thrown her arms about his neck and was sobbing out her joy upon his bosom.

"Not guilty!" she gasped—"Oh father, did you hear?"

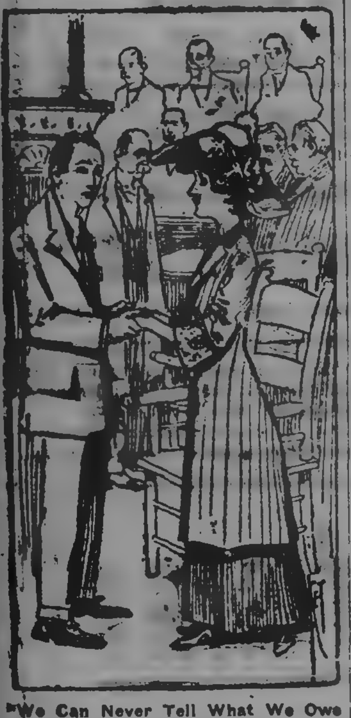
"What else could it be, my child?" replied Mr. Dayton proudly. "I expected it."

"It was so unjust, so cruel!" murmured Evelyn. "How dared they bring that dreadful charge? And against you—you dear good father, whom everybody loves and respects!"

Evelyn did not exaggerate in her filial statement. It had been a nine days' wonder to the little city when, one week after the destruction by fire of the unused plant of the Dayton Manufacturing company, two former partners of Mr. Dayton had accused him of burning down the property.

There had been friction and litigation between the three partners, so severe that Mr. Dayton had closed down the works. He had offered his partners a fair settlement, which they had bitterly refused. The fire had settled it all. The only beneficiary through the insurance was Mr. Dayton.

This point his enemies had used against him, and this, together with the rather vague evidence of a night watchman that he had seen a cloaked person resembling the manufacturer in appearance near the factory at nine o'clock in the evening, one hour before the fire was discovered, had formed the basis of the accusation in court.



"We Can Never Tell What We Owe You," She Said.

Mr. Dayton had been able to prove that he had been confined to the house all that fatal day with a slight indisposition. He had gone up to his room at eight o'clock. The jury had only his unsupported word for this, for no member of the household was able to say that he had been seen again until the ensuing morning.

The base implication of the prosecution was that Mr. Dayton had slipped out of the house between the hours of eight and ten in the evening. They hinted that he had fired the plant and returned to his room before the flames were discovered.

It was at the darkest moment in the trial for the anxious father and daughter, when their lawyer called Dr. Paul Merwin. A serious faced young man the Daytons had never seen before took the witness stand. He was carefully but not expensively dressed. It was notable that he never even glanced at the accused man nor his daughter.

His evidence was plain, simple and convincing. He was a comparative stranger in the city working up a small practice. The evening of the fire he had been resting in the garden of the vacant house adjoining the Dayton mansion. Doctor Merwin swore positively that he had sat there, the Dayton house in clear view, from eight o'clock in the evening until nearly eleven p. m. During all that time, he testified, he had been in full sight of the music room where Miss Dayton was entertaining some guests, and the up stairs apartment in a wing of the house where her father had been studiously engaged in going over some account books.

The prosecution was confounded. The lawyers asked a few formal questions. There was no refutation of the evidence. Robert Dayton was a free man, honorably acquitted.

The young physician was close at the side of Mr. Dayton's attorney as the latter approached his client.

Just then the acquitted man was surrounded by a crowd of friends. Evelyn faced the young physician. In an impulse of deep joy she put out both her hands.

"We can never tell what we owe you," she said fervently, almost brokenly.

"It has been my great fortune to be of service to you," replied Doctor Merwin modestly.

For a moment her hands rested in his close earnest grasp. Almost quickly she withdrew them.

"It was fortunate the prosecution did not ask you the question, Dr. Merwin," the young lady heard the lawyer say mysteriously.

More than once that night Evelyn thought of the young physician. Somehow she could not forget a single incident of their meeting. The day following the impression was deeper than ever. The next day she passed Doctor Merwin on the other side of the street. He bowed politely.

Then she began to learn new things about the object of her interest. Evelyn discovered that the young man was having an up-hill time of it in making professional headway. He had cast in his lot with a poor but deserving clientele, and she believed his service fees to be few and far between. One day Evelyn went to her father.

"I am afraid you have been so busy you have forgotten to write Dr. Merwin an acknowledgment of our thanks, papa," she said demurely.

"I declare, that is so," exclaimed Mr. Dayton. "I will attend to it at once."

The manufacturer penned a kind and gracious note to the young man. It received formal recognition, but Dr. Merwin did not presume to appear in person.

"He seems to actually avoid us," said Evelyn to herself quite disappointedly. Then her face brightened as the suggestion came to her mind to invite Dr. Merwin to a pending lawn party on the Dayton grounds.

"There never was a more agreeable and companionable fellow," Evelyn's brothers voted in favor of the young doctor before the evening was over.

"So interesting looking and handsome," declared Evelyn's best girl friend.

Evelyn herself, however, could not rid herself of the notion that Dr. Merwin somehow held her at a distance. He was reserved with her to a degree she could not understand. There seemed to be a barrier between them.

"It is not of my making," mourned pretty Evelyn, as the evening closed and the doctor agreed to come again.

In later years Evelyn never forgot the third evening he called. He seemed more care free on that occasion than he ever had been before. Then moonlight, a charming garden spot, the air like new wine, and in the hazy silence Evelyn said:

"Dr. Merwin, I have always wished to ask you a very particular question for some time."

"Yes?" he intimated gently, with his usual rather sad smile.

"You remember that day in the court room when we first met?"

"I have not forgotten it," he replied and Evelyn noted the same vivid expression in his face, akin to longing, to deep emotion, that had struck her on the occasion referred to.

"Mr. Telford said to you: 'It was fortunate the prosecution did not ask you the question.'"

"Yes," spoke Dr. Merwin in a low tone.

"What did he mean?"

"Must I tell you the question?" asked her companion, a strange restraint in his bearing.

"I very much wish you would."

"Mr. Telford was intimating that had the other side questioned me too closely, it might have been embarrassing for me, and—yes, perhaps for you."

"I do not understand," murmured Evelyn, yet feeling intuitively that some vital revelation was about to be disclosed.

"If they had asked how I came to be in the adjoining garden," pursued Dr. Merwin, "I should have been compelled to tell them that——"

"Yes—that?" prompted Evelyn half playfully.

"That the evening I was in the next garden was one of many evenings I spent there. I had known you for a long time before that, Miss Dayton."

"You had—known me—for a long time?" she repeated vaguely.

"But you did not know me. How could you? I, an humble, striving stranger, who saw you once, longed to see you again—even if it was a stolen view—and then found the pleasure of life in listening to your beautiful singing. I had promised myself that would be the last evening I dared to worship the star at a distance, and now I will go."

"Dr. Merwin," said Evelyn softly—"don't go away!"

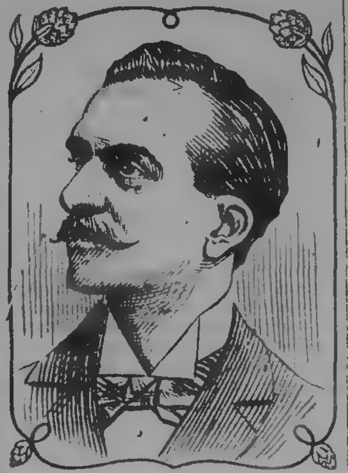
LAWYER IS HONORED

OTTAWA MAN IS SECRETARY OF INLAND REVENUE DEPT.

J. U. Vincent, Well Known at the Capital, Succeeds to Important Post and Will Combine Secretaryship With Office of Assistant Deputy of the Department — Ran Against Murphy.

J. U. Vincent, K.C., has been appointed secretary of the Federal Department of Inland Revenue and Assistant Deputy of that Department. The new official is a member of the well-known law firm of Vincent & Seguin, of Ottawa, and has been an active figure in the local political arena for some years. He contested Russell against Hon. Charles Murphy in the last Federal election but was defeated.

Mr. Vincent is a man of energy and decided views on public questions and has been conspicuous for many years as a leader of a section of the French-Canadians. He has been extremely active in promoting what he believes to be the rights of his fellow countrymen in matters educational, and national, and also has been a conspicuous figure municipally and fraternally.



J. U. VINCENT.

He is clear-headed and fearless in debate and an excellent public speaker and a lawyer of good ability.

He was born in Ottawa in 1872 and educated there, being a graduate of Ottawa University, with honors in philosophy. He subsequently studied law at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, and was called to the Ontario Bar in 1897. He was created a King's counsellor in 1910. He has practiced his profession with success in the capital ever since graduation and rapidly came to the front, as a leader among the French-Canadians of the capital. He has been president of the Monument National, and of the Ste. Jean Baptiste Society, and of the L'Union Canadian of Ontario. He has been a vice-president of the Ottawa branch of the Over-Seas Club and chief ranger of Court 304, C. O. F., and he has also sat at the Aldermanic Board and been a license commissioner for Ottawa.

Lisping In Golden Numbers.

There have been so many big cases in the British law courts during the past few months that speculation has been rife as to the incomes made by fashionable K.C.'s. It is not unusual for a prominent lawyer to pocket $100,000 a year, and yet the majority of them are quite willing to make financial sacrifices in order to attain Cabinet rank.

Nowadays Mr. F. E. Smith appears to be engaged for every big case, and oft-times he keeps several cases going on the same day. His income must be of handsome proportions, and yet he is certain to take Cabinet office when the Tories return to power, though his income will only be something like a fourth of what it is now. It is questionable, however, with all his big fees whether "F. E." has talked to greater profit than his bosom friend, Mr. Winston Churchill. Just as he returned from the Boer War, and before he was known as a Parliamentarian, Mr. Churchill pocketed £364 as his share for an hour and a half's lecture at St. George's Hall, Liverpool. His present salary is a wretched dole compared with that rate of payment.

A Painful Job.

Miss Gabrielle Ray, the celebrated London stage favorite, hails from the Manchester district, where several of her relatives still reside. Though she was always a clever dancer, Miss Ray owed her success to her personal beauty, and was as popular with the "gods" as the stall. As a picture postcard study she held pride of place, and the royalties from this source must have brought her in a handsome income.

She never found it necessary to beg for an increase of salary, like the stage carpenter, whom she overheard asking the manager for more wages.

"Why," said the manager in a tone of surprise, "I don't see my way to giving you a rise. You have nothing much to do. Half the time you are merely standing in the wings listening to the play."

"Yes, sir," replied the stage carpenter with a pained expression, "that's just it."

A Madman's Strange Belief.

An unfortunate maniac was confined in one of the Scottish lunatic asylums, his particular infirmity being an unshakable belief that every day was Christmas day and that he was dining sumptuously on turkey or roast beef and a good slice of plum pudding. His real diet, however, was of the plainest, he being served twice daily with a dish of oatmeal porridge. After daily describing to his attendants the pleasures he had tasted in his cut of turkey or what not he as regularly added, "yet, somehow or other, everything that I eat tastes of porridge." This story it was which gave rise to the saying, "As palatable as the madman's porride."

TWISTING THE LANGUAGE.

English Has Received Some Severe Jolts In the Philippines.

Baby talk is a highly developed language compared to the jargon American housewives talk to their Filipino house boys. But it usually conveys the meaning when accompanied by expressive gestures. At best, however, the performance of the command speaks well for native intuition.

Spanish construction of English words is another twist that our poor language gets in the Philippines. "No got" in the island is the most commonly used expression for "I haven't any." Similarly "no can do" means "I can't," and "no want" means "I don't want it." Not only between American and Filipino, but among Americans themselves, this twisted construction has largely supplanted the legitimate one.

With the soldier anything that belonged peculiarly to the Philippines was described as "bamboo." Now all colonials use the term. The "bamboo fleet" is the one assigned to Philippine waters, and the "bamboo government" is the Philippine civil government in distinction from the United States military.

Among other "soldierisms" (if I may be permitted this contribution to the new language) were certain pure Malay words. The list is continually growing, and now there are dozens of Tagalog and Moro expressions in constant use among the Americans. For example, there are the Tagalog words "bagulo," meaning "storm;" carabao," meaning an animal; "palay," meaning "rice," and "tao," meaning "man." Moro terms in common use are "amok," meaning "wild;" "dato," meaning "chief;" "kris," meaning a wavy edged knife, and "sarong," meaning a garment.—Review of Reviews.

Setting Him Right.

"I suppose the titled personage you say you are going to marry is mentioned in the Almanach de Gotha?" said the inquisitive newspaper man.

"No indeed," retorted the lovely actress. "Of course he ain't in no almanac. Do you think he's a joke?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Improving Under Difficulties.

Few cities are doing as much building as Buenos Aires, easily the largest center of population south of the equator and the fourth city of the western hemisphere, but such work goes on under difficulties in that part of South America. The iron, steel and cement are imported, chiefly from England, Germany and France, with some from the United States. The pine and spruce lumber used comes from this country and Canada. Sand is brought across the wide estuary of the La Plata from Uruguay, because it is very scarce in Argentia. Sometimes bricks are ground up and used as a substitute for sand. Tiles for floors and roofs are imported from France and Belgium. Most of the plumbing and builders' hardware comes from Great Britain, a little being imported from the United States. And thousands of buildings are rushed up every year in a booming city under these conditions.

Instruction ends in the schoolroom, but education ends only with life, and education is to unfold nature; to strengthen good and conquer evil; to give self help.—F. W. Robertson.

Chief Event.

A schoolmaster is telling a rather funny story against himself. He begins the story with the significant remark that one Saturday he paid the last of a series of visits to his dentist. On the following Monday morning one or two of his pupils looked at him curiously, but, of course, nothing was said. He makes a point of trying to interest his pupils in the current affairs of the world, so when his class assembled he opened his newspaper and, as usual, asked the question:

"Well, children, what is the chief event that has happened since Friday?"

Quick as lightning came the reply from a little girl in the front row:

"Please, sir, you've had a set of false teeth!"

"While the proper study of mankind is man, it is generally the women who are the most conscientious students."

Three Important Facts To Consider

1st—To have your LIFE INSURANCE, that in event of DEATH those depending on you will be provided for, and if you live, you will reap the benefit of your savings.
DEATHS OCCUR EVERY SECOND.

2nd To carry sufficient ACCIDENT AND SICKNESS INSURANCE that in event of disability, your income will not cease.
You may meet with an accident any moment.

3rd To have your PROPERTY Insured, that in event of FIRE you will not lose the earnings of a life time.
Millions of Dollars are paid in Fire Losses each year

J. J. McCAFFERY AND HAMILTON BALL CLUB

Toronto Oct. 27—James J. McCaffery, president of the Toronto Baseball Club of the International League, has secured an option on the interest in the Hamilton Baseball club of the Canadian league held by John Burns and George Lee, of Toronto. The Toronto magnate has been negotiating for an interest in the Hamilton franchise for some time, and took the option on the shares held by Burns and Lee on Wednesday on condition that M. M. Robinson, the Hamilton man, who owns the other third interest in the club, would agree to remain in the club and would pool his interest with that which will be purchased by McCaffery.

RUGBY

The rugby attraction on Saturday day afternoon at Nicholls Oval proved to be one of the best games witnessed here in years. It was the return game between the P.C.I. and L.C.I. and the local lads carried off the honors with the same score of 3—1. It was one of the games in which no player in particular starred. Everybody was on their toes from beginning to end. Captain Rogers of the local crew handled his team with a style that would put Jack Maynard in the back ground. His attack was ably assisted by Long's kicking which resulted in the three counters, while Williamson's booting netted Lindsay's only score. Dr MacPherson and Bill Gibson handled the game to the satisfaction of all.

The P.C.I. line-up was:

Flying wing—Eastwood.

Halves—Smith, Long, Rogers.

Outside Wings—McDonald, Horfield.

Middle Wings—Knox, Jobbit.

Inside Wings—Stevenson, Cuniff.

Quarter—Stratton.

Scrimmage—Cann, Huycke, Carruthers.

Meat For Jurymen.

At one time it was the common duty of both the plaintiff and defendant in an action to provide refreshments for the jury empaneled to try it, and from this arose the practice (which survived until 1870) of denying them "meat, drink or fire" while deliberating upon their verdict. Later on it became usual for the person in whose favor the verdict was given to offer the jury a dinner and sometimes a guinea or so for their trouble. This practice led to so much abuse that it was found necessary to pass a law prohibiting it.—London Graphic.

Garrick's Wit.

David Garrick on one occasion passed Tyburn as a huge crowd was assembling to witness the execution of a criminal. "Who is he?" asked the great actor of a friend who accompanied him.

"I believe his name is Vowel," was the reply.

"Ah," said Garrick, "I wonder which of the vowels he is, for they are several. At all events it is certain that it is neither U nor I!"

"MADE IN GOD'S IMAGE."

Only To Be Hideously Mangled and Slaughtered on the Field of Battle.

"I hesitate to state truly what I saw of the wounded in the Balkan war," writes Noel Buxton, M.P., in an English publication. "We dislike horrors and we dislike the people who have a taste for them. The ugly facts in normal life we agree not to speak of."

But to Mr. Buxton the time has come to tell just what war means to the human beings whom we disguise and forget under the name of "soldier" or "army." With his own eyes Mr. Buxton has seen the horror of the Balkan war and these are some of the things he saw:

"Many who fell where the Turks afterwards advanced were mutilated, almost always, happily, in such a way that life could only last two or three hours.

"The majority of infantrymen were hit in the left arm or hand, as it was lifted for firing. Sharpnel balls (coming from above the troops as they knelt or lay) struck the shoulders, back and legs. We saw many men pierced through the lungs. An officer rode six miles shot just below the heart.

"They are terrified of losing a limb. I heard one man say to the doctor who was preparing to take off his gangrenous arm, 'Please kill me rather than take off my arm. If I can't work on my farm, I would rather be dead.'

"Foreign military attaches picked up Turkish dum-dum ammunition and nothing else would have expanded in soft flesh with the dreadful results that came in a few cases to our surgery. One, for instance, had, in traversing the upper arm, spread so as to make the exit wound quite five inches long. Another entering the inner side of the thigh caused on the outer side a hole quite 14 inches in length, the flesh protruding in separate oblong masses, mangled together, the skin apparently all carried away.

"The more ruthlessly and quickly we worked, the larger seemed the crowd still needing our services. The air grew fouler, the heat more intolerable, the crush more annoying, the smell of gangrenous and exposed flesh more disgusting, fatigue made one even more callous; but never could we get through that endless queue at the door.

"Here were human beings of a fine type, of pure blood, in the prime of life, remarkably free from immoral disease, of a courage and endurance that makes them renowned as fighters throughout Europe, with a quality of mind and body unique among the peasants of the world. As one worked on, the mind recollected with impartial coldness the immense value of each of these creatures, being to whom the expression 'made in the image of God' might quite philosophically be applied.

"And here, at closest quarters, by the insistent impact of sight and smell and hearing and touch, we realized this image smashed; its capacity for work, thought, fatherhood, happiness, destroyed by resultant ill-health; not one alone, such as would in peace time, in a case of misfortune, move a whole nation to sympathy, but by scores and hundreds and tens of thousands."

Scientific Problems.

An Opened Grave

By SAMUEL R. BRANT

My father was one of the Argonauts, or forty-niners, as they were called. He told me this story when I was a little boy:

"I was washing for gold the same as others," he said, "and Jim Barlow, a young fellow about my age, was washing alongside of me. A storm was coming up, and we were concluding it was about time to get under cover when all of a sudden I saw Jim pitch forward on his face. At the same time I was blinded by a flash and heard a terrific clap of thunder. When we picked Jim up he was dead.

"That was before the present methods of bringing persons to life as they sometimes do now, and no one had ever heard of a person receiving a dose of electricity strong enough to kill, and yet in a few hours be perfectly well again. None of us saw any use holding on to Jim's body for any length of time. He had been killed by lightning and that's all there was about it. So we set one of the gold washers, who was a carpenter by trade, to make a coffin or, rather, a box, and we buried him under a big tree that stood apart from other trees.

"I washed gold up and down the creek for some time when one of those earthquakes they have in the Golden State came along and left great fissures in its track. A few days after the occurrence I was passing the place where Jim Barlow was struck by lightning. One of the fissures that had been left by the quake ran right along the foot of the tree and there was the end of his coffin sticking out on one side of the cleft dirt.

"I didn't propose to leave the body of a friend in that condition, so I dug out the coffin, intending to rebury it. Either the quake or something had loosened the lid, and I raised it. The coffin was empty.

"I never had such a surprise in my life. The lid had been nailed on—we hadn't any screws at the time of the burial. The nailing had been so carelessly done that several nails had missed striking the box or had gone through sideways. If Jim had come to life it would have been easy enough for him to have kicked off the lid. But I questioned if he could have broken through the ground above him, though we hadn't taken pains to dig the grave very deep, also the long storm which followed the burial must have washed a good deal of ground off the surface.

"But all this was of no importance. Jim had been killed, and a few hours afterward had been buried. It was getting dark when we planted him, and the next morning we had all gone to work farther up the creek. But, being dead, what had become of the body? There was no medical college west of the Rocky mountains, and no one had any use so far as I can see for the corpse.

"Such mysteries don't interest a busy people such as we were out there at that time, and I didn't spend much time trying to solve the puzzle. I got tired of placer mining and, going to a different location, staked out a claim.

"There was a trail leading by my mine, and one day, when I was sitting on a log resting, with a pipe in my mouth, I heard some animal coming up the gulch. In a few minutes I saw a horse with a man on it coming lickety-split. Horse and man dashed past me, the man staring at me wildly, and you'd better believe I stared at him. His face was white as that of a corpse, his eyes were starting out of his head and—he was Jim Barlow.

"At first I was too paralyzed to move, and when I came to myself he had passed out of hearing. I listened and thought I heard the hoofs of horses down the gulch, but nothing showed up, and soon I heard them no more.

"I never was much given to being afraid, but the sight of Barlow, who had been killed standing beside me, then shaken up by an earthquake and tipped out of his coffin, dashing past me like that unnerved me. My teeth chattered so that I bit off the stem of my pipe. What did it mean?

"As soon as I recovered from the shock I concluded to go down the gulch and try to find out if any one else had seen the ghost. I found a man who had. He described the sight just as I had seen it. He also told me that there had been considerable excitement thereabout on account of the escape of a horse thief. He was to have been hanged and got away.

"This would have explained the matter if it hadn't been that the man I saw was Jim Barlow, and Jim Barlow was dead.

"About a week after this a man came to my cabin and said a friend of mine wanted me to come down to L. I went with the messenger, who took me to the sheriff, who had a horse thief in limbo. The horse thief was Jim Barlow.

"'Why, Jim,' I shouted, 'I thought you were dead!'

"'I ain't dead,' he said, 'and I ain't a horse thief. These fellows have got me mixed with another man.'

"I vouched for him, and they let him go. He told me that some time after he had been struck by lightning—he didn't know how long—he had dreamed he was suffocating. Raising a leg, he kicked off the lid of his coffin and a foot of wet dirt besides. He was so terror stricken that he didn't stop running till he had put miles between him and his grave. He wouldn't have gone back to its location for the world."

HISTORIC HOAXES.

To Say "Cats" In Ballymena Is a Very Hazardous Proceeding.

Don't mention the word "cats" if you should ever visit Ballymena, in Ireland. You might regret it. Ballymena is in Mid-Antrim, and a most remarkable scene was witnessed there not so long ago. Cartload after cartload of cats poured into the town until the whole place was swarming with felines. It was stated that a Government representative would be in attendance at the Ballymena Fair Hill to purchase all suitable specimens offered at prices ranging from 2s. to 4s. a cat. Very few potatoes were offered for sale that day, as the farmers' carts came in filled with squealing masses of cats of every size.

The country folk waited in vain for the "Government official," and great was the exasperation when it dawned upon them that they had been the victims of an elaborate hoax.

It will be noticed that Germany is not the only country in the world which is subjected to hoaxes. Even in military and royal affairs Great Britain has known something analagous to the Kopenick and Strassburg affairs.

Is it not a matter of history that once, not so many years ago, a smart military-looking man arrived in the town of Boston in Lincolnshire, England, and announced that he was in command of five hundred troopers who were to reach the town the following day. He gave orders on a sumptuous scale, cashed a number of checks, and actually rode out to the nearest village with the mayor and corporation all mounted to meet his troops and escort them into town.

The cavalcade waited in vain for hours, and then they watched the captain ride out of the village to search for his soldiers and bring them on in haste.

Hours passed, and then they had reluctantly to turn their horses' heads and ride back to town. The captain never returned, it is needless to say, and to this day his bills have never been paid nor his checks honored.

There was a case, too, in the days of the good Queen Victoria, when that factory of hoaxes—chiefly metallic, Brummagen itself was badly hoaxed.

An announcement appeared in one of the morning papers that the Queen of Oude and her retinue was about to pay a visit, and that apartments had been taken at the Queen's Hotel for one hundred guests. The Queen's emissary, in the person of a Captain Wyndham, arrived very shortly afterwards, and he proceeded to give regal orders for the entertainment of his royal mistress. The mayor gave up a proposed visit to the continent, money flowed in from all quarters to help to give the party a royal reception, and the captain himself was given a reception as great and costly as that which is generally bestowed upon a distinguished visitor.

Birmingham worked itself up into a state of wonderful excitement, but it was nothing to the excitement which followed when it was known that the captain had vanished, leaving behind him an army of creditors to mourn his departure.

Grounds.

"Has your husband given you grounds for divorce?" asked the woman who is always eager to sympathize.

"Yes," replied the one whose mind is on alimony. "Plenty of grounds but I'd rather have some regular real estate."—Washington Star.

ACQUITTED ON THEFT CHARGE

Frederick Eastland Not Guilty of Stealing Money and Watch

The charge against Frederick Eastland, of stealing money and a watch from Thos. McKinley, was not proven at Police Court this morning and the case was dismissed.

G. N. Gordon appeared for the defendant and a plea of not guilty was entered. Magistrate Edmison said McKinley's evidence was very unsatisfactory.

McKinley said he was in the city last Monday and became intoxicated. He did not find out till the next day that he had been robbed of between $60 and $70 and a watch. He said he paid Ira McMullen about $2 for the watch. He did not take off his clothes Monday night because he was afraid he would catch cold.

To Mr. Gordon, McKinley said he considered Eastland a straightforward and honest man.

Alex. Walker said he saw Eastland with his right hand inside McKinley's inside coat pocket, and his left hand in his hip pocket, in Long's Hotel on Monday.

Witness told him it was not a very nice thing to have his hand in a drunken man's pockets.

Eastland answered him with an oath and said that it was none of his business.

Magistrate— "What else did you do?"

"I went in and told the bartender."

Constable Meagher gave evidence as to the searching of Eastland. A watch and some money were found.

The bartender admitted of being warned of what was going on out in the dining room by Walker. He didn't go out there as it was not any of his business.

At this point both the Crown Attorney and the Magistrate handed handed out a few bouquets to the witness for his conduct.

Mr. Geroge Linton fo Peterborough Lumble Comapny, said that Eastland had received about $29 during past month from their office.

Frederick Eastland, the prisoner, said that he and McKinley were friends. He had known McKinley for a number of years. McKinley gave him the watch to keep for him.

"Did you have your hand in McKinley's pocket?"

"Not to my knowledge."

"You were drinking?"

"Yes."

Crown Attorney— "How much money did you have?"

"About $2."

"What money did you see McKinley have?"

"A couple of dollars."

"I promised to give Thos. McKinley his watch in the morning, but I could not find him."

"You didn't look for him?"

"I did."

"Do you deny anything Walker said?"

"I certainly do."

Returning to China

Mr. D. H. Robertson gave a very fine adderss in Murray street Baptist church yesterday morning. He left to-day with Mrs. Robertson and children on his return to Chentu, China.

ONE MISSIONARY RETURNS; ANOTHER SAYS FAREWELL

Miss Quinn and Mr. H. W. Johnston Speak at Bethany Tabernacle

A fairly large congregation at Bethany Tabernacle last night heard Miss M. Quinn give a short and interesting address on her work in China. Miss Quinn is home on furlough. Last year she passed through a severe illness.

"In my district," said Miss Quinn, "there are in the neighborhood of seven million people. The majority of them are well to do and are intelligent, and are better than any class I have seen during my fourteen years' work in China."

Speaking of some of the converts she told of how they would have to start a journey on Saturday morning so as to be present for the services on Sunday morning.

Owing to the great unrest in China at the present time it was hard to do any outside work in the districts owing to the presence of so many robbers.

Miss Quinn told of her plans for future work and altogether her remarks were listened to with interest and sympathy.

At the morning service Mr. Herbert Johnston, who is a native of Peterborough, gave a farewell address.

Mr. Johnston is a young man who has been almost born into missionary work and has been brought up at "Bethany Tabernacle. His father, who is an old member of the church, spoke at the close of the service and told how his son was on the point of death when he was a week old, and how he and the mother prayed that he might be spared and they would train him with a view of his becoming a missionary.

Mr. Johnston is to leave almost immediately for South America where he will take up work among a race of people who are a mixture of Spanish and Indian blood, and who, as he said in his address, are of a passionate nature, and are moved by feeling rather than reason.

Mr. Johnston spoke in a humble, but sincere way about his work, and said he was not going away with any illusion as to the work before him, he expected nothing more than the prosaic humdrum drugery of common life.

He said he used to wonder what death was when he was a boy, but he had learned that it was only when we become dead that we really live. "All our blessings come when we put ourselves in the back-ground and let Christ do the work. We are going to be in the back-ground and yet we are right at the front too."

At certain points in his address the young missionary was deeply moved, but he brushed the tears away, and laughingly said, "excuse me wiping my eyes, I have tears in them."

He spoke of the religion of the people in Equador, and said,—"The Catholicism as shown in South America is a blasphemous libel on the religion of Jesus Christ."

Mr. Johnston is the thirteenth member of the Tabernacle who has gone to the Mission Field.

LOCAL MUSICIAN AT MASSEY HALL

Miss Mary Lonergan to Assist in Concert

The annual concert of the Toronto College of Music takes place in Massey Hall to-morrow evening, under the leadership of Dr. Torrington.

These concerts have acquired a national reputation, as the artists taking part in them are chosen from among the most successful graduates of the Toronto College of Music.

Peterboro will be honored this year from the fact that Miss Mary Lonergan, A.T.C.M., of this city, has been chosen to play Beethoven's concerto in C minor, with full orchestral accompaniment.

Miss Lonergan left for Toronto this morning.

"THE QUAKER GIRL"

"The Quaker Girl" the famous musical hit of three continents, which will be presented at the Grand, next Saturday, Nov. 1, with the New York company, headed by Victor Morley, has a rather peculiar history. It was originally produced in London about four years ago at George Edwardes' Royal Adelphi Theatre and immediately scored a tremendous hit, remaining at that playhouse for two entire years. The title role was taken by Miss Gertie Millar who in private life is the wife of the composer, Lionel Monckton, while Joseph Coyne played the leading male role of Tony Chute. Of course, when the news of this success reached New York, all the American managers who make a practice of bringing English successes to this country sent their emissaries to see "The Quaker Girl" and report on its chances as an American show. One and all these dramatic scouts reported that the piece, while dainty and entertaining and exceedingly tuneful, was far and away too quiet for American audiences accustomed as they are to ragtime audiences, chorus girls in tights and general burlesque entertainment. So in spite of the London success of this play, the American rights were not sought until the late Henry B. Harris, who had never produced a musical show, took a chance and bought the rights. The result was amazing. The company which is coming to the Grand played one solid year in New York, ten weeks in Chicago, twelve in Boston and eight in Philadelphia, and is now packing theatres in the larger cities. The estimated profits from the American rights for this production are over $200,000.00 so that it can be seen that American audiences once in a while do appreciate a clean and wholesome, if quiet, musical comedy. 54

LAD INJURED BY PEA SHOOTER

Deep Gash Inflicted in the Roof of the Mouth

A pea-shooter came near being the cause of a fatality this morning in the south end. Little Frederick Meagher, the eighteen-months-old son of P.C. Meagher, was playing with a pea-shooter in his mouth and he suddenly fell, the tin instrument running back in his throat. The lining was torn off the throat and the roof of the mouth deeply gashed. Two doctors were summoned, and when chloroform was administered the gashes were sewed up. Although the child is in a very serious condition the doctors think that the accident will not be fatal.

OBITUARY

Mrs. P. Delaire

The inevitable call of death was answered a few minutes after noon to-day by a well known and highly respected resident of this city, Delima Archambault, wife of Mr. P. Delaire, 471 Park street.

Deceased who was forty-eight years of age, has spent the greater portion of her life in this city and had made a large circle of friends who will regret to learn of her demise. She had been ailing for some time and death came very peacefully.

She is survived by her sorrowing husband, also one son, Alphonse, of Rochester, and five daughters, Josephine, Agnes, Carrine, Lydia and Geraldine, all at home.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday morning at nine o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral and St. Peter's Cemetery.

Mrs. J. Lonergan

Mrs. J. Lonergan, aged 88 years, passed away at the House of Providence Saturday afternoon.

The body was removed to the home of her daughter, Mrs. M. O'Brien, Douro, and the funeral took place this morning to St. Joseph's church and cemetery.

John Foley

Mr. John Foley, an inmate of the House of Providence, passed away on Saturday evening. He was 73 years of age and has been an inmate of the House of Providence for the past two years. Prior to that he lived in Parry Sound. Death was due to heart trouble.

The funeral took place this morning to St. Peter's Cathedral and St. Peter's Cemetery.

LAID TO REST

The funeral of the late Herbert Miller, held this afternoon, was one of the largest attended here for some time. The members of the W.O.W. attended in a body. Rev. J. R. Webb, of Murray street Baptist church, officiated. The following members of the W.O.W. acted as pall bearers: Messrs. A. Heard, E. Williamson, H. Way, R. Penrose, H. LeBar, H. Cooper.

POLICE COURT

Robert Kearney, charged with using bad language toward Albert Legros, was fined $1.00, to be paid in ten days.

Michael Fallon, charged with being drunk, was placed on the black list, after his freedom for the period of 24 hours only.

Arthur Donaldson pleaded guilty to the charge of being drunk in a public place, and was assessed the usual $2.

"Give me time to get it?" asked the prisoner.

"You should think of these things before," remarked His Worship in making the fine payable forthwith.

James Wallace, charged with the theft of $1.00 from Robert L. Anderson, a black lister, was discharged. Anderson said he gave Wallace $1 to get a bottle of liquor. This was denied by Wallace.

"Nine times out of ten it's not the boss' fault that the other fellow is getting more money than you; it's yours."

SKULLS FOUND

By Workman Excavating at Vermount Marble Company Factory

James Conroy was the discoverer of a rather gruesome find this morning. When engaged in excavating in the rear of the Vermont Marble Company factroy, he came across six skulls along with other bones of the body, lying buried in the sand about two feet and a half from the surface. Only one of the skulls was in fairly good condition. The lower limbs of the skeleton were missing and the bones looked as if they had been thrown in the hole and covered up without any particular regards to ceremony. The teeth were of medium size and in good condition.

It is evident that interment took place many years ago.

LOCAL LABOR CONDITIONS

As Reported in the Labor Gazette

The following is the report of the local correspondent to the Labor Gazette:

September was a busy month in labor circles, both for skilled and unskilled workers. The building trades continued very busy and civic work kept a large number of men steadily employed. The construction of the factory of the Henry Hope & Son is being pushed forward as fast as possible. The work was delayed for several weeks waiting for the steel, but it will be completed this fall. The De Laval Dairy Supply Company have about completed their building operations, and the machinery is being installed in the new buildings. They are also building a huge chimney which will be 115 feet high. The Vermonte Marble Company buildings are nearly complete, and the machinery is being installed. They will commence operations about the first of next month. The Bonner Worth Company are installing the machinery in the new addition just completed. The Peterborough planing mill has been sold to Harry Baker, contractor. They have had a very busy season and the outlook gives abundant promise for a good long fall season's work. The Company who have the contract for paving the principal streets in this city have about seventy-five men employed on the work. The Radial Railway are replacing the old rails with new heavy rails that weigh eighty lbs. These are being put down while the road is being torn up for the pavement. At a meeting of the Milk Vendors' Association, it was decided that all milk sold on credit will in future be charged one cent per quart in advance of the prevailing price.

Farmers were very busy, as is usual at this season of the year. From enquiries among the farmers of this district as to the potato crop, the report is generally good. The potatoes are smaller than last year, but they are in better condition. Apples will be a small crop and high prices are ruling. There is also a great scarcity of turkeys. This is said to be owing to the cold, wet spring. Lumbering operations have already begun. The lumber companies are sending men to the north country to begin the season's work. All the factories are working full time with full complement of hands.

PAST AND FUTURE

"I see the whole of Existance as a steady passage from past to future."— Sir Oliver Lodge.

ESTABLISHED 1879 — PETERBOROUGH, ONT., TUESDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1913 — TEN CENTS PER WEEK.

MARITIME PREMIERS WOULD HAVE FIXED REPRESENTATION; WANT FORTY MEMBERS

REV. CANON TROOP, M.A. Montreal.

He is leaving Montreal this week and will reside in England. Canon Troop was rector at St. Martin's Church

They Present Arguments at Ottawa Conference Declaring That in Redistributions Since Confederation They Have Lost Five Seats in the Federal House and Seek Restoration of These.

OTTAWA, Oct. 28. — Representation from the Maritime Provinces in the Federal House was discussed by the Provincial Premiers in conference here yesterday, behind closed doors. No conclusion was reached in regard to the arguments put forth by the delegates from Nova Scotia New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Premier Flemming of New Brunswick moved, seconded by Premier Mathieson of Prince Edward Island, asking adoption of the following resolution:

"That in the opinion of this conference the representation granted to the Maritime Provinces at the time of the Confederation be restored and made irreducible."

Arguments were advanced setting forth the facts in the case; that the Maritime Provinces had forty members at Confederation, while now they only have thirty-five. It was claimed that a hardship was being worked in the provinces affected which was not intended, whatever the constitutional clause governing the case might state.

It is understood that the arguments failed to get the support expected, although sympathy was expressed by other representatives.

To-day the question of provincial subsidies will be discussed.

The delegates present were: Prince Edward Island, Premier Mathieson and Hon. Messrs. Arsenault and Stewart; Nova Scotia, Premier Murray and Attorney-General Daniels; New Brunswick, Premier Flemming and Attorney-General Grimmer; Ontario, Sir James Whitney, Hon. Messrs. Lucas and Foy; Quebec, Sir Lomer Gouin, Hon. Messrs. Taschereau, MacKenzie and Caron; Manitoba, Sir Rodmond Roblin and Hon. Mr. Howden; Saskatchewan, Premier Scott and Hon. Mr. Calder; Alberta, Premier Sifton; British Columbia, Sir Richard McBride. Premier Murray of Nova Scotia was chosen chairman.

A special executive committee sat last evening to figure out the provincial proportions regarding the increased subsidy which will be under consideration to-day.

Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden will entertain the provincial delegates to dinner this evening and their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess will dine the provincial leaders at Rideau Hall on Wednesday evening.

NOMINATIONS IN PEEL

J.P. Fallis and A.H. Milner Are Officially Named

BRAMPTON, Oct. 28.—There was a large attendance at the official nomination meeting yesterday for the coming bye-election in Peel County to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Sam Charters, M.P.P.

Both candidates, J. R. Fallis, Conservative, and A. H. Milner, Liberal, were given an hour each.

Mr. Fallis, in a ten 'minutes' speech, referred to his dealings in business with Peel County people, and promised that he would observe the same standards of conduct in his political life. He was in thorough accord with the policies of the Whitney Government, referring specially to the improvements which had been carried out in educational and agricultural affairs.

Mr. Milner criticized the Government's temperance policy and claimed that much of the increased revenue in late years was derived from measures inaugurated by the Ross Government. He said he stood for the total abolition of the bar as the only means of eradicating the evils of treating and other pernicious effects of the liquor traffic.

Hon. W. H. Hearst and J. C. Elliott also spoke.

HAZED OR INITIATED?

Upper Classmen of Winnipeg Colleges Must Prove Difference.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 28.—"Freshies" of the United Colleges were "optionally" initiated Saturday night by upper classmen to appease the faculty who had prohibited forcible initiation. Freshmen, 110 in number, were dropped through a hole in the floor, tossed from floor to floor in blankets; put in an "electric chair," and carefully rolled in lampblack, eggs and flour.

Rules in both colleges are very strict against hazing, the penalty being expulsion. Whether the upper classmen will be able to make the college authorities clearly distinguish a difference between hazing and initiation depends the fate of a large number.

NEW ZEALAND TO HAVE IT'S OWN NAVY

British Admiralty Could not Carry out Program Asked for

Canadian Press Despatch.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Oct. 28. — The New Zealand Government today decided to adopt the policy of building a navy of it's own on the same lines as the Australian Navy and discontinue its subsidy to the British Navy.

The Prime Minister in announcing this reversal of policy, explained the decision of the Government was due to the inability of the British Admiralty to carry out its agreement and station two cruisers of the Bristol type in New Zealand waters, the colony bearing the cost of up-keep.

Opens Door; Hit By Bullet.

HAILEYBURY, Oct. 28.—Firing at a bottle with a 22-calibre rifle, four Haileybury boys, ranging in ages from 14 to 10, are in the charge of the police to-day following the accidental shooting of Mrs. A. F. Phillips, who is in the hospital with a bullet wound in the head.

The bullets fired from the rifle were spattering against the wall of Mrs. Phillip's house. She opened the door and a bullet struck her just below the right ear. The wound may not be fatal.

U. S. WAITING FOR EUROPE

Looks for Support in Mexican Situation

WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 28.—No change has been made in the Government's policy toward the Mexican situation as a result of Sunday's abortive elections. With Gen. Huerta still at the head of Mexican affairs and likely to remain there for some time to come, this Government will decline to accord formal recognition to the Huerta Administration. It will continue however, to do business with the de facto Federal authority in the City of Mexico, but will be careful to make it clear that this is done merely for practical business reasons and it not intended even as an implied recognition of the Mexican Government. It is realized here, however that this condition of affairs cannot go on indefinitely. But as far as can be ascertained the Washington authorities have no specific solution to offer.

Announcement from the London Foreign Office yesterday that no action concerning Mexico will be taken by the British Government without consultation with the United States is regarded here as the most encouraging sign yet given of the prospect of a general agreement among foreign nations to recognize the predominating interests of the United States in Mexico. It was a relief also to some officials to learn that the Foreign Office is authority for the statement that Great Britain's recognition of the Huerta Government was merely provisional pending the outcome of Sunday's elections.

There have been indications that European nations were dissatisfied with the menace to the lives and property of their citizens or subjects by the disorders in the perturbed republic, and it is expected that very shortly some formal communication of inquiry will be addressed to the United States on the subject.

Election Valid, Says Minister.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 28.—The Mexican Minister of the Interior, Manuel Garza Aldape, was asked yesterday if the few votes cast in the Presidential election on Sunday in the City of Mexico fight be taken as an indication of how much voting had been done elsewhere in the republic and if it looked, in view of the small number of votes cast, as though the elections would be declared null by Congress. The Minister replied that the question which will decide the legality of the election, apart from the absence of fraud, will not be whether a majority of the voters in each electoral district casts a vote; it being immaterial for instance, if only 10,000 people in the capital voted.

Reluctance to go to the polls on Sunday was genuine. Besides a lack of experience in such affairs there was said to be generally felt a fear that some evil consequences would follow should the voter choose a losing candidate.

Constitutionalists claim that when the Piedras Negras polls closed Sunday the vote stood about 95 for Diaz to 1,200 for Huerta, and that hundreds of votes were added to the polls Sunday night. In scores of cases, it is asserted, a single soldier voted in the names of a dozen different persons.

Interview Officially Denied.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—"The British Minister to Mexico did see some journalists but in the course of the interview he made no reference of any sort or kind to the intentions or the policy of the United States in regard to Mexico."

The foregoing is an authorized statement issued yesterday at the British Foreign Office where the officials have heard at length from Sir Lionel Carden, the British Minister at Mexico City, on the subject of the divergent reports relative to the contents of his recent interview.

WHITE STAR LINER TEUTONIC JUST MISSED AN ICEBERG

Prompt Action of Captain Prevented Disaster,

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The White Star liner Teutonic, which arrived in the Mersey yesterday from Montreal with nearly 400 second and third class passengers, had a somewhat exciting experience. When about 172 miles east of Belle Isle on Wednesday morning the Teutonic encountered a thick fog. During the evening an enormous iceberg was sighted right ahead, almost on top of the vessel. The captain promptly put the helm hard aport, and the engine full-speed astern, and then the liner swung slowly to starboard, just in the nick of time—and the iceberg passed silently along the portside within a few yards of the stern.

"Arson Squad" Busy Again.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Militant suffragettes yesterday morning set fire to and burned to the ground Till House, a fine residence at Bramshott, twelve miles from Aldershot, belonging to T. McKenna, a brother of the Home Secretary, Reginald McKenna. A quantity of suffrage literature and several kerosene cans were found lying on the ground together with the notification that the "Arson Squad" had set fire to the mansion as a protest against the forcible feeding of imprisoned suffragettes.

PREMIER McBRIDE SAYS WHAT HE THINKS OF NAVY FIASCO

British Columbia Deplores Canada's Failure to Vote aid.

SIR RICHARD M'BRIDE,

OTTAWA, Oct. 28.—Sir Richard McBride, Premier of British Columbia, who was the guest of the Canadian Club at luncheon yesterday, created rather a furore when he launched into the naval question in his speech.

It is a cardinal rule of the club that nothing of a political or controversial nature shall be introduced in the speeches at the luncheons, but Sir Richard came out in no uncertain tone.

"I am not going to say anything controversial," said Sir Richard, in beginning his address, "but in a few modest words, not to give a message—that were a dangerous thing to attempt—but to tell of western feeling on a certain question which was closely associated with that section of the Empire. First, I wish to speak of the navy and what Canada should do towards her share of empire responsibility. If my voice from British Columbia be of value to this assembly, I would like to say with all the emphasis I may command how deeply we regret and deplore the inability of Canada to do her share towards Canadian, towards Imperial defence, in failing to vote the $35,000,000, as was proposed a few months ago for the assistance of a program of the British Admiralty.

"I can't believe it is impossible to discuss this matter on other than a controversial basis, one that will bring up political discord. The theme of national defence should occupy a plane higher than the political wardroom, the hustings, or even the national forum. If we have to introduce political differences into such a question we will drift and drift till we are so seriously involved that we cannot extricate ourselves without sacrificing our dignity and self-respect. We in British Columbia feel that we have come to the point when, in manly fashion, we should do our share in the defence, not of only British Columbia, Canada, but of the Empire as well."

Aside from the utterances of the British Columbia Premier, the feature of the luncheon was the kind words of welcome to his Royal Highness and expressions of good will to her Royal Highness, and the gracious reply.

PANIC IN BOMBAY

Failures of Banks Have Precipated a Financial Crisis

BOMBAY, Oct. 28.—There is an alarming crisis in Bombay. Failure followed failure after the recent bank suspensions, and the rush of depositors to withdraw their money has strained the resources even of sound Indian banks. The crisis then spread to a share market. A broker doing a big business who tried to bear the market in mill shares with the assistance of certain banks collapsed. His liabilities were nearly half a million pounds. Several other failures followed in quick succession. The Stock Exchange was paralyzed. Business was suspended.

While this crisis was in progress a fresh shock came yesterday in the form of the failure of an Arab pearl merchant doing a big trade, and known in the market as "The Lion." His liabilities are said to be over $300,000. Many other failures quickly followed. Several banks which were advancing money on pearls are deeply involved. Further bank failures are feared.

Disappears From Steamship.

BOSTON, Oct. 28.—Word reached here yesterday that Miss Mary Compton, the wealthy young Englishwoman who was deported two weeks ago, had disappeared from the steamship Canadian forty-eight hours after it sailed from this port. Miss Compton, who said she had come here to "investigate spiritualism," was deported as being mildly insane.

Declares Farmers Will "Go Bust."

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—That the farmer who attempts to carry out all requirements advocated by health officials will land in bankruptcy courts was the statement made here yesterday at the opening session of the convention of the International Milk Dealers' Association by Prof. H. A. Harding of the University of Illinois.

Another Train Dynamited.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 28.—A troop train was dynamited yesterday by rebels near San Salvador, in the state of Zacatecas, on the National Railway, 115 being killed, according to a despatch from Saltillo. No details have been received here.

CONCESSIONS TO ULSTER.

Government Would Give Home Rule Within Home Rule.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in a speech at Berwick last night explained that what the Government was willing to concede to satisfy Ulster was a sort of home rule within home rule, giving Ulster control of her own education, police and matters of that kind.

It would thus seem clear that in his recent announcement of policy with regard to home rule in Ulster Premier Asquith had no intention of offering even the temporary exclusion of Ulster from the operation of the home rule bill.

WICKED INVENTION

Popes Denounced "Ritual Murder" Stories Says Merry Del Val

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Correspondence between Lord Rothschild and Cardinal Merry del Val is published here, the papal secretary of state confirming that Pope Innocent IV. issued an encyclical in which he declared that the charge of ritual murder as applied to Judaism was a baseless and wicked invention, and that other popes made similar pronouncements.

This has a bearing on the trail of Mendel Beiliss, charged at Kiev with the murder of the Christian boy, Yushinsky, as part of the case of the prosecution, is an affidavit by the priest, Father Pranaites, presenting alleged historic proof that ritual murder of Christians was sanctioned by Judaism, and pronouncing statements to the contrary attributed to the popes, forgeries.

Wanted In Montreal.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Gordon Salisbury, who was arrested Saturday at the request of Chicago officers on charges of larceny amounting to $600, was held in $8,000 bail yesterday when the court was informed that he was wanted in Montreal, Springfield and Hartford for evasion of bail bonds. The case was continued until Friday.

As Prof. Whiting and as Charles Derubach, the prisoner is alleged to have stolen money in Chicago within the past year.

More Heresy Hunters.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—(C.A.P. Cable)—The protest against the teaching embodied in the Fearnley lecture delivered by Rev. George Jackson, formerly of Toronto, has been signed amongst others by Rev. William Spires, whose pamphlet against the lecture aroused a controversy at the Plymouth conference; Rev. G. A. Bennett, Rev. H. C. Morton, Messrs. W. S. Allen, S. R. Edge and J. W. Laycock.

Commission Will Meet.

OTTAWA, Oct. 28.—Chairman C. A. Magrath of the Public Roads and Highways Commission, announces sittings at Ottawa, Oct. 28; Belleville, Nov. 4; Hamilton, Nov. 11; London, Dec. 16; Toronto, Jan. 13; and Guelph, Jan. 20. Reeves and other representatives of neighboring municipalities in each case are invited to give their views on road improvement.

MORE VICTIMS BURIED.

Bodies From Stag Canon Mine Cannot Be Identified.

DAWSON, N.M., Oct. 28.—By noon yesterday 132 of the victims of the Stag Canon mine No. 2 disaster had been buried. The major portion of the bodies now being recovered are in such condition that they cannot be shipped or laid out in the morgue for public funerals as was the case with the first two score. Health officers are using vigilance to see that the sanitation of the town is not impaired. Rescue men, who bring the bodies from the mine, are subjected to disinfectants after each trip. Bodies are taken to the cemetery directly from the temporary morgue at the mine, and if identification is possible members of the dead miners' families are not permitted to view them.

Danger from fire passed last night when air currents were directed into every room of the workings, and no smoulders were found.

Government mine experts will remain in Dawson for two or three weeks in an effort to determine positively the cause and the nature of the disaster.

The Red Cross, the Salvation Army and the Stag Canon Fuel Co. will begin their efforts at once to arrange the affairs of the dead miners' families.

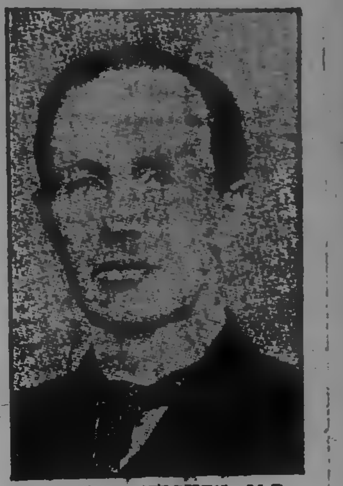
Will Dethrone Mad King.

MUNICH, Oct. 28.—The Senate yesterday voted to support a measure providing for the dethronement of the mad King Otto of Bavaria and the enthronement of the regent, Prince Ludwig. The Ministerial council afterwards met and decided to present such a measure to the diet. A majority of both Houses is assured.

LEGAL FIGHT OVER WILL OF LATE FATHER BROPHY

Very Little of Large Estate Left to Relatives or Institutions.

KINGSTON, Oct. 28— There will in all probability be a better legal fight before the will of the late Father Brophy has been probated. The deceased left an estate valued at $177,000, and his will is a most peculiar one, in that few, if any, relations, friends or charitable institutions have been named as beneficiaries. Roman Catholic priests are chiefly designated. A sister, who resides in Ottawa, intends contesting the will. The Toronto General Trusts Company are the executors.



ARTHUR MEIGHEN, M.P.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 28— The Manitoba Gazette announces the appointment of Mr. Meighen, Solicitor-General, as king's counsel.

NEW MONROE DOCTRINE,

Expediency Will Yield To Morality Declares Wilson.

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 28.—While avoiding any mention specifically of Mexico, or any European influence connected with the Mexican situation, President Wilson delivered a speech here yesterday which appeared to be freighted with significance, and which served to point with further directness the policy of the United States not only toward Mexico, but toward all Central and Southern American Republics.

Mr. Wilson spoke before the Southern Commercial Congress, and the big audience which heard him constantly was swept with cheers and applause.

In the course of his address he said:—

"I want to take this occasion to say that the United States will never again seek one additional foot of territory by conquest. She will devote herself to showing that she knows how to make honorable and fruitful use of the territory she has. And she must regard it as one of the duties of friendship to see that from no quarter are material interests made superior to human liberty and national opportunity."

Material interests—a phrase much in use internationally of late in characterizing the attitude of foreign nations toward Mexico — frequently was employed by the President He declared the American Republics had suffered long from hard bargains forced upon them by concessionires seeking "material interests" in the countries affected. The President declared that through motives of "morality and not expediency" the United States desired to help the Latin-American republics to "an emancipation from the subordination which has been inevitable to foreign enterprises."

WILL GO TO OTTAWA

Western Farmers Draft Long Series of Tariff Proposals

REGINA, Sask., Oct. 28.—At a meeting of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, at which representatives of the Saskatchewan and Manitoba Grain Growers' Associations and the United Farmers of Alberta were present, it was unanimously decided to take steps for a deputation representing the organized farmers of Canada to proceed to Ottawa before or near the opening of the next session of Parliament to lay before the Government representations embodied in a series of resolutions dealing with the tariff, co-operative legislation and a sample market.

A resolution dealing with the tariff follows:

"1. That we urge the Parliament of Canada to increase, at its first session, the British preference to at least 50 per cent. and to provide for a gradual increase from year to year until we have free trade with Great Britain in five years.

"2. That Parliament accept the offer of the United States of a free interchange of all agricultural and animal products between Canada and the United States.

"3. That all foodstuffs not provided for in the above offer of the United States be transferred to the free list.

"4. That agricultural implements, lumber, and cement be transferred to the free list.

"5. That pending the passage of legislation asked for herein, any duties now imposed under Canadian customs tariff which are the means of countervailing duties being imposed against any food products of the country by any foreign country be immediately removed.

"6. That any tariff or trade concession granted to any other country be immediately extended to Great Britain."

Other resolutions ask for legislation to permit co-operative societies of all kinds, whether for credit or trade, and for the inspection of all scales in grain elevators and warehouses, to be placed in the jurisdiction of the board of grain commissioners.

A resolution was also passed against the establishment of a sample market until such time as the grain growers are agreed that the same can be operated to their benefit.

COLD SPELL AT WINNIPEG

Driving Snowstorm and Bitter North Wind

Canadian Press Despatch.

WINNIPEG, MAN., Oct. 28.—This city experienced a driving snowstorm last night beginning yesterday with rain and sleet and changing at night to snow with a bitter north wind. At Swift Current the thermometer read two below zero and in other points in Saskatchewan, only a few degrees above.

Woman's Aigrettes Seized.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The largest single seizure the customs inspectors have made since the new regulations prohibiting the importations of aigrettes went into effect is on record at the customs house to-day as that of plumes valued at $600, taken from Miss Edna McLaughlin, daughter of a former police inspector here, who arrived yesterday from Europe.

WHAT ABOUT THE CHIEF MAGISTRATE FOR 1914?

MAYOR BRADBURN NEEDED

Already the aldermanic slate for 1914 is being discussed, and the ratepayers are wondering what changes the New Year will bring about.

To the Mayor and Council of 1913 much credit is due, and the Review believes in voicing the sentiments of the great majority of citizens, in the statement that Peterborough needs Mayor Bradburn to lead the Council of Ten for 1914.

Whether His Worship would accept is another question. He has on more than one occasion, expressed the desire to retire from office, but he might be persuaded to remain and keep up the good work.

There are several questions which need the attention such as only Mayor Bradburn can give. He has given much of his time to the promotion of the Hydro Electric scheme, and it is he who has brought about the introduction of paved streets. There are other matters with which the citizens are well acquainted, and everything points in favor of Mayor Bradburn, whose record is one that demands recognition. If he will consent to allow his name being again presented to the ratepayers, the Review has no doubt as to the answer.

Seven Guards Captured.

TRINIDAD, Col., Oct. 28.—Strikers captured seven guards yesterday at Chicosa Junction, eight miles north of Trinidad. It was also reported that they captured a Colorado & Southeastern engine.

For half an hour yesterday more than 125 strikers battled at a mile range with several steel carloads of mine guards who were traveling over the Colorado & Southern Railway tracks ostensibly on their way to the Hastings Mine. The strikers at the Ludlow camp had been led to believe that the guards were entraining to attack the tent colony and consequently set about to defend their temporary homes.

A WELSH HEBREW PROPHET

Mr. Lloyd George has for some time past been brewing a potion for the British landlords, and he gave them a dose of the mixture at Bedford the other day. While it was a little nasty, the lords of the land took it very easily.

But "the little Welshman" is not a mere dealer in policies. If he were like some other politicians, who make policies merely to talk about them, there would be little to worry about. But Mr. George is apt to carry his theories into practice, and that in spite of friend or foe.

To some people the proposals of the Chancellor may seem a little too idealistic. Indeed, there is a poetic strain in this reformer which sounds all right, but which is far removed from practical life. The following peroration with which Mr. George finished his speech on the land question will show what he has at the back of his mind:

"Where you now see rush, thorn and bramble and covert for game, you will have luxuriant crops, feeding the hungry. You will have contented men, happy women, and merry children, care, anxiety, hunger driven forever from their faces by the sunshine of the new hope that will have dawned on their native land. Then it can be said of this rich, fertile, beautiful land, as was said of another country where Jubilee protected the home of the peasantry:

"Thou visitest the earth, and makest it very plenteous.

"Thou crownest the year with Thy goodness and Thy clouds drop fatness.

"They shall drop upon the dwellings of the wilderness, and the little hills shall rejoice on every side.

"The folds shall be full of sheep, the valleys also shall stand so thick with corn that they shall laugh and sing."

This, of course, is not Mr. George's own composition, it is taken from the Hebrew Scriptures, and possibly was written by a Welsh-Hebrew prophet to encourage the electorate and feed them on rosy dreams instead of food.

That there is a great need for reform in the direction of the land, and that much land that now lies idle in England might be cultivated, is beyond doubt. But the re-formation of the present system is not going to be brought about with a song or a policy, however desirable this might be.

The present system is deep-rooted, and those roots are entwined about the lives of many humble and contented people, whose welfare would be shattered by the sudden uprooting of the old order of things.

These iconoclastic measures are by no means an unmixed blessing to the British working-man. All revolutions are a mere exchanging of one set of conditions for another—and the old saying, "the devil you know is better than the devil you don't know," is very applicable here. There are worse despots than kings and more tyrannical oppressors than lords, and they are those who aspire to dethrone the present powers, and experience proves that the emancipated workingman who is suddenly invested with authority is one of the most heartless of tyrants. Socialism is all right as a working hypothesis, but for practical politics it is a dangerous thing.

ASQUITH AND ULSTER

Premier Asquith has stirred up the Ulsterites by his declared determination to carry the Home Rule Bill in the face of all opposition.

He will go so far as to discuss the composition of the measure with the Ulstermen, but he will not move one step from the vital principle of Home Rule.

It seems that there is little doubt even in the minds of British Conservatives that Home Rule of some kind must inevitably be granted to Ireland. It remains to be seen as to how far the Ulster Unionists will carry their opposition.

The threatened civil war if Home Rule becomes law, while it is a very serious possibility, is a very extreme means of dealing with the situation in these days of arbitration and commonsense.

The best minds of the Conservative party in England, while they sympathise with Ulster, are not in favor of the militant attitude of Sir Edward Carson. But Home Rule has always been a thorny subject and the intense feeling against it will not so easily be subdued as Mr. Asquith seems to think.

It is to be hoped that wiser councils will prevail, and that if a Home Rule measure does come into operation it will contain ample safeguards against the oppression of the Ulster minority, who would be outvoted in everything by the superabundant Roman Catholic and Nationalist majority.

EMIGRATION IN AUGUST

There seems to be fewer Welshmen in Canada than any other of the denizens of the British Isles. Only 142 Welshmen emigrated in August last year and this year the figure dropped to nearly half that number, viz. 81.

The English still predominate, but there was a falling off all round this August as compared with last. 13,285 English came over the ocean in August last year while this year, in the same month, only 10,951 English emigrated. There was very little difference in the emigration of Scotch and Irish, but the Scotch keep up the best average. The "Scotch" figures for 1913 are 3,385, being 184 less than last year. The Irish figures for this year are 553, being 138 short of last year for the month of August.

As for pure nationality it is difficult to get at the correct figures. Many and perhaps most of those who emigrate as Englishmen are Scotch, Irish or Welsh extraction.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Examiner has promised its readers to reprint in its issue to-day Mr. J. H. Burnham's recent letter to the Globe on the navy question and also the Globe's reply. The Examiner might as well do the thing properly and print Mr. Burnham's second letter along with the Review's unanswered and unanswerable editorial dealing with the Globe's reply.

Cure For Cancer?

Extraordinary success in the treatment of cancer is announced at the Middlesex Hospital in London, Eng. The surgeons do not call them "cures," preferring to call them "improvements," saying that "cancerous growths have been made to disappear in an astounding manner."

Among the records one of the most interesting is that of a man of 27 whose nasal passages and throat were blocked by a growth. A platinum tube containing 82 milligrams of radium was embedded in the growth for twelve hours. After five days there was a perceptible improvement and at the end of three weeks the laryngascope revealed no trace of the disease and the man was discharged from the hospital apparently cured.

Asquith's Debt.

The Andrew Lang story illustrating the indifference with which a prophet is often regarded by his countrymen recalls a conversation once overheard at an East Fife railway station. An English admirer of the Prime Minister was conversing with a railway porter on Mr. Asquith's long connection with the constituency. "Aye, aye!" was the trite comment. "We've dune weel by Maister Asquith. It's hardly likely he wad ever hae been heard o' if it hadna been for us."

THROUGH CENTRAL BRITISH COLUMBIA

The first white woman to go over the Grand Trunk Pacific route from Edmonton, Alta. to Prince Rupert, B.C. is Miss Ellison, the daughter of the Honorable Prince Ellison, Minister of Finance and Agriculture in the British Columbia Government. Mr. Ellison and his son and daughter made the journey through to the coast over the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway to end of steel near Prince George, B.C. thence across country to the end of steel at Morristown, B.C., 205 miles east of Prince Rupert taking the train there and proceeding to the coast by rail.

In an interview Mr. Ellison stated that he had had the time of his life. The route passed through a magnificent country and the railway itself was splendidly built. The scenery was superb. Right through the mountains of the Yellowhead Pass route it was second to none on the Continent. Miss Ellison was especially in raptures with it.

Mr Ellison is particularly convinced that when the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific is known it will for the scenic effects alone, attract many thousands from the United States and Europe, while settlers will come in large numbers when the fertility of the soil in Central British Columbia is appreciated. 56.

LATEST NEWS PARAGRAPHED

The further results of the Italian general elections reported yesterday confirm the Government victory.

Hon. J. R. Stratton is ill at his home in Peterboro of, it is said, Bright's disease. His conditon was reported improved yesterday.

Mrs. Blackadder, wife of James Blackadder of the West Front road, Cornwall, died in the 77th year of her age. She has been ailing for several months.

James Larkin, the leader of the striking Dublin transport workers, yesterday found guilty on charges of sedition, was sentenced to seven months' imprisonment.

Thomas Backus, aged 97 years, one of the oldest and best known residents of Chatham, died there yesterday. He was one of the pioneer farmers of the district.

Mrs. Joseph McGregor of Mull, Kent County, took her own life yesterday morning by swallowing a dose of carbolic acid. She had been despondent for some time.

Sex hygiene as a part of the regular curriculum of Chicago's high schools was inaugurated yesterday when six lectures on the subject were delivered in five institutions.

Mrs. J. L. Beden, of Rochester, N.Y., visiting Montreal, found a pearl in an oyster at the Oxford Hotel, and refused $100 offered by the proprietor and $280 offered by a jeweler for it.

Deputy Eduardo Dato, former Minister of the Interior and Minister of Justice, yesterday accepted the office of Premier of Spain, in place of Count Romanones, who resigned Saturday.

Lieut. Charles C. Newton, injured in the fire in the Goodyear Rubber Store, Milwaukee, Sunday, died last night, raising the total list of deaths to eight. The other injured firemen are expected to recover.

A Clerical Novelist.

Monsignor Robert Hugh Benson, the English novelist, is a member of a famous family, for his brothers "A. C." and "E. F." have also attained distinction in the literary world. When Monsignor Benson became a Church of England clergyman he appeared to be following in the footsteps of his father, who eventually became Archbishop of Canterbury. But these expectations were dashed to the ground when he left the Church of England for the Church of Rome. Monsignor Benson recently gave his reasons for the change in an autobiography of great interest, entitled, "The Confessions of a Convert." But it was historical novels that first brought Monsignor Benson into notice. Having obtained the ear of the public, he turned to modern subjects, and his recent novels have achieved big sales and a wide popularity. Several of his books have dealt with the occult world, and have aroused the interest of Mayfair, whose denizens are always attracted by anything relating to spiritualism.

Sand To Stop Skidding.

There is a report from London of a device to prevent skidding, intended primarily for motorbusses, but adaptable to motor vehicles of all kinds. This device makes use of the familiar expedient of scattering sand in the track of the rear wheels, but it does so in a new way. Action is automatic, and the sand or grit is forced—not dropped—under both rear wheels as soon as the vehicle begins to move in a lateral direction or skids. The driver's duties are not increased, but if desired he may also make use of the sand when there is any spinning or slipping of the wheels on a greasy surface or a hill. The sanding, which is spasmodically done by municipal authorities under certain conditions and in certain localities, thus becomes automatic whenever the road is in dangerous condition or within the judgment of the driver. The English device is said to be of very simple construction and cheap to make.

Mr. Brookfield's Wit.

Undoubtedly one of the wittiest men in London is Mr. Charles Brookfield, the co-censor of plays. He once ran a theatrical season at the Haymarket Theatre. It was not very successful; in fact, the theatre was nearly empty every evening, and the box office returns were heartbreaking. One night the manager asked Mr. Brookfield as he was going on the stage, "What time shall I bring you the box office receipts?" "Just before I go on in my pathetic scene, please," said Mr. Brookfield.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Oct. 27.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards yesterday were large—285 cars, comprising 6,000 cattle, 530 hogs, 2,559 sheep and lambs, 379 calves and 10 horses.

Exporters.

There were no cattle bought for export, but there were a few lots of export weight and quality sold at $7.50 to $7.75.

Butchers.

There was a scarcity of good to choice butchers' steers and heifers—not enough to supply the demand. Choice butchers sold at $7.25 to $7.60; choice butchers' heifers at $7 to $7.35; good steers, $6.75 to $7.25; medium, $6.25 to $6.75; common, $5.50 to $6; choice cows, $5.75 to $6.50; good cows, $5.25 to $5.60; medium cows, $4.50 to $5; common canners and cutters, $3 to $4.50; export bulls, $5.75 to $6.50; butcher bulls, $5 to $5.50; bologna bulls, $4 to $4.75.

Stockers and Feeders.

There was an excellent demand for stockers and feeders, as there were many buyers. Steers, 1000 to 1150 lbs., sold at $6.30 to $6.60; steers, 900 to 1000 lbs., at $6 to $6.25; stockers, 500 to 800 lbs., at $5.25 to $6; rough eastern stockers, $4.50 to $5.25.

Milkers and Springers.

Good milkers and forward springers are in demand. Late springers are not wanted. Prices for cows ranged from $50 to $94 each, the bulk going between $60 and $75.

Veal Calves.

The market for veal calves held steady, as follows: Choice calves sold from $9 to $10; good calves, $8 to $9; medium, $7 to $7.60; common, $5.50 to $6.50; rough eastern calves, $4.50 to $5.

Sheep and Lambs.

The market for sheep was steady; ewes sold at $4.25 to $5.25; culls and rams, $2.75 to $3.50; lambs were lower, selling at $7.25 to $7.50; bucks 75c per head less.

Hogs.

Selects, fed and watered, sold at $8.90 to $9, and $8.65 f.o.b. cars, and $9.25 weighed off cars.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Oct. 27.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market 3400 cattle, 3500 sheep and lambs, 1500 hogs and 700 calves were offered for sale this morning.

Butchers' stock was stronger and prices advanced 15c to 25c per 100 pounds, this being attributed to the continued small supplies of good stock coming forward. Common stock was in good demand, and prices were higher. Common stockers sold at $5.50 to $5.75; common bulls at $4 to $4.50, and canning cows at $3.25 to $3.50 per 100 pounds. There was also a good demand from local packers for canning stock, and they secured quite a number at the above prices. Supplies of good to choice steers were none too plentiful. Really choice sold at from $7.40 to $7.50 and picked lots at $7.75, while car lots of good stock brought $6.65 to $6.85 and picked lots at $7 to $7.25 per 100 pounds.

There were no new developments in the market for small meats, prices for all lines being firmly maintained under a good demand and as supplies were fairly large an active trade was done. Western lambs sold at $6.75 to $7, and sheep at $4.25 to $4.50 per 100 pounds. A good trade continues to be done in grass fed calves for shipment to the United States, and the market in this respect is active with prices firm at 3¾c to 4¼c, and local butchers are paying 6½c to 7½c for milk fed per pound.

What They Heard

The Result of Idle Curiosity

By CLARISSA MACKIE

The Pendletons' telephone bell jingled sharply, and along the rural line five receivers were stealthily lifted to as many curious ears.

"That you, Bonnie?" came Jack Pendleton's voice.

"Yes," responded Mrs. Pendleton.

"I'm bringing a friend home to dinner. Will it be all right, dear?"

"Ye-e-s." Mrs. Pendleton's voice did sound doubtful. "There isn't a thing to eat in the house, but I can"—

"Never mind, then. We'll dine in town and come down afterward," said Jack in a disappointed tone,

"If you don't bring him home," protested Bonnie, "I'll never speak to you again, Jack Pendleton, and"—

"Hang up along the line there!" bellowed Jack, with sudden intuition that his performance was interesting his rural neighbors.

So five receivers were noiselessly restored to their hooks, and five good housekeepers, pink of face, but with excited eyes, went back to their prosaic duties.

The Pendletons concluded their conversation, and pretty Bonnie explained to her adoring husband that she had not planned anything to eat that day because, if he would only remember, he had invited her to dine in town with him and go to the theater afterward, and absentminded Jack ruefully acknowledged his guilt.

They were newcomers in Dayville and fresh from the big city, where one's neighbors' business is not of the slightest interest, and they were somewhat bewildered by the almost avid curiosity displayed by their new acquaintances in the little village.

So Bonnie worked busily all day long preparing an appetizing repast for her husband and his business friend, while the five housekeepers dismissed their tasks with deft hands and dressed for the Wednesday afternoon sewing society with a pleasant sense of importance in being the center of interest, for in Dayville the bearer of "news" invariably holds the middle of the stage.

By 3 o'clock the society meeting was in full swing, and the Pendletons' affairs were made the subject of discussion.

"I hear they make a terrible mess of getting along," said Mrs. Henry Beebe.

"Don't get along, eh?" wheezed Mrs. Bush skeptically.

"I don't wonder, her being the housekeeper she is," said Mrs. Charlie Sayles.

"And him such a poor provider. I expect he don't earn enough to keep soul and body together," was Ellen Spencer's significant remark.

"They're both pretty husky looking," put in Mrs. Bush.

But she was ignored by the news bringers.

"I've heard that he treats her dreadfully," simpered Miss Fanny Wicks, who had ideas of her own regarding the perfect married life.

"I heard they was going to separate," said Mittie Loomis.

After that tongues clacked more busily than the needles flashed.

The Pendletons would have been quite stunned with surprise if they had known how intimately their affairs were known and discussed by their neighbors.

"Talks to her like a dog," asserted Fanny Wicks.

"If his bed ain't made before he takes the train or if his dinner is a mite late," added Mrs. Charlie Sayles with relish. "And, being the poor housekeeper she is, I guess it keeps him dinging at her all the time."

"No woman will stand that for long," said Mrs. Henry Beebe, who ruled her little husband with an iron hand minus the velvet glove.

"Just think of there being days when they don't have a bite to eat!" put in Ellen Spencer. "I wonder if it 'twould be an insult to give 'em a donation."

"If they're going to separate they won't thank anybody for giving 'em a party," remarked Mittie Loomis.

"That's so. But I wonder what we can do. I don't like to feel that there's anybody in our midst that's suffering for food when I have a-plenty," twittered Fanny.

"No more do I," said Mrs. Charlie Sayles thriftily. "I've got some canned fruit that's not going to keep. Land knows what got into it! I could leave it there unbeknownst to her."

"She might guess who 'twas that never had no luck with canned stuff," whispered Ellen Spencer to Mittie Loomis.

Old Mrs. Bush had said "Fiddlesticks!" three times and "Bosh!" twice, but no one took the slightest notice of her. Presently she folded up her work, popped it into her black sateen workbag and got up to go.

"Why, Aunt Louisa, you ain't never going now? Why, we're going to have refreshments," protested Mittie Loomis.

"I can't stay," said Mrs. Bush acidly. "I've got things to do that have to be did," and she marched off with an air of deeply offended dignity, and the half frightened pleading of the minister's meek little wife was of no avail.

"I wonder what she'll do when she gets a divorce," shuddered Fanny Wicks, with a sentimental sigh over the grave of dead romance.

"Marry again most likely."

"Why, Mrs. Sayles, you don't mean to say she's got her eye on anybody?"

"There was that tall, dark man that came by stage one morning when her husband was away. She kissed him. I saw her."

"It was her brother," explained the minister's wife.

"Mrs. Wright, how do you know?"

"She told me so."

"Oh, she told you so!"

"And I expect he leads a gay life in the city. Them brokers are here, there and nowhere all the time. Of course I mean Mr. Pendleton, not the other man."

"The other man. How dreadfully romantic!" sighed Fanny Wicks.

"I think we better have some refreshments now," said Mrs. Wright nervously, and for once in her colorless life she used rare diplomacy in selecting her helpers.

With Mittie Loomis, Fanny Wicks, Mrs. Beebe, Mrs. Sayles and Ellen Spencer all cutting cake and passing lemonade and plates, there was little chance for these informers to add to the stream of gossip they had started. Indeed, the stream flowed briskly along and was threatening to become a flood of scandal when the side door opened and Mrs. Bush trotted briskly in and sat down in her empty chair.

Her little black eyes sparkled maliciously, and she fanned herself with a black mittened hand as she talked.

"Thought I'd get here in time for a bite to eat. Mittie, is that poundcake? Well, jest give me the end piece; I like it best. And, yes, I'll take tea, Mrs. Wright. Let the young folks have lemonade."

Her middle aged companions unconsciously bridled at being classed among the younger generation, and so a feeling of good fellowship was established when Mrs. Bush dropped a bombshell in their midst.

"I saw Mrs. Pendleton at her front gate, and I told her what you all was saying about her," observed Mrs. Bush coolly.

There was a moment of breathless horror, and five pairs of eyes started with guilty fear. Mittie Loomis found her tongue first.

"Aunt Louisa, you never did!"

"I did. I wanted to find out if there was a word of truth in the hull thing or whether folks had been listening on the telephone again."

There were five feeble protests, and five pink faces were the cynosure of all eyes.

Mrs. Bush went on mercilessly:

"I told her, and she says, 'Mrs. Bush, I do believe those good gossips have been listening along the telephone line!' And then she up and told me all about it, and all I got to say is I don't see how any sensible, God fearing woman can deliberately misconstrue somebody else's innocent conversation and twist it into news that sets everybody by the ears. I know some things I ain't never told. I met Mrs. Pendleton's brother, and he showed me a picture of his wife and children; had it in his vest pocket. They're all coming up to spend two weeks pretty soon. So where's your romance about the other man, Fanny Wicks? Fiddledee!"

The silence was profound, while Mrs. Bush told the members of the sewing society all about Mrs. Pendleton's busy day preparing for the unexpected guest. She also related how she herself had poked an inquisitive nose into the Pendleton pantry and had seen a goodly store of eatables there, and she translated Mrs. Pendleton's remark to her husband as being the exaggeration of a good housekeeper when she expects company—nothing in the house to eat.

Then Mrs. Bush told another secret. Mrs. Pendleton had given her permission to tell them, and it was the sort of secret that all women are interested in. It brings tender smiles to their lips and a warm maternal light to the eyes, even to the eyes of such spinsters as Mittie Loomis and Fannie Wicks.

"You can all make it up to Mrs. Pendleton by fixing something for the little new baby that's expected," said Mrs. Bush, her sharp voice softening wonderfully under the influence of this magical topic. "Now, what can you do, Mittie?"

"A knitted carriage robe, blue and white," said Mittie eagerly. "It'll be a lot of work, but I don't mind."

"I shall crochet three pairs of little shoes," said Ellen Spencer. "I know a pretty new pattern."

"And you, Fanny Wicks?" asked Mrs. Bush sharply, for Fanny liked to write poetry in her spare moments and was not fond of work in any form.

"Bibs," said Fanny dreamily, "six little embroidered bibs. I saw some patterns in the fashion sheet this month. They were so cute I was wishing I knew some little one to make them for."

"I shall embroider a pillowslip," said Mrs. Charlie Sayles briskly, and one could almost see the beautifully worked pattern that would result from her labors.

"I will make a cap," said Mrs. Beebe, her mind busy with the details of this interesting needlework.

"Then, when everything's done, I guess we might have a kind of little party for Mrs. Pendleton and give 'em to her. I expect she will like that kind of a donation," said old Mrs. Bush, and she had forgotten to be snappish, and her black eyes beamed youthfully.

Well, it is a fact that now, when the Pendletons' telephone bell rings, all the receivers on that line remain on their respective hooks, but the five subscribers always look a bit anxious and say:

"I hope nothing is the matter with that blessed baby!"

ONTARIO WOMAN'S FORTUNE

Freed From That Weak, Languid, Always Tired Feeling, by Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Thessalon, Ont.—"I cannot speak too highly of your medicine. When my appetite is poor and I have that weak, languid, always tired feeling, I get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it builds me up, gives me strength, and restores me to perfect health again. It is truly a blessing to women, and I cannot speak highly enough of it. I take pleasure in recommending it to others."—Mrs. ANNIE CAMERON, Thessalon, Ont.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

There are probably hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions of women in the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over 30 years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering. If you are sick and need such a medicine, why don't you try it?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Different Proposition.

"What is the object of your society?"

"To prevent gambling among women."

"Nonsense. It can't be done."

"Certainly gambling can be stopped."

"Gambling? I thought you said gabbling."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Mother's Sacrifice.

Legends in India run that if a woman stricken with leprosy suffers herself to be buried alive the disease will not descend to her children. There was in the northwest provinces of India the wife of a gardener on whom the loathsome malady had fallen. Children were born to her. The disease grew worse. She importuned her husband to bury her alive. He at last, yielding to her prayers, summoned his son. The two dug the grave and four neighbors assisted at the sepulchre. So the woman died. These remarkable facts were investigated in a magistrate's court and were fully proved.—London Mail.

Made Big Climb.

A 20,000 foot ascent never before accomplished was attained in the Himalayan mountains in Asia, not long since, by the celebrated Italian Alpinist, Signor Marco Piacenza. The summit reached was that of Mt. Num Kam, which necessitated a very difficult climb. Piacenza hoisted a little Italian flag on the peak, and bivouacked with his companions for six nights. Besides the difficulties of the great elevation, the party had to contend with snows and intense cold.

Why Men Like Dogs.

Man's friendliness for the dog was attributed to a remote trend in evolution by Prof. Carveth Read in a paper before the British Association anthropologists. First man became a hunter and then a gregarious animal, "a sort of wolf-ape," tracking game in hordes. "Hence," remarked the professor, "in character a man is more like a dog than any other animal, and that is the reason he is more friendly with a dog than any other animal."

SUFFERED SO MUCH SHE WANTED TO DIE

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Her And Brought Her The Joy Of Living.

ENTERPRISE, ONT., OCT. 1st.

"For seven years, I suffered with what physicians called a "Water Tumor". Hypodermics of Morphine had to be given me to ease the pain.

During one of these bad spells, a family friend brought a box of "Fruit-a-tives" to the house. I was so bad that it was only when I had taken nearly two boxes that I began to experience relief.

I kept up the treatment, however, and after taking five boxes, I was cured, and when I appeared on the streets, my friends said "The dead has come to life" and this seemed literally true because I certainly was at death's door"

MRS. JAMES FENWICK.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50—trial size, 25c, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

No Title Page In Early Books.

The idea of a title page did not occur to the early printers. "The books started straight off with 'Incipit' or 'Here beginneth,' without author's or publisher's name. This causes much difficulty in attributing earlier works to the proper sources." The idea of a title page with names seems first to have occurred to a Cologne printer named Therhoernen about 1470, but it was not generally adopted until fifty years later. The early punctuation was very simple, consisting of an oblique line and a full stop. One of the first books to introduce the colon and notes of interrogation and exclamation was a "Lactantius" printed at a monastery near Rome in 1465.—Imprint.

London's Gunpowder Alley.

The city coroner, who commented upon the "funny" name of Gunpowder alley (off Shoe lane) and confessed that he had never heard of it, may nevertheless have heard of the poet Lovelace, who died in the alley two years before the restoration. The lodging in which he died was a miserable one, but probably seemed to the poor poet released from prison a glorious palace, for he was philosopher enough already to have written that "stone walls do not a prison make." In this alley also lived the notorious astrologer, Lilly, the Sidrophel of "Hudibras."—London Chronicle.

Mashed potatoes, left over, should be packed in a cup or bowl until needed for frying. Another way to use it is to put into a double boiler with some warm milk. It will be quite tasty.

RENTING ROOMS

The total amount of rent money paid for furnished rooms in this city each week is enormous! Nobody knows how much. It goes to thrifty people, who like to lessen their own rent or living expense by sub-letting one or more spare rooms to an agreeable person. If YOU have a desirable extra room you can become a receiver of rent by ordering a "Furnished Room to Let" ad. in the Review. The cost is nominal—one cent a word for first insertion and half a cent a word for subsequent insertions, run consecutively.

LOCAL SPORTSMEN LEAVE FOR HAUNTS OF FLEET-FOOTED DEER

Mr. Harry Winch Adds Another Season to His Long List--

November the 1st—What does not that date signify to the huntsman? As the great day approaches the sportsman begins to handle his fowling pieces more lovingly and the action of the gun is tried and carefully oiled and the favorite topic of conversation is the best fields for deer and the best make of cartridges. The older hunters welcome the dawn of "the 1st" with a grimness that promises a warm time for the deer.

Probably one of the most historical hunt clubs of the city is the Ketchecum Hunt Club and Mr. Harry Winch is no doubt one of the oldest hunters. For fifty years he has hunted in the Ketchecum Lake waters. Mr Winch is also one of the club's best shots and generally bags the first game of the party. The advance guard of the above party left this morning with Messrs. E. F Mason and Archie Jackson at the helm. The remainder of the party comprise the following members, leave to-morrow; Messrs. H C. Winch, J D. Collins, J. W. Bennet, R. Gibbs, W C. Ackerman, C. Rogers, Fred Roy, M. Comstock, R. J. Munro, Dr McPherson and Robert Stewart Dr. Gentils and George Douglas, of Chicago and Mr. Lang, of Berlin.

SHAWANAGA CLUB.

The Shawanaga Hunt Club will leave on Thursday for Shawanaga in Parry Sound District in a private car. The following gentlemen compose the party: G. Gladman, C Curtis, M. McFadden, L Steele, D. O'Dette, J. Metcalfe, P. Kerr, L. Lettiler, J. Loucks, D Best, B. Wilson, Chef; W. Boswell J Brooks, A. O Carpenter, J. Connal and J. Pentalnd. The veteran Sam Ray is not making the trip this time.

The Bottle Lake Hunt Club consisting of Messrs. J E. A. Fitzgerald, G. Cochrane, A. Heard and Dr. Amys, leave on Thursday for their old grounds at Bottle Lake.

The Snowden-Blade party left this morning for Gold Lake where they will spend two weeks. Mr. Snowden is another old timer and has spent many seasons at Gold Lake. Among the party were Messrs. Snowden, A. Blade, W. Stanger and H. Stinson.

ARTHUR IRWIN WAS ELECTROCUTED WHEN HE WENT TO ATTEND FURNACE

Cousin of Sherbrooke Street Grocer Was Killed in His Own Home

Mr. E. Oliver the Sherbrooke st. grocer, returned on Sunday from Sault Ste Marie, Ont., where he attended the funeral of his nephew, Mr. Arthur Irwin, whose death came under rather strange circumstances.

On Saturday evening October 18th the late Mr. Irwin, accompanied by his mother and a few friends, were sitting in their residence. One of the visitors complained of feeling cold and Mr. Irwin went to the basement to attend to the furnace. His mother remained with the callers but grew anxious when the young man failed to return. She went down to the basement to see what the delay was and her horror can hardly be imagined when she stumbled across the dead body of her son.

Before Mr. Irwin went to the basement the light was not turned on and when his body was found it was. It was supposed that the unfortunate young man grasped the socket as he was in the act of turning the light on and he received some 2000 volts.

When the coroner arrived he warned the members of the household to keep away from the basement. An expert revealed the fact that the furnace and the whole basement was charged with sufficient electricity to kill.

The funeral took place on Tuesday, October 21. Mr. Oliver was the only local relative present. The unfortunate man had two cousins in this city, Mrs. F. Derrick, King Street, and Mrs. J. Lillico Homewood Ave.

PERSONAL

Mr. O. M. Perry, of Campbellford, is in the city.

Messrs. Geo Miller and W. F. Miller, of Chicago are in the city.

Mr. T. J. Crowley, of Hastings, is in the city.

Mrs. C. E. Jamieson has been elected an associate member of the Royal Institute.

Mr. R. P. Grills, of Campbellford, announces the engagement of his daughter, Ida May, to Mr. F. H. Oldham, son of Mr. and Mrs J. Oldham, of Peterborough. The wedding to take place early next month.

An addition to the ranks of the medicine fraternity is Dr. Baker, who is locating at the corner of Hunter and Mark streets, East City. He was in practice in Lakefield for many years, but during the last two years has been out of practice and taking a rest.

MARBLE COMPANY READY TO START AT NEW PLANT

The Vermont Marble Company will be ready to start operations in a few days. Already there is quite a large number of orders on hand. The factory is equipped with modern machinery, which includes four large cutting or sawing machines, three large electric finishers and an electric crane. Mr. T. G. Howard is the manager.

POSITION OF THE LABORING MAN

He Has Had Plenty of Work at Good Wages

As surely as November brings the cold breezes and as December brings the ice and snow, there is the annual question as to what conditions are likely to prevail in this ctiy during the winter season. The usual signs, such as squirrels gathering and extra amount of nut supplies and fur-bearing animals having comparatively heavy coat, implies that the winter may be long and severe, but whether it be a hard or open winter does not give cause to much anxiety.

It may be said that the average laboring man is better off at the present time than he ever was, and this condition can be mainly attributed to the fact that during the past year Peterborough has boomed a hundred per cent. The great amount of construction work done in this city during the year has necessitated employing many laborers, and when laborers are in demand it is natural that there will be an increase in wages. This time last year the laboring man received $1.50 to $1.75 per day. At the present time a laborer receives between $2.00 and $2.25 per day. When one learns this fact he only too readily exclaims "Yes, but the cost of living has increased."

Here are a few comparisons in prices;

Flour, October 1912, $2.35 cwt.; to-day $2.65 cwt.

Potatoes, October 1912, 80c per bag; $1.10 per bag.

Eggs, October 1912, 27 to 30 cts. per doz; to-day 35 cents per doz.

Butter, October 1912, 30 cents; to-day 30 cents.

Wood (hard) October 1912, $6.50; to-day $6.50.

Wood (soft) October 1912, $5.50; to-day $5.50.

Coal— No change

Beef is 3 cents a pound dearer.

Pork is 2 cents a pound dearer

Footwear has increased 15 p.c.

The cause for such an increase in footwear is given out by the manufacturers to be the result of the large demand for leather to be used in the manufacture of automobiles, now being extensively produced.

From the above list we can see the cost of living has increased, but a little mathematical work will show that the average laboring man can through the medium of his increase in wages, withstand the extra expense.

The only drawback the laboring man has is paying a big rent. A house which rented for $12 per month last year, is now renting for $14 or $15, and this raise has been general throughout the whole city. It is an old saying that a man can never become rich while he is paying rent and of late the laboring man of this city is beginning to see the truth of this.

Many real estate firms are assisting the laboring man by selling him a lot and furnishing him with the money to build a house. This money is returned by monthly payments which in most cases does not exceed an average rent.

Police Court

Two blacklisters, Bert Howden and Henry Smith, appeared before Magistrate Dumble at police court this morning and were each fined $13.75.

Woman's World

Wonderful Likeness Found In the Czar's Daughters.

GRAND DUCHESS OLGA (ON THE LEFT) AND GRAND DUCHESS TATIANA.

Glance at this picture of the czar of Russia's two daughters, Grand Duchess Olga and Grand Duchess Tatiana, and you will at once observe the wonderful likeness that exists between the two sisters. Grand Duchess Olga, the older of the two girls, is said to be engaged to Prince Charles of Roumania, although the lady herself exclaimed, when recently shown a portrait of her suitor: "His face is enough for me. I don't want to hear anything more about him."

The czar is not anxious for the Roumanian alliance, but force of circumstances favors it. The personality of the prince is not attractive, and his education leaves much to be desired. The preference of the Duchess Olga is for her cousin, Grand Duke Dimitri Pavlovitch, whom she vows to marry at all costs.

The Grand Duchess Olga, although not quite eighteen, is developing into a very handsome woman. She cuts a particularly dashing figure in the uniform of her father's hussars, of which she is colonel. The Grand Duchess Tatiana is colonel of the Uhlans.

New Ideas For the House.

If simplicity were chosen as the watchword in furnishing the average home its occupants would be better pleased with its aspect than they often are with many a room known so well to everybody, overburdened with "things" and a hodgepodge of colorings. Fancy a lovely pink evening gown with a background of a red wall and a floor covering that sends not less than half a dozen color impressions at once to the eye.

Some big American department stores have suits of rooms set apart with furnishings, walls, coverings, etc., that suggest artistic and practical ways of remodeling rooms in one's own home. The cost of such an improvement can be made commensurate with one's pocketbook, while the idea is what one is looking for.

Decorators have exploited brown as a fundamental color note until brown rooms are very general, but nevertheless inviting. A living room in a simple country home carries out a scheme of decoration in browns well worth reproducing. The wall paper is a plain one in a warm tan that verges on a coffee color. The ceiling is not white, but perceptibly cream in tint, and the color is brought down eighteen inches on the side walls, where a small cream enameled picture molding separates it from the paper.

Curtains for the windows are made of wide scrim hemstitched and hanging only three or four inches below the sills from a small rod over which they are shirred at the top. The floor is covered with plain brown wooden "filler," costing 75 cents per yard. Rugs having some old blue and dark red in them give life to the room, as do the flowered chintz cushions and pillows. The woodwork of the room is painted light cream color.

Autumn Fashions.

Tailors have begun to arrange skirts in such a fashion as to give more freedom to the limbs while preserving the closely fitting line. Serges are still trimmed with black mohair braid in much the same way as they were last year, with this one difference, that the braiding is massed upon the back between the shoulders, and again at and below the waist. In fact, many of the new coats in other materials have this characteristic. Skirts are braided in straight lines, sometimes ending in little tassels very flatly placed.

A fool and his money are soon spotted.

414th Bargain Annex Event — The CRESSMAN Company Limited — Wednesday, Oct. 29th, 1913

In these "Mill Ends" of Dress Goods There is Great Saving at $1.25 an End

To buy good things cheap is the motto of economy that hangs in every home. And to produce good things cheaply is the aim of every manufacturer in Canada. But there are ways, as everyone knows, by which it is possible to buy good things cheaper than usual; and one of these ways, in buying Dress Goods, is to buy "Mill Ends." In the first place, these Ends are sold cheaply at the mill, yet they are of sound quality, being pieces from the finished bolts of regular cloths. Those for sale on Wednesday comprise Heavy Wool Reversible Coatings, Tweed and Worsted Suitings, and Plain and Fancy Dress Fabrics. The lighter weight goods vary in length from 3½ to 4 yards, while there are some splendid Coatings and Suitings that are 1¼ to 2 yards long. Knowing as we do, the value of these goods when bought by the yard, we do not hesitate to say that $1.25 seldom buys such sterling worth; for they would cost anything from $2.50 to $4.00 in the ordinary way. Thus we would point out to you the advantage of buying Mill Ends in the Annex. These are now being shown in the window.

The "Criterion of Fashion" is a new and interesting journal for women; dealing with Dress and other feminine subjects. Price 5c Main Floor

FLANNELETTE BLANKETS $1.39

Everyone thinks of Flannelette Blankets when the frost commences, and in thinking of them, it is well to remember this particular Blanket, which is of "Kingcot" quality, measuring 66x82 in. This is ample size for the largest of double beds, the Blankets being procurable in either white or grey. Annex price, pair.......... $1.39

Nottingham Lace Curtains 43c Per Pair

There are two patterns in these pretty Curtains, either pattern being procurable in white or cream. They are 2½ yards long, and make an attractive setting to any window, for the texture is very good. Those in need of curtains could not get better value for, pair.......... 43c

Wide White Flannelette 11½c Per Yard

This is an English production, bleached a pure white and is 35 to 36 in. wide. The use of this material for the many things that are made of White Flannelette, will prove most satisfactory. It is our 15c quality and we believe there is none better at the price. Per yard.......... 11½c

CHURCH SHOULD WAKE UP TO RESPONSIBILITIES SAYS FORMER LOCAL PASTOR

"The sooner the church wakes up to its responsibilities in the bringing up of young children the better," were the striking words used by the Rev. J. G. Potter at the McVicar Church yesterday morning," says the Montreal Star.

These words were evidently prompted by a visit Mr. Potter made to the Recorder's Court, where he had had to speak on behalf of a young boy who had been arrested for a small crime. The boy's upbringing had been unfortunate, hence his slipping aside, and Mr. Potter exhorted parents to interest themselves and help the church to further the attempts being made for the care of young children. "We often point a finger at the Roman Catholic Church, but we have to acknowledge their devotions and worship," Rev. Mr. Potter said. "Parents often allow children too much freedom, hoping that something unforseen may occur to bring their minds to the church and its teachings."

Mr. Potter pointed out that the Sabbath school teachers of the McVicar Church were now visiting the homes of the children under their care, and hoped by this means to do much good.

APPLICATION TO REMOVE LIQUOR BUSINESS TURNED DOWN BY COMMISSIONERS

All members of the Board of License Commissioners were present at a meeting last night to deal with the application of J. C. Sullivan of East City, who asked permission to remove his retail liquor store from East City to 151 Hunter street, in the city.

The application was refused. Inspector Stewart stated this morning that the Board adhered to the opinions they expressed when the licenses were first decreased. They gave one hotel and one store license to East City feeling that this was just and fair and now the Board does not feel warranted in permitting another retail store in the city as it would be unfair to the present retail licenses.

Members of a deputation waited on the Board and stated their objections to the applications. Among those present were Rev. R. G. Peever, Rev. J. G. Lewis, Messrs. T. W. Robinson and Stabler and R. J. Kidd.

OMEMEEE PRESBYTERIANS' SUCCESSFUL ANNIVERSARY

Rev. R. Pogue Gave Address on Life of John Wannamaker

OMEMEE, Oct. 28.—The splendid weather of Monday brought forth a large attendance to the anniversary fowl supper which was served in the basement of the Presbyterian church by the ladies in their customary elegant style. Following the satisfying of the inner man a program was gone through with in the auditorium of the church. Rev. D. H. Currie, pastor, was in the chair. Short addresses were delivered by Rev. J. F. Chapman, of the Methodist church; Rev. H. Earle, of Christ Church and Rev. P. B. Thornton, of Barrie. The quartette of vocalists, composed of Mesdames Hodgetts and Stephenson and Messrs. H. Earle and W. G. Stephenson, appeared in numbers that showed careful training and a high degree of excellence. The Rev. Robt. Pogue, of St. Paul's, Peterborough, gave a talk on "John Wannamaker Merchant Prince and Christian Layman." The audience listened attentively to the interesting life of this great Philadelphian so vividly and entrancingly described by the speaker. The receipts of the two days' meetings, as announced by the chairman was $191. The Presbyterians are to be congratulated.

LAIS

A Story Showing the Power of Beauty Without Conscience For Evil

By F. A. MITCHEL

Alexis Alexandrovich, a tall, slender youth of fifteen, while hunting rode up to a peasant's cottage on his father's estate in Russia to ask for a drink of water. A little girl, not more than seven years of age, stood in the door looking up at him with the mild blue eye indigenous to northern climates. Her hair, too, was of a light hue, but her cheeks were a pair of roses. As she looked at the young man her face broke into a smile, revealing white teeth, while a dimple appeared in each cheek. Alexis forgot about the drink of water, so enraptured was he in the beauty of the child.

"Lais!" he exclaimed.

The girl continued to look at him and, notwithstanding her few years, perceived that she was admired.

"Do you know," he asked, "why I call you Lais?"

"No."

"I will tell you. More than 400 years before our Saviour came upon earth an Athenian general captured a picturesque village on the island of Sicily. Among his prisoners was a little girl about your age, so bewitchingly beautiful that he carried her back with him to Athens, where a great artist painted her as a nymph at a fountain, and all the great men of the time were enraptured with her."

"Did they give her pretty presents?" asked the child.

Alas! Underneath all this beauty lurks the viper—the desire to use the charms to obtain "pretty presents." One day the child might not only secure the presents, but ruin those who gave them to her.

This was the first meeting between Alexis Alexandrovich, the son of Count Alexandrovich, a Russian nobleman, who dwelt, as his ancestors had dwelt before him, on his estate, a kind master to his serfs and a humble subject of the czar. The boy received a cup of water from the child, and as she handed it up to him he noticed the beautiful shape of the arm and hand that extended it. And as tender as were her years out of her eyes came a look to charm him. He laughed that one so young should show such a disposition and rode away, leaving the child gazing after him.

Alexis, who was studying at the time to enter the university, found when he returned to his books that the face and figure of the child kept thrusting themselves between his eyes and the page before him. As soon as his school hours were ended he went again to the peasant's cottage, making excuse this time that he wished to borrow from her father a gun with which to shoot birds. The man was intent on the matter of the gun, but his wife noticed that Alexis had not come for a gun, but to feast his eyes on her little daughter. After Alexis had gone she said to her husband:

"I foresee great things for our Katia. Such beauty must elevate her to a higher rank than ours. Did you notice the admiration in the eyes of the young count?"

"No."

"It was plain to me. He will come here at times to gaze at her, and if her beauty holds when she comes to womanhood he will marry her, and, instead of spending her days in this hut, she will live up on the hill and be a countess."

Many were the excuses Alexis made to see his Lais, as he called her. Now it was fishing tackle, now his horse needed a shoe—for the peasant was a smith—but whatever it was he wanted his eyes never left the child while he was at her father's place, and Lais knew that she had made her first captive. When Christmas came and brought with it a little ring from Alexis she gave the kiss he asked for, but after he went away her young brows knit, and, her mother asking her if she was dissatisfied with her gift, she pouted and replied:

"Yes. There is no gem in it."

Alexis went to the university; but, though he left his father, his mother and his home behind him, he could not leave his Lais. Those innocent eyes, that delicately rounded face, those exquisitely curved lips that seemed formed only to be kissed, were present in his memory and in his thoughts during his absence, and each year when he returned she had grown a year older, and instead of losing her childish beauty there was added to it that of a budding womanhood.

And now the countess had learned the secret that her son was infatuated with a peasant's daughter. Realizing that such a passion could not be eradicated by argument, she said nothing to him, but arranged with her husband to send Alexis away as soon as he was graduated from the university. The count went to St. Petersburg and obtained a government position for his boy. But, alas, it came too late! The day the appointment arrived Alexis informed his parents that he had married the blacksmith's daughter.

There was nothing for it but to accept the situation. Alexis assured his father and mother that his wife's beauty would gain her an entrance into any society. An elaborate wardrobe was procured for her, and when her husband set out for the capital to enter upon his duties he took his young bride with him.

There was no disappointment in the reception of the young countess at the capital. From the moment she appeared at court she created a sensation. The czar showed his admiration upon receiving her, and the men of the imperial family vied with each other for her favor. The first painter in St. Petersburg begged to paint her. Her husband, far from fearing that he would be ignored from having a peasant wife, began to dread the attention of men who were loading her with every attention. It was not long before a certain grand duke fell under the influence of the countess' beauty, and one evening when she was preparing to go to a ball at the Winter palace her husband saw her putting on a necklace of pearls so valuable that his father's whole estate would not have purchased it.

The trouble had begun. The countess admitted that the grand duke who was so attentive to her had given it to her, and since her husband could not give her such presents she would get them where she could.

Alexis did not go with his wife that night to the ball, and when she came home he was not there. Nor was he ever seen again at the capital. His wife continued to live there sumptuously, but whence she derived her income no one knew. The Grand Duke Ivan was devoted to her and wished to marry her, but could not do so as long as she had a husband living.

One day papers came from America stating that a man had jumped from the deck of a steamer in New York bay. His baggage on being examined had revealed the fact that he was a Russian named Alexis Alexandrovich.

Had this news come a year earlier the Grand Duke Ivan would have married the widow. Unfortunately when it reached St. Petersburg she had had an illness that spoiled her beauty. So her lover settled 500,000 rubles upon her, thus purchasing an amicable separation between him and her.

But the countess had not been idle in the matter of drawing wealth into her net. Her gems alone were a fortune. She had been successful in the way she had planned. She was very rich, but she had no standing among her own sex. She left Russia and bought a villa on one of the Italian lakes, a chateau in an aristocratic quarter of Paris and several minor establishments elsewhere. But, while she lived in grandeur, she had not risen socially above the peasant she was born. She made several entrees into the social life of places where she was not known, but her story followed her, and she was dropped.

The countess had no conscience, but she had a dread. There were active as well as passive crimes to her debit, and she feared that some one of them would tear down the structure she had built up and leave her at the mercy of the law. She had no remorse for the young man whose life she had wrecked. She had been born without such sensibilities. She lived without either conscience or remorse, but the cloud that hung over her slowly deepened. At first it was no bigger than a man's hand. She had relied implicitly for immunity from punishment upon that puissant beauty with which she felt sure she could bring any man to do her bidding. Then came the loss of her weapon, and for the first time in her life she felt defenseless.

One day the cloud which had now become as black as midnight sent forth a bolt. She was in her garden in her villa on the lake. A man whose hair was as white as snow and whose face was furrowed met her face to face as she turned a clump of trees.

"Who are you?" asked the countess. "And what are you doing in my grounds?"

"I have come to warn you. As to who I am, I can prove my identity by a single word."

"Speak it," she said.

"Lais!"

She shuddered, but made no reply. But presently she said:

"I thought you were dead."

"I preferred you should think me dead and arranged the evidence of my demise. But there is no time to lose. For that love I bore you when you were a child and I but a youth I have come to save you. Go from here at once. The Italian police are coming this night to arrest you on the requisition of the czar of Russia. This I know; how I know it does not matter."

He turned and left the garden. The countess staggered to the house, and within half an hour, disguised as an old man, she was pulled in a boat across the lake, where she hired a post carriage and was drawn over the border into Switzerland.

Count Alexandrovich returned to Russia, intending to devote himself to his old father and mother, whom he had made to suffer for his ill fated marriage. He found them both dead, having succumbed to the ruin of the son they loved so well. The count sold his estates and, returning to America under an assumed name, made a home for himself in the far west, where he endeavored to forget his past in the work of raising grain. Amid the tall corn and the waving wheat he gradually became again a man with a future, for he was still barely past middle age.

An old woman, Lais now lives on a hill looking down into one of the sea coast cities of South America. She is a veritable hag. She has no servants to do her bidding; for all her visible fortune was sequestrated by the governments of the countries in which it lay, and her jewels she lost years ago at Monte Carlo. She has returned to the conditions under which she was born, except that her marvelous beauty has given place to hideous ugliness.

Since this was written her husband, having received the news of his wife's death, has married again.

BAD FOR PRONUNCIATION.

Silent Reading and Neglect of Conversation Are Harmful.

Perhaps the most potent of influences toward diverse pronunciation, especially difference in accent, is the fact that we seldom or never hear in conversation a vast number of words which nevertheless constitute an important and indispensable part of our vocabulary.

"By silent reading and neglect of conversation language itself," declares Richard Grant White, "is coming into disuse." The result of this practice is not only that we are always mentally registering pronunciations peculiar to ourselves, which we have no means of ascertaining to be uncommon or ridiculous, but also that the natural tendencies of our language, unrestrained by the conservative force which occasional use in conversation might exert, rapidly foster new pronunciations and produce a diversity of pronunciation even among the most careful speakers.

All these influences obviously supplement each other in resisting any trend toward uniform pronunciation and facilitate the progress of the tendencies of speech peculiar to our English tongue.—Robert J. Menner in Atlantic Monthly.

A Fleet Street Story.

Henry Arthur Broome, in "The Log of a Rolling Stone," says that in 1871 he was engaged in wood engraving for Punch when one day, at the end of the week, short of money, he stood gazing longingly at the cherries on a costermonger's barrow which stood abreast of the offices of the London Telegraph. His gaze arrested the attention of a gentleman whom he had often seen there before, though not at midday.

Then a kindly deed was done. The gentleman, averting his gaze from me a moment, purchased two paper bags of this fruit. Then, placing one of them in the pocket of his capacious dust coat, he turned to me with the sweetest smile imaginable and without a word offered the other one to me, which I gratefully accepted. He then passed on and went upstairs to the offices of the newspaper. That was my first introduction to the prince of journalists, George Augustus Sala.

English Woman Doctors.

The woman doctor is coming into her own in Great Britain. There are now over 900 of these on the books of the British Medical Association and they have ceased to be objects of horrified curiosity, although a surprising amount of ignorance and prejudice still clings round them.

But many good people believe that women have not nerve for operations, never dreaming that for the past 41 years there has been a little hospital in Euston road, London, officered exclusively by women, where 281 major operations and 206 minor ones were successfully performed last year; where 839 in-patients were admitted during 1912, and 32,389 out-patients treated.

Mrs. Mary Scharlieb, who did not take up medicine until after her four children were born, and was 37 when she passed her finals, is admittedly one of the best surgeons in England.

For the subtle minor ailments which work so much havoc among women, and which men doctors are inclined to dismiss as "hysteria," the woman physician is often able to detect an exciting cause, partly because large numbers of women will speak more freely to their own sex than they can ever bring themselves to do to the most sympathetic man.

A Double Game

By HARRY VAN AMBURG

"Mighty dull this lounging about a hotel waiting for something," said a man to another who occupied a chair beside him.

"Well, yes, rather. Cards is about the only way to pass the time. And the difficulty about cards is you must get up a party to play 'em."

"I couldn't do that," said the other, "for I don't know a soul socially in the town. I expected to finish my business here today and get out this evening, but I didn't succeed."

"I know several men who board here," said the other. "I was thinking of getting up a little game of poker this evening in my room, five cent ante or something like that."

"I wish you would and let me in."

The party met, and the man who didn't know anybody was introduced by his friend to the others as Mr. Wheelock, the introducer's name being Jones. They sat down to play with a five cent ante, but kept raising it till it reached a dollar. Mr. Wheelock didn't object and bet as high as any of the party, sometimes winning and sometimes losing.

It was not long before Wheelock discovered that, though he neither lost nor won much, the money he staked was gradually passing out of his hands and was supplied by new five dollar bills, all on the same bank. The fact didn't seem to surprise him, nor did he object to it. He did not even comment upon it. But Mr. Jones, from whom the bills came, remarked that he had had $1,000 paid him that afternoon at a bank and it had been given him all in these new five dollar bills on the bank from which he had received the money. This explained his having so much of it all of the same denomination.

While the game was in progress a bell boy rapped at the door and asked if Mr. Wheelock was in the room. On being told that he was he handed in a bouquet of flowers. Wheelock received the flowers with evident astonishment. When the others rallied him at having a sweetheart near at hand he looked embarrassed and declared that he didn't know a woman in the place, and if he had "made a mash" he was entirely unconscious of it.

"However," he said, "gentlemen, I trust that you will drink to the lady, whoever she may be, with me." And, rising, he pressed the electric button and on the arrival of a waiter ordered a bottle of wine. The quaffing of wine and the game went on together after this, but none of the men present seemed to care to drink to excess. Mr Jones, in whose room the party were, was especially abstemious, barely sipping his wine.

But Mr. Wheelock and one or two of the others having finished the bottle, the first named ordered another, and when it had been left in the room Wheelock followed the waiter out for some purpose and when he returned shut the door and turned the key unknown to the others. He then deftly slipped it up his sleeve and after resuming his seat, being hidden by the table, transferred it to his pocket.

"It seems to me," remarked one of the [illegible], "that those flowers have a very decided perfume."

"Very decided," chimed in another.

"It makes me feel like turning in," said a third.

"Perhaps we'd better open a window," observed the host, "and get some air. Would you object, Mr. Wheelock?"

"Certainly not."

Jones went to a window and tried to open it. It seemed to be stuck. He went to another, which also resisted his efforts. Mr. Wheelock seemed to be intent on the cards, but his mind was on the windows. He had gained access to that very room during the day and had driven a nail into the sash of each window.

Jones turned away with a frightened look on his face. There were two games being played in his room—one by himself, the other by Mr. Wheelock. Jones staggered to the door and tried to open it. Finding it locked, he looked more frightened still.

"Some one has locked us in here," he said. "We must get out."

He caught on to the back of a chair. The perfume from the flowers was overcoming him. He returned to the window and made another effort to lift the sash. He failed and was on his way to the other window when he sank down unconscious.

Meanwhile the others of the party were also giving way to the effects of the flowers and one by one either rolled down to the floor or bent over unconscious on the table. Wheelock counteracted the fumes by holding a vial under his nose. When all except himself had succumbed he summoned a waiter and directed him to bring the police as quick as possible. They arrived in a few minutes and were much surprised at the scene before them—several men asleep and money in heaps on the table.

"That man," said Wheelock, pointing to Jones, "is a counterfeiter. I am Carkinson, a detective. I tracked him here, and the others, I fancy, are his colleagues. He has been trying to shove his stuff on me for my good money. Better put the bracelets on him before he comes to himself."

When the party woke up they found themselves in the hands of the police. But the only one "wanted" was Mr. Jones.

THE DRESS OF A BUSINESS LETTER

To judge quickly, to discriminate at a glance between good things, and bad, is what most men who receive business letters have been trained to do. It is not an exaggeration to claim that the success of many business letters often depends on the paper.—By HARRISON COURTNEY in "System."

Noblesse Oblige

Rank imposes obligations—
or—as the French put it—"Noblesse Oblige."

It is a very natural and right principle that those who by their position in life command the respect of others should deserve it and be worthy of maintaining their position. "Much is expected of those in high station."

But this principle is not confined to persons of noble birth—it has a hundred applications. It applies, for example, to those manufacturers of reputation and prestige who make goods of high quality and who advertise them constantly in the newspapers of the land.

By their advertising they have attained an eminence where the very best in quality and good service is expected of them. They have set a standard and their very business life depends on the constant maintenance of it.

So that when you buy advertised articles you rest assured that you are getting the best value that money can buy.

Well may you place your faith in advertised goods. Well may you give them preference over articles which you can only hope may prove satisfactory.

For the principle of "Noblesse Oblige" is your guarantee of excellence in Advertised Goods.

If you are doing a local business talk over your advertising problems with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.
If you are doing a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have the counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency. A list of these will be furnished, without cost or obligation, by the Secretary of Canadian Press Association, Room 503, Lumsden Building, Toronto.

WINNIPEG RINK FOR BONSPIEL AT LINDSAY

Winnipeg, Oct. 28—For the first time in many years a Winnipeg rink of curlers may visit Eastern Canada this winter and play friendly games. With Lindsay, Ont., as their destination, owing to the fact that the veteran, J. D. Flavelle, has attended the Winnipeg bonspiel for eighteen years. President E. J. Rochon, of the Manitoba Curling Association, is now endeavoring to make arrangements so that at least two strong rinks will make the trip some time in January.

It is stated that Mac Braden, champion of the local bonspiel for the past two years, will skip one rink, and "Mac" Rochon the other, if the trip goes through. Dr Coglan, of the Thistle Club, formerly of Lindsay, is one of the prime movers.

TURN ABOUT IS FAIR PLAY.

The Brusque Stranger Might Have Gained More by Civility.

When the brisk stranger came in he made for the office railing and stood snapping his fingers impatiently while the young lady in charge finished answering a telephone call.

"Can I see Mr. Smith?" interrupted the caller.

"What do you wish to see him about?" asked the young lady.

"I did not come in here to answer questions," snapped the caller. "I came to ask one. I have asked it. What is the answer?"

Abashed and puzzled by the caller's attitude, the young lady stammered:

"Mr. Smith always sees people in matters which interest him."

"That is not the information I seek," quibbled the caller testily. "If you do not wish to answer a civil question, say so at once."

Here Mr. Smith in person came out of his private office, having overheard the talk.

"I am Mr Smith," he said. "What can I do for you?"

"I am introducing a work"— began the caller, but Mr. Smith interrupted.

"I asked you a civil question. Why don't you answer?"

"Well, you can buy the work. That 's what you can do."

"What if I can?" demanded Mr. Smith. "I can do many things that I never do."

"I did not expect to be insulted when I called," remarked the visitor sulkily.

"Your expectations are immaterial," retorted Mr. Smith. "I cannot give any time to them."

Perceiving that he was meeting his own fire, the caller turned and fled.

"I want a copy of that work," sighed Mr. Smith. "If the fellow had been reasonable and civil I should have dealt with him."—Philadelphia Ledger.

CRUSHING REBUKE.

Palmerston Honored the Independent Briton But Not the Snob.

In the early days of railways, on some of the lines smoking was not allowed at all, either in the trains or on the station buildings.

One day a station-master at a large station, a man noted for his conceit and pomposity, descried a gentleman pacing the platform with a cigar in his mouth. He at once accosted the offender and requested him forthwith to stop smoking. The gentleman took no notice of this command, but continued to walk, emitting a silvery cloud.

The station-master asked him to stop smoking more peremptorily than before; but still the owner of the Havana maintained a provoking disregard. A third time the order was repeated, accompanied with the threat that if the obstinate sinner did not obey he would be handed over to the tender mercies of the porters.

The stranger took no more heed than before; so at last the official, completely losing his temper, pulled the cigar out of the smoker's mouth and flung it away.

This violent act produced no more effect than commands and threats, and the peripatetic philosopher continued his walk quite serenely.

Presently a carriage and four drove up—an equipage well known to the station-master as the Duke of Beaufort's. To his inconceivable horror, the refractory smoker entered the chariot and drove off to Badminton.

The railway official made inquiries as to who the stranger was, and felt ready to sink into the earth when he found out it was Lord Palmerston. He at once ordered a chaise and pair and drove to Badminton.

Arrived there, he sent in his card, and urgently requested a private interview with his lordship. Lord Palmerston soon appeared, and the station-master began a most abject apology for having so grossly insulted his lordship; had he known who his lordship was, he would not have so treated his lordship for the world.

The Premier heard the station-master out; then, looking down upon him sternly, with his hands in his pockets, said:

"Sir, I respected you because I thought you were doing your duty like a Briton; but now I see you are nothing but a snob."

Dogs and Moving Pictures.

A moving picture show was recently given in London to determine what effect a cinematograph picture had on the intelligence of animals. A series of motion pictures were reeled off in a darkened room before an audience of prize dogs. First some pictures of a dog show were run through. The dogs walked up and had a look at it, and turned away, obviously bored and uninterested. Evidently the subject was too familiar. They woke up, however, when an elephant came splashing into a pool of water and appeared to be walking into the room.

A massive bulldog made a dash for the screen. With his head up and ears pricked, he got ready to attack, and the whole audience barked and bayed in blood-curdling discord. Pictures of birds also irritated them, but when other animals were shown they quickly recognized that they were not looking at the real thing, and in a few seconds quieted down completely. The general result of the experiment seemed to be that dogs do not understand still pictures, but that they appreciate motion, though it very largely depends upon the nature of the thing moving.

Presence of Mind.

In front of his Chelsea house Sir Thomas More had a garden and gatehouse, and, as there was a pleasant view from the summit of the gatehouse, he used frequently to sit here, accompanied only by his dog. Here it was that he was found one afternoon by a wandering maniac, who crept upstairs and saw the feeble old man dozing.

"Leap, Tom, leap!" he cried, and at the same time tried to throw him over the battlements. More had not physical strength enough to resist, but he had the wit to say:

"Let us first throw this little dog over."

The man immediately threw down the dog.

"Pretty sport," said the Lord Chancellor. "Now, go down and bring him up; then try again."

While the madman went down for the dog More made fast the door behind him, and so managed to hold the fort until deliverance came.

Exactly How Far.

Sir Frank Lockwood was on one occasion conducting the defence of a person charged with cattle-stealing, and was pressing a witness in cross-examination to ascertain how far he was away from the animals at a certain time.

"How could you tell they were beasts?" he asked.

"Because I could see 'em!"

"And how far off can you tell a beast?"

Witness looked calmly at Sir Frank, and said, "Just about as far as I am from you!"

FREE ENGLAND.

Some of the Things There Which Require a License.

There is a legend which speaks of England as being "a free country," but, as a matter of fact, there are a remarkable number of everyday things which you cannot do without having a license. Apparently people are expected to know the law of licenses by intuition, since ignorance is not accepted as an excuse for anyone failing to take out a necessary license at the proper time and place.

A great many professional and tradespeople must have a license for the privilege of following their work. Bankers, for instance, are subject to a yearly tax of $150, while the annual license fees for a solicitor practicing in London (within a ten-mile radius of the general postoffice) are $45 though country solicitors are regarded as of lesser importance, for their yearly license costs only $30. Barristers, too, require a yearly license costing $5 a year before they may accept a single brief—unless a man has compounded his fees.

Wine merchants and distillers, brewers and vinegar makers, all require a license before they can follow their various trades—in the case of the two former the cost is $50 a year, though from the latter traders only $5 is demanded.

No one who is not properly licensed can legally hold an auction sale—a little privilege which costs every auctioneer some $50 a year. While the person who tries to run a public house without previously obtaining the requisite license is courting trouble— the license for a publican, according to individual circumstances, may cost anything from $22.50 to $300.

Tobacco manufacturers, gold and silversmiths, house agents, bailiffs, hawkers, restaurant keepers — all these and many other workers too numerous to mention singly, have to have a proper license before the law of the land will allow them to ply their trade for profit. The yearly cost of the licenses varies considerably— anything from $1.25 to $150.

While no licensing fees are demanded from people who keep a score of female domestics, those who keep a solitary manservant are considered in a position to pay $3.75 a year for the luxury—beyond all wages, etc., of course.

You cannot even be buried without somebody previously obtaining a proper license authorizing the burial. Nor is it wise for anyone to get wed in England without having one of the seven varieties of licenses which make a marriage legal in that country from a couple of shillings for a registrar's certificate to $150 for a "special license." To carry the matter further yet, the law will not recognize a person as being born unless notification of their birth is given without delay to the licensing registrar of the district.

English as It Is Spoken.

It's like trying to learn a new language to pronounce certain names as they are pronounced in England. Thus Clogher is pronounced as if written Klore; St. Leger becomes Sillinger; Wrensfordsley is called Ransley; Ruthven is Riven; Wemyss is Weems; Colclough is Cokley and Monzie becomes Munie. The same is true of many others terms and an American in England must always be on the lookout as to his pronunciation lest he fall into error.

Whole Class Sick.

The late Prof. Copeland was professor of astronomy in Edinburgh University, but the duties of this office were not very arduous.

"How is your astronomy-class getting on?" a friend asked him once.

"Oh, very well, very well indeed," replied Prof. Copeland, with a gratified air. "But at present he is laid up with influenza!"

Veterans at Work.

Five veterans whose ages aggregated 332 years built a stack in one day at Wellbrock Farm, Boughton-under-Blean, in East Kent, Eng. Two of the five were sixty-nine, and the youngest was sixty-three.

NEW CONVENIENT TRAIN TO WINNIPEG

Canadian Pacific

The popularity of Canadian Pacific service, and the excellence of that road's equipment, has been so greatly appreciated by the travelling public that it has been found necessary to put into service an entirely new Through Standard Express Train between Toronto and Winnipeg.

Commencing Sunday, October 27th, the "Gate City Express" will leave Toronto at 2.30 p.m., and will run daily thereafter, arriving Winnipeg at 8.00 a.m. second morning. The train will consist of the highest-class modern equipment; Compartment Library Observation Car, Standard Sleeping Cars, Tourist Sleeping Car, Dining Car, First-class Coach and Colonist Car. This will be found the most convenient and best train between Toronto and Winnipeg on account of the daylight departure from Toronto at an hour when the Union Station is not badly congested, and also on account of the early hour of arrival at Winnipeg.

The present "Vancouver Express" will continue to leave Toronto at 10.20 p.m. daily and will consist of the same equipment as the "Gate City Express." This train is the best to take for points west of Winnipeg but for Winnipeg and east the "Gate City Express" is the right train to travel by.

WIGS AND THEIR COST.

Lawyers Pay Handsomely For Their Remarkable Head-dresses.

The Long Vacation over, barristers and other officials at the Law Courts of England will again don their wigs, of different sizes and shapes, according to the position held by the wearer.

The higher the office the bigger the wig. Doubtless it is from this fact that the slang term "big-wig," so often applied to those in authority, is derived.

The shape and construction of a wig, the number of curls on it, or the lack of them, are prescribed by unwritten law. From the "full-bottom" dress-wig of the High Court judge, down to the much less imposing headgear of the "junior," the shape and size of everyone of them, and they vary considerably, show to what position in the law the wearer has attained.

The wig of the High Court judge, with the side flaps, falling over the shoulders in front, and adorned with rows of curls in plenty, is made of fine bleached horsehair, and costs from $75 to $100.

Judges presiding over lower courts wear correspondingly shorter wigs—called in the legal profession "bob-wigs." They reach only to the tops of the ears, have no side-flaps, and only two little curls on either side. These curls are placed vertically. The cost of a "bob-wig" is from $25 to $50, and they are much more comfortable to wear than the more imposing sort of wig.

The wig worn by a criminal judge is distinguished from that of the judge of a civil court by a small patch of black hair set in the top.

The wigs worn by barristers contain less horsehair and are decidedly neater-looking than those donned by judges. When a barrister attains to the dignity of putting the letters K.C. after his name, he is entitled to wear two additional curls on his wig to distinguish him from his brother barristers.

The wig of an ordinary barrister has two little longitudinal curls over each ear. It is but seldom that a barrister is allowed to speak unless he is wearing his wig and his gown.

The gowns worn by legal dignitaries vary as much as do their wigs.

A high court judge wears gorgeous robes made of silk, trimmed with ermine, costing anything from $150 to $500. On state occasions the high court judge carries a three-cornered hat, but this is never worn by him.

A K.C.'s gown is of black silk, but an ordinary barrister is not permitted to wear a silk gown. His is made of alpaca, or some such material known in the legal profession as "stuff." When a barrister has been made King's Counsel he is called a "silk."

The King's Tenants.

The sixth workmen's club for tenants on the Sandringham estate has just been erected at Babingley, Norfolk, Eng. It is the first provided by the present King, who gives light, fire, and furniture. The clubs are federated and are rent free, the members having control of the management and contributing a penny a week or a shilling a quarter. There is a drinking bar, a card-room, a billiard-room, and an excellent library. Each club has a bowling green.

Queen of Donkeywomen.

Known as the Queen of Donkeywomen on the sands at Southport, Eng., 65-year-old Betty Hall, who during the forty-three years of her occupation claims to have run over 100,000 miles on the sands, has just challenged any woman over sixty to a "go-as-you-please" race of twenty miles.

MUCH GRAIN AT MIDLAND

Elevators Are Filled to Capacity ---Railroad Traffic Heavy

Several GT.R. trainmen informed The Review to-day that Midland is besieged with grain. All the elevators are filled to their capacity and several boats have been unable to unload. A steady stream of cars are sent down this division, but that does not give the required service, so many cars are sent via Allandale to Toronto and then down the main line. From all appearance it is a bigger rush than ever.

A MILLION DOLLARS FOR GOOD ROADS

County Council of Essex, Ont., Presents By-law for Improving 150 Miles of Roadway

One of the most important of the many road improvement plans now under way in various parts of Canada, is that just launched in Essex County, Ontario. At a meeting of the Council on Thursday, October 16th, a By-Law was drawn up for presentation to the voters next January. This By-Law calls for the raising of a million dollars to provide for concrete roadways covering no less than 150 miles, and connecting all the important communities of Essex County. The proposed routes of the concrete roads will completely circle the County, and afford the highest type of highway connection to the farmers for reaching Windsor or any of the smaller towns.

With the assistance of Engineer Huber, of the Ontario Government, the committee appointed at the last session of the council, went over the different roads proposed for paving. Basing his recommendation upon the fact that the route will be used much heavy traffic, Mr. Huber made his report in favor of using Concrete throughout. id

MR. CYRIL MAUDE SAYS PETERBORO AN ENGLISH CITY

Review Talks to the Major Between the Acts—Memories of Canada Thirty Years Ago

A large audience greeted Mr. Cyril Maude and his English company at the Opera House last night. This is Mr. Maude's first American and Canadian tour and he has received great ovations in Montreal and Toronto.

Last night the company presented a comedy in four acts entitled "The Second in Command." This is perhaps Mr. Maude's favorite play, and one which has done much to make him a favorite with English audiences.

It is a typically English play and it is very difficult to present this side of English life to a Canadian audience. Mr. Maude took the part of Major Christopher Bingham, who is a typical English aristocratic character who can never take himself seriously and is always in bad luck.

He falls in love with Muriel Mannering and, out of pity, rather than love for him, Muriel promises to marry him. Almost immediately she regrets her promise, for she meets with Col. Anstruther and realizes that she has met her true affinity. The Colonel and the Major are close friends and the humorous and semi-serious passages between the two are very entertaining.

However, the South African war intervenes and after a year of fighting all the soldiers return, the Major having been wounded in saving the life of his colonel, is rewarded with the Victoria Cross instead of his lady Muriel. He takes it all in good part and submits to playing the part of best man instead of bridegroom.

It is a clean play, and, save for the whiskeys and sodas which seem to be indispensibles in the English Army life, there is nothing but good teaching in the comedy. It is really a peep into one phase of English life and it was well presented. The acting of the ladies was natural and simple, Dorothy Maude being especially charming, as Muriel.

A BRIEF INTERVIEW.

At the close of the first act a Review representative secured an interview with Mr. Maude whom he found in his dressing-room changing his uniform for the next act.

Mr. Maude has his suspicions of journalists and said in the course of his play that young reporters ought to serve five years writing with invisible ink.

He told our representative that he had enjoyed his visit to Canada, and that Canadians had treated him with the greatest kindness; he had been feted in Montreal and Toronto—he asked quite simply if it was true they call Toronto "the Holy City."

"You know," he said, 'this is not my first time in Canada. I was here thirty years ago. I worked on a farm in Oakwood for over a year and did the chores like the ordinary farmhand."

"And what difference do you see, Mr. Maude in this country and the people between now and when you were here thirty years ago?" queried the Review.

"Oh, a vast difference in the country, of course. Toronto, as I remember it, was only about the size of London."

"London?"

"Yes, London, Ontario, I mean."

"Oh—and how do you like the city of Peterborough Mr. Maude?"

"Well, I have seen very little of it, but I fancy you must have a lot of English people here. The audience seemed to catch every point in the first act, and this being a purely English play Canadians do not always see the humor of the situations and understand the references, but I was pleased to find that the audience caught on to everything I said to-night and that helps a fellow wonderfully."

True actors are like editors, lecturers and preachers, they must have a responsive audience.

The Review mentioned other well-known English actors. Among them was Forbes Robertson and F. R. Benson. Mr. Maude asked if Mr. Benson was coming to Peterborough and said we ought to try and secure him while he is on tour in Canada.

Asked if he liked the profession of acting, he replied that he had been at it so long that it had become second nature with him. He had thought of retiring, but he had been told that if he gave it up he would "go to pieces."

"This, of course, is a holiday for me," he said. "I have no worry or responsibility like I have in London, where I am manager of my own theatre. I go from here to Kingston, and one or two other places, then on to New York, where I expect to remain for about four months. I do not know if I shall go west or not. It all depends upon my managers. I am in their hands."

By this time Mr. Maude was redressed in his regimentals and putting the last touches to his hair and moustache, the Review scribe shook hands with the Major, who wished him and his paper every success.

Pasteurized Milk a Guarantee Against Disease

"There are two things the sanitarian and public health officer must demand of milk producers and milk dealers: That milk should be clean and that milk should be safe. In other words, milk should not contain dirt, and it should not contain disease.

"The modern methods of clarifying and pasteurizing milk gives us a sure guarantee that no harm can come from such milk, and when the public realize this fact there will be a greater demand for this milk, and a decrease in sickness, especially amongst children." Extract of an address by Dr. North before the N.Y. Milk Committee.

Our milk will stand the most rigid inspection and it is positively safe.

TEN PER CENT. OF CUSTOMS AND EXCISE ASKED FOR Conference at Ottawa Concurs in Demanding a Radical Readjustment of Present Financial Arrangement With Federal Government.

OTTAWA, Oct. 29.—Resolutions adopted by the interprovincial conference yesterday afternoon propose a complete and radical readjustment of the financial arrangements between the Dominion of Canada and the provinces. In addition to present subsidies, the provinces ask that the Federal Government should pay the provinces ten per cent. of its total revenue derived from customs and excise. The discussion of financial matters took up all the sitting yesterday. There were several suggestions which, however, were finally concentrated in unanimous resolutions which were conveyed to Premier Borden.

The increased cost of provincial administration is the basic ground on which the demand is made. It is claimed that the cost of administration now reaches the limit of revenue in the various provinces.

The resolutions which were adopted, on motion of Sir James Whitney, seconded by Hon. G. H. Murray, were placed before the Premier, who promised careful consideration.

The resolutions follow:

Resolution No. 1: "Whereas under the provisions of the British North America Act, 1867, and the various amendments thereto, the existing financial arrangements between the Government of the Dominion of Canada and the various provinces thereof are inadequate to provide for their expenditure, in consequence of the heavy and steadily increasing amounts required to be expended to maintain the efficiency of the services of their respective Governments as by law provided, and to provide the moral and material progress of the people;

"And, whereas the financial arrangements at the time of Confederation and since have been regarded as final by the provinces;

"And, whereas, in 1867, the provinces surrendered customs and excise revenue amounting to $11,580,968, and received in lieu thereof but $2,227,942, and whereas in 1913 the total revenue from customs and excise was $133,212,143, of which the provinces receive only $10,280,042, be it therefore resolved:

"(1) That in the opinion of this conference an additional subsidy equal to ten per cent. of the customs and excise duties collected by Canada, from year to year, should be granted to the provinces, payable semi-annually in advance, in addition to all the other subsidies to which the provinces are now or may hereafter be entitled.

"Under reserve of the right of any province to submit to the Dominion Government a memorandum in writing, concerning any claim it may have to larger sums than those mentioned in this resolution, and with preference to any existing claim or demand of any province."

Resolution No. 2: "That the additional subsidy be paid to each province as follows:

"(a) There shall be set aside out of such additional subsidy an amount sufficient to pay each province a sum equal to fifty per cent. of the amount now payable to each province for government and legislature.

"(b) The balance of such additional subsidy shall be payable to each province according to its population, as ascertained at the then last census."

Resolution No. 3: "That in case of the Government of Canada concurring in the views of this conference as expressed in the above resolutions a measure should be submitted to the Parliament of Canada at its next session providing for the payment of such increased subsidies as may be determined upon pending an amendment to the British North America Act if such is deemed necessary."

Another resolution asks increases of salaries of Lieutenant-Governors, and there is also one which asks that their titles be changed to governor.

Hon. Mr. Taschereau asked that free postage be granted to the provinces in respect to public documents, sessional and departmental, and the conference unanimously agreed to the proposal.

The provinces will also ask that the Government take steps to have the stocks of provincial corporations classed in England in the list of those whose securities in which trust funds may be invested.

STANDARD OIL BUILDING TO BE REMOVED

Was the Wonder of New York Twenty Years Ago

Canadian Press Despatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The Standard Oil building at No. 50 Broadway, will be burnt down. It is eleven stories, and the first building erected of steel skeleton with a stone shell. Twenty-four years ago it was the wonder of New York. To-day it is surrounded with buildings three to four times as high and is so small as not to pay the expenses of keeping it going.

Drug Clerk May Lose Eye.

BROCKVILLE, Oct. 29.—A drug clerk named John Clelland, was bodly injured yesterday by the explosion of a solution of silver and nitric acid which he was mixing in a bottle. Clelland received the force of the fluid in the face and eyes, and it is feared the sight of one eye is permanently injured.

HEIRS FIGHT WILL.

Rev. Father Brophy Gave Too Much to Church, Say Relatives.

KINGSTON, Oct. 29.—Relatives of the late Rev. Father Brophy, who died recently leaving an estate valued at $177,000, are taking action to oppose the will. It is stated that Father Brophy made the greater part of the money through insurance. Years ago, it is claimed, he insured his life on the endowment plan, and at the end of the specified time drew out $11,000. The insurance agent advised him to insure his (the agent's) life and he did so for $75,000. The former died in less than a year's time, Father Brophy securing the money. It is said the will is to be contested on the ground that the testator was of unsound mind he made it, the greater part of the estate being devised to the Roman Catholic clergy.

Murderer Missed Money.

ST. HILAIRE, Que., Oct. 29.—The finding of $81 in a bureau drawer now proves that the murderer of Mrs Louis Chevalier here on Friday night, failed to secure the money that induced him to enter the old lady's house and to kill her.

The murderer seems to have overlooked the bureau in his hurried search and to have secured only a few nickels.

COLORADA STRIKE RECORD OF TWENTY-EIGHT KILLED

Loss in Wages is Estimated at $2,500,000—Property Loss $50,000

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 29.—While the ordering of troops to the coal field followed the failure of Governor Ammons' efforts to arrange a settlement, an additional reason for the action was found yesterday in the list of casualties and property damage that have marked the thirty-five days of the strike. These strike incidents were summarized as follows:—Battles and skirmishes, 18; killed, 28; wounded, 41; personal assaults, 6; buildings and bridges wrecked or damaged by dynamite, 11; property loss, estimated, $50,000; loss in wages, estimated, $2,500,000.

Since almost the first day of the strike, Sept. 23, the governor has been importuned by authorities and citizens of Las Animas and Huerfano counties to send troops to the coal camps and equally insistent representations have been made against such action.

Fatal Battle With Strikers.

TRINIDAD, Colo., Oct. 29.—In a battle which is believed to have started at 5.30 o'clock yesterday morning between approximately 1,200 strikers and possibly 300 mine guards in the camps at Hastings, Delagoa, Tobasco and Berwind, one mine guard and three strikers are said to have been killed.

HANS SCHMIDT, CONFESSED SLAYER, TAKES ALL BLAME

DR. ERNEST A. MURET AND HANS SCHMIDT

MRS. MARGARET RUTLEDGE

MISS BERTHA ZECH

NEW YORK, Oct. 29. — Hans Schmidt, one-time priest and confessed slayer of Anna Aumuller, took the witness stand in the Federal Court yesterday afternoon, and took full responsibility for the counterfeiting operations for which his associate, "Doctor" Ernest Muret, is on trial.

"I made the money. I did it," shouted Schmidt, rising from the witness chair. "It's no person's business why I did it. That is between God and me. Muret refused to help me. I bought the whole equipment. Muret had nothing to do with my murder of Anna Aumuller. He never met her. I murdered her."

In order to conceal from Muret the fact that he was counterfeiting, he said he did much of his work in the vestry of St. John's Catholic Church, where he was a priest.

NEW ZEALAND'S HOME NAVY PLAN OVERLOOKS THE QUESTION OF UNITY IN DEFENCE

Proposal of Premier Massey That New Zealand Build and Control a Local Navy is Discussed By London Times—Two-Fold Policy of Defence is the Only Solution—Massey Explains Step.

LONDON, Oct. 29. — (C.A.P. Cable.)—The Times, commenting on Premier Massey's proposals to build a New Zealand home navy and discontinue the Imperial subsidy, declares that while it marks a new departure for New Zealand, it is obvious that this announcement does not touch the deeper problem of unity in defence which Borden has emphasized in Canada. Massey's speech, it says, when it reaches the wider aspect of his subject, had a stirring and confident ring, and New Zealand's past record is an earnest of the spirit in which she will address herself to the new work.

"We have long maintained," continues The Times, "that the creation of a local flotilla, while it cannot completely provide for naval security, must be an essential part of any adequate and lasting system of common naval defence. We look to this two-fold policy as the most hopeful means of naval co-operation yet thought out. It may be regretted that the Admiralty has not been able to carry through the agreement of 1909 in the sense of sending two of its most modern light cruisers to the Southern Pacific, but a study of the circumstances should make the reason plain, since ships are now necessarily stationed where they have ships of their own quality to fight."

Premier Massey's Plans.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Oct. 29.—The Government of the Dominion of New Zealand decided yesterday to adopt the policy of building a navy of its own on the same lines as that of the Commonwealth of Australia and to discontinue its subsidy to the Imperial British Navy.

Premier William Ferguson Massey in announcing the reversal of the present system explained that the decision of the Government to assume the greater responsibility was due to the inability of the British Admiralty to carry out its agreement of 1909, and station two cruisers of the Bristol type of 4,800 tons displacement in New Zealand waters, the Dominion bearing the cost of their upkeep.

The British Admiralty had substituted for these two cruisers the Psyche and Pyramus of 2,135 tons displacement, which were unsatisfactory to the Dominion, and the Premier proposed to recommend to the New Zealand Parliament an order for the construction in England in 1914 of a cruiser of the Bristol type at a cost of $2,000,000.

This and other war vessels acquired by New Zealand, the Premier said, would be under the administration of the Dominion in peace time, but would pass automatically into the control of the Admiralty during war time or when they might be urgently needed.

German Regencies Must Go.

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—Bills were introduced yesterday in the Diets of the Duchy of Brunswick and the Kingdom of Bavaria for bringing to an end the only two regencies existing in Germany—that of Duke Johann of Mecklenburg-Schwerin over Brunswick, and that of Prince Ludwig over Bavaria.

The Bavarian Cabinet met yesterday morning and received the consent of Prince Regent Ludwig to the introduction of a measure to make him King of Bavaria in place of the insane King Otto, who succeeded his father, Ludwig, in 1886, and has never known that he was a monarch.

Was Indian's Name Struck Off.

BROCKVILLE, Oct. 29.—A man named Frego, who is classed by the police as a member of the prohibited list, when sworn in the police court yesterday stated that he had received whisky over every bar in Brockville during the past thirty days, and accordingly all the proprietors will be summoned for a violation of the Liquor Act. Enquiry shows that the license inspector struck the name from the list at the request of relatives. This will not deter the prosecution. The ground will be taken that the hotelkeepers were aware that the inspector had no authority for his act, and that the name could not be removed for the space of one year without the order of the county judge.

POLICEMEN UNITE

London Eng., "Cops" Expect Recognition by Christmas

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The policemen of London have become inoculated with the trade union germ and a provisional committee, drawn from their ranks, is busy to-day enrolling members in what has been named the Metropolitan Police Trade Union.

Every member of the force below the rank of superintendent is eligible for membership, and the men are joining in such numbers that the organizers anticipate that the union will be strong enough by Christmas to force the authorities to recognize it.

The metropolitan police force at the end of 1912 consisted of 33 superintendents, 608 inspectors, 2,587 sergeants and 17,011 policemen, making a total of 20,339, but this figure has been somewhat increased this year.

ANNOUNCEMENT MADE TO POWERS BY U.S. OFFICIALS

Gen. Felix Diaz Escapes to an American Warship

WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 29. — A new and probably more definite Mexican policy is to be initiated by the United States. Assurances to that effect have been given by this Government to other foreign nations interested. From what was learned yesterday it is believed that the procedure that has been criticized as "drifting" is to be abandoned.

Coincident with an informal announcement by Secretary Bryan that this Government had assented to a request from the Government of France that American protection would be given to a party of forty French citizens whose lives are believed to be in danger at San Ignacio, forty miles inland from Mazatlan, it became known also through the Secretary of State that the United States had promised foreign powers to define its policy of future dealings with Mexico. In accordance with a request of the United States assurances have been received by the State Department from the Governments of Great Britain, Germany and France that they would take no action concerning Mexico until a statement of the American policy had been communicated to them.

These disclosures by Mr. Bryan mark the first indication of an intention on the part of the Government to take the world into its confidence with respect to the course it intends to pursue towards Mexico.

Gen. Diaz Slips Away.

VERA CRUZ, Oct. 29.—At ten Monday evening Gen. Felix Diaz, accompanied by his two confidential advisers, Cecielo Ocon and J. B. Sandoval, crawled across the roof from the German Hotel to the quarters of United States Consul Canada. There they asked for protection. Canada signalled to the Wheeling, the only American gun boat inside the harbor, to send a launch to the Terminal Co. dock. Between 12.30 and 1 o'clock yesterday morning Diaz and his friends were taken aboard the Wheeling, and later transferred to the United States battleship Louisiana.

Sentiment here strongly condemns American officials in their "butting-in" on national business. Diaz's life is not in danger. In fact Monday evening Antonio Villa Vicencia, the best Mexican detective, and head of the secret service here, publicly said that Diaz would soon leave the Consulate for American protection aboard their ships, and that he would not interfere with such a flight, as Diaz's absence from the country was more or less convenient to the public interest.

There was no order for Diaz's arrest, and he was under surveillance solely because the Central Government wished to keep track of his movements. It is thought that Enrique Hauser, proprietor of the German Hotel, called the German Consul's attention to what was going on in his hotel, and that the consul informed the officials of the warship Hertha, anchored near the Wheeling, to give the launch a good passage from the pier to the Wheeling, as the German Consul did not know what action the Mexican gunboats would take if the American Consul's plans were forestalled.

Convict-Senator Was Willing to "Squeal" For Pardon

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Stephen J. Stilwell, former state Senator from the Bronx, acquitted of bribery charges by the Senate last spring, convicted afterwards by a jury and now serving his sentence in Sing Sing, appealed to William Sulzer, governor, for a pardon and offered, in return, to expose the inner workings of "Boss rule" in New York, "whereby representatives in the Legislature are placed between the alternatives of political death and destruction by failure to obey the boss or the violation of their obligations to the people."

Stilwell's offer is contained in a letter made public by Sulzer yesterday.

Will Enforce Duties.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 29.—Wheat and wheat flour will not be admitted free to the United States from those countries which decline to admit free of duty similar products from the United States.

Customs collectors have been advised that the countries now doing so are Great Britain, Finland and the Netherlands.

Can Christianize Turkey.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 29.—A Christian Turkey for one million American dollars. That was the substance of an address by Dr. Charles C. Tracy, president of the Anatolia College, Turkey, before the American Board of Commissioners for Congregational Foreign Missions, here yesterday.

"NO BOOZE" POLICY FOR YOUNG MEN

Ontario Young Manhood Association is Formed—To Be Active in Local Option Campaigns

TORONTO, Oct. 29.—A new temperance organization, to be known as the Ontario Young Manhood Association, which will conduct an active campaign among the young men of the province, was formally organized last night at a meeting in the West End Y. M. C. A. of representative leaders in the various young men's movements in Toronto and throughout the province. The primary object of the organization will be to centralize the efforts along temperance lines of all the present existing organizations connected with the churches and Y. M. C. A. branches. The new organization will take an active part in the coming local option contests in York and Scarboro Townships, concentrating its efforts upon getting out the young men's votes, and next year it is planned that all municipalities voting on local option will be invaded. Every member of the new movement is to wear in his lapel a button bearing the words: "No Booze."

DR. H. A. M'KIM,
President of the Ontario Young Manhood Association.

The principal officers are: Hon. president, George A. Warburton; vice-president, W. J. Gallagher; general secretary, Newton Wylie, University of Toronto, and W. A. Dunlop; treasurer, T. A. Silverthorn.

Warned of Big Storms.

DULUTH, Minn., Oct. 29.—Warnings of a northeasterly storm were posted at all points along Lake Superior yesterday by the U. S. Weather Bureau, and marine traffic was at a standstill, while boats waited for what was predicted to be the hardest blow of the year.

A small fleet cleared Monday, and some anxiety is felt for their safety, as none of the boats carry wireless apparatus.

Blizzard In Western States.

DULUTH, Oct. 29.—The first real winter weather of the season struck the western portion of the northwest and Canada yesterday and reached Duluth last night. A northwest blizzard, heavy snow and low temperature prevails here, and cold will continue all day to-day, according to forecast.

ALL EVIDENCE IN

Murder Charges Against Mrs. Eaton May go to Jury To-Night

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Oct. 29.—All evidence in the trial of Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, charged with poisoning her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton, had been put in when the afternoon session closed yesterday, and the fate of the woman will probably be entrusted to the jury before to-night.

Before the case of the defence was closed a medical expert, Dr. A. E. Auston of Boston, testified that in his opinion the poison which killed the naval officer was taken at or after the noon meal, Wednesday, March 5, and that it was taken in one dose.

Mrs. Eaton on that day was visiting in Medford, according to testimony given by witnesses for both the state and defence.

Got $500 For Forgery.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29. — Dr. W. W. Fraser, chief witness of those attacking the ligitimacy of the child said to have been born to Mrs. Dorothy C. Slingsby, and heir to a $1,000,000 English estate, broke down before a grand jury inquisition and admitted that he had received $500 for falsifying the birth certificate.

A REVERSION TO TYPE

When you have no decent argument to offer in reply to an opponent all you have to do is to abuse him. Tell him he is a "bucolic" or write a note like the following, which is the Examiner's "reply" to the Review. It does more damage to the Examiner than to us, therefore we publish it in full.

> "We have sometimes in our simplicity imagined that Peterborough was a city, with something like city ways, city ideals and city journalistic methods. But our evening contemporary, the Review, has brought us back to the good old bucolic, oxcart days of village life, when farmers' wives "swapped" eggs for sugar, etc., at the general store and farmers paid their subscription to newspapers in cordwood; and when newspapers themselves, exchanged slang - whanaging pleurilities and heavy editorials upon light matters. Then "everything went" and the old hand-press gave these journalistic thunderings to the public, which appreciated them; for, with little to talk about they took interest in trifles. Last evening the Review wasted a column of attention upon the Examiner, anent childish trivilities, largely based on false statements, whose only cheering, if unexpected, feature was the assurance of our contemporary that it had "brains and ink." The ink is conceded, and in this regard public opinion lines up with the Review."

It will be noticed that our neighbor indulges in reminiscences of a dissolute youthood, and we are sorry we cannot share in the luxury. Possibly the tone and matter of this reply is accounted for by this reversion to those old bad habits which remain so vividly in our neighbor's memory.

Not a word is said in defence or explanation of the charges which the Examiner has laid against us as a public-spirited journal. The Examiner was the aggressor, and when we replied plainly to their charges we are told we are "slang-whanagers."

This "slang-whanaging" journal is nevertheless very useful to the city and particularly to the Examiner, which yesterday took from Monday's Review the account of a sermon delivered in a Peterboro church on Sunday morning last, which they incroporated into a general article on the young missionary who preached.

Our neighbor is at liberty to use anything that appears in these columns, so long as it acknowledges the source of its borrowed plumes and does not state that a preacher preached in the evening when we said he preached in the morning.

But we would forego even these acknowledgments if our neighbor would credit this journal with as high ideals of journalism and of citizenship as it pretends to hold itself.

SAFETY IN REVERENCE

The narrow escape of the Teutonic from colliding with an ice-berg will recall the terrible disaster which befel her sister ship, the Titanic.

The experience of the Teutonic seems to have been very similar to that of the Titanic before she struck the berg, only that the Teutonic was proceeding slowly and cautiously. As it was, the berg passed within 12 feet of her stern, and but for the vigilance and swift action of the captain in ordering the reversal of the engines, very serious damage might have been done to the ship if indeed it had not been wrecked.

The Master of the Teutonic is Captain James, and this is not the first time he has guided his vessel with extreme cautiousness through a perilous zone of ice. Two years ago when there were a large number of ice-bergs congregated off Newfoundland, the Teutonic was on her maiden trip to Canada, and it would have been to the advantage of the company and of himself for Captain James to "make time." Captain James nevertheless pulled up and did not leave his post on the bridge for a day and two nights. He cleared the decks and cabins at sun down, and would permit no "rag-time" parading of the decks by the emigrants, and ordered all out of the saloons and cabins and lights out.

Those who were aboard the Teutonic those nights will not soon forget the awful suspense. All night the horns were kept blowing through the fog, and the whole ship was as still as the grave, except for the panting of the engines, and even this would now and then cease as if in fear of imminent danger. It was a nerve-trying time for those who realized the peril the ship was passing through. But there was reverence and due respect shown in the presence of the awful Deep.

Had there been the same caution, or even respect for Nature, on the part of the officers and passengers of the Titanic, that great leviathen would never have come to its terrible end.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A new island is reported to have been found in the Atlantic. The Friendly Island group may put in a claim for this. It may be one of those that disappeared some time ago from the Pacific.

The Examiner quotes Mr. Burnham's letter, and the Globe's reply. What the Globe says is as Scripture to our Liberal contemporary, and there is of course nothing more to be said. When the Toronto editor speaks all the lesser Liberal scribes are silent—doubtless wondering what the oracle is talking about. A blank wall makes a good echo.

Sir Richard McBride is too straighforward a man to say smooth and ambiguous things even to a Canadian Club.—A little more straight talk on both sides would clear the air and we would know just 'where we were at."

There is at last an emergency which ought to convince the Globe. It is reported that "Canada is threatened with an invasion of the potato tube moth and the alfalfa weevil." If the Globe would write an article upon them it ought to prove effective in discouraging the invaders.

The controversy over Prof. George Jackson in the Wesleyan Church in England does not appear to have been closed. The anomolous thing about this preacher is that he is only heard of when he says something heritical. Mr. Jackson must be content with a heretic's reward.

EXCERPTS

Barrie's Innings.

Sir James Barrie, who is keenly interested in cricket, is often to be found at Lord's. He is not quite up to first-class form himself, however, and he does not mind admitting it. He tells a story of how during a certain match he had just lit up his pipe when he was suddenly called on to go out and bat. He left his pipe in the pavilion, and it was still alight when he went back.

NEW CONVENIENT TRAIN TO WINNIPEG
Canadian Pacific

The popularity of Canadian Pacific service, and the excellence of that road's equipment, has been so greatly appreciated by the travelling public that it has been found necessary to put into service an entirely new Through Standard Express Train between Toronto and Winnipeg.

Commencing Sunday, October 27th, the "Gate City Express" will leave Toronto at 2.30 p.m., and will run daily thereafter, arriving Winnipeg at 8.00 a.m. second morning. The train will consist of the highest-class modern equipment; Compartment Library Observation Car, Standard Sleeping Cars, Tourist Sleeping Car, Dining Car, First-class Coach and Colonist Car. This will be found the most convenient and best train between Toronto and Winnipeg on account of the daylight departure from Toronto at an hour when the Union Station is not badly congested, and also on account of the early hour of arrival at Winnipeg.

The present "Vancouver Express" will continue to leave Toronto at 10.20 p.m. daily and will consist of the same equipment as the 'Gate City Express.' This train is the best to take for points west of Winnipeg but for Winnipeg and east the "Gate City Express" is the right train to travel by.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Oct. 28.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 97 cars, comprising 1787 cattle, 825 hogs, 1400 sheep and lambs and 100 calves.

Exporters

There were no cattle bought for export, but there were a few of export weight and quality sold at $7.50 to $7.75.

Butchers

There was a scarcity of good to choice butchers' steers and heifers—not enough to supply the demand. Choice butchers sold at $7.25 to $7.50; choice butchers heifers, at $7 to $7.25; good steers, $6.75 to $7.25; medium, $6.25 to $6.75; common, $5.50 to $6; choice cows, $5.75 to $6.00; good cows, $5.25 to $5.50; medium cows, $4.50 to $5; common canners and cutters, $3 to $4.50; export bulls, $5.75 to $6.50; butchers' bulls, $5 to $5.50; bologna bulls, $4 to $4.75.

Stockers and Feeders

The market for stockers and feeders was again active at the following quotations: Steers, 1000 to 1150 lbs., sold at $6.30 to $6.60; steers, 900 to 1000 lbs., at $6 to $6.25; stockers, 500 to 800 lbs., at $5.25 to $6; rough eastern stockers, $4.50 to $5.25.

Milkers and Springers

All offerings of good to choice milkers and springers were readily taken, at prices ranging from $55 to $130, one extra choice Holstein being bought at that figure. The bulk of the cows were sold from $60 to $80 each.

Veal Calves

The market for veal calves held steady, as follows: Choice calves sold from $9 to $10; good calves, $8 to $9; medium, $7 to $7.50, canners, $5.50 to $6.50, rough eastern calves, $4.50 to $5.

Sheep and Lambs

The sheep and lamb trade was a little firmer. Ewes sold at $4.25 to $5.25, culls and rams, $2.75 to $3.75; lambs, $7.40 to $7.50; bucks, culled out, at 75c per head less.

Hogs

Selected hogs, fed and watered, sold at $9 to $9.10, and in some instances $9.20 and $9.25 was paid for one deck.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

EAST BUFFALO, Oct. 28.—Cattle—Receipts, 1000, steady.

Veals—Receipts, 125; active; native calves, 25c lower, $6 to $11.50; Canada calves, $3.50 to $5.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 4800; active and steady to strong; pigs, 25c higher; heavy and mixed, $8.40 to $8.50; yorkers, $8.25 to $8.40, pigs, $8 to $8.25; roughs, $7.65 to $7.75; stags, $6.50 to $7.50; dairies, $8.25 to $8.40.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 4400; active and steady; unchanged.

RED ROSE TEA "is good tea"

A Futile Attempt

To Keep a Boy and a Girl From Wedlock

By PETER SCHONSKY

Count Ivan Ivanovich, a Russian nobleman, had the misfortune to marry a wife who for years led him a dance, then ran away with an officer in the army, leaving him alone with a son, Boris, a year old.

Naturally the count was imbittered against women. The very sight of one of the opposite sex threw him into a state bordering on insanity. He at last became so affected on encountering a woman that his physician recommended that he go where he would not meet them.

So Count Ivan sold out his estate near St. Petersburg and went into Siberia, where he bought a large tract of land, in the center of which he built himself a house. He encircled his land with a high wall, in which there was but one opening, at which he stationed a guard with instructions not to permit any woman or female child to enter the inclosure. His servants were all men, and if any article was needed that a man could not make it was obtained from without.

Besides keeping away from women himself, the count decided to keep his son away from them. When Boris began to talk his father gave orders that he should not be told that there were such persons as women in the world. The boy was to grow up thinking that the only human beings were men. Perhaps there was a trace of insanity in this, but be that as it may, so great was the care taken to keep all sexual knowledge away from Boris that he was fifteen years old before such knowledge came to him.

The revelation reached him in this way: A lady of Moscow, Catherine Barchikoff, had the same experience with her husband that Count Ivanovich had with his wife, Barchikoff having deserted her for her maid. The sight of a man did not have the same effect upon her that the sight of a woman invariably had on Count Ivanovich, but she determined to bring up her baby daughter, Nathalie, in ignorance of the male sex, keeping her so if possible till she should have passed the age at which young girls usually marry.

Now, Mme. Barchikoff knew as well as did Count Ivanovich that it would be impossible to bring up a girl never to see a man unless in a wilderness. So she began to make inquiries as to where she should find an uninhabited region in which to live. Very naturally, she arrived at the same conclusions as Count Ivanovich. Siberia was but thinly settled, and it was the nearest region to St. Petersburg fitted for the purpose, was not far from a railroad terminal and therefore available for receiving supplies. Thus it happened that Count Ivanovich took a son and Mme. Barchikoff a daughter to the same neighborhood in Siberia, the one to keep his boy away from women, the other to keep her girl away from men.

Siberia is a very large country, but not large enough to keep apart a man and a woman, provided there be but one man and one woman within its limits, even though they be at points farthest apart. Boris Ivanovich and Nathalie Barchikoff were the only youth and maiden in the region in which they dwelt, and they were not very far apart. Ergo, if the above reasoning is correct it follows that despite the watchfulness of their respective parents they would sooner or later form a union.

Boris grew up a manly young fellow and before he was thirteen years old began to chafe at being confined within an inclosure. When he asked permission to go outside the walls his father said to him:

"Are you not permitted to roam over a vast territory? Have you not rivers in which to fish? Have you not forests in which to hunt? Be content, my boy. Within our domain you are safe; without it you will be subject to a great danger."

"What danger?"

"Without our walls is an animal something like a man. It is made in the image of a man, but has the eye of a serpent. It charms men as the snake charms birds. If you once meet one of these creatures you are liable to be devoured."

Far from being impressed with such a warning, Boris, who was fond of hunting, thought continuously about this creature fashioned something like a man, yet able to charm men to destroy them. Gradually a desire grew upon him to see one of these creatures. If he felt a spell coming over him he would shoot the vampire. It was not long before he was trying to bribe the guard at the gate to let him out. But the guard was incorruptible. So when Boris was in his sixteenth year he rode away one morning with an ax and his gun and, reaching the wall, cut down a tree that leaned toward it and, when the tree fell against the top of the wall, climbed up and dropped down on the ground outside the inclosure.

The boy, keeping his gun ready to protect him in case of need, hunted for hours for the manlike creature his father had told him about, but found only wild animals. He returned by felling a tree on the outside against the wall and went home, no one having discovered his absence beyond the inclosure.

Boris made many such trips before he found the manlike creature. Coming one day to a high fence, he climbed it and pursued his way through a forest. Presently, coming to a lake whose surface was frozen, he saw what he was convinced was the creature he was desirous to meet skating on the ice.

From what his father had told him he had got an idea that there was something hideous about the animal and that it influenced men not by its beauty, but by magic. What he saw was so beautiful that instead of bringing his gun into position to protect himself it dropped out of his hands forgotten. The creature wore a gown trimmed with fur, the garment fluttering in the wind as she skimmed gracefully hither and thither. A dainty cap made chiefly of fur, was on her head, and her hands were incased in fur.

Boris forgot entirely his father's caution. His chief desire was to go and see if he could catch the thing. Unfortunately he had no skates with him. He ran to the margin of the lake and called. The vampire turned, stopped and stood gazing at him with eyes as full of wonder as his own.

"Can you talk?" he called to her.

"Yes. Can you?"

"Of course I can, or I couldn't have asked you the question."

"I wonder if you're not a man?"

"Of course I am. Why do you wonder if I am?"

"Because I've heard our servants talk about what they call men, but I've never seen one before."

"And I've never seen anything like you before. What are you?"

"Why, I'm a girl."

"Are you the creature that charms men as snakes charm birds and then eats them?"

"I don't eat men. I never saw one before."

Each had by this time approached the other. The girl put her hand on Boris' sleeve and touched his cheek with her finger.

"Have you got a name?" she asked.

"Yes; Boris."

"My name is Nathalie."

Boris took the cap off her head and saw the coils of hair. He ran his hand over them.

"How smooth and soft," he said.

Suddenly her skates slipped from under her, and she fell into his arms. She smiled at him, showing white teeth between her lips. No one ever told him about a kiss. He had never heard of such a thing. No one ever told a newborn babe that, feeling hungry, it would find sustenance at its mother's breast. Boris kissed the lips before him from the same cause—instinct. He started.

"What is it?" she asked.

"The spell."

"What spell? Isn't it nice?"

"Nice! Too nice. Are you going to charm and eat me?"

The girl laughed and showed the same white teeth between the red lips and a couple of dimples besides. He kissed her again. Then he began to think very hard.

"What are you thinking about?" asked Nathalie.

"Well, I was thinking that if what my father said is true, that you are charming me to destroy me, you can go right on doing it, and I'm going right on doing it, too, till I'm lost."

And he kissed her again.

Mme. Barchikoff, having a mind to join her daughter, who, she was aware, had gone to the lake to skate, at this moment stepped from the edge of a road and stood transfixed at seeing her daughter held in the arms of a youth, whose lips were pressed upon the girl's. The good woman caught at a tree to prevent her falling in a swoon, and as soon as she could gather her faculties she hurried down on to the ice.

"What are you doing here?" she demanded of Boris.

"Going to the devil as fast as possible. But I can't be ruined by you. You may be one of the same kind, but I can resist you without trouble."

"Go away from here."

"I won't."

"Nathalie, come to the house immediately."

"I won't. If this is the awful man I've heard about I don't think he's so awful at all." And she clung to Boris.

"Come to the house, both of you," said the mother, more persuasively, and they obeyed.

An hour later Mme. Barchikoff was driven in a sleigh to the gate of Count Ivanovich and demanded admittance. Being refused, she sent in word to the count that her son was at her house making love to her daughter. The count, having steadied himself with a goblet of vodka, went out to see his visitor and, after a brief conversation between the two, rode back with her to her home. There they found the young couple sitting before an open fire locked in each other's arms.

"You are ruined!" cried the count to his son.

"I love to be ruined," was the reply.

"You have brought down upon yourself," said Mme. Barchikoff to her daughter, "a terrible trouble."

"I'm ready to endure it," replied the girl, "for another of those what-you-may-call-'ems" (referring to the kisses).

"Send for the priest!" cried the lady.

"The priest! Great heavens! Is my son to be manacled?"

"Yes, and I presume he will leave his wife for a menial."

"Well," moaned the father, "I suppose I must yield. Oh, my son, you have brought great misery on yourself. You will regret this all your life."

The priest came and went through a ceremony the young people did not understand, and that was the end of the endeavor of Count Ivanovich and Mme. Barchikoff trying to keep a boy and a girl apart.

What Did He Mean?

"Is there any place around here where I can get my shock absorber fixed?" asked Petlow, addressing the man in front of the rural garage.

"Waal, I dunno, mister," was the reply. "This here's a prohibition state, but I may hev some on hand for medical purposes ef you're reely sufferin'."—Toronto Globe.

A Concession.

"My wife refused to recite the usual speeches in the marriage ceremony," said the worried looking man."

"That showed originality."

"Yes. But it hasn't prevented her from allowing the lawyer to use the customary phraseology in applying for alimony."—Washington Star.

How to Move Them.

First Rector—I am going to preach to the Four Hundred. How can I move them?

Second Rector—You'll have to move them in limousines.—Judge.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Rest.

Bodily rest can only be achieved by having the muscles completely relaxed. The ordinary sitting position in a chair is not sufficient, as the lower extremities are still more or less rigid. The chair should be an easy one, with an extension or a footstool to support the lower limbs just a trifle below the level of the body. A better rest can be had, however, by lying full length on a couch or bed with the arms and legs sprawling in the manner adopted by the tramp when he takes a sleep by the wayside. This attitude assures ease, if not elegance. And it does more than relax the limbs, for it gives repose to the heart as well. When the body is in this position the heart beats more slowly than when we are standing, walking or even sitting.

Welding Copper.

A process of welding copper with the oxyacetylene flame has been developed by a German inventor. He has found it necessary to use larger torches than for iron welding, but in general the process is similar, except that he employs a liquid welding paste and a special copper welding wire. The paste prevents the formation of oxide. The process has been used for welding copper plates up to an inch in thickness. The process is being used in the principal copper works in Germany with great success.

A Limit to His Power.

A curious historical anecdote is handed down from the time of James I. James, being in want of £20,000, applied to the corporation for a loan. The corporation refused. The king insisted. "But, sire, you cannot compel us," said the lord mayor. "No," exclaimed James, "but I'll ruin you and the city forever. I'll remove my courts of law, my court itself and my parliament to Winchester or to Oxford and make a desert of Westminster, and then think what will become of you!" "May it please your majesty," replied the lord mayor, "you are at liberty to remove yourself and your courts to wherever you please; but, sire, there will always be one consolation to the merchants of London—your majesty cannot take the Thames along with you."

True Kindergarten Spirit.

Master Harold had returned after his first day at a kindergarten school, says the Manchester Guardian.

"Well, Harold," said a friend of his mother who was calling, "how do you like school? I suppose you are the youngest there."

"Oh, no," said Harold indignantly, drawing himself to his full height and throwing out his chest—"oh, no! Some of our chaps come in perambulators."

As Far as He Could Go.

"I," she said proudly, "can trace my ancestry back to armor and shirts of mail."

"I started to trace my ancestry back once," he replied, "but my wife made me stop when I got to shirt sleeves and overalls."—Judge.

Good Names and Riches.

"A good name is better than great riches," quoted the sage.

"But that's not the reason why most of us are poor," replied the fool.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Method In His Madness.

There was a half witted youth in Bridgetown to whom the neighboring farmers liked to offer a penny and a nickel.

Gathered about him in a circle on market day, the farmers one after another would say:

"Now, which'll yer have, Peter? Here's a cent; here's a nickel. Take your choice."

And fool Peter would invariably choose the cent rather than the nickel, and the farmers before such incredible foolishness would roar with laughter, double in two and slap their legs noisily with their brown hands.

"Peter," a man said one day to the lunatic, "why is it that you always take the cent instead of the nickel?"

Peter grinned a very cunning grin.

"Suppose I took the nickel," said he. "Would I ever get a chance to take another one?"—New York Globe.

In the Gloaming.

"Do you think traveling is good for one?" remarked the young man as the clock struck 11.

"Why?" asked the sweet young thing.

"Because I'd like to travel."

RENTING ROOMS
The total amount of rent money paid for furnished rooms in this city each week is enormous! Nobody knows how much. It goes to thrifty people, who like to lessen their own rent or living expense by sub-letting one or more spare rooms to an agreeable person. If YOU have a desirable extra room you can become a receiver of rent by ordering a "Furnished Room to Let" ad. in the Review. The cost is nominal—one cent a word for first insertion and half a cent a word for subsequent insertions, run consecutively.

CHILDREN IN PERIL ?

To the Editor of The Review.

Dear Sir,—Re your recent report of rowdyism that began in the Brock Street Rink, continued about its doors and ended in the police court, Dr. McClelland gave evidence that 20 or 30 of the participants were children ranging from 10 to 15 years of age of whom some were young girls. The hour was near 10 at night. These facts can be substantially corroborated.

Is this circumstance not an appeal from neglected children more eloquent and beseeching than anything given from the city pulpits and other HIGH and DRY places, recently?

WHAT ABOUT MORE LIGHT

The Advent of the Fall Season Brings Numerous Complaints

"See here," says a citizen, striding through the office door, "can't you call attention to the poor light some of us are getting now that the evening's are closing in early."

Certainly we can, and do. Take Tuesday evening. In some rooms where work was going on, the light from the electrics was dim. Decidedly dim, not only dim but the lamp of a reddish shade. What the reason is may not be told but the results are defective.

Now, it will be at once alleged that the lamps are old. You know old lamps cover up a whole lot of deficiencies; likewise an inferior transformer can cloud up a whole raft of discussion. A lame switch can shoulder a whole volley of blame. But, in the room referred to, the lamps were new. Employees were peering at their work and saying things.

Here in the city, we, when we are talking to the visitor, brag about our unlimited water power, and deluge of electric current. That is all very fine, but the mischief is why do not the local purveyors of current send an adequate supply along the wires.

Conservation of power or energy is all very well. Conservation, as Dudley Warner says of agriculture, is a mighty good thing if one does not have too much of it. What the city needs is a little more juice at needed times.

Take these same lamps about 11 o'clock p.m., they fairly sparkle. Nothing wrong. This shows that the general demand having ceased for a few hours, there is enough current to hold things up. We were told of the benefits that were to accrue from the linking up of the whole system of the Seymour Power Company with the local power units. The well would never run dry; the load never too heavy; no peak but what could be carried. Yet, we find the same dimness as for years. Is the current being conserved? Is the effort being made to make so much current go so far, thin in spots thick in others?

There are mechanical and electrical difficulties in any and every system. There are difficulties that must be recognized and met and to some extent condoned. But with plenty of electrical energy available, there is no excuse for shortage of supply to customers who have a right to expect that they will get good measure just as in any other commercial transaction.

OMEMEE NEWS

Special Correspondence.

OMEMEE, Oct. 27.—Mr. John Murray came home from Peterborough in his auto on Saturday.

Mr. Adams, of the State of Maine, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Thos. Henderson, of King street.

Mr. E. R. Courtney, of Mount Pleasant, was a business visitor to Omemee on Saturday.

Special services will be held in Christ Church on Sunday, Nov. 9th, to be followed by a fowl supper the next evening. Note the dates.

Mrs. (Dr.) Yelland is improving the appearance and the utility of her residence on George street north.

Mrs. Wm. McAdoo and her daughter, Bernice, have returned from Picton. They are the guests of her sister, Mrs. J. W. Mitchell, of King street.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McQeade have returned from a visit with friends at Baltimore.

Mr. Elie Dancey was in Lindsay on Saturday shipping live stock.

On Saturday afternoon there was put up for sale by Auctioneer Bowes, of Lindsay, the "Evans Property." The foundry, dwelling, machinery, etc., were offered en bloc. As there was but one bid of $1,500, which did not satisfy the terms of the reserve bid, the property was withdrawn. It may be sold by private tender.

Mr. Bert Courtney has purchased the farm property of Mr. Herb Jones.

Mrs. H. Murray was a visitor to Peterborough last week.

The concrete walk on three sides of the armory has been completed, and the grounds surrounding the building is being rapidly put into a commendable style of design.

The Omemee High School Commencement and Concert was held in Coronation Hall on Friday evening. The weather was unfavorable but yet a fairly good number attended the exercises. Part I consisted of the following program:

Instrumental solo—Miss Wray.
Wand Drill—Pupils.
Solo—Mrs. Hodgetts.
Club Drill—Pupils.
Solo—Mrs. Bryson.
Valedictory Address—Miss Maude Laidley.
Solo—Mr. T. J. Parsons.

Presentation of certificates and diplomas to the following pupils:

Miss Phyllis Brown.
Miss Ethel Colwell.
Mr. Errol Woodruff.
Mr. Fred Corneil.

Middle School Examination for Entrance to Normal Schools:

Miss Maude Laidley, honors.
Miss Carrie Stinson, honors.
Miss Elva Bradley, honors.
Mr. Fred Corneil, honors.
Miss Irene Evans.
Miss Blanche Stinson.
Miss Mary Dewane.
Mr. Ernest Corneil.
Mr. Stanley Laidley.

Pass Matriculation for Entrance into the Universities:

Miss Maude Laidley.

Part II consisted of a comedy entitled "A Rice Pudding" with the caste as follows:

Mrs. Richards—Miss L. Parsons.
Miss Marion Richards—Miss Thurston.
Miss Helen O'Shaughnessy — Miss J. Smith
De Tait—Mr. Harold Cunningham
Mr. Richards—Mr L. Brooks.

The evening's exercises were gone through with unqualified success, all taking their respective parts in magnificent style. The event was unique and novel in the history of the town and marks the progress for which it is noted. Miss Morden, principal of the High School, and Miss Davidson, assistant, are to be congratulated.

Postmaster Grandy has been improving his property by the addition of cement steps to the post office and to Mr. Murray's residence.

Mr. Albert Feir, of Peterborough, visited his mother and sister of town, on Thanksgiving Day.

Mr. Ted Cavanagh, of Peterborough, was in town on Monday.

Major Fee, of Lindsay was home for over the week end.

Miss Gladys Henderson, of Toronto, was the guest of her parents, of town, for a few days recently.

Mr. R. Herd, of Bridgenorth, came to town in his auto on business, Saturday.

Mr. Elias Bowes, of Lindsay, paid Omemee a business call on Saturday.

Mrs. F. C. Fielding, of Coboconk, was a business visitor on Saturday.

Mr. F. A. Stinson, barrister, of Lindsay, made a business trip to Omemee the last of the week.

Mr. C. Best, of Mount Pleasant, was in town on Saturday.

Mr. Isaac Richardson, of Millbrook, was in town last week and was very busy buying and shipping hogs.

Mr. Wm. Lamb, of Peterborough, was in town on Saturday.

At a recent union meeting of the Farmers' and Women's Institutes, in the Salvation Army Barracks, Omemee, an interesting and well contested was on the programme. The subejct was "Resolved that woman should not work outside her home." The decision was awarded to the two supporters of the affirmative. I fancy that the work referred to was ordinary farm life.

The Rev. Mr. Cree will preach next Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. in the Presbyterian Church, Omemee. This clergyman comes as a representative of the Peterboro Presbytery and desiress the presence of the entire congregation whom he wishes to meet after the service.

Next Sunday at 2.30 p.m. there will be service in the Presbyterian church at Mount Pleasant, to be followed by a congregational meeting.

The many friends of the Rev. P. B. Thornton will be pleased to know that he has received a call from a large and influential church in the city of Winnipeg. We understand that he has accepted the call which comes with an initial stipend of $[illegible] besides an assistant, perquisites, and holidays.

Mr. Hubert Gardiner of Mount Pleasant was in town the first of the week.

Miss Emma Best of Toronto was the guest over Sunday, of her aunt, Mrs. A. Feir of Sturgeon street.

There were large congregations at the anniversary services of the Presbyterian church on Sabbath. The Rev. P. B. Thornton, a member of the church and an old Omemee boy, preached the sermons which were the subject of much favorable comment by the entire congregations who were much in sympathy with the speaker and who were delighted with his superior pulpit power. In the evening the scripture lesson was the 40th Chapter of Isaiah and the text was II Chron. Chap. 18, verses 33 and 34 — "And a certain man drew a bow at a venture and smote the King of Israel between the joints of the harness; and about the time of the sun going down he died." The speaker, as he preliminary explained that the death of Ahab was not due to the concentrated aim of his enemies, but by an indirect effort of one of them, followed a very clever and logical deduction that happiness, honor and life come not to those who aim for them, but, indirectly, as a reward of honesty, trust and duty. The discourse was delivered with much deliberation, clear enunciation and remarkable personal appeal. The choir furnished appropriate selections, the solo part of the second anthem in the evening being taken by Mrs. A. C. Hodgetts.

Rev. E. Roland, of Enterprise, spent a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Roland, of King street.

Miss Jenny Smyth was the guest, on Thanksgiving, of her brother, Rev. W. Smyth, of Dunsford.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Thompson, of Calgary, Alberta, were the guests of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. N. Thompson, of Sturgeon street.

Mrs. Vandeuser, of Grimsby, spent a few days the guest of her brother, Mr. S. Cornell.

Mr. and Mrs. George Adams spent Monday week the guests of Reeve and Mrs. Mulligan.

Miss Carrie Poast, of Janetville, spent the holiday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Poast.

Mrs. Staples, of Lindsay, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. John Sanderson.

Mr. A. Winslow, of the staff of the Bank of Toronto, spent Thanksgiving at his home in Millbrook.

Dr. and Mrs. J. N. Thompson returned on Monday evening from a visit with friends at Haliburton.

Rev. B. Veals, of Hamilton, spent Thanksgiving with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Veals.

Miss Annie Blaycock, of Toronto, was at her home in Omemee for Thanksgiving.

Miss Margaret McCaffrey spent the holiday at her home in town.

Mrs. Watson and daughter, of Coboconk, were visiting the former's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Thompson, recently.

Mrs. Weldon, of Lindsay, was the guest of Mrs. White, of Sturgeon street, over Sunday week.

Miss Ruby Veals, of McMaster College, Toronto, was the guest, last week, of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Veals.

Mr. Harry Deyell, of Peterborough, was in town Saturday week looking up old friends.

The annual rifle match of "D" Co., 45th Regt., was held on Thanksgiving Day on the Omemee Club range. A new double-acting target installed by the latter club, was used for the first time, and worked perfectly. Although the day was threatening rain, about 20 members turned out and competed for the Mason Cup (open to privates and N. C.O's) and was won by Private Cottingham, who holds it for the coming year. A few of the scores are are as follows:

Lieut. Sherin, 47; Capt. Thorn, 39; Pte. Cottingham, 37; Sergt. A. L. Brooks, 30; Pte. G. Wilson, 29; Pte. A. Brooks, 28.

Y.W.C.A. NOTES

The Bible Study Class on "The Manhood of The Master," conducted by Mrs. Guy, General Secretary of the Y.W.C.A., every Sunday morning is attended by a number of interested, enthusiastic students.

It is the earnest desire that more young ladies will join for both Bible and Mission Study Classes. This is an age of study and research along Biblical lines and young women cannot afford to neglect it.

This is to remind you "Donnybrook Fair" is to be Friday evening, Oct. 31st., at the Y.W.C.A.

Special arrangements have been made for excursionists. Cheap rates prevail—remarkably cheap considering all you will see and all you will hear. Information cheerfully given at the office on Simcoe St.

The preferred time for the daily bath is in the morning. If taken then it will produce invigorating results.

CHARITY BOARD

Relief Officer Recommends Applicants for the Home.

The Charity Board met in regular session last evening with Mr. H. Rush presiding and the following members present: Messrs. R. C. Braund, Finch Miller, H. C. Stabler, J. McLelland, Joseph Batten.

City Relief Officer Miller's recommendation that Robert Smith, F. McGuire and W. J. Cooper be sent to the Protestant Home was approved.

The matter of giving assistance to Mrs. Lloyd was left in the hands of the relief officer.

ADULTERATED MAPLE SYRUP

Two Fines of $50 in Police Court

At an extra session of Police Court yesterday, Magistrate Dumble imposed two fines of $50 and costs in a case in which it was charged, adulterated food-stuffs were sold. The fine and costs amounted to $64.60 for each defendant.

In one case complaint was made against maple syrup sold in bottles and the other was that of maple syrup sold in cans.

It seems that some time ago a government officer was in the city and he obtained samples of the syrup. These when analyzed, showed adulteration, and the police court cases followed.

The defendants, although having purchased and sold the maple syrup in good faith had to enter a plea of guilty. They can now take the matter up with the manufacturers and recover the full amounts.

A.O.U.W. AT HOME

Grand Recorder anp Other Officers Were Present

The A.O.U.W. concert and at home held in the Foresters' Hall, Simcoe street, was fairly well attended last night. J.J. Turner, sr. M.W., took the chair. On the platform with him were M.D. Carder, Grand Recorder, and J.L. Wilson representing the Grand Lodge; Mr. Blair, the organizer and Mr. Misscampbell, Chief Ranger, of Chemong Court I.O.F.

The programme was well rendered and enjoyed by all, after which Mine Host Hooper, served refreshments to all.

Mr. Blair, the Organizer, will be here some few days, to assist the lodge in adding to its membership.

The blaze was extinguished with a chemical.

ART AGAINST BIG ODDS

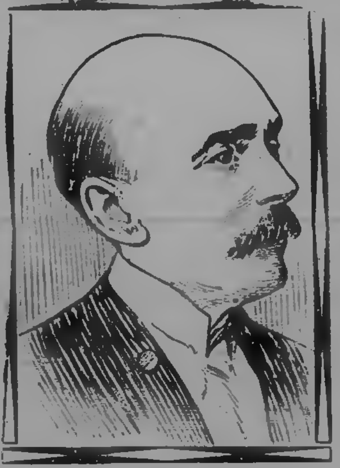
LONDON PAINTER WORKS IN A FACTORY ALL DAY.

Arthur Weekly Whose Pictures Have Found Praise In London Is a Pattern-maker and Has Practiced His Art Under Difficulties—Tea Tray One of His Subterfuges To Save on Canvases.

One wonders sometimes whether Britain's great, national, painters would ever have developed their art if their lives had been lived in the sombre surroundings of a Southwest London gasworks. Of whether Turner, or Landseer, or the Hon. John Collier would have learned their marvellous accuracy of light and shade and coloring if they had spent the whole of the working day in the dull environment of factory life. And one almost despairs of national art while those who seek to become its master-workers are left to toil out their days in mere wage-earning, and are forbidden even the inspiration of nature's own glorious canvasses.

Most readers will be well aware of the great number of earnest art students who have been found trying to paint in small hovels of houses, in the spare hours of days spent in earning enough by manual toil to keep body and soul together.

Another of that class is Alfred Arthus Weekly, a skilled engineers' pattern-maker, who is now over thirty years old, yet is still struggling to make himself proficient in art as he thur Weekly, a skilled engineers' pattiny house, with little, badly-lightec rooms, where there is scarcely ever sunlight enough to enable one to tell accurately the density or value of a particular color. He has a wife and family to support, and as the wages of his trade have gradually sunken to about $10 a week, when there is work to be had, and as the wide-flung technical educational training of recent years has made skilled men more plentiful, he has not much time to devote to anything else than wage-earning.



ALFRED A. WEEKLY.

But his rooms are eloquent of his patience and of the skill he has attained even under the depressing circumstances of his daily life and surroundings.

On every wall there are pictures he has painted, of varying subjects, in oil and water colors, some heroic in size and others scarcely bigger than a sheet of notepaper. When work and money are short the artisan artist finds even the purchase of a canvas beyond his means. But Weekly has overcome his difficulty by using an ancient tea-tray upon which to place a landscape, and has painted flowers and birds upon the mirrors, and even upon the fireplace.

His education in art has been of the scantiest, for beyond the ordinary drawing instruction of the Board School in Warple Way, Wandsworth, and a few subsequent lessons in shading, he has had to "pick up" all that he knows, and get his knowledge of technique and coloring from the windows of the picture-shops and the prints in the newspapers and almanacks. One sees at once what a boon the opening of art galleries on Sundays has been to such a man as this. Practically the whole of his daylight is occupied by his manual labor—what is left of it is devoted to his beloved painting. But on Sunday he can go to one of the great exhibitions, and seek instruction from the masterpieces of past and present-day workers in art.

Warple road, where he lives, lies in the shadow of Wandsworth Town station, and in the atmosphere of the neighboring gasworks. The street is generally full of children, and the chief changes of the year are those from dust to mud, and from mud to dust, as the weather becomes wet or dry. He went to work when he was about fourteen years of age, learning the trade of his father, but with strong determination to paint at every opportunity, improving himself and his work as best he could.

65 MEMBERS IN SEPTEMBER; ONE EVERY DAY THIS MONTH

Y.M.C.A. MEMBERSHIP NEARLY 700

Things continue to hum at the Y.M.C.A. During the month of September the increase in membership totaled sixty-five, and the Association has averaged one member a day this month. Despite the fact that a large number of young men are leaving the city, the Association continues to more than hold their own. Since Mr. Hainsworth took charge of the "Y" in June, 1912, the membership has doubled, and the total membership of the Association now reaches nearly seven hundred.

In the boys' department the increase is about seventy-five members since last June.

Mr. James R. Bell, the well known grocer on Hunter street, has just closed a deal with Mr. Isaac Eastwood by which he has acquired the property formerly known as the Noble Temperance House. Mr Bell intends to have the building completely renovated and the lower floor space made into two stores, and the upper storeys into appartments.

The price paid was $8,000.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETY FOR ALL SAINTS' CHURCH

Encourging Attendance at Inaugural Meeting — Officers Are Elected

Last night in the parish hall of All Saints' Church, a large representation of the congregation gathered to enjoy a social evening. There were no disappointments.

The rector, Rev. R. B. Grobb, acted as chairman in a very happy manner. He explained that the object of the meeting was to organize a Young People's Society, by the amalgamation of the Young Women's and Young Men's Clubs, organized last year.

Last season, the most successful meeting of the Young Women's Club had been when the men were invited and the same was found to be the case with the Young Men's Club when they entertained the ladies. Now it was proposed to join hands and have an association in which all the congregation can take part.

Afterwards the following report of the nominating committee was adopted:

Hon President— Rev. R.B. Grobb.
President— Mr. Roberts
Vice-President— Mr. McCrostie.
2nd Vice-Pres.— Mrs. Morgan.
Secretary— Miss Sabin.
Treasurer— Mr. Clarke.

Social and Lookout Committee — Miss Dyer, Mrs. Greenwood, Mrs. Smeaton, Mrs. Mutt, Mr. T. Dawson, Mr. Morgan, Miss Rush, Mrs. Clarke, Mrs. Hooper, Miss Williams, Miss Cairns, Miss Brown, Miss Sisson, Mr. Dimmitt.

Mr. Roberts the new president, who recently came from Hamilton, made a short speech thanking the meeting for the honor and he asked all to give him their loyal support.

The following contributed to the programme:

Prof. Schlochow, Mrs. (Dr.) Middleton, Misses Thompson, Miss Clarke, Miss Jackson, Mr. Chandler, Mr. Woodhouse.

The singing competition provoked great laughter. Old and familiar songs, such as "Old Black Joe," "Annie Laurie," "The Good Old Summer Time," and others were heard once again and the judges gave the prize to those who struggled with "The Good Old Summer Time."

Refreshments were served and altogether, the evening was very pleasantly spent.

Breaks Away From U. S.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29.—Walter S. McCreery, a millionaire, who by two legal decrees is held to be a mental incompetent in the United States and wholly san in England, has escaped from his legal guardian, Attorney H. H. McPike, at the Los Muertas ranch of San Benito Co., and so far has managed to elude the vigilance of the sheriff and a posse.

If he can board a ship and get outside the three-mile limit McCreery cannot be taken under the laws of the United States. It is the general belief that McCreery will attempt to make his way to England, where he owns considerable property.

Three Months For Stabbing.

KINGSTON, Oct. 29.—Found guilty on the charge of stabbing his brother-in-law, John Merriott, John Coughlin was sent to jail for three months by Magistrate Farrell. Coughlin became involved in a row over his wife who left him, and pulling a jack-knife stabbed his brother-in-law several times in the face and back. Merriott was at death's door for several days, but is now able to be around.

"He never calls it this 'generation' any more for he says 'this degeneration' would be a better word.

LAURIER IN BRUCE.

Liberal Leader Holds Rally In Interests of Mr. Truax.

TEESWATER, Oct. 29.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier entered the riding of Bruce yesterday in behalf of Reuben Truax, Liberal candidate in the approaching Federal bye-election, and held a big rally in this village. Despite a drizzling rain, the welcome given the Liberal chief at the railway station was enthusiastic and the town was specially decorated. The gathering which crowded into the rink was estimated at three thousand.

Hon. Mackenzie King, the first speaker, contended that the Borden naval policy would result in Canada's being involved in European brawls. He criticized the course of Hon. Sam Hughes and the accompanying Canadian officers in inspecting strategic posts on the border line between France and Germany. He was at a loss to understand, he said, why Canadians should be concerned about such matters.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in his speech, charged the Borden Government with being retrograde and reactionary. On the highways aid bill, on the measure to secure branch lines for the Intercolonial, and finally on the navy bill, he said, the Government had sought to take away from Parliament the right to control the expenditure of money. These were the great principles of responsible government for which the Liberals had fought, and it was up to the electors of South Bruce to declare whether they approved of such tactics.

Mr. J. G. Murdock, president of the South Bruce Reform Association, was in the chair. On the platform were Mr. F. F. Pardee, M.P.; Mr. John Tolmie, ex-M.P.; Mr. Geo. Anderson, M.P.P.; Mr. Wm. M. German, M.P., and a score of others

HIS BACKING WAS GOOD.

And President Tyler Found a Place For Old Jack Dade.

President Tyler had a curious office seeking experience at the very beginning of his administration. Old Jack Dade, a character about Washington who had been the president's classmate at college, went to the White House, and said he, "Jack, I want an office."

"You do?" said President Tyler. "What office on earth do you think you are fit for?"

"Why, one o' these 'sinecurees' I hear so much about—no work and good pay." Dade promptly replied.

"Well, Jack," said Tyler deprecatingly, "you know that I am president now and must have some kind of warrant for making an appointment. Can you get anybody to indorse you? Could you bring me a letter of recommendation?"

"Oh, yes," said Dade. "I'm fixed for that," and he produced a letter of four pages written by Tyler himself to President Harrison, whom he had just succeeded, urging the claims of his dear friend and classmate, Colonel John W. Dade, for a good, fat office. "Cast your eye over that!" he exclaimed in triumph.

Tyler read the letter attentively to the end, folded it carefully and said: "Jack, your backing is irresistible. Come up here tomorrow, and I'll have a place for you."

The next day Colonel John W. Dade was appointed keeper of the Federal prison of the District of Columbia.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Appropriate Excuse.

"Before the establishment of righteous courts and trials by jury where justice could be obtained," explained the teacher, "persons suspected of certain crimes were tried by what was known as the 'ordeal.' One of these was the 'ordeal of fire.' Hot plowshares were laid at short intervals along the victim's path, and the suspected person was blindfolded and compelled to walk over them. If he succeeded in doing it without stepping on the hot irons he was deemed innocent. But if he received burns he was adjudged guilty. Who would submit to such an ordeal now? Johnny, would you?"

"No, ma'am," said Johnny.

"And why not?"

"I'd get cold feet."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

BABY MIDSHIPMEN.

In the Old Days When Children Were Sent to War.

Among other improvements in the art of war as attained by the world in these later days is the abolition of the practice of sending children to sea, as was the case when the midshipmen of the old "oak walls" of England often were boys of less than fourteen years.

The Marquis of Dufferin and Ava in telling about the siege of Bomarsund in the Crimean war, which he witnessed from the frigate Penelope, related this story of one of these little fellows:

"What pleased me most during the whole business," he says, "was the gallant behavior of a little midshipman, a mere child, thirteen or fourteen years of age. About the time when the fire became pretty hot I happened to come across him, and, as he seemed to be as much out of a job as myself, I touched my cap and took the liberty of observing that it was a fine day, to which he politely replied that it was.

"Encouraged by his urbanity, I ventured to ask him how long he had been at sea, to which he answered, 'I have only left my mamma six weeks, but I ain't going to cry on her majesty's quarterdeck,' a remark which I think as worth recording as many a one made by more illustrious heroes. Soon after this, however, a man was killed close to him, and the little fellow fainted and was taken below."

Skirts Nearly All Short.

Practically all of the skirts are short revealing the feet and ankles. They are so narrow at the hem that slashing is essential, and the line being thus broken is practically always uneven. A straight hem is absolutely old fashioned, says the Dry Goods Economist.

The skirts may be slashed in the front or on either side or at the back. When the slashing is very high the space is filled with plaitings or draperies of transparent material.

A Frenchy Caprice.

A French nightgown seen at a lingerie shop has an ingenious contrivance for fastening a bow to it. There is a loop of buttonholed thread through which the ribbon may be drawn and tied into a bow. When the garment is to be washed the ribbon is simply untied. Since seeing this the girls have stopped sewing the little bows on their washable underwear.

LARGEST SALE IN THE WORLD

Mingling With The People

By REGINALD D. HAVEN

Billy Biggs and I, being in Paris when the warm season was coming on, thought we would go to Switzerland. We had both been in Europe several years studying languages and were well equipped with both French and German. So we concluded to tramp about, mingling with the people, and not give away the fact that we were Americans. We went to Interlaken by train and from there laid out pedestrian tours.

One of the first we made was to Grindelwald and thence up the side of the mountain to Scheidegg. There we got a good dinner, after which we walked up a short distance to a point where we could see the glacier. It was very wild and magnificent and all that, but seeing such sights is not what I am going to tell you about. In the afternoon we walked down the mountain to Lauterbrunnen and shortly before we reached that place came up with a couple of Swiss girls dressed in the costume of the country.

It occurred to both Billy and me that if we could walk the rest of the way with two pretty girls—no girl could be homely in the Swiss costume—it would be away ahead of trudging alone by our own uninteresting selves. As we passed them I bowed very politely, took off my cap and, pointing to a mountain whose name I knew as well as my own, asked in German—the language mostly spoken in this part of Switzerland—what it was.

"That's the Eiger," replied one of the girls.

I boldly expatiated on the beauty of the scenery, envied those who lived always in the Alps, and as soon as I ran out of something to say Billy took up the dialogue. The girls did not seem averse to forming our acquaintance, and it was not long before we separated them, Billy walking beside one, I beside the other. We both pretended to be Germans of the lower class, though not Swiss. I got in as many nice things to my girl as I could think of, and she being to the country born and unsophisticated I didn't hesitate to lay it on thick. Every now and again I could hear Billy, who was walking with the other girl only a few yards ahead of me, doing the same thing.

When we reached Lauterbrunnen the girls bid us goodby, saying that they lived in a chalet beyond the town. We were near a refreshment house standing beside the road, and I invited them to go up on to the porch for a cheese sandwich and a glass of the beer they drink over there, which is so dreadfully mild that it wouldn't intoxicate a mouse. After a consultation apart from us they said they wouldn't mind being refreshed after a long walk, and we all four went up on to the porch, took a table and called for the beer and sandwiches.

Billy was talking glibly about our life on the farm at home when one of the girls said:

"You are not a farmer; neither is he. You are both gentlemen."

I looked at Billy, and Billy looked at me.

"How did you find that out?" I asked.

"We have so many tourists about us all the time that we can't tell their nationality no matter what disguise they might put on. You are not German either. Don't you suppose we can tell a German from a Frenchman or an Englishman?"

"What nationality are we?" Billy asked.

"You wear French clothes, but you are not French. You are either English or American. I think you are American."

"By Jove, Billy," I exclaimed in the plain American language, "they're smarter than I thought they were!"

The girls were very much tickled that they had been able to tell our nationality. They asked us to teach them a little English. So I told the one I had walked with to pronounce the words "I love you." She spoke them, "I lofe you," and asked me to translate them into German, but there was a look in her eye that made me suspect that she already had an idea as to their meaning. I told her they meant "Thank you."

Meanwhile Billy was amusing himself by telling the girl to say "Kiss me," telling her the words meant "Good morning." Billy and I kept looking at each other, laughing over the fun we were having, and by and by the girls said they must go on home. We asked permission to attend them, but they declined. At parting one of them said:

"We thank you for your kindness, gentlemen. Though we are only poor Swiss farmers' daughters, we seem to have amused you."

"The thanks are due to you," I replied, "since you have given us a very pleasant hour."

"Don't you think," said Billy, "that there was some shenanigan about those girls?"

"What do you mean?"

"Seems to me they know more than we think they do."

A week later we were in the casino at Lucerne when I heard a woman's voice behind me speaking with the real American accent.

"For heaven's sake, Jule, where have you been all this time? I've been looking for you everywhere."

I turned, and there stood our Swiss peasant girls.

"Sung!" cried Billy, and the girls burst into a laugh.

Basketball.

Basketball was the invention of one man and was completed at a single sitting. In 1891, in the course of a lecture at the Young Men's Christian association in Plainfield, Mass., the lecturer spoke of the mental processes of invention and used a game, with its limitations and necessities, as an illustration. James Naismith who was a member of the class, worked out basketball that same night as an ideal game to meet the case. It was presented the next day in the lecture room and put in practice with the aid of the members of the gymnasium. From there it spread to other branches of the Young Men's Christian association and subsequently to athletic clubs and the general public.—New York Press.

Pilgrim Trains In India.

Pilgrims in India usually travel third-class, and the best of such accommodation makes no provision for comfort. Most of the carriages are divided into small cubicles, with long, narrow, wooden benches running along the two sides. There is no convenience of any kind, and the travelers are packed into the compartments like so many sardines in a tin.

On festive occasions, when Hindus journey by the hundred thousand to the sacred spots, it is a sight worth traveling many miles to see a pilgrim train bound for some shrine on the Ganges. When it stops at a wayside station scores of intending passengers try to force their way into the already closely packed third-class carriages by battering down the locked doors, or even endeavoring to crawl through the windows over the heads and shoulders of the occupants. The police use their batons freely to drive the invaders away, but usually a few manage to evade the constables and secure a foothold on the train.

Sometimes the authorities are compelled to carry passengers in open trucks. They plant themselves in the bottom of these cars and remain there, exposed to the inclemencies of the weather, for 10, 20, 30, 40 hours at a stretch, one treading on the toes of the other—fretful babies crying, men and women grumbling—until the end of the journey is reached.

Bond Makes a Difference.

Wilkie Bard tells a story of a husband and wife who were always quarrelling. A friend called one evening and found them in the middle of a row. After the storm had subsided a little he ventured to remonstrate with the husband.

"Look here," he said; "you shouldn't quarrel like that, you know. Look at the dog and cat lying there. They get on very well together."

"Yes," they may," retorted the husband; "but you tie them together, and see what happens then."

LINCOLN NO. 2

The Case of Prue and the Gawk of a Bean Pole Lawyer.

By GRANT LESTER.

For a good many years people had said that Farmer Johnson's wife was head of his house and that he was a great encumbrance to her. They had a farm just outside a thriving town, and had it been left to the wife there were many promising speculations she would have entered into. She was allowed to boss things around the farm, but when it came to outside matters the husband would take no risks. When his death finally took place people looked to see Aunt Betty, as she was called, though only forty years old, carry out some of her ideas and make things hum. They were not disappointed. She went into strawberries and made money; she went into the dairy business and made money; she went into poultry and made money. It was said that there were not half a dozen men in the county who had her business sense.

Aunt Betty had a daughter nineteen years old, by name Prue. Prue did not run to business. She was simply a sweet tempered and lovable girl, who attended school in town in the winter and helped about the housework in summer. Up to the time of the father's death the mother had not "suffered aspirations" regarding Prue's future. It was tacitly understood that she would marry some young farmer and settle down to the humdrum life. But after the mother had become a business woman there were other plans for the girl. She was to be educated in music and other arts and made a lady of.

Just how Prue Johnson and Darius Livingstone first met is of no great consequence. He was twenty-two and had graduated as a lawyer and settled in the town. He was a slab sided young man, tall and angular and ungainly. There were a few people who said that he might know more than he showed, but the majority were of the opinion that he didn't know whether potatoes grew in the ground or on trees. If Prue held with the majority it was rather singular that the young lawyer should have come driving out to the farm one June day to inquire for her. She was upstairs at the time, and it was her mother who received him. At the first glance she thought him the homeliest young man she had ever seen. After the second she took him for some peddler of music and went upstairs and said to Prue:

"There's a bean pole downstairs asking for you. I never saw such a gawk. He says his name is Livingstone. He's enough to scare a setting hen off the nest. Did you ever hear of any such feller?"

"Why, ma, he's a lawyer in town, and we have met three or four times," replied Prue as her face flushed scarlet.

"A lawyer—humph! If you was to put a club in his hand he wouldn't know enough to pound sand. What's he here for?"

"Why—why, he said he might call some day. I don't see why you call him homely. I've heard lots of folks say that he reminded them of Abraham Lincoln."

The mother sniffed her contempt and turned away. Prue went down and received her caller, and, though Mrs. Johnson was rather busy around the house and yard, she saw and heard enough to satisfy her that the young man was "interested." He remained for an hour or so and then left, and while his back was yet in sight Prue was properly warned.

"I shall have to have a son-in-law some day," added the mother, "but I want one whose looks won't sour all the milk and who knows a cabbage head from an old gander. Lawyer! Lawyer! Why, the poorest lawyer we've got in town would make your young man look like a bobtailed woodchuck if they had a case in court."

Prue ran away without talking back, and things quieted down for a week. Then the mother came home from town one afternoon to blurt out:

"Do you know what I heard this afternoon? At least half a dozen people told me that you and that scarecrow young lawyer were in love."

"Oh, mamma!"

"You needn't 'Oh, mamma!' me. If you've fallen in love with any such man I'm ashamed of you. Why, that red headed, cross eyed Sue Williams wouldn't look at him."

"We are not in love," stoutly protested Prue.

"Then what are you looking so red for?"

"Because—because we are simply friends. That is, he's awfully smart when you come to talk with him. I've been reading the life of Lincoln, and it's wonderful how much alike they are."

"Wonderful bosh! Abe Lincoln was smarter'n a whip as a lawyer."

"But Darius is going to be if he ever gets a case."

"Ever gets a case! I'd like to know who'd trust him with a case!"

The young man called again in about a week, ostensibly to make inquiries concerning the strawberry pest, and, while Mrs. Johnson didn't order him off the farm, she gave him what she called a chilling reception. The fact that he didn't seem at all put out aggravated her, and but for a business engagement taking up her attention she would have had much to say to Prue. Four days later she came into the house to say:

"Well, when I dreamed of black hogs one night last week I knew that trouble would come. I've got a lawsuit on hand. It seems that those three cows I bought over in Delevan last week had a chattel mortgage on them. The holder of it wants $90 from me. I must either pay or be sued. I told him to sue as soon as he pleased, and he'll probably summon me tomorrow."

"And you'll have to have a lawyer?"

"Of course. I'm going to drive into town to see Lawyer Parsons."

"But why not give Mr. Livingstone the case?"

"Prue Johnson, do you take me for an idiot?" exclaimed the mother in astonishment. "Do you think I want to lose $90 and costs, besides $10 more for a lawyer! Folks around here think I'm a pretty smart woman, and I don't want to be made a laughingstock of. That bean pole of a young man would not know enough to cross examine an old cow."

Lawyer Parsons, who was the leading member of the bar in the town, was retained, and the expected summons was served next day. A week later the suit came on. During the interval young Livingstone drove out to the Johnson farm. Miss Prue had gone to town to do some shopping, and the mother was blunt and brusque. The budding attorney almost offered his services in the coming suit, and the look he received in reply lingered with him for many hours. When Prue got home she was told that there had got to be a stop to this sort of thing, but when she burst into tears and said she could not help it her mother was reasonable enough to reply that maybe she could not.

The girl went to town with the mother on the day of the suit. In the courtroom a shock of surprise awaited her. Darius Livingstone appeared as counsel for the complainant. Yes, he was there in all his dignity, and he didn't seem a bit frightened that it was his first case and that he was matched against one of the oldest and smartest lawyers in the county. He nodded to Prue and would have done the same to her mother had she not just then been engaged in whispering to her daughter.

"Prue Johnson, look over there! As true as you live your bean pole of a young man is going to take the case against me! That's another specimen of his cheek. You wait, however. When Parsons gets through with him there'll be only a grease spot left."

Surprise after surprise was the order of the day. The plaintiff really had a chattel mortgage on the cows. They had been driven away and sold. In buying them Mrs. Johnson had taken the seller's word. Her lawyer argued that this was customary, but "bean pole" brought in six witnesses to prove to the contrary. Mrs. Johnson was made to admit that she was a business woman and that she had never bought even a chicken without being guaranteed. A dozen errors were made in her case, and before it was concluded Mr. Parsons was made to look extremely foolish. The jury gave a verdict for the plaintiff, and Prue shed tears beneath her veil and realized that she would see no more of Lincoln No. 2.

She was in despair when her mother walked up to the young attorney and held out her hand, saying:

"Sir, I am a blunt and plain spoken woman. You are lop shouldered and slabsided, you are as homely as a hedgehog in March, but you are a talker and are certain to make a good lawyer. If I ever have a son-in-law I hope he'll be one of the profession. No, don't make any excuses. You had a right to take the other side, and I hold no grudge against you. If you want to know how good cheese is made come out to the farm."

Mr. Livingstone did want to know. He had always been curious about it. He took early advantage of her offer, and at last reports he and Miss Prue had decided to go south on their wedding tour.

How few men there are who appreciate the discipline that comes from living with a nagging wife.

O.H.A. ANNUAL MEETING NOT TILL DECEMBER 6

Stratford Man is Likely to Take the Presidency

The annual meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association will be held this year on Saturday, December 6, at 9 a.m., at the Temple Building, Toronto, in accordance with a resolution passed at the annual convention last year, when it was decided to change the date of the annual meeting from the third Saturday in November to the first Saturday in December so that all the clubs in the Association would be organized and represented at the convention by a delegate, who must be a member of the club he represents.

AMENDMENT DATE.

Amendments to the constitution, rules of competition or rules of the game, however, must be in the hands of the secretary by Saturday, November 1, to be in order for the forthcoming annual meeting. Nominations for the various offices must be in by Saturday, November 8. Officers to be elected include the president, first and second vice-president, a secretary, a treasurer, a representative on the O.H.A. on the A.A.U. of C., and four members of the Executive Committee.

PRESIDENT RETIRING.

President H. E. Wettlaufer, of Berlin, will retire from office at this meeting, having served a two-year term, and will likely be succeeded by the first vice-president, Charles Farquharson, of Stratford. Kenneth Casselman, of London, will move up to the first vice-presidency, and one of the present members of the executive will likely be nominated for second vice.

LEADERS DEFEATED ROVERS

In First Game of Employed Boys' Basketball League—Y.M.C.A. Notes

The Business Men's and Employed Boys' Classes had a record attendance last night. The business men turned out twenty strong, and the employed boys lined up with 35 boys in line.

The senior class meets to-night at 8 o'clock.

The Employed Boys' leaders meet to-night at 7, for floor work; Business men Thursday at 6 p.m.; Employed Boys 7.45 p.m.

The opening game in the Employed Boys' Basketball League was played last night when Pringle's leaders defeated Hamilton's Rovers, in a well played game, score 16 to 5. The feature of the game was the combination play of the winners. The next game in this league will be played Thursday when the Invincibles meet the Brownies.

During the basketball game a 100 yd. dash was run off in the gallery and resulted as follows:

D. Feinberg, 15 Seconds; G. Gray, 15 1-5; L. Thompson, 15 1-5; J. Batten, 15 2-5; G. Helson, 15 2-5; E. Eagle, 15 3-5; D. Hunter, 15 4-5; C. Mongout, 16; H. Florence, 16; V. Thorndyke, 16 1-5; J. McCarney, 16 3-5; F. Lebarr, 17; J. Jones, 17; E. Hanson, 17; F. Gandy, 17; J. Gibson, 17 1-5; B. Pollard, 17 2-5; A. Lewis, 17 4-5; H. Dee, 17 4-5; W. Bannon, 18 1-5; P. Wiley, 18 2-5; G. Thorndyke, 19 3-5.

A QUEER LAKE.

With Neither Inlet Nor Outlet It Has a Mysterious Tide.

There is a curious Swiss lake, Lake Marjelan, which at regular intervals completely disappears and does not begin to refill until the following winter or spring. On these occasions it empties itself so rapidly that the Rhone rises several meters in a few hours and overflows its banks.

But it is not necessary to go to Switzerland in order to find a freakish lake. There is a pond in the center of Long Island, at the present end of the Motor parkway, called Lake Ronkonkoma. It has neither inlet nor outlet and lies at the foot of the hills that form the backbone of Long Island. Round its shores are many pretty summer homes. The trees about it are much larger and more beautiful than elsewhere on Long Island. The waters of the lake are very clear and cold. In some places it seems bottomless.

The strange thing about Lake Ronkonkoma is that it has a tide; not a tide like the ocean that rises and falls every twelve hours, but one that takes seven years to rise and seven more to fall. The difference between high water and low water mark is between thirty and forty feet. Many scientific men have studied the curious phenomenon, but no one has found out what causes this mysterious tide. Neither long continued rains nor severe droughts affect the quantity of water in the lake.

The Indians used to hold the lake in great awe, and few dared to cross it in a canoe. There is a legend of one brave who, while fishing, was drowned in the lake. His body was found six months afterward nearly ten miles away in Long Island sound.—Youth's Companion.

Gives Books to Nation.

A valuable library has been presented to the Egyptian nation. The donor is Ahmed Zaki Pasha, secretary to the Council of Ministers. The library contains a rare collection of Arabic manuscripts. The library has for some time been at the disposal of the public in a special wing of the Khedivial Library, but the accommodation has been found inadequate, and Zaki Pasha has added to his gift a section of land, on which a suitable building will be erected.

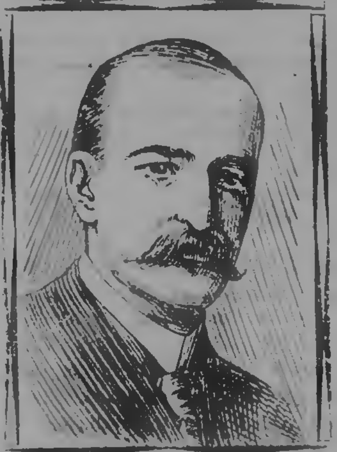
A FIGHTING PREMIER

COUNT TISZA HAS FOUGHT HIS THIRD DUEL THIS YEAR.

Hungarian Statesman Has Frequent Occasion to Defend His Beliefs With Warlike Weapons and He Never Avoids a Fight—He Has a Stiff Problem to Face In Riotous Hungarian Parliament.

Count Etienne Tisza, Premier of Hungary, is a statesman of outstanding personality who is ever ready to defend his honor and his beliefs, political and otherwise. Recently he fought his third duel this year, his adversary having accused him of influencing witnesses in a libel suit between two members of Parliament. The fight was stopped after both contestants had been severely wounded by the heavy cavalry swords used.

Count Tisza is 52 years old; a man of exceptional ability and wide administrative and parliamentary experience. He has sat in the Budapest Parliament for nearly 30 years, attaining a high reputation as a debater and worker. From 1903 to 1905 he was Premier and a few years later became the strong man of the National Labor Party. In May, 1912, he once more came into power as president of the council, at a time of much storm and stress. The kingdom is predominantly Magyar, but the population of 20,000,000 includes many Germans, Croats, Slavs, Ruthenians and Serbs, whose national aspirations frequently bring them into conflict with the Government. A reform scheme doubled the franchise, but practically provided that the increase should be Magyar. This discrimination gave rise to scenes of unexampled disorder in Parliament and, at times, pandemonium was a mild description of the furious outbreaks of passion. Count Tisza, however, is endowed with a firm belief in his own opinions and a fixed determination to carry his projects through. His firmness gradually wore down the opposition of the obstructionists, but he is merely sitting on the safety valve and any untoward event, such as the death of Emperor Francis Joseph, may lead to violent outbreaks and bloodshed, especially if the subordinate nationalities federate, as they threaten to do.



COUNT ETIENNE TISZA.

Australia.

The story of Australia is, from some points of view, curiously interesting. It offers the spectacle of the evolution of a nation, lying so near to us in time that the process can be studied with scientific minuteness and as under the lens of a microscope. And the factors, if not the events, are on a great scale. The stage is an entire continent. For Australia offers the only instance in history where a whole continent has lying above it the flag of a single people. And this is a continent with the climate of Italy, with more than the mineral wealth of Peru and as fit to be the granary of the world today as Egypt was for the world of the Caesars.—The New World of the South.

A THIEVING MYSTERY

By EDITH V. ROSS

"Mr. Murtaugh," said Andrews, chief officer of the postoffice detective bureau, "more thievery has been going on at Trimmingham. This is the fourth time stamps have been missed in that quarter, and I wish you to go there and get on to the thief."

"I've been there twice already," replied Murtaugh, "without finding anything wrong. The people of the town all have the most perfect confidence in Miss Griggs, the postmistress, and her only clerk is her younger sister, aged sixteen. Miss Griggs has appeared to be as much puzzled as any one as to what becomes of the missing stamps."

"I'm afraid, Murtaugh, you're too gallant to spy on a woman."

There was a hidden meaning in the words, for Andrews was not above spying on the members of his force and had learned that Detective Murtaugh, who had been several times to Trimmingham to ferret out the source of the trouble, had been making love to the postmistress. Indeed, he would have sent some one else this time, but he suspected Murtaugh of shielding Miss Griggs, and if he was doing this he was recreant to his duties as a postoffice official. Murtaugh made no reply to Andrews' last remark, and the latter added:

"Well, try it once more. If you don't get on to the thief this time I'll try some one else."

This was spoken in a tone to give Murtaugh a warning. He was one of the best men on the force, and Andrews didn't wish him to get into trouble by shielding a thief.

Murtaugh had thoroughly convinced himself of Miss Griggs' honesty, and her sterling worth was apparent to every one. He knew it would be folly for him to spy on her, and, acting on his own judgment, he went openly to Trimmingham and told her that he had come to help her find who was stealing her stamps.

The postoffice was a little one story frame building, all of which was occupied for mail purposes. One night Murtaugh stole unobserved into the postoffice, climbed up under the roof and bored a peep hole in the ceiling through which he could look down into the postoffice. A few stamps had been left in the postmistress' desk. The detective kept awake all night, but heard not the slightest sound below, saw no light—indeed, no sign of any one coming to steal stamps. But in the morning the stamps left in the desk were gone.

Since the thievery was perpetrated at night there was no need to watch in the daytime. Indeed, no stamps had ever been missed in the day. They were counted in the morning and at night. How the thief managed to get into the house after dark without being detected Murtaugh could not conceive.

When sure that no one was near to see him he examined every part of the little building, especially the cellar for a subterranean passage, but could find no passable ingress. That Miss Griggs or her sister could so far outwit him as to get into the house while he was there without his knowing it he felt sure was impossible. The stealing must be committed by some one else—some one who managed to conceal himself or herself in the building. This person must be able to work quite noiselessly. Whether the exit was made in the daytime or not was like all the rest of it—unknown. Indeed, Murtaugh could not find any possible way any one could get into the building unless by going down the chimney, and to do this without being heard would be very difficult.

During the time of his operations his love affair with Miss Griggs was being brought to a head, and when he returned to his chief the only thing he had to report was that he was engaged to the person whom he had been sent to spy on. This he kept to himself, though Andrews knew of his lovemaking, for he had sent a detective to spy on his spy.

Andrews astonished Murtaugh by discharging him. He also transmitted an order written at his suggestion from Washington to Miss Griggs that she was required to make good all the stamps that had been purloined. Since from the first more than $100 worth was unaccounted for and the salary at Trimmingham was but $400 a year Miss Griggs found herself unable to comply with the order, for she and her mother and sister needed every cent of her income.

Murtaugh found another job. Miss Griggs was permitted to retain her place till an enlargement of the postoffice building which was intended could be made. In taking out a side of the house the workmen laid bare a space that was filled with fragments of postage stamps. Miss Griggs' desk had stood against this wall. Mice had gnawed a hole from the wall into the back of the desk, which gave them access to the drawer in which she kept the stamps. The tiny thieves, attracted by the gum arabic on the back of the stamps, had carried them where they could feast on it at leisure.

A great deal of sympathy had been manifested for Miss Griggs by the townspeople, who all signed a petition that she should be retained in her position. This was now not necessary. She would have retained her position, but Murtaugh established a detective agency of his own and wanted her to attend to his house and home.

MY FAVORITE AUTHOR.

I have a certain bookcase where
  Behind a curtain lurks
A row of books beyond compare,
  My favorite author's works.

I finger o'er the well loved tomes.
  I reverently note
The various essays, novels, pomes,
  My favorite author wrote.

All eagerly the leaves I turn,
  Read here and there a line.
Ah, words that ring! Ah, thoughts, that burn!
  Ah, style so true and fine!

How well the characters are drawn!
  What charm! What atmosphere!
Subtle, yet vivid as the dawn;
  Mystic, yet crystal clear.

And poems of such metric art,
  Such rhythm, rime and rune!
Surely these lines came from a heart
  To melody attune!

Ah, they are wondrously well done,
  The books on that long shelf!
I thrill to think that every one
  Was written by myself!

WEDDING—PERSONALS

ARMSTRONG—ADAMS.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Adams, Smith Township, was the scene of a very pretty wedding this afternoon, when their daughter, Miss Olive May, was united in bonds of holy matrimony to Mr. Charles Albert Armstrong, also of Smith, by the Rev. R. G. Peever, of Geroge Street Methodist Church. The young couple were unattended. The bride was given away by her father.

After a honeymoon in Chicago and other points, Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong will reside in Smith.

Mr. Paul R. Decker, of Montgomery, P.A., is in the city on business.

Mr. A. C. White, of Woodstock, is a guest in the city.

Mr. H. G. Prown, of Brockville, is among the guests at the Oriental.

Dr. and Mrs. Cameron returned to town last night. Dr. Cameron has been spending the last fortnight at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore.

OBSERVATORY HERE

Peterboro Centre, Astronomical Society to Work for It's Location in the City—Dr. Marsh Gave Opening Lecture

Last night at the Collegiate Institute Rev. Dr. Marsh, F.R.A.S., of Springville, opened up the winter session of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, Peterborough Centre, with a lecture on "Astronomy for Beginners."

The lecture was illustrated with stereopticon views showing the relative positions of the earth and the rest of the planets to the sun. Some of the slides were very beautiful indeed, especially those of Nebulea and star clusters. Some splendid photographs of the moon were thrown upon the screen, some of them being taken by Dr. Marsh himself through his telescope at Springville.

The meeting last evening was rather small, it was presided over by Mr. T. A. S. Hay, but Dr. Marsh is not a man to be discouraged by small audiences. He has the great consolation of having an infinite number of friends for he cherishes "The august friendship of the stars."

As a city we are apt to be too busy to realize the value of such men as Dr. Marsh. He is the only man in this section of Ontario who is devoted to the great science of Astronomy, and the public should make use of him and appreciate his work while he is with us.

Dr. Marsh will continue his lecture at the next meeting and deal more fully with the planets, beginning with Mars. The next meeting will be announced in the papers. It may be said that young people and boys and girls in charge of parents are specially invited to this lecture.

A FINE SUGGESTION.

Before Dr. Marsh delivered his lecture an interesting discussion took place on the question of the location of the new Dominion Observatory. It is not generally known that the Canadian Government have a great astronomical project on hand, and this is no less than the building of the largest telescope in the world.

There are at present two Dominion Observatories. One of these is at Ottawa, and that city is extremely anxious that the new observatory should be erected in its district. But it seems there are certain objections to be raised against that site, as it is said the Ottawa Valley is not only subject to mists and fogs, but also to occasional seismic disturbances.

Dr. Marsh, through the local Society, is pressing the claims of Peterborough as a good site for the new Observatory. The Society last evening passed a resolution on the subject, and a plea on behalf of this city is to be forwarded to the Government Astronomical authorities.

The order is already given out for the lense of the new gigantic telescope, but the locality in which the Observatory is to be erected is not yet decided upon. Peterborough has a good chance. Dr. Marsh and the Society are to be commended upon their foresight in this matter.

MR. ADAMS COMES BACK WITH HIS CLAIM OF $500

Threatens Legal Action if His Claim is Not Recognized

Although the City Council failed to recognize his claim, the Legal Committee was waited upon last evening by C. E. Adams of Maria street, East City, in connection with his claim for damages to his property caused by the Vermont Marble Company's siding.

Mr. Adams claimed that the approach to his property was entirely cut off and that the estimated damages was $500.

"You did not raise any objection when the siding was being built," remarked the Mayor.

"I didn't go into the details of the plans and therefore did not know what was going on, and I don't know if it makes any difference in that respect," answered Mr. Adams.

The Mayor was sure if it did or not.

Mr. Adams said that he was there to find out whether the Committee was going to reject his offer or look into the matter more fully, as it had gone on for considerable time, and that something had to be done at once. He threatened to sue the city.

"You will either have a rejection or an adoption of the matter in a few days," remarked the chairman and Mr. Adams left the Committee to discuss the matter. On motion of Ald. Green and the Mayor, no recommendation was made in the matter.

HOME TRAINING IN DOMESTIC SCIENCE

Is it Preferable to Training in School?

The meeting of St. Peter's Literary Society which was to be held on Friday of this week in St. Alphonsus Lyceum, has been postponed until Friday evening, Nov. 7th. On that evening a debate will be the feature of the program, the subject being, "Resolved that home training in domestic science is preferable to a training received in school."

The affirmative will be taken by Miss K. McCarthy and Miss G. Plunkett, while the negative side will be in the hands of Miss S. Hayes and Miss K. O'Brien.

A musical program will also be rendered.

LAID TO REST

The funeral of the late Mrs. P. Delaire took place this morning at nine o'clock. Rev. Father Phelan sand requiem high mass, while Rev. Father Meagher officiated at the cemetery.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. T. McGrath, J. Delaire, son; J. Delaire, jr., E. Archambault, H. Archambault and M. Braisbean.

CLAIMS FOR DAMAGES ARE DEALT WITH

City Employes' Negligence Responsible for One Accident

At a meeting of the Legal Committee last night City Solicitor Hall was instructed to settle the case of James Huxley, the man who had his jaw and mouth seriously injured by falling into an open sewer on Charlotte street. Huxley claims damages to the extent of $140 through his counsel, O'Connel and Corkery.

Mayor Bradburn claimed that it was entirely the fault of the city employes, and Ald. Green was of the opinion that a black mark should be registered against the offenders. On motion of Alderman Gillespie and Alderman Johnston, the City Solicitor was instructed to act.

Foley and Gleeson reported the settlement of the claim of Mrs. Gourlay, of Keene, who claimed damages as result of a fall from a rig, caused by an obstruction in the roadway on Hunter street. The amount was $65.

No further action was taken in regard to Alex. Ferguson's claim. Ferguson lost his leg in an accident on Simcoe street last spring, and claims damages from the city.

The claim of Mrs. Kane, who was injured by tripping on an obstruction on the sidewalk, was also laid over.

BISHOP O'BRIEN GAVE SERMON AT CONSECRATION

Rev. F. X. Brunet is Bishop of New Diocese of Mont Laurier

OTTAWA, Oct. 29— "The growth of Catholicism in Canada in the last century has been marvellous," said the Rt. Rev. M. J. O'Brien, Bishop of Peterboro, in his sermon at the consecration at the Ottawa Basilica yesterday morning, of the Rev. Francois Xavier Brunet to the bishopric of the new diocese of Mont Laurier, Quebec.

For years they had witnessed the [illegible] zeal and wisdom of the bishop-elect. The Archbishop had consecrated one of his own household and a confidante. Sketching the history of Catholicism in Canada, Bishop O'Brien said that 97 years ago there was only one Roman Catholic diocese in Canada—at Quebec—with six priests.

To-day in Ontario there were three archbishoprics and 900 priests for a population of [illegible] Catholics. The founding of a see at Mont Laurier, the consecration of a bishop, was a sign of the enormous growth of Catholicism. The Bishop stood for universality of the Church and the episcopacy was the personification of the divine constitution of the Church.

The new Bishop was presented with a purse of $2000 by the clergy and other friends to-day.

WARNING AGAINST USING FIRE ARMS ON SUNDAY

Three Guns Were Confiscated by Inspector Watt—Farmers Complain

District game overseer Watt wishes to warn a certain class of men, who are in the habit of hunting on Sunday, that it is against the law.

During the past few weeks, several farmers living on the outskirts of the city have complained about this practice and last Sunday Mr. Watt made a visit to Burnham's woods. The result was that he confiscated three guns. Just whether the persons offending will be brought to court or not, depends on the view the Department takes of the offence.

The following is the law re. shooting on Sunday:

"No person shall, on the Lord's Day, hunt, take or kill or destroy any game, or use any gun or other engine for that purpose."

ENTERTAINMENT AT CONSERVATORY HALL

"THE QUAKER GIRL"

The seat sale for the engagement of "The Quaker Girl" at the Grand next Saturday, November 1, matinee and night, opens at the theatre box-office to-morrow, (Thursday) morning and will doubtless keep the lobby crowded for some time as the advent of this famous musical comedy has been long awaited by local playgoers. So widely have the praises of "The Quaker Girl" been sung that it is almost unnecessary to say much about its history and merits in general. This piece has enjoyed runs in London, Paris, and New York and has been everywhere an overwhelming success. The original New York Company, with special orchestra, which is coming to the Grand is headed by Victor Morley.

HALLOWE'EN TEA

On the afternoon of Friday, October 31st., the recreation room of the Armories will be centre of attraction for all the ladies of Peterboro on that afternoon. From four to six the Daughters of the Empire will be at home to the other ladies of the city and hope to receive a large number of callers. Silver collection.

MUSICAL TOUR OF EASTERN COUNTIES

By Three Local Artists

Miss Dorothy Allan is extending her circle of musical influence beyond the bounds of Peterborough, and is planning a tour of the eastern counties, supported by Mr. Asa Huycke and her father, Mr. John Allan.

Last Monday this talented trio held their initial concert and arrangements are being made to cover the towns and villages of the surrounding counties.

This "missionary" spirit in musical matters is not only a good business proposition, but it is good for Peterborough and is of educational value to the smaller centres. Good singers are too apt to fly to the larger cities, to the musical impoverishment of the agricultural districts, who too often have to be content with third rate talent. Enterprise in this direction ought to be encouraged, and it is to be hoped that other of Peterborough's musical artistes will enter this very promising field.

One More Aviator Killed.

RHEIMS, France, Oct. 29.—Another French army aviator, Quartermaster-Sergeant Canal, was killed yesterday. He had only recently become a pupil of the military aviation school and was flying alone for the first time. His monoplane had reached a height of 300 feet when it made a sudden lurch to the side and the aviator was thrown out and killed.

Train Dynamited.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 29.—Only eight persons escaped alive when the troop train was dynamited by rebels Monday at the railway station of Lufu, between the towns of Saltillo and Vanegas, in the state of Coahuila. More than 100 Federal soldiers, including three officers, were killed. All the survivors were injured.

The troop train is said to have been acting as a convoy and was preceding a passenger train. The latter backed into Saltillo safely. The rebels had disappeared when troops arrived on the scene from Vanegas.

See Us and See Better

The eye is built just like a camera: the lens to focus; the lid as a shutter; the iris or color as the diaphram; the thick coating of the eyeball as the dark room; the retina or nerve as the sensitive plate, and strange as it may seem, the image in the eye is upside down the same as in the camera.

When any of this apparatus gets out of order the eye will not focus properly and needs the aid of glasses.

Duty to your eyes demands that they have good care.

NEXT GOVERNOR.
Would it be too much to ask Lord Rosebery or Mr. Balfour to give us a term as Governor General?—Page 2, Col. 1.

BOBCAYGEON ELECTRICIAN WAS NEARLY KILLED

Shotgun Held by Companion Was Accidentally Discharged.

LINDSAY, Oct. 30.—Word comes from Bobcaygeon of a serious shooting accident, whereby R. H. Clarke, electrician at the "Little Bob" power house, was severely injured. It is learned that a young man named Hudson, who hails from Orillia, and who is visiting at Mr. Clarke's noticed a bird close by, and while drawing his shotgun quickly to his shoulder the weapon discharged. The shot entered Clarke's side, tearing a gash four inches deep. Clarke and Hudson succeeded in taking out a large number of the shot, while the physician who was called recovered twenty more grains. The wound is quite serious and but for a pass book, which Clarke carried in his pocket, might have proved fatal.

Young Man's Mysterious Death.

CHATHAM, Ont., Oct. 30.—An inquest was held yesterday morning into the death of Ray Ferncliffe, who was found dead on Delaware avenue in this city last Tuesday night. Ferncliffe was about twenty years old and was employed by the city as a teamster. People nearby heard a cry of alarm from the young man, but when they got to him he was dead.

Murder and Suicide.

FREDERICK, Md., Oct. 30.—Dorsey Kelly, 24, a farm hand, yesterday shot and killed Miss Mary Fleming, daughter of his employer, and then committed suicide. Jealousy of the young woman, with whom Kelly was said to have been infatuated, is believed to have prompted the deed.

Striking Miners Return.

FORT SMITH, Ark., Oct. 30.—Coal mine strikes affecting 675 miners in Oklahoma and Arkansas were amicably adjusted Tuesday. Five hundred men returned to the Oklahoma company's mines at Dewar, Okla., and 175 men to the Eureka Coal Co.'s mine at Montana, Ark.

RAILROADED

Alleged Dynamiters Punished Thrice for One Offence Says Counsel.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30. — Contending that the 33 labor union officials, convicted at Indianapolis last December for complicity in the McNamara brothers' dynamite plots, had been "punished three times for the same offence and had been 'railroaded to jail,'" attorneys for the convicted men appealed to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday to have the judgment set aside.

"We will show that these men not only did not have a fair trial, but that they were punished three times for the same offence," said Attorney Zoline. "First they were convicted of conspiracy with Ortie E. McManigal and the McNamaras to violate the federal law against carrying explosives on passenger trains; secondly, they were convicted of actually carrying explosives, and they were convicted in the consolidated offence."

$600,000 LOST

That Amount Went in Loans Says Union Life Liquidator.

TORONTO, Oct. 30.—That the $785,000 invested in stock in the Union Life Assurance Co. by English investors in 1909-10 found its way into channels other than those outlined in the prospectus especially prepared by two expert English actuaries for the information of the English investors, and is practically a total loss, was brought to light yesterday at the investigation into the affairs of the defunct Union Life Assurance Co. It was shown that of this amount the Union Life had made loans to various companies, amounting to $625,000, and upon this Mr. George T. Clarkson, the permanent liquidator, has placed the indelible stamp "Lost."

While the remaining $160,000 still is to be accounted for, it was stated that when the inquiry is resumed on Nov. 17 evidence of a startling nature would be adduced showing that the balance had likewise found its way into channels which Mr. H. Pollman Evans will be called upon to explain, as a result of the testimony voluntarily given by Mr. Harry Symons, K.C., at yesterday's session. Mr. A. C. Masten, K.C., who is appearing on behalf of the Government stated that he regarded the evidence of Mr. Symons as being merely a stepping-stone to what may be expected when the investigation is resumed.

Another piece of interesting evidence was the disclosures made by Mr. Symons respecting certain erasures in the executive minute book of the Union Life Co. Mr. Symons declared that while he was acting as secretary of the Union Life Co. Mr. Evans made an erasure pertaining to a loan of $81,000 advanced to the Imperial Loan Co. Mr. Symons said he insisted on Mr. Evans initialling the erasure.

Nome Is Poverty Stricken.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 30. — The mayor of Nome, Alaska, in a cablegram yesterday to the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, said many persons were destitute as a result of the recent storm that destroyed part of the city and would need financial aid or transportation. He said that $50,000 would be required to carry Nome through the long winter, and asked for Government assistance.

Killed on Hunting Trip.

MONT LAURIER, Que., Oct. 30.—Stumbling over a tree root yesterday afternoon, Henry Thibault of Delorimier avenue, Montreal, was shot and killed by his own rifle.

Mr. Thibault, who was a conductor on the C.P.R., was here on a hunting trip.

PREMIERS FAIL TO AGREE

Deadlock Occurs Over Problem of Federal Assistance.

OTTAWA, Oct. 30.—Although a variety of questions were discussed at the interprovincial conference which concluded its three days' sessions last night, only upon a few, including the subsidies, an increase equal to 10 per cent. of the customs and excise revenue of the Dominion was there unanimous agreement. The subsidy decision was probably the feature event of the conference and it is said there is very slight possibility of its being granted.

Unanimous decision was also reached in asking increased salaries for lieutenant-governors and in requesting that the decision in the companies' case by the Supreme Court be considered final.

In regard to the Maritime Provinces' representation and the question of Federal outlays on highways and similar public works there was a division of opinion and resolutions in connection with these matters were withdrawn.

Yesterday's sessions were taken up in a discussion of the lower provinces' claims for conservation of federal representation. Two of the provinces, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, filed arguments in favor of the resolution, while Prince Edward Island made the special plea that eventually there would be no representatian at all from that province.

After considering the questions involved, the following resolution was adopted by the conference:

"That this conference expresses the opinion that it does not represent the provinces for the purpose of matters of federal representation and declines to take any action in regard to them."

Premiers Scott and Sifton offered the following resolution, which caused considerable debate:

"That in the opinion of the conference any action by the Dominion Government towards assisting in carrying on works in any province should take the form of increased subsidy."

It was taken as understood, although the resolution did not directly say so, that it was aimed at expenditures proposed by the Dominion Government in connection with the highways bill, twice rejected by the Senate.

Premiers Scott and Sifton urged, in support of their resolution, that expenditures on such works as highways are the exclusive right of the provincial authorities and an invasion of provincial autonomy is otherwise carried out.

In opposition to the proposal it was asserted that the provinces had to acquiesce before such outlays could be made.

Party lines were drawn in the discussion and the resolution was finally withdrawn.

In asking that the recent decision of the Supreme Court in the companies' case be considered as final, as it secures the provinces in their rights of incorporation, a resolution offered by Hon. L. A. Taschereau was unanimously adopted as follows:

"That the contention of the provinces concerning the incorporation of companies having been upheld by the Supreme Court of Canada after a reference to that tribunal at the instance of the Dominion, this conference expresses the firm belief that the decision should be considered as final and conclusive, especially in view of the far-reaching and disturbing impression created in the public mind by the doubt cast upon the powers of the Legislatures with regard to this matter."

After deciding to meet again from time to time at the call of Premiers Whitney and Gouin, but settling no express dates, the conference adjourned. Votes of thanks were adopted to the chairman, Hon. G. H. Murray, and Premier Borden, while Chas. Lanctot, K.C., the secretary, was presented with a beautiful stick-pin.

Premiers Scott and Sifton presented to Premier Borden the claims of Saskatchewan and Alberta for the control of their natural resources, which was not discussed in the conference, yesterday afternoon. This matter has long been politically discussed in the west. There was no definite outcome of the interview with the Premier.

Last evening the Duke of Connaught entertained the delegates at dinner at Rideau Hall.

MRS. EATON
Who has been freed on murder charge.

People Waited all Night in Court Room to Hear the Verdict.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Plymouth, Mass., Oct. 30—The jury in the case of Mrs. Eaton accused of murdering her husband, Rear-Admiral Eaton, by means of poison, early this morning, brought in a verdict of not guilty.

Two hundred persons sat through the night in the court room to hear the verdict. The prisoner smiled composedly when it was announced.

STOCK FAMINE

York County Farmers Want Slaughter of Calves Forbidden.

TORONTO, Oct. 30.—It is the opinion of many that all the choice cattle of Ontario are being shipped to the United States and England since the Underwood law came into force which removed the duty. Good Canadian cattle are being sold in Buffalo for the same price that second grades sell for here. Farmers all over York County say that they cannot purchase heifers or milch cows save by paying an extremely high price. They are in favor of the Federal Parliament passing legislation forbidding the slaughter of female calves under two years old.

TIME EXPENSIVE

This Dentist Charged at Rate of $11 Per Minute.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—A sealed verdict for $421.80 was rendered in the City Court in favor of Dr. M. I. Schamberg, dentist, against Malcolm Douglas Whitman, former tennis champion. Dr. Schamberg sued for $500, which he alleged was due for an operation which he performed on Mr. Whitman in May, 1911. The operation required three-quarters of an hour to complete, so his charge was at the rate of $11 a minute. Mr. Whitman refused to pay and offered Dr. Schamberg $350.

Buys Wheat Despite Duty.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 30.—In the face of a duty of ten cents a bushel, still imposed, the Washburn Crosby Co., of Minneapolis, in the first move of the kind since the Underwood tariff law was passed, yesterday bought 100,000 bushels of Canadian wheat and will grind it in its mills at Buffalo, N.Y. A certified check for $10,000 was made out for payment of the import tariff.

Lawyer Again Arraigned.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30. — Burton W. Gibson, the New York lawyer, twice tried for the murder of his client, Rossa Menschik Szabo, and freed months after the second jury had disagreed, was arraigned here yesterday to plead to four indictments charging him with rifling her estate.

Arthur Stepley Dead.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Arthur John Stepley, who for many years was a prominent figure in British Columbia, died at Stourport last night.

WOMAN SAVED SHIP

Mrs. C. V. Olsen Took Wheel When Sailor Deserted It.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—A woman's daring in a terrific hurricane off Cape Hatteras saved the big American bark John Ena from destruction and the lives of the crew of thirty-seven men. The heroine is the wife of Captain Charles V. Olsen.

On Oct. 21 the bark, which had been within 100 miles of this port three weeks ago, and had been blown back nearly to Bermuda, ran into a hurricane off the coast of North Carolina.

Startled by a particularly heavy sea, Mrs. Olsen saw the scared sailor at the wheel desert his post. She rushed on deck and crept along until she clutched the wheel, swung the heavy wheel over and brought the ship about. Capt. Olsen worked his way back over the wreckage and found his wife clinging to the wheel.

PRESIDENT TO HOLD ELECTION

Is Planning Fair Presidential Contest For Mexico.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30. — President Wilson has under consideration a new plan for restoring peace in Mexico which he will discuss with his Cabinet Friday and make it public within a few days.

Officials were reticent as to what it contemplated. As the United States has asked not only the European Governments, but those of Latin America and the Orient to withhold the formulation of their policy toward Mexico until the Washington Government can make known its plans for dealing with the situation, the solution upon which the President and Secretary Bryan are working is believed to be more than any suggestions heretofore made for the pacification of the southern republic.

It is thought that in much the same way as President Wilson outlined recently to John Lind the points upon which a satisfactory settlement of the trouble in Mexico seemed to be conditioned he will repeat his suggestions, but will add the stipulation that someone acceptable to all factions be placed in provisional authority to conduct a fair and free election.

The first efforts of the President and his advisers will be to obtain a cessation of hostilities, in order that a constitutional election may be held. This will include a promise from the revolutionists that they will cease fighting temporarily, that Huerta will do the same and that the latter will agree to the holding of an election in which he is to have no part, not even the appointment of the election machinery. The United States will ask for this privilege and authority.

As was outlined in the President's speech at Mobile on Monday, he will try moral suasion first. The seeking of a cessation of hostilities on both sides pending the holding of an election will be the first step in this direction.

Though the State Department has not been informed officially of the reported purpose of Gen. Huerta to declare Gen. Blanquet as having been elected, it is certain that in line with previous declarations, the election of last Sunday will not be recognized as constitutional. The inability of the Huetra Government to conduct a constitutional election it is thought will lead the American Government to suggest a method of holding the elections in which safeguards and guarantees can be given which will permit the constitutionalists to participate freely.

Diplomats generally here believe that before suggestions concerning an election can be carried out, the elimination of Huerta from the situation must be accomplished.

MRS. NELSON SHAW FREED

Not Guilty of Attempting to Poison Husband.

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 30.—At the assizes yesterday Mrs. Nelson Shaw, of Point Ann, who was committed for trial on July 11 last on a charge of attempting to poison her husband by placing oil of cedar in his dinner pail, was liberated, the grand jury finding no bill.

Salmon well minced and mixed with a yolk of egg and sufficient lemon, pepper and salt to season well, makes a delicious filling for sandwiches. It is equally good with white or brown bread.

Miners Celebrate First Strike.

HAZELTON, Pa., Oct. 30.—Hardly a wheel turned yesterday in the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania. The miners celebrated Mitchell Day, in honor of the anniversary of the successful termination of the strike of 1900, the first conducted in the hard coal belt, under the leadership of John Mitchell, the president of the Mine Workers of America. The struggle won for the men a ten per cent. wage increase and other concessions.

WILL FIGHT FOR ULSTER

Bonar Law Pledges Unionist Party to Cause.

NEWCASTLE, Eng., Oct. 30.—Speaking from the same platform as Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, Andrew Bonar Law, the Opposition leader in the House of Commons, last night pledged the support of the Unionist party to Ulster even to the extent of forcible resistance to home rule. But his eagerly awaited reply to Premier Asquith's offer of a compromise on Oct. 25 consisted merely of a statement that the Unionists would carefully consider any proposals the Prime Minister cared to make relative to a solution of the home rule problem, if a solution were possible.

Mr. Law expressed the opinion that the only logical way the Government could avoid the responsibility of plunging the country into civil war was to secure a mandate from the people by a general election, which, if it favored home rule, would be acquiesced in by the Unionists.

He said he could not speak for Ulster, but believed that such a result might even settle the question there.

The Uninoist leader compared the situation in Ulster to conditions in America preceding the civil war. He said he had urged Sir Edward Carson to attend the meeting so that the pledge which he (Law) had made at the Blenheim Palace rally in July, 1912, to support Ulster in her resistance to home rule might be made perfectly clear.

The speaker maintained that the Government had brought forward its land proposals in order to confuse the issue. If the Government refused to go to the country the Unionist leaders would not decline the invitation to a conference, and would probably consider any proposals made to them and answer them with a real desire to find a solution.

DIAZ MUST BEHAVE

He is Not Allowed to Plot on U. S. Warship.

VERA CRUZ, Oct. 30.—~~Gen. Feliz~~ Diaz, now a refugee on board the American battleship Louisiana, learned yesterday that the privilege of asylum on a battleship carries with it certain restrictions not unlike prison regulations. By order of the admiral, Gen. Diaz is not permitted communication with anyone from shore, without his permission, and the admiral has given Gen. Dias to understand that such permission will rarely be given.

The enforcement of this order is rigid. "Will you please go below, sir?" said the officer of the deck, saluting the general when he had begun a conversation with a man who had brought a message from ashore.

Gen. Dias appeared to be annoyed for an instant, but without hesitation complied.

Admiral Fletcher explained that while he was willing to place his flagship at the disposal of Gen. Diaz as an asylum, he did not propose to expose himself to the criticism of making it a place for possible plotting. He asserted his confidence that Gen. Dias would not attempt to abuse hospitality by meeting friends there and from a safe vantage point indulge in intriguing or conspiracy, but he resolved to take no chances.

With regard to the future, Diaz professes to be through with politics and rebellions and says he will ask nothing better so long as his country is in its present state than to be permitted to live in peace abroad.

Old Battleship a Target.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Big guns bombarding a target in the shape of the old battleship Empress of India, the most costly ever fired at, will be watched to-day by Winston Spencer Churchill off Portland. The powerful armor of the Empress of India will make the gunnery test one of the greatest importance.

Twenty years ago this battleship cost $5,000,000, and only recently she was ranked as a first-class battleship.

Two Firemen Hurt.

MONTREAL, Oct. 30.—Two firemen were severely hurt and thirty more overcome by smoke at a fire in the premises of the Factory Waste Co. on Colborne street yesterday afternoon. A number of girls employed on the premises only escaped by a narrow margin. The smoke from the waste in the building was very dense.

Power is Officially Turned on Before Large Gathering.

ELMIRA, Ont., Oct. 30.—Yesterday was a great day for Elmira. The formal turning on of Hydro-electric power, to which the residents have been looking forward since the Niagara current was installed in Berlin three years ago, took place yesterday afternoon. Despite the unfavorable weather, a large gathering of citizens and representatives of sister municipalities were present.

A feature of the celebration was the Made-in-Elmira Exhibition, showing the products of the village's industries, and an electrical demonstration of household utensils and farm machinery in the skating rink, where 1,000 people assembled.

In the evening Hon. Adam Beck officially turned on the power before a crowd that filled the rink. He predicted still further achievements for Hydro and said the next one would be Hydro radials.

TWO IN MURDER

Russian Experts Say no One Man Slew Yushinsky Boy.

KIEV, Oct. 30.—The expert testimony of physicians occupied most of the day at the trial of Mendel Beilies, charged with having killed the boy Yushinsky. The experts agreed that at least two persons were implicated in the actual killing of the boy, but were divided on the question as to whether the prime object of the murder was the obtaining of as much blood as possible and the inflicting of torture or not.

The imperial court surgeon, Dr. Pavloff, combatted the theory of blood getting, but admitted that the experts had little on which to base their theories because of the incompetent manner in which the two postmortem examinations had been made.

Dr. Tutanoff of Kiev University testified that at least two-thirds of the boy's blood had been drawn off. Answering the twenty-three questions given to them Tuesday by the president of the court, the experts were divided on all points except that two or more assassins were involved.

The murder, Prof. Kosoretoff testified, was not committed in a house or the cave where the body was found, but at a place where there was clay, with which the clothes were covered. There was a sensation in court when it was charged that the clay near Vera Tcheberiak's house had not been compared with that on the clothes.

Prof. Kosoretoff concluded with the statement that the hairs found on the dead boy's clothing came from a long curly beard and could not belong to Beilies, whose beard was short, stiff and straight.

SEVEN YEARS FOR COUNTERFEITING

"Dr." Muret Receives Light Sentence—Is Consumptive

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—"Dr." Muret, the fake dentist, found guilty of counterfeiting, was yesterday sentenced to serve a term of seven and a half years in the federal prison at Atlanta by Federal Judge Hunt. Muret was arrested soon after Father Hans Schmidt confessed to the murder of Anna Aumueller.

Muret told Judge Hunt that if he would suspend sentence on him he would leave the country at once, as he wished to return to his mother in Germany. The Tombs' physician testified that Muret was suffering from tuberculosis and the sentence was made comparatively light.

Muret might have been given 30 years.

Potters On Strike.

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio, Oct. 30.—Clay makers employed in the thirty-five general ware potteries of East Liverpool and Wellsville, O., and Chester and Newell, Va., quit work yesterday morning when they were refused an advance in wages. A number of plants were closed, and if the strike is not settled by nightfall all the potteries in the district will be compelled to shut down, affecting about 5,000 hands.

Razing a Skyscraper.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The first building ever erected around a skeleton of steel, the forerunner of the skyscrapers, which are in almost every American city, is to be torn down. The structure is known as the Tower Building, but this has become a misnomer. When it was erected in 1889 at No. 50 Broadway it was the marvel of the city, being eleven storeys in height.

Thaw Afraid of Matteawan.

CONCORD, N.H., Oct. 30.—Attorneys for Harry K. Thaw yesterday declared that if Wm. T. Jerome will agree to try Thaw on the conspiracy indictment returned in New York, and will not return him to Matteawan, the fugitive is willing to return to New York. Jerome has declared that pending trial for conspiracy he would place Thaw in Matteawan.

THE CRY OF THE CHILDREN

The letters we have received from time to time constitute a very serious charge against a certain resort. It is not within the province or the power of a newspaper to do more than call attention to social evils of this kind. But we will gladly give the utmost publicity to any reasonable complaint or reliable information in this particular instance, which seems to be one of wanton moral laxity on the part of somebody. The writer of the above letter is no extremist, but is a sensible and respected citizen of Peterborough. If we were sure that all we hear were true in regard to the resort in question, we would have no hesitation in calling it by its proper name, and stigmatizing those who are responsible for its cause, and also those who allow this state of things to continue.

In larger cities these problems are difficult to handle; they get a foothold. Peterborough is growing. Let it grow by all means. But we need to watch the weeds, and now is the time to kill them, for they will yield a wretched harvest for the reaping of the Peterborough of to-morrow if they are not attended to.

LORD ROSEBERY AS GOVERNOR GENERAL

The idea of Canada becoming a dynasty is a wild one, and as Lord Strathcona says is based upon the vaguest of rumors and backed by no authority,—but with regard to the possible succession of Prince Arthur if ever it was proposed and accepted Canada would give the Prince and his bride as loyal aid and hearty welcome as they have already given his father and mother.

With all due respect to the Prince Arthur, we would like to suggest that the Mother country send out to us some of her veteran statesmen. Would it be too much to ask Lord Rosebery or Mr. Balfour to give us a term as Governor General. That is an old dream of ours—which may come true.

LAURIER LINGO

The electors of South Bruce will vote to-day on Sir Wilfrid Laurier's speech on Tuesday, in which that venerable politician said that the Naval Aid Bill was "conceived in iniquity and mendacity."

These are very kind and charitable words for one statesman to apply to another, and if Sir Wilfrid was not merely trying to make an awful case out "agin the Government" at all hazards, one might be inclined seriously to wonder if there was any more truth in them than the charges of corruption with which he explains away every Conservative victory.

Supposing South Bruce was influenced by Sir Wilfrid's horror-stricken countenance at the sight of a vile and iniquitous Prime Minister and they voted for Mr. Truax, the Liberal candidate, would that confirm these serious charges?

The way some of these course adjectives so glibly slip through the lips of the ex-Premier makes one wonder if he fully realizes their true meaning to an unsophisticated Anglo Saxon.

TOO MUCH TACT

The Ottawa Free Press calls upon Sir Richard McBride to apologise to the Canadian Club for daring to mention the subject of Naval defence within the sacred precincts of that organization.

Unless the discussions of the Club are to be confined to subjects such as astronomy or, say, the sex-problem, it would be difficult to touch upon any public question without entering the realm of politics. The fact that the Navy is a party question, whilst it is unfortunate, should not therefore bar such a vital subject from being discussed by the Canadian Club.

If the Canadian Club wants to accomplish something for Canada, it can lift this important problem out of the mesh of party politics and place it in the clear atmosphere of statesmanship, by the free and dispassionate interchange of views from a national and Imperial point of view.

The Free Press accuses Sir Richard of want of tact upon this occasion. The truth is there is too much tact, too much double dealing and double speaking on the Navy question, and the sooner the Liberal party state definitely their motives and intentions, whether these mean eventual separation or a whole-hearted loyalty to the Empire, the better it will be for the honor and peace of the country on this important subject.

EDITORIAL NOTES

General Felix Diaz has a knack of eluding the Mexican bullets. He keeps on the move and it is always difficult to hit a moving target.

The London Chronicle tells us that some of the famous writers "have found their inspiration flow most easily when lying down." That only proves what we have often thought, it would be futile to suggest that editors and reporters should be provided with couches, but the suggestion is certainly a good one.

LATEST NEWS PARAGRAPHED

The Russian Ministry of Trade and Commerce has prepared a bill providing for the supervision of trusts and syndicates.

Fire at Port Maitland, N.S., yesterday, destroyed the buildings owned by T. E. Goudie and W. S. Porter; loss $30,000.

The Sealshipt Oyster Co. of New York and Boston, a $4,500,000 corporation, was placed in the hands of receivers yesterday.

As the result of falling off his wagon, Nixon Dougherty, a prominent farmer living at Sheppardton, Ont., died Tuesday night.

Fred. Radford, a young man, pleaded guilty to an indecent assault at Belleville assizes yesterday, and was allowed out on suspended sentence.

Toronto Enquiring For Pointers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—That Toronto, Canada, is engaged in a fight for retention of store-door deliveries, or a reduction in freight rates to equalize lack of service, is revealed by a letter to the Chamber of Commerce here from the Canadian city, asking for full information as to the fight here, the hearings before the interstate commerce commission and how the local commercial bodies went about such a fight.

NEW CONVENIENT TRAIN TO WINNIPEG

Canadian Pacific

The popularity of Canadian Pacific service, and the excellence of that road's equipment, has been so greatly appreciated by the travelling public that it has been found necessary to put into service an entirely new Through Standard Express Train between Toronto and Winnipeg.

Commencing Sunday, October 27th, the "Gate City Express" will leave Toronto at 2.30 p.m., and will run daily thereafter, arriving Winnipeg at 8.00 a.m. second morning. The train will consist of the highest-class modern equipment; Compartment Library Observation Car, Standard Sleeping Cars, Tourist Sleeping Car, Dining Car, First-class Coach and Colonist Car. This will be found the most convenient and best train between Toronto and Winnipeg on account of the daylight departure from Toronto at an hour when the Union Station is not badly congested, and also on account of the early hour of arrival at Winnipeg.

The present "Vancouver Express" will continue to leave Toronto at 10.30 p.m. daily and will consist of the same equipment as the "Gate City Express." This train is the best to take for points west of Winnipeg but for Winnipeg and east the "Gate City Express" is the right train to travel by.

Full particulars from any Canadian Pacific Agent, or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto. 50

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Oct. 29.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 167 cars, comprising 4677 cattle, 665 hogs, 1973 sheep and lambs and 560 calves.

Butchers

There was a scarcity of good to choice butchers' steers and heifers—not enough to supply the demand. Choice butchers sold at $7.25 to $7.50; choice butchers' heifers, at $7 to $7.35; good steers, $6.75 to $7.25; medium, $6.25 to $6.75; common, $5.50 to $6; choice cows, $5.75 to $6.50; good cows, $5.25 to $5.50; medium cows, $4.50 to $5; common canners and cutters, $3 to $4.50; export bulls, $5.75 to $6.50; butchers' bulls, $5 to $5.50; bologna bulls, $4 to $4.75.

Stockers and Feeders

The market for stockers and feeders was again active at the following quotations: Steers, 1000 to 1150 lbs., sold at $6.30 to $6.60; steers, 900 to 1000 lbs., at $6 to $6.25; stockers, 500 to 800 lbs., at $5.25 to $6; rough eastern stockers, $4.50 to $5.25.

Milkers and Springers

Choice milkers and forward springers were in demand and sold readily at $60 to $100 each. The bulk of sales were between $65 and $80 each.

Veal Calves

The market for veal calves held steady, as follows: Choice calves sold from $9 to $10; good calves, $8 to $9; medium, $7 to $7.50; canners, $5.50 to $6.50; rough eastern calves, $4.50 to $5.

Sheep and Lambs

Sheep and lambs were in demand at steady prices, as follows: Ewes sold at $4.25 to $5.25; culls and rams, $2.75 to $3.75; lambs, $7.40 to $7.50; bucks, culled out, at 75c per head less.

Hogs

Hogs, selects, fed and watered, sold at $9.20 to $9.25; f.o.b. cars, $8.90 to $8.95 weighed off cars, $9.50.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Oct. 29.—At the Montreal stock yards, offerings this morning consisted of 3000 cattle, 1600 sheep and lambs, 2700 hogs, and 500 calves.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for cattle. Demand for lower grades was good and an active trade was done. The best butchers' cattle sold at $6.25, and the lower grades at $5.50, while best cows brought $5, and the commoner stock from that down to $3.50, with common bulls selling at $3.75 to $4.25 per 100 pounds.

The trade in small meats was active. Western lambs sold at $6.75 to $7, eastern at $5.75 to $6.25, while sheep brought from $3.75 to $4.25 per 100 pounds. Grass fed calves sold at 3¾c to 4c, and milk fed at 6½c to 7¼c per pound.

The tone of the hog market was firm under a good demand and sales of selected lots were made at $9.50 to $10 per 100 pounds weighed off cars.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

TOO BUSY TO TALK.

SIDE by side in the moon's pale light
Two figures sat in the early night.

One was a man who was half afraid,
The other a timid, shrinking maid.

A friendly cloud came over the sky,
And the man grew bold as it caught his eye.

He reached an arm, and he turned his face
And kissed that maid in the proper place.

And all was silent except for this:
The lonely echo of that one kiss.

She may have blushed or she may have not;
She silently sat in that selfsame spot,

While the man no syllable spoke aloud,
But waited and watched for another cloud.

The cloud soon came and another, too,
And he did what any man would do.

And still that maiden, who scarcely stirred,
Just sat and uttered no single word

Until, as he gave her one on the cheek,
He cried, "Oh, tell me, why don't you speak?"

And the maiden said, with impatient sigh:
"Not now. Let's wait till the clouds roll by."

Bowling.

Bowls, or bowling, is one of the most popular and ancient of English pastimes, its origin being traceable to the twelfth century. It was held in such disfavor for years that laws were enacted against it, and it was an illegal pursuit. Alleys were built, however, as it could not be played out of doors during the winter, and the game flourished in spite of opposition. In the beginning of the eighteenth century greens began to increase, while the alleys were rigorously and absolutely suppressed. It soon became a royal game, and no gentleman's place was complete without a bowling green.—New York Press.

There is always hope in a man that actually and earnestly works. In idleness alone is there perpetual despair.—Carlyle.

How It Was Answered

The Prayer of a Lonely Woman

By LILLIAN WARTZ

Mrs. Tompkins, rocking in the shade of her vine wreathed porch, peered down the short length of the street.

"An automobile in front of Pikes'," she murmured bitterly. "I expect it's her brother-in-law from Marlin. He's in the business. I declare it ain't right, it ain't fair!" Her black eyes snapped angrily as she drew back and plied her crochet needle.

"Honk, honk!" sounded defiantly, and a small motorcar turned into Willow street and stopped in front of Mrs. Tompkins' house.

She arose, and an expectant light came into her eyes. Was it possible that she was to have "automobile company" at last? Thus far she was the only resident on the street who could not boast an acquaintance who owned a motorcar.

As she reached the head of the steps a becapped and begoggled head was thrust from under the top, and a man asked quickly:

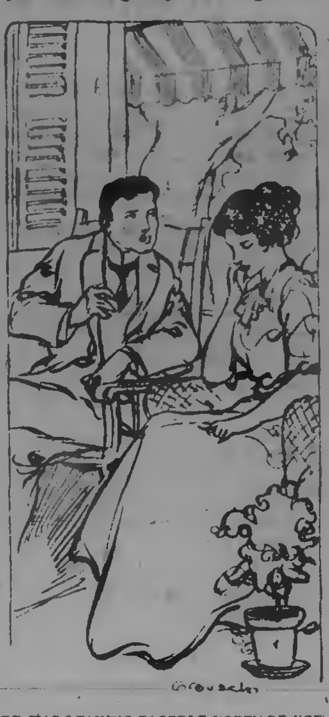
"Does Mrs. Mills live here?"

Amelia Tompkins drew herself up stiffly.

"Next house," she said grimly, and a dull flush reddened her cheeks as she went back to her chair.

"You might have known it was for me," tossed Susie Mills across the space that separated the two houses as she came around from the side door to greet her visitor.

Amelia Tompkins made no reply as she rolled up a length of crocheted lace and tucked it in her workbasket. Her lips were set grimly as she gathered up workbasket and the weekly newspaper and went into the house, carefully latching the screen door behind her.



HE WAS LEANING EAGERLY FORWARD NOW

Her movements were very deliberate. She went through the house and set the teakettle on the stove; then she went upstairs to her bedroom and locked the door. After that she knelt down beside her bed and prayed with real anguish of soul.

Her neighbors in Willow street might have been horrified if they had heard the prayer of Amelia Tompkins. Undoubtedly they would have called her worldly, for she prayed earnestly that the Lord would send her "automobile company."

There were six houses in Willow street, and the only house that knew no automobile company was the white cottage of Amelia Tompkins. It stood at the end of the little blind street and faced all the others, three on a side.

Not one of Amelia's kind hearted neighbors realized how the lonely widow longed for the flash of big lamps before her gate on a summer evening and the gay summons of a motor horn. So many times had she run to door or window at the sound only to see the much desired vehicle pause at the gate of one or another of her more fortunate neighbors. She was glad when night closed down and she could retire to her room, undisturbed by honkings or brilliant flashes of lanterns.

One might say that Amelia Tompkins was foolish, but who can blame her? She was one of a small community. Willow street was a little settlement by itself. Everybody owned his own home, and all attended the same church. Beyond Willow street the city went its own way. To the Widow Tompkins Willow street was life.

And life was very dull without automobile company.

One morning she stood on the front porch watering her hanging baskets. Amelia was fond of flowers, and her little place was a perfect bower of beauty.

"You're looking kinder peaked, Amelia," called Susie Mills, whipping around the corner of the house, very trig in her green veil and brown duster. "What you need is a good spin into the country."

Amelia's pale cheeks flushed, and she looked really pretty. She had a certain plump prettiness that had been much admired when she was a girl. Since her husband had died Amelia had clung tenaciously to black and white gowns, which were not at all becoming. Wearing the right sort of clothes, Amelia would have regained much of her youthful prettiness. She was lonely, and she was sad, and she seldom found cause to smile, which is very sad when one is only forty-five and a comely widow.

"A little spin in the country is what you need, Amelia," repeated Susie, hanging over the gate expectantly.

"I s'pose that's what you're going to take," said Amelia, with what grace she could muster.

"Oh, yes! Fred's going over to Winslow and said he would take me along."

"In the yeast wagon?" flew off the end of Amelia's tongue.

Mrs. Mills turned sharply.

"Yeast automobile is better than walking," she said loftily.

Amelia agitatedly snipped off an unoffending lobelia blossom.

"It's too hot even to walk," she retorted. "I'm going to have a car myself," she said impulsively.

"Humph!" sniffed Susie Mills. "I guess it's coming now," she added sarcastically.

There came a honk from the end of the street, and a large motorcar turned from the avenue into Willow street and came unerringly up to the little white cottage. As it wheeled about and came puffingly to a standstill the solitary occupant stepped to the ground and shook out his long linen duster.

Susie Mills was agog.

"You looking for me?" she chirruped. "I'm Mrs. Mills."

The man smiled pleasantly. "I am looking for Mrs. Tompkins," he informed her, his hand on Amelia's front gate.

"Oh!" cried Mrs. Mills enviously, and she was enraged because the yeast car came noisily up the street just then and bore her away. She could not see the meeting between Amelia Tompkins and the man in the beautiful car.

As for the other motor enthusiasts of Willow street, every man, woman and child found imperative business near the respective front gates.

The stranger pushed open Mrs. Tompkins' front gate and in three long strides had reached the front porch.

Amelia, outwardly calm, but inwardly exulting at this answer to prayer, came forward, tall and rather graceful and very attractive in the uncertain light.

"Mrs. Tompkins?" asked the man courteously.

"Yes," said Amelia. "Won't you sit down?"

"Thank you." He placed a chair for Amelia and sat down on a hickory chair. He laid his motor cap beside him, and Amelia noted with a faint stirring of her pulses that his forehead was very nice and it was too bad that his cap had left a red crease there.

It was rather a familiar looking forehead. The way the brown hair was brushed up and back reminded her of some one. The memory was a painful one for Amelia, for it aroused the one grief of her girlhood. She wondered what this man wanted. To sell something, of course.

"I am afraid that you will think I am impertinent, Mrs. Tompkins," he said, rapping the edge of his cap against the seat and looking at her rather doubtfully, "but I couldn't help coming. I've been wanting to for some time—in fact, ever since—well, since you were free."

Amelia leaned back in the rocker and panted a little. She felt that something very unusual was about to happen in her quiet, uneventful life. Such things happened in books, but—he was speaking again. "It's twenty years since we met, Amelia. I don't wonder you've forgotten me," he blurted forth at last.

Forgotten him?

Amelia leaned forward, her heart in her blue eyes. Could any girl forget her first lover? Could any woman forget the man she had loved and whom her parents had bade her cast off for another and more advantageous match? If such things could be forgotten then Amelia Tompkins could forget Ralph Blake.

"Oh!" she cried sharply. And after a few moments she cried again, "Oh, Ralph!"

He was leaning eagerly forward now, a good looking middle aged man with boyish eyes and a general air of prosperity that seemed out of place upon a man whom Amelia had known only as a shy country youth.

"Amelia, I've waited and waited, and I can't forget you!" he said tensely. "It will take some time for you to pick up the threads after all these years of separation, but I've never changed. I feel just the same as I did that night when—I told you!" he ended in a whisper.

"Ralph, Ralph!" she cried, with a shaking voice, and so the intervening years vanished with the warm breath of true love, and their hands met and afterward their patient lips.

So "automobile company" came to Amelia Tompkins in a strange way. It came in direct answer to prayer, so Amelia firmly believes, and, while Ralph Blake is in the automobile business and owns many cars, somehow, for Amelia, automobile company has resolved itself into one meaning.

That is the daily homecoming of Amelia's husband.

And I may add that the Blakes are generous, and all of Willow street revels in countless automobile excursions.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

Severe Case of a Philadelphia Woman—Her Symptoms.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I had a severe case of nervous prostration, with palpitation of the heart, constipation, headaches, dizziness, noise in my ears, timid, nervous, restless feelings and sleeplessness.

"I read in the paper where a young woman had been cured of the same troubles by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound so I threw away the medicines the doctor left me and began taking the Compound. Before I had taken half a bottle I was able to sit up and in a short time I was able to do all my work. Your medicine has proved itself able to do all you say it will and I have recommended it in every household I have visited."—Mrs. MARY JOHNSTON, 210 Siegel Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Another Bad Case.

Ephrata, Pa.—"About a year ago I was down with nervous prostration. I was pale and weak and would have hysteric spells, sick headaches and a bad pain under my shoulder-blade. I was under the care of different doctors but did not improve. I was so weak I could hardly stand long enough to do my dishes.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me well and happy and I have begun to gain in weight and my face looks healthy now."—Mrs. J. W. HORNBERGER, R. No. 3, Ephrata, Pa.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

The Popinjay.

The origin of the application of the term "popinjay" to a dude was as follows: The popinjay was a figure of a bird shot at for practice. The jay was decked with particolored feathers so as to resemble a parrot and, being suspended on a pole, served as a target. He whose ball or arrow brought down the bird, by cutting the string by which it was hung received the proud title of Captain Popinjay for the rest of the day and was escorted home in triumph.

An Incendiary Fly.

A fly caused a fire in a large house at Westport, New Zealand, not long since. The fire, by which the house was burned to the ground, was due to the fly which escaped from a burning mass from a gas jet into which it had flown, and alighting on the window curtains, set them ablaze.

"He never calls it this 'generation' any more for he says 'this degeneration' would be a better word.

OUR USELESS BUFFALOES.

They Have Passed Away Because They Were Economically Unfit.

As a typical species of American fauna the buffalo had his place in our history, but take him by and large he was a rather useless beast, with no adaptability for civilization. He served his purpose on the plains when men led a nomadic life there and existed on his rifle. But as soon as the range land, over which the buffalo "roamed in countless thousands," became fit for settlement the buffalo was decidedly de trop.

Very little of him was fit to eat. He was worth a bullet when there was no other meat to be had, but a people accustomed to modern steaks and roasts would find him not overappetizing once the novelty wore off. In a word, the buffalo was economically unfit, and he went the way of the unfit.

Had he been conserved he might now be affording opportunity for big game hunters to enjoy themselves in moderation. They are really the only persons who have suffered by his disappearance. To preserve the buffalo as a specimen in our zoos is proper. He is a curiosity and has a historical value. But entirely too many tears have been shed over his destruction. One steer was and still is worth a dozen bison.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Japanese "Movies."

Even the remotest towns in Japan have their moving picture shows, and in large cities they seem to be nearly as plentiful as on this side of the Pacific. In Yokohama there is a whole street of them, and, as the program of each is endless and each picture is announced in huge symbols on a separate variegated banner flying from a tall bamboo pole, the aspect of Theater street is startlingly unique. The pictures illustrating the sensational points of the programs above the entrances and at their sides have a certain quaintness about them, which is accentuated by the fact that they are all originals, not mere stereotyped advertisements printed in raw colors. The "getas" or wooden sandals of the spectators are deposited on a rack before the entrance to a moving picture show, for where other people take off their hats the Japanese leave their shoes.—Popular Mechanics.

RHEUMATISM KEPT HIM IN BED

Suffered Tortures Until "Fruit-a-tives" Cured Him

McMILLAN'S CORNER, ONT.,
SEPT. 30th, 1910

"Your remedy, "Fruit-a-tives" is a perfect panacea for Rheumatism. For years, I suffered distressing pain from Sciatica or Sciatic Rheumatism, being laid up several times a year for days at a time. I went to different doctors who told me there was no use doing anything—it would pass away. They gave me mustard plasters and other remedies that did no good. Plasters took no effect on me—except to blister me and make raw spots. I took many advertised remedies without benefit, but fortunately, about two years ago, I got "Fruit-a-tives" and they cured me.

Since then, I take "Fruit-a-tives" occasionally and keep free of pain. I am satisfied "Fruit-a-tives" cured me of Rheumatism and they will cure anyone who takes them as directed. If this letter would be of value to you, publish it" JOHN B McDONALD.

Indeed, this letter is of value to us and to the thousands of sufferers from Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago and Neuralgia. It points the way to a certain cure. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50 trial size, 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

HINDUISM AND A BANQUET

Young Men Take up Course of Study

Last evening the Y.M.C.A. under the direction of Mr. Hainsworth, held the second of a series of studies of Comparative Religions.

The study was preceded by a social time and banquet. Mr. Grant and Mr. Mouck contributed recitations which were well received.

The subject for the evening was Hinduism. Mr. Hainsworth led in the exposition, and short papers were read by Mr. Harry Taylor on "Origin of Hinduism," and Mr. Elmer Brown on "Religion and the Affairs of Life."

The meetings are held every Wednesday from 7.30 to 8 p.m. Next Wednesday the subject of study will be Buddhism.

BERRY BLOSSOMS

They Appear on Bushes at Stewart Street Garden

Mr. Chas. Miller, 611 Stewart st. called at the Review office to-day with a bunch of raspberry stalks as green as they are generally found in the early fruit season. Besides the fresh appearance of the green leaves, numerous buds were in evidence with some of them in blossom. Mr. Miller states although he has seen raspberry plants quite green at this time of the year, this is his first experience with blossoms.

DR. MARSH'S LECTURES

To The Editor of The Review.

Sir,—I wish to express my approval of your article on the Astronomical Society meeting held last evening.

Dr. Marsh, despite his small audiences, has worked faithfully and cheerfully for some time in Peterborough. I have often felt that his services among us are not valued as fully as they should be. I am glad you emphasise the invitation to young people in charge of their parents. It is a benefit to both. These meetings tend to cultivate in our children a desire for knowledge.

PALPITATION OF THE HEART.

It Is Usually Caused by Nervous or Digestive Troubles.

Palpitation is rarely if ever due to any disease or weakness of the heart. It is almost invariably the result of nervous or digestive trouble. The beat of the heart arises within itself. There are nerves in the muscles of the heart and they regulate its beating, although the speed or rate of the beating is not of their choosing. If they were not held in check they would set a rate about double that which is actually maintained.

The heart is supplied from the brain with two pairs of regulating nerves. One pair, the cardio motor nerves, act only to spur up the heart to quicker action. They are usually inactive, waiting the occasion for applying the spur. The other pair, the cardio inhibitory nerves, are always in action. It has been said that the heart runs in a pair of tightly held reins, and the simile is true, for these nerves check the speed.

Fear, worry, disorder of the stomach or nervous system causes these cardio inhibitory nerves to relax; then the heart begins to race. There is nothing the matter with the heart itself and no one need be alarmed about that organ just because it beats too rapidly. Its palpitation is due to a psychological or a physical cause, something that has caused the relaxation of the reins and allowed the cardio motor nerves to apply the spur.—New York

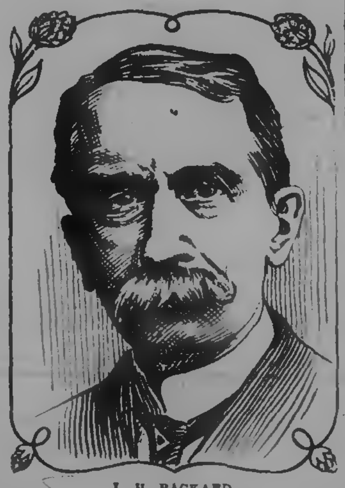
PUT IN CHRISTIANITY

AND COBBLER LAD ROSE TO WEALTH AND POSITION

L. H. Packard of Montreal Had an Exciting Career as an Abolitionist In Civil War Days In the South Before He Came To Canada—Has Been a Great Church Worker for Many Years.

From cobbler's boy to the presidency of one of the most successful businesses of Montreal is a long step, and a striking one. These are the two extremes of the life of Mr. L. H. Packard. His father was a cobbler, and the son was a cobbler, too but by dint of hard work and clear, clean business principles the son has become a manufacturer on a much larger scale than the parent was when the lad began his career.

Mr. Packard was born near Boston, Mass., about seventy-four years ago. There he was educated and later a thrilling series of adventures as an abolitionist before and during the Civil War. He was an ardent advocate of freedom for the slave. Even when he found himself in Atlanta, Georgia, at the outbreak of hostilities between the North and the South he did not change his view of the question. The Southerners watched him carefully for a time, and, then, one day, declaring that they had found some evidence against him in a letter, they clapped him into Castle Thunderbolt for safe keeping. The youth, however, then twenty-two years of age, did not like the appearance of things there at all, and so, at the first opportunity, he escaped and fled. But that chance did not come to him until he had spent several months in his dreary cell.



L. H. PACKARD.

One night he slipped away. A Northern cruiser lay off his prison, so seizing the first boat that he could find, he rowed out to the warship for protection. As he neared it he raised aloft his white flag of truce, lest he should be fired on by the watch. It is one of his most treasured keepsakes now in his fine residence on Rosemount avenue. The white banner was part of an old tablecloth and a handkerchief.

He was a free man again, but the months in the southern cell had undermined his health, and so he was not in the war at all.

Over forty years ago Mr. Packard went to Montreal. A friend persuaded him to open a shop, a one-roomed shack. He worked hard and late, and the fine manufactory of the present time is the result.

The corner-stone of a successful business career, Mr. Packard believes is strict honesty in everything. Honesty to him means, too, the right relation between a man and his God. His business creed, expressed in the logical terms, would be "Seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." Modern conditions have not annulled the divine injunctions of nineteen hundred years ago. A man is greater than his possessions. "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." This is the business creed of Mr. L. H. Packard—the first and main plank in his platform. Al others are subservient to this one.

Mr. Parkard is a hard worker, and takes few holidays. He is a man of widespread activity. For years he has given some of his best strength to the Y. M. C. A. work. For years he has been associated with the First Baptist Church and Sunday School; thirty-seven years he has presided over the Sunday School as its superintendent, giving to it a constant and untiring service. He is a trustee of the same church, a member of the executive of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and identified actively with the Board of Trade of Montreal.

THIRTY FAMILIES BROUGHT TO PETERBORO BY THE HOME RE-UNION ASSOCIATION

During the past season, some thirty families, or a total of one hundred and six people have been brought out from the Old Country by the Home-Re-Union Association of this city. These people are all making good. Only one man failed to pay up, owing to the fact that he was taken ill, but he will make the payments when in a position to do so.

Smugglers' Philanthropy.

At Broadmoor and Perth, Eng., the criminal lunatics have a free supply of the most exquisite pipe tobacco, cigars and cigarettes. In fact, they smoke far finer stuff than the average rich man. Yet all this good tobacco costs the Government nothing. The smugglers of England pay for the smoking of the criminal insane. It is from her confiscated smuggled tobacco that England fills the tobacco boxes of Perth and Broadmoor.—London Telegraph.

Catching a Cobra.

A driver on the Avontuur railway South Africa, while staying at the Gamtoos caught a large cobra de capello alive. The cool way in which he did the trick, says a local paper, sent a cold shiver through every one who saw it. He simply caught hold of the point of its tail, gave it a sudden jerk toward him and caught the dangerous reptile by the back of the head. He then placed it in a biscuit tin. The snake was three inches in diameter and about four feet long

Her Brother.

Ian Maclaren used to tell a child story as sweet as suggestive. While sauntering along a country road in Scotland he met a bonnie wee lassie who was red in the face from the exertion of carrying a chubby youngster in her arms.

"Isn't the baby too heavy for you?" inquired the sympathetic minister.

"Oh, no, sir, he's no' hivvy," gasped the child, lovingly; "he's ma brither!"

Land and Water.

It cannot, of course, be said for certain that we yet know the greatest depth of the sea. But Sir James Ross once took soundings 900 miles to the westward of St. Helena and found the depth to be just under six miles! And the pressure of the water at only 1,100 yards is equal to 15,000 pounds to the square inch.

Altogether there are about 147,000,000 square miles of water on the earth to 49,500,000 square miles of land.—London Globe.

Cage Dropped In Mine.

In a gold mine at Rangalar, India, a cage fell to the bottom, a few days ago. Fifty men were killed, six of them being Italians. The remainder of the victims were coolies.

TRANSFORMING A CITY.

Progress Rio de Janiero Has Made In the Past Few Years.

Within fifteen years Rio de Janeiro has been transformed. Up to that time the city had taken little advantage of its wonderful natural location. The streets were narrow, with rough pavements and open, noisome sewers. As the city is almost under the equator the death rate under such conditions was high.

A decade or so ago Brazil, under the leadership of Dr. Muller and others, began her awakening. Her statesmen realized her tremendous resources and knew that capital and immigration could make her one of the great nations of the world. With that motive therefore, the work of improving Rio de Janeiro began. Eventually the improvements cost $200,000,000.

The city now gives an imposing impression of wealth and prosperity. It has a growing millionaire colony and is gradually coming into its own as a mecca for tourists. The city's water front, many miles long, which formerly was a fever swamp, has become one of the most magnificent boulevards on earth, thoroughly protected from the bay. It is a winding double drive of macadam, separated by lawns and groves of royal palms, while there are walks for pedestrians along the water's edge.—Argonaut.

ENGINES THAT PASS IN THE NIGHT

Ald. Buller Holds Out Hope for People Near Station

During the discussion on "odds and ends" at Board of Works last night Mayor Bradburn lodged a complaint for a resident near the Grand Trunk station, the complaint being against the incessant noise at night from the locomotives.

Ald Buller said he could sleep alright, but he added that he had taken up the matter with train-master McMillan, who stated that the company contemplated removing the round house as soon as provision could be made for the building elsewhere.

The city engineer will improve the drainage on Aylmer street, just north of Dublin and on Stewart street, near the corner of Townsend, and also near the Park Street Baptist church.

RETURN THE MONEY

Is Badly Needed by the Lady Who Lost it

Here is an opportunity for someone to bring joy to a lady residing in the south end of the city, who last night had the misfortune to lose her purse and money. There is sickness in the home and the money is badly needed.

The purse was lost between Hooper's confectionery store and Perry street. It was in a black leather bag and contained a receipt from Turnbull's and the money.

The finder of the property is asked to return it to the Police Station and thus relieve the burden from the shoulders of the owner.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

The date of the "First Aid to the Injured" demonstration which was to have been held in the Y.M.C.A. on Friday, November 1st, has been changed to Monday, November 10, owing to the inability of Capt. R. N. Cotters, of Toronto to be present on the first named date. The demonstration will be held under the auspices of the Peterborough Corps of the St. John's Ambulance brigade.

All Saints' choir will practice tonight in the Parish Hall, at the usual hour.

The W.C.T.U. will meet at the Y.M.C.A. on Friday afternoon at 3.30.

A number of the members of the Charlotte Street Sunday school were entertained by Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Mensell on Tuesday evening. Refreshments were served and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

The 'At Home" held last night in St. Alphonsus Lyceum, under the auspices of St. Peter's T.A.S., was a decided success. The winners at cards were Miss M. Welsh and Mr. Frank Cassidy. The music for the dancing was supplied by Miss Marion Gorman.

St. John's choir will practice tonight in the church at 8 p.m.; boys at 7.30. The music for the festival on Sunday next will be practiced, also some numbers for a choir chorale to be given in the church next month. Choristers are also asked to bring along their copies of Handel's Messiah to-night.

DRUNK WHILE IN CHARGE OF HORSE

Lives of People Must not be Endangered Says Magistrate

A comparatively small docket faced Magistrate Dumble at this morning's session of police court.

Alex McMannus, of Bridgenorth, charged with being drunk while in charge of a horse and rig was fined $5.75 "We can't have the lives of people endangered by drunken, reckless drivers," remarked his worship.

"You know what it means for you have been here before," said his worship in dealing with the case of Edward Murphy, charged with being drunk. He was fined $2

Chas Parks was fined $2 on the charge of disorderly conduct. He pleaded not guilty, but on evidence of Constable Reid, he was found guilty.

Milady's Mirror

Beauty and Borax.

To remove the shiny look common to some complexions add a pinch of borax to the water in which the face is bathed. A weak solution of borax is highly recommended as a wash for sore eyes, redness of the edges of the lids and for tired and smarting eyes. The same solution is also an excellent mouth wash. It is a healing lotion for slight cuts and scratches.

To soften and whiten the hands bathe them in moderately warm water to which a good sized pinch of borax has been added.

To remove the odor of perspiration use borax with a powder puff under the arms after bathing. A solution of borax and bicarbonate of soda, used as a wash for face, neck, arms and hands when going out and returning to the house and especially when visiting the sick, is considered very efficacious in warding off contagious diseases.

If the water for bathing is hard the addition of a little borax will soften it, and a pinch of borax added to the water in which infants are bathed tends to strengthen the skin and prevent chafing. The strength of the solution may vary somewhat according to the purpose for which it is to be used. A teaspoonful to a pint of water is not too strong for the most uses, but for infants and very young children it may be made weaker.

Health and Beauty.

It will be absolutely necessary for you to get a good rear view of your hat as well as a front view. Don't count any minute wasted that is spent at the mirror when purchasing a hat. Look at it from every angle. You will gain much pleasure in wearing a hat that you know is just right and remember its good qualities long after you have forgotten the bill.

Cool baths suit some temperaments and hot baths bring the best results in others. Morning baths act as a tonic for some, and the evening tub is the most appropriate for others. The best thing to do is for each individual to experiment until she has found which seems to have the best effect in her own case and then abide by the rule. Don't make the rule an unbreakable one, however, or you will be laying up trouble for yourself.

If you once get the shower bath habit you will never give it up, so begin tomorrow morning. When using the regular shower be sure to protect the hair with a rubber cap, use pure soap and warm water first; then, when all the soap is rinsed off, rub the body with a handful of sea salt. Shower again with water cool enough to give a pleasurable shock, rub briskly with a coarse towel and a moderately stiff flesh brush and then spray the body with a lotion.

Fine Skin Tonic.

Exercise is a splendid skin tonic. A brisk walk, no matter if in the rain, will freshen the complexion, even as it freshens the flowers, and a simple aperient will do wonders for a muddy skin. It remains for all women to preserve such beauty as they have and to cure the defects which are peculiar to them or that time has wrought. Every skin is different and must be treated accordingly, and it takes a reasoning woman to experiment carefully and find out the proper method of treatment for her skin.

Lack of sleep ages a woman possibly more than anything else. Most women who are inclined to be nervous require from eight to nine hours. Six or seven hours of rest suffice for others. The hours before midnight contain the magic wherein beauty is dispensed freely. One hour before 12 will do more good than two afterward.

Sleep without a pillow, if possible, or a very small one of couch size.

The feet should be higher than the head. This makes the flow of blood over the heart even. Sleep on your right side, with the limbs outstretched and the arms down at the side rather than over the head, which, it is said encourages bad dreams.

A Living Testimonial.

"No man can serve two masters," observed the good parson who was visiting the penitentiary.

"I know it," replied convict 1313. "I'm in here for bigamy."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

NO TRACE OF JAMES BOGUE IN BUFFALO

BUFFALO, N.Y., Oct. 30.—Although the police here have incessantly been on the lookout for James Bogue, the young paying teller of the London (Ontario) branch of the Bank of Toronto, who mysteriously disappeared from the Empire Hotel in Niagara Falls on Oct. 10, no trace of him has yet been secured.

The police received a letter from John Pringle, manager of the London branch, stating that Bogue had not returned to London.

NORWOOD NEWS

Special Correspondence.

Norwood, Oct. 30.—Mrs. Vernon Sanders has returned to her home in Toronto after spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs H. Buck, Peterborough St.

DEATH.

The sad news has been received of the death of Mrs. James Leach at the home of her son, Mr. J. H. Leach, of Matawatchan. She had passed the allotted span of life, being at the time of her death in her 79th year. Four years ago a slight stroke of paralysis impaired her physical abilities, but with a little assistance, she was still able to go about. She was much attached to her old Matawatchan home, and although she had visited a great deal among her daughters here and there, her strong desire was to spend her declining days with her son at Matawatchan. Deceased was a native of Ireland, she came to this country when a little girl nine years of age. Several sisters came with her. In the year 1855 her fortunes were linked in marriage with those of James Leach, they had a family of ten children, three of whom died in infancy, two sons and five daughters survive, viz., Mrs David Boyle, Lanark Township; Mrs. (Dr) Vanluven, Watertown, N.Y.; Mrs. Ephraim Wilson, Peterborough, Mrs. John McFarlane, Keene, Ont.; Mrs Stewart Babcock, Matawatchan; George Leach, at Moyie, B.C, and James Henry Leach, Matawatchan, Ont. Mrs Leach was a member of the Methodist body and lived a consistant life; her domestic life was a beautiful example of parental love and devotion, and her children caught from her the inspiration of affection, each was interested in the others welfare. Her passing leaves a vacant place in the family circle that can never be filled.

INDIA'S WOVEN WIND

England's cotton trade is but in its infancy compared with the industry in India. "For what are 300 years against 3,000?" says a writer. "Fabrics as fine as any that can be turned out at the present day by the most perfect machinery in Lancashire were produced by the nimble fingers of Hindu weavers a thousand years before the invasion of Britain by the Romans. When Britons were shivering in their woad, in fact, the Hindus were glorying in garments of a texture so fine as to have earned the poetic description of 'woven wind.'"

Egret Is Protected.

Shooting the white egret is prohibited in Egypt, according to a law promulgated last year. The intention is to propagate the species. Ghaffirs, whose duty it is to see that this law is respected, are stationed in the neighborhoods inhabited by the birds. A new colony has been discovered in Lower Egypt, which makes five localities to which the species have been traced. Breeding stations have been established at Sakha, Giza and Gezira. The white egret is a great worm eater.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

When Baby Cries.

A baby may cry because it is hungry—and frequently it does—but it has other causes of complaint. Therefore when baby cries—

Look for some cause besides hunger, especially if it has just been fed. Don't stuff a nipple in its mouth and let it go at that.

Perhaps it is tired of lying in one position so long. Turn it over.

Quite likely it is thirsty. Give it a drink of cooled boiled water—no ice in it.

Perchance its clothes are uncomfortably tight, or a pin may be sticking it. Correct this.

It may be complaining about being too warm. Make it comfortable by removing all unnecessary clothing.

Perhaps it is tired of being fondled and wants to be let alone. Let it sleep all it will—always alone. Don't handle the baby more than is actually necessary. Cut out the "upsie-daisy" and "trot-trot to Boston" business.

Maybe it is objecting to the quality of the air of the room. Give it lots of fresh air. Let it sleep outdoors as much as possible.

Labadists of Holland.

There is a sect in Holland known as the Labadists, among whose members the use of mirrors is strictly prohibited. Their founder, Jean de Labadie, a seventeenth century Calvinist minister, attracted many followers, but after his death they dwindled down, and now they are found only in a few remote villages of Friesland. Traveling in Holland in 1893, Lecky lit upon a colony of Labadists. "Intermarrying mainly among themselves," he writes, "they have quite a distinct type—a singularly beautiful one, with their delicate lips and a curious air of refinement. They are fishermen—very prosperous—and their houses, with their china and silver ornaments and prints of the house of Orange and great Bibles with silver clasps and perfectly preternatural neatness, are very interesting to see." — London Chronicle.

Tale of a Lost Will.

A lost will found in a ceiling at Chatsworth reminds us of the curious case of Lord Hailes' will. He was a Scotch judge, and when he died in 1792, as no testamentary paper could be discovered, the heir-at-law was about to take possession of the estates to the exclusion of his daughter and only child. She sent some of her servants to lock up the family mansion, which she had to give up, and from some window shutters there dropped out upon the floor from behind a panel the missing will, which secured her all the family estates and property. Why do people take the trouble to make, sign wills properly attested and then conceal them? Can they enjoy a posthumous joke?—London Spectator.

RHEUMATIC SUFFERERS ASTONISHED

RHEUMA Acts on Kidneys, Liver and Blood the First Day and Out Goes Uric Acid Poison.

Rheumatic sufferers astonished;

Anybody can afford to pay 50cts. to get rid of terrible Rheumatism, Sciatica or Gout, and that's all RHEUMA costs at Warne Drug Co. and they say if it doesn't do all that is claimed for it, money back.

It's wonderful how speedily this simple remedy takes hold and how the sore muscles limber up and the swollen joints come down to normal. Make no mistake—RHEUMA costs but little, but it's the best remedy you can find to drive Rheumatic poison from the system and bring back health to misery-racked bodies.

"I had Rheumatism for a long while, and tried many medicines, but was not cured until I used RHEUMA. I cannot praise RHEUMA too highly. My advice to those suffering from Rheumatism is to use the great remedy, as I believe it will effect a permanent cure in any case." — C. B. Lanham, Sattes, W. Va., April 27, 1912.

ADVERTISING

A STORE'S importance is rightly judged by its advertising. Not altogether by the size of the advertisement, but by size and tone, and quality of announcement.

What the store has to say is one thing. Quite as important is how it says it.

Given that the clerical force is competent and up-to-date, it will say, over the counter, the very best to be said in reference to the goods enquired for. It may, and should, suggest other goods, not in the customers view.

This implies that the customer is in the store. But what brings him or her there? The wish to buy and the belief it is a good place to buy at.

How is this learned of?

By advertising. The advertisement is a message, an intelligent middleman, doing service between seller and buyer. The space talks to thousands, even while the store is closed for the night.

Use The REVIEW and tell the story of your store and its opportunities for good service.

BOSTON, "trot" and tango have brought in their train special fashions in dresses, shoes and stockings, for to dance these modern steps well one must have a frock that is not too long, and, consequently, pretty shoes and stockings.

Some of the latest Paris models are pictured here, and their graceful simplicity gives a very good idea of the type of dress that looks best for these dances. One, of white tulle posed over pale pink satin, is just striking enough for these odd dance steps. The little shortwaisted corsage is Greek in character, almost sleeveless, the material simply caught once at the shoulder and once over the arm. Of the four ruffles on the skirt one is of black net and all are cut in little points on the lower edge, outlined with black chenille and weighted with round white or black pearl buttons. The black ruffle is caught at intervals with little pink roses and tufts of black tulle. White silk clocked stockings are worn with white satin slippers having very high heels and an oval slide buckle of rhinestones set in silver.

A decorative tassel that will fly out attractively with dancing steps is made of the same kind of crystal beads that embroider the white tulle tunic. This tunic is original in that, while it comes on the outside of the old rose satin skirt, it goes under the white tulle fichu corsage showing through translucently. Sleeves, as such, as in most of the new evening dresses, are lacking. A cap sleeve effect is made by catching the fullness of the fichu under the arm. A large velvet pansy is thrust into the belt. With black silk stockings are worn black satin slippers, laced about the ankle with black satin ribbons. A black velvet hat almost covered with white feathers repeats the note of black.

No sleeves at all is the feature of another of these dancing frocks, the arms passing through apertures in the loose bloused corsage. The gown is a combination of plain and crystal chiffon over white satin. In spite of its filmy character there are four thicknesses of material on the skirt—first, the white satin foundation, then a layer of plain chiffon, then the crystal embroidery and lastly, over the hips, a drapery of the chiffon. The drapery is a [illegible] modernizing a straight up and down last year's evening gown. A pale blue felt and a black tulle chou gives a dash of color that goes well with the black velvet shoes and silk stockings.

Youthful looking capes are draped with individuality over filmy dancing frocks. Some are very simple in cut, depending on their wearer and the material used for the artistic effect. Black taffeta lined with pink silk makes one model, the outside part gathered onto a very small yoke, the edge left ruffled. A tiny collar is just wide enough to hold one button and loop.

Modish shoes and stockings from Paris, on latest lines, show some original departs. At the [illegible] a pair of white shoes [illegible] with a broad ribbon [illegible] the instep caught at the outside [illegible] with a jewelled slide. A pair of [illegible] and [illegible] straps laced with white satin ribbon, decorative plaques outlined with narrow satin [illegible] afternoon dress were tied with

With a coral evening dress were worn satin pleatings, and another pair of [illegible] bows of black ribbon embroidpatent leather shoes with two filagree cut strap slippers worn with a black ered with bright flowers.

With a blue brocade dress, slippers of the same material were worn, and a pair of brocaded slippers, worn with a plain satin dress, were interwoven with tinsel threads and flowered sprays. The stockings had inserts of white Chantilly lace embroidered with pearls and brilliants.

A mauve Greek style gown had matching stockings and satin slippers laced through crocheted rings with ribbon over the instep and ankle in cothurne fashion. Silver buckles on the front were set with rhinestones.

With a white lace dress satin slippers had an embroidered slender vine design running along the outside and inside of the slipper. On the toe a double looped satin bow was caught with a small oblong fancy slide.

SANDALS ARE EASILY MADE.

THE Parisian fashion of ribbon lacings, now so much in evidence on afternoon footgear, has proved a boon to women with narrow feet of the kind that simply refuse to stay in pumps. It has also demonstrated its usefulness to the girl who delights in the various and complicated steps of the tango, where a slipper may cause some damage, not to say much embarrassment.

By a series of buttonholed flat loops a clever New York woman has devised by means of these lacings a way not only to keep her pumps on, but also to prevent the lacings from slipping down over the ankles once the topmost bow has been tied. She purchased four yards of black satin ribbon, five-eighths of an inch in width, which was divided into four equal lengths. Two strands of the ribbon were then sewed on each side of the pump, about an inch from the centre front, and at a point about two inches from the back flat buttonholed loops the width of the ribbon were made on each side.

The next step was to make three of these same loops on the stockings to be worn; the first loop about three inches above the pump, on the stocking seam, the second about two and a half inches above that, on the same seam, and the third on the front of the stocking about halfway up the leg.

THE SPORTING WORLD

SIX MEN GAME AGAIN; SALARIES TO BE CUT

OTTAWA, Oct. 30— The cut in N. H.A. salaries this season will figure out around thirty-three per cent. and be confined to the ultra paid players of last year. A contract that called for $1,500 the winter 1912-13 will read $1,000 this season.

The Ottawa management intimated this cut was necessary for the propagation of the game, and believed the players themselves would look at it with reasonable views. Big salaries were all o.k. for the team members, but the promoters who make professional hockey possible did not trail along facing deficits each year. It takes packed houses as it is to come out on the right side.

Players will be paid according to merit, and salaries kept a secret, as they are in baseball. The men will be subject to suspension for indifferent playing and fines for insubordination and failure to live up to training rules.

Six men hockey will be in vogue again in the east, while the west will stick to the seven men game.

HOCKEY

Arrangements are already being made to have Bowmanville represented on the Ontario Hockey Association map this winter with a strong aggregation of players. The best of last year's players are available and several other "stickers" of O.H.A. calibre have been secured. It is likely the team will enter the Intermediate series. Mr. Wm. Hancock, Toronto, who coached the team last year so satisfactorily will in all probability be in charge again. In conversation with "Bill" Saturday he warned us to be ready for some big surprises on the local team when the season opened. — Bowmanville Statesman.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

The senior gymnasium class had a bumper crowd out last night when 33 men enjoyed the class work and basketball.

The following men appointed Captains for basketball teams by the members of the class, are requested to meet Friday evening at 7.30 to choose teams: W. Rew, A. Thephald, A. Skilleter, W. Flowers, P. Foster, A. Flowers, H. Mulhern, C. Stuart.

Yesterday was Physical Examination for the boys of the Junior Class when Dr. T. P. McCullough examined the entire class.

Thursday and Friday, December 4th and 5th, has been selected as the dates for the Great Hayseed Carnival.

Tuesday, November 18th is the date of the Senior Banquet, which will be held on the gymnasium floor. Every effort will be put forth to make this occasion a brilliant success. Prominent speakers have been secured and an orchestra will furnish music.

If a young man marries a slender girl and she develops into a heavy weight in after years he can see where he get more than he bargained for.

PAIN IN MY BACK IS ALL GONE

Since I Got a Box of Gin Pills

CHURCH ST., CORNWALLIS, N.S.
January 23rd,

"About a year ago, I was suffering so much with a dreadful Lame Back and Hips, that I could not stand up straight. I was informed by a friend about GIN PILLS. I got a box. It helped me immediately. I have taken about twelve boxes and the pains in my back and hips are all gone. I cannot speak too highly of the wonderful effects of your GIN PILLS".

COLD COMFORT.

It Came After the Little Faker Had Got His Punishment.

The east end small boy had sadly misbehaved and was locked in his room. Pretty soon his mother heard him calling.

"Muvver," said the shrill voice. "I'm goin' to bust the window and fall out!"

The mother made no reply. Again the shrill voice arose:

"Muvver, I've found some matches, an' I'm goin' to set fire to the curtains."

The mother remained indifferent. Once more the voice hailed her:

"Muvver, don't you smell sumthin' burnin'?" Even this drew no response.

"If you don't smell nothin'," the voice went on, "it's 'cause I pulled off all th' match heads an' swallowed 'em, an' I'm goin' to die. Do you hear that, muvver; I'm goin' to die."

By this time the mother was thoroughly incensed, and, hastily preparing a cup of musturd and hot water, she hurried upstairs.

"If you've swallowed match heads," she announced, "you'll have to swallow this to keep them company." And then she poured the nauseating stuff down his throat.

A little later the aggravating youngster, sadder, wiser and much humbled, concluded to take the balance of his punishment in silence.

"I didn't really swallow the matches, muvver," he contritely explained.

"I knew you didn't, sonny," replied the mother.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Tidy to the Last.

In "Glimpses of the Past" Miss Elisabeth Wordsworth tells this story:

One stormy day a fishing smack was wrecked and fast sinking. When the skipper came on deck he found the mate busy swabbing.

"What's the use of that, Jack? Don't you see she's sinking?"

"Yes, master, I know it; but, for all that, I'd like the old gal to go down clean and tidy."

The Manifestation.

"Papa," said the young girl sweetly, "I feel it in my bones that you are going to buy me a new hat."

"Ah, do you?" chuckled papa. "In which bone do you feel it?"

"Well, I'm not sure, but I think it's in my wishbone."

In a Way.

"Are you acquainted with Mrs. Hifly, your fashionable neighbor?"

"Only in a roundabout way. Her cat boards at my house."—Kansas C. Journal.

A Little Story Of a Big Town

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1913, by American Literary Press.

I stood under a lamppost on Hester street, watching the overtired children as they fell asleep, while sitting on the steps, the men as they smoked and rested, the women as they dragged themselves wearily along and purchased a bit here and there to stock the family cupboard for Sunday. On Canal, on Grand, along the Bowery, in Chatham square, men and women are laughing in good nature as they elbow each other and throng the stores to purchase ornaments and luxuries. Here men and women are sullen and silent, many of them wondering where the barest necessaries are to come from.

"If you won't help me we shall have to go hungry tomorrow."

It was a little old woman who had approached so softly that I did not hear her.

"Where do you live?" I asked.

She pointed to a four story tenement almost opposite.

"Any family?"

"A sick husband and four children, sir."

"Very well; lead on, and I will follow."

She kept looking back, and there was a puzzled expression on her face.

"This way—that's a child—keep to the rail—don't fear the dog—we're almost up."

"And as we reached the upper hall we turned to the right, passed down a blind hall running the other way, and presently she pushed open a door, and we entered a room lighted by a smoking lamp.

"John, children, it's a stranger come to see us," said the woman as I stood and looked about.

Here were two small rooms, three chairs, a cupboard, an old table, a wretched bedstead and more wretched bedding, on which lay a man. Across the room was a mattress, on which the children were lying as I entered. In the other room I saw a stove, a washtub and a bucket of coal.

"Sit down, sir," said the woman as she placed a chair.

The husband looked to be fifty years old. He had the bright eyes and the hollow cheeks of a consumptive.

"Are you a doctor?" he asked as I sat down.

"No."

"The rent is overdue, but we haven't even bread to eat," he said.

"I am not your landlord nor his agent. I simply came up to see you—to see if you were sick, to see what you needed."

"John, you know how it is with us. I asked him on the street for money, and he's come up to—to"—

"To see if you were really in need of help," I said as she paused. "Have you had any supper?"

"Just a crust for him, sir, but nothing for the rest, and but for you the children would be crying with hunger."

"Very well. I'll mind the house while you go out. Get bread, butter, tea, milk, sugar, potatoes and meat."

"You—you don't mean it?" she gasped.

The man rose up on his elbow to get a better look at me, and I saw something like alarm in his face. To quiet him I said:

"The case is clear enough. You used to get along all right, but sickness came; you could no longer work; you have reached your last penny. Why shouldn't I help you a bit?"

"It's sadly enough we need it, God knows, but—but"—

"But you can't make out why I came up here?"

"No, sir."

"Well, don't worry about it. Queer things are always happening to all of us. How long have you been ill?"

"Over a year, sir."

"And how have you lived?"

"By using the few dollars I had put by and by selling whatever we could spare until we are as you see us. I once earned my $3 a day, sir, and no poor man's family was better cared for."

"And today you are penniless and hungry?"

"Aye, sir, and as I laid here I'd have cut my throat if I had a knife."

By and by, as we talked, the mother and children returned. I heard the latter shouting, even on the lower stairs. Each had a load, and the wife returned after a lamp, a bottle of wine and some other things. Poor soul! She was laughing and crying by turns. And to have seen those forlorn children sit down on the floor and eat the dry bread as famishing wolves devour their prey was something to pain your heart.

"It's real meat, John," said the woman as she came to his bedside—"real meat, and real potatoes, and real sugar and tea, and there is a God after all!"

"Yes, there is a God, Mary!" he whispered as he wept.

And while I sat there the wife cooked supper, and the hunger of all was satisfied, and the two smaller children afterward knelt at the bedside and repeated the Lord's Prayer and were asleep three minutes later.

It was only a drop, only a little ray of hope shining through the darkness and gloom of their poverty and despair, but to have caught that one ray filled them with new strength to battle in the future, and I had touched elbows with still another phase of humanity.

CHATTY WELSHMEN.

Most Talkative, It Is Said, of All the British Islanders.

Is the Welshman the most garrulous man in the British isles? The result of an impartial test by a London newspaper has shown that for actual talkativeness the typical Welshman heads the list; next in order come Irish, then Scots, and last of all the Englishman.

Unobtrusively made in a number of well known London restaurants, clubs and public places, the tests invariably gave the same results. By means of a test watch the following table was compiled:

Welshmen—Very talkative, animated in manner and speaking at an average rate of 200 words a minute.

Irishmen—Also very talkative, but less animated in manner; average rate of speech, 160 words.

Scotchmen—Far less talkative and deliberate in manner; spoke at an average rate of 120 words.

Englishmen—Almost silent, rarely the first to speak; dogmatic and deliberate in manner, speaking 100 to 120 words a minute.

The comparative silence of the men in striking contrast to the vivacious chatter of the women folk, was as usual noticeable. A curious detail was that dark men were always the bigger talkers.

CONTINUE FIGHT FOR OWNERSHIP OF STREETS

Net Work of Underground Services Has Assumed a Serious Stage—Newly-laid Cable Damaged—

Engineering Department Has no Means of Ascertaining Where Services Are Now Located—Jumps Have Been Necessary

Various opinions were expressed when the letter of the Bell Telephone Co., referred by Council to the B[illegible] of Works, was read at the meeting last night.

The company will extend their conduit work if the city will give them the right of way into lanes. Some poles could then be removed from the sidewalk curbs, and street paving would also be facilitated.

Mayor Bradburn pointed out that the city could not give [illegible] right of way.

Ald. Buller held that Council should pass a resolution and join with other municipalities in the fight to have the Government return the ownership of the streets to the cities.

Mayor Bradburn told of the deputation's visit to Ottawa this summer, when the Government promised consideration. "It was simply a matter of the municipalities sticking together and fighting till something was done," he said.

It was explained that the companies using poles on the streets got that permission years ago when it was desirable to encourage the companies.

"Now," said Ald. Buller, "it has become one of the most serious things we have to contend with."

Objection was taken to the manner in which underground work was being carried out. The engineer stated that it had been necessary to make jumps to get past other services. He had no means of knowing where the services were laid. When work was done by the several companies they did not acquaint his department with the location. What was necessary was a complete plan of all services.

Ald. Johnston said that Mr. Greer had informed him that during the operations of the Gas Company a pick had gone through the underground cable for the Hydro. The condition of affairs was considered to be quite serious and the Board was unanimous in the opinion that action should be taken.

The clerk was instructed to notify the Telephone Co. that an agreement similar to the one made in 1907 would be satisfactory to the city, but right of way on private property could not be given.

SOCIETY

HALL — LEE

Toronto News— A pretty wedding took place this afternoon at quarter to four in Deer Park Presbyterian Church, when the marriage was solemnized of Miss Edith Grace Lee, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Lee, and Mr. I. Hamilton Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hall, of Peterborough. The Rev. George B. McLeod officiated. The bride, who was given away by her father, was wearing her travelling costume, a smart navy blue tailored suit and blue French hat and brown marabout ruff. She carried a bouquet of orchids and lily of the valley and wore the groom's gift a diamond bracelet. Her sister, Miss Theodora Lee, as bridesmaid, wore a pretty gown of King's blue chiffon over ivory charmeuse and chinchilla hat with blue feathers. Her flowers were pink roses and her gift an emerald and pearl pin. Mr. Harry Hall, was his brother's best man and Mr. Walter Lee and Mr. Lionel Amsden acted as ushers. The two latter received gold cuff links from the groom, the gift to the former being a silver cigarette case. Mr. and Mrs. Hall left immediately after the ceremony for New York. On their return they will reside in St. Clair avenue.

LAPLANTE—BARTLEY

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in the Church of the Sacred Heart this morning at 7.30, when Rev. J. O'Brien united in the bonds of matrimony Mr. Herman LaPlante son of Mr. Diono LaPlante, Romaine street, to Miss Martha Bartley, also of this city.

They were assisted by Miss Agnes Bartley and Mr. Joseph LaPlante.

Mr. and Mrs. LaPlante will reside in the city.

KEEN — LOWE

The home of Mr. Joseph Lowe, Mount Pleasant, was the scene of a pretty house wedding yesterday afternoon, at 1.30, when his daughter Jessie, was united in marriage to Mr. George H. Keen of Toronto. Rev. H. J. Keith officiated.

The bride was attired in white silk and brocaded crepe de chene trimmed with shadow lace and pearls. Her bouquet was orchids and lily of-the-valley. Miss Mary Lowe the flower girl, carried a shepherd's crook and Miss Every Bland as ring bearer carried the ring on a cushion of white satin. Both were dressed in pink voile with lace trimmings. The gift of the groom to the bride was a gold watch bracelet, and to the bride's attendants, gold bracelets.

Mr and Mrs. Keen left on the afternoon train for Toronto, Buffalo and New York. The bride's travelling costume was navy blue serge and black velvet hat with plumes.

Mr. Charles Hopkins of Kingston, is a guest at the National.

Mr. George Thornton, of Smith Falls, is in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Williams, of Toronto, are visitors in the city.

Mr. F. L. Brown, of Orillia, is in the city.

Mr H. Phelan Collector of Inland Revenue, is in Cobourg to-day on official business.

Among the local people who attended the Chivalry Club's dance in Havelock last night were: Misses Pentland and Puffer and Messrs. D. C. Bradshaw, H. Cressman, N. McCrimmon and G. Reid Bodley's Orchestra, of Toronto, provided the music.

CITY DO IT'S OWN PAVING

Ald. Duffus Favors Purchase of Complete Plant

When paving operations were discussed by the Board of Works last night, Ald. Duffus expressed the opinion that the city should secure a paving plant and continue the work.

Mayor Bradburn favored the central district being completed before operations were turned toward other of the city.

BOARD OF WORKS HAS $3000 TO FINISH OUT THE YEAR

How Some of it Will be Expended — Crossing For George St. North

The Board of Works has $3,000 left out of their appropriation for the year and Ald. Johnston put up quite an argumnet for a small slice of it at last night's meeting. He asked for a crossing on George street between Smith and Barnardo Ave., and one on Aylmer street from the south side of Dublin street.

The Board had again turned down his plea for work on Dennistoun Ave., with the explanation that it would be attended to early next year.

When he broached the crossing question, it looked liked another turndown, whereupon the north ward representative claimed that it was always a case of money stringency when he wanted any work done.

Finally the tide turned in his favor and both crossings were passed.

About this time someone mentioned "overdraft," but Mayor Bradburn said he would sign no cheques that would bring about any such situation.

ELIAS AVE.

The Board cannot give Elias Ave. a granolithic sidewalk this year, but to accommodate the few residnets of the avenue, a temporary plank walk will be provided as soon as the city engineer can arrange for the work.

Sidewalk operations are about completed for the season. The steam roller and stone crusher are closed down.

Mills Bros., Toronto asked for information relative to the method to be employed in constructing the proposed sewage scheme. The Clerk will reply.

An account of $37.35 for hose was received from the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

J. C. Matchett, city teamster, asked for two weeks' holidays. The request was granted, the city engineer to decide the dates.

Bennet & Goodwill, for Miss Dickson, on Dickson street, complained of the sewer service. The sewer runs about one foot above the cellar floor. It will cost between $500 and $600 to make the service satisfactory.

The city engineer will make a report but it is not likely that the work will be done this year.

SWEEPER FOR THE PAVEMENTS

Merchants Must Not Use George Street as Garbage Dump

A sweeping machine which has been kept under cover, will be used on the new pavements, but there will be plenty of work, without merchants adding to it by way of using the main street or others to throw peelings and other refuse.

It has been claimed that this has been done on George street. Whether the practice will continue now that the street is partly paved remains to be seen.

WANTS BALANCE OF HIS ACCOUNT

Willis Chipman Asks to Have Account Settled

Ald. Buller opened a letter at the Board of Works meeting last night announced that Willis Chipman, who had charge of the engineering end of the pumping station and sewers on Aylmer and Romaine streets, asked payment of the balance of his account, given as $723. No action was taken. At the same time Mr. Chipman is the winning side of the argument, and is slowly, but surely, getting the full amount of his account and the city is paying extras which are necessary to coax the White Elephant to act like a real service.

COMPANY FEARS WATER OVERFLOW

Savings and Loan Co. Will Hold City Liable

Members of the Board of Works are not quite pleased with the letter from the Toronto Loan and Savings Company, which states that the city will be held liable for damages caused by the water entering the cellar of the Madill drug store.

At one point the sidewalk curb is not more than two inches, but this is because the sidewalk has sagged.

Mayor Bradburn suggested that the grating be closed up with cement. This would prevent water from entering the premises.

Ald. Johnston understood that the sidewalk had been so constructed in the first place to meet the request of the company.

Officers Here

Col. Hemming and Major Herden of Kingston are in the city in connection with the regimental tours for the officers, which are being held today and to-morrow.

The Ladies' Aid of the Health Association will meet in the City Council Chamber, Friday, October 31, at 3.30.

OFF TO SHANTIES

The Peterborough Lumber Company sent another large party of men to the tall timbers this morning. The lumbermen are anticipating a heavy cut this season and preparations are being made accordingly.

MISS BERNICE McCABE,
a little English miss of seventeen who will play the leading role in the musical success, "The Quaker Girl," which comes to The Grand Opera House—matinee and night—Saturday, November 1st. Miss McCabe was seen in this part at the Adelphi, in London, England.

NO TRUTH IN REPORT

Pupil not Punished With Undue Severity

The Review is assured by Inspector Mowat that there is absolutely no truth in the report circulated, that a pupil of the East Ward School was punished with undue severity by one of the teachers.

The real facts are that the pupil was given a light punishment because one rule of the school was disregarded.

The pupils were warned against damaging the new school furniture, but this particular pupil disobeyed.

Mr. Park was named as the teacher who administered the punishment but this is not correct.

HALLOWE'EN TEA

OBITUARY

Mrs. Bissonnette

Mrs. T. Bissonette passed away this morning at her late home 458 Elm street, after a lingering illness. She is survived by her husband and five children, May, Kathleen, Margaret Frances and Patrick.

The funeral will take place Saturday afternoon to St. Peter's Cathedral and cemetery.

RAILWAY MEN BURN MORTGAGE

An Interesting Event Was Held at Belleville

(Belleville, Ontario)

Last evening was a joyful time in the circles of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Enginemen and the Ladies' Auxiliary. The former were at home to the ladies who have done so much for the association here in raising funds for the new hall on Pine street.

The function took the form of a mortgage burning. The last vestige of debt has been wiped off the building and now it stands free of encumbrance.

Mr. John Fitzgerald occupied the chair and put through a unique program, not the least importance of which was the mortgage-burning, which took place amid the loudest cheers from the large number of railway people present.

Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., was cordially welcomed and delivered an enthusiastic address.

Welland Ship Canal
Section No. 5
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and marked "Tender for Section No. 5, Welland Ship Canal," will be received at this office until 12 o'clock noon on Tuesday, November 18th, 1913.

Plans, specifications and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on or after this date at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Engineer in Charge, St. Catharines, Ontario.

Copies of plans and specifications may be obtained from the Department on the payment of the sum of fifty dollars. To bona fide tenderers this amount will be refunded upon the return of the above in good condition.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind, that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque on a chartered Bank of Canada, for the sum of $150,000.00 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals, must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,
L. K. JONES,
Asst. Deputy Minister and Secretary.

"This is a free land, every man can vote just the way which pleases him"—Page 2, Col. 1.

ESTABLISHED 1879 PETERBOROUGH, ONT., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1913 TEN CENTS PER WEEK.

OVERWHELMING MAJORITY IN FAVOR OF HYDRO BY-LAW

Popular Disapproval of Private Power Interest, Which Was Shown Recently by Refusal to Grant Extension of Lighting Contract is Evidenced Again by a Poll of 715 to 48 Votes.

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 31.—By the overwhelming vote of 715 to 48, the property owners of St. Catharines yesterday carried the Hydro-electric enabling bylaw and declaring in favor of the money bylaw for an expenditure of $116,000 for a stepping down plant and distributing system by a majority of 626.

The vote was rather small. The Dominion Power & Transmission Co. made no attempt to fight the issue whatever. Had there been an organized contest it is generally believed that the majority would have been still greater. Only a short time ago the ratepayers turned down the bylaw to grant a three years' renewal of the street lighting contract to the company, the negative majority being 369. The ratepayers chose this course in the face of a reduction of the company's rates to private consumers from 7 cents to 5 cents per kilowat hour. This means that the people will still continue to pay 2 cents more per hour to the company until the Hydro system is ready for use, which the engineers estimate will be eight months.

The ratepayers carried another bylaw by a majority of 680 to grant partial exemption from taxation to Lord & Burnham, an American firm, which will at once begin the erection of a Canadian branch factory here at a cost of $75,000 for the manufacture of steel greenhouses, steam boilers and other equipment.

PUBLIC HEALTH BUREAU

Federal Department is Suggested by Doctors Meeting at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Oct. 31.—The provincial conference called by Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to discuss the question of pollution of navigable waterways, which opened here yesterday morning, adopted a resolution asking the Government to consider the desirability of establishing a Federal Department of Public Health, and also thanked George H. Bradbury, M.P. (Selkirk, Man.), and the special committee of the House for its investigations. The conference also suggested that the Commons' committee continue its work next session.

Regarding the Public Health Department the following resolution was adopted on motion of Dr. Lachapelle, Montreal, seconded by Dr. Seymour, Regina:

"Whereas in the past sanitary questions affecting public health have suffered from the non-existence of a Federal Health Department, this conference considers the creation of a Federal Department of Public Health might well receive the early attention of the Government.

"The conference believes such a department would be of assistance in solving interprovincial problems as to the protection of public health."

GATUN LOCK SAFE

Secret Tests Show it Immune From Artillery Fire.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31. — Secret tests, recently made by the third division of the Atlantic battleship fleet, under command of Rear Admiral Usher, are said to have disclosed the fact that the Panama Canal virtually has nothing to fear from the fire of an enemy's fleet, so far as the Gatun and other important locks are concerned. This information leaked out from the Navy Department yesterday.

The tests, started last winter, are declared to have developed the fact that the fleet could not determine the location of the Gatun lock. It is intimated that the data made public and supposed to give the topography of the canal, were purposely inaccurate. In adidtion it was discovered that the hills intervening rendered the locks almost immune from damage by bombardment from the sea. Extension of the breakwater on the Atlantic side has made it possible to mount long range guns so far out that the approach of an enemy's fleet could readily be checked.

Elaborate plans for the mining of the approaches to the canal on both the Atlantic and Pacific already have been completed.

Make Hockin Scapegoat.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Herbert S. Hockin was held to share with John J. McNamara the whole responsibility for the dynamite plots, by attorneys who argued for the other convicted men before the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday.

Hockin, sentenced to six years' imprisonment at Leavenworth, is the only one of the thirty-three men convicted at Indianapolis last December, who is serving out his term without appealing. During the trial he was accused of betraying his co-conspirators and was abandoned by the other defendants.

Would Abolish Death Sentence.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—A cable from Madrid says:

The Institute of Criminology, one of the foremost scientific associations in Spain, sent a strong recomendation yesterday to the Government for the abolition of capital punishment. Almost simultaneously a large number of students, headed by those of the Madrid Law School, paraded before the palace and asked the king for the pardon of several convicts sentenced to death.

Arson Is Charged.

BROCKVILLE, Oct. 31. — Joseph and Anthony Belfoy, brothers, are in jail on remand, charged with burning the barn and outbuildings of Maxime Lortie, a local gardener.

Three different fires occurred on the Lortie premises, two of which were extinguished. The third got beyond control, and the structures were entirely consumed, with contents, including one horse. Lortie carried no insurance.

Drowned In Lake Nipissing.

NORTH BAY, Oct. 31. — Joseph Caye fell overboard from a small steamboat on Lake Nipissing and was drowned while en route with a party of laborers to work in a lumber camp on the south side of the lake. He was 35 years of age.

BRITAIN PRESSED

Papers Urge That She Participate in Panama Exhibition.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—With the view of asking the British Government to reconsider its decision in regard to participation in the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco in 1915, an influential committee has been formed here composed of the heads of the great steamship, commercial and manufacturing companies.

The London papers, in editorials this morning, call the Government's attention to the organization of a committee to take up the question of British participation in the Panama Pacific Exposition, and strongly urges reconsideration of its previous decision.

The Times argues that much new information has come to light, tending to justify Great Britain in being officially represented, while the reduction in the American tariff in itself constitutes a new fact of sufficient weight to change the directions of British policy.

Other papers employ similar arguments.

PRESSES AND EQUIPMENT DESTROYED

Fire at Toronto Causes Damage of $40,000

Canadian Press Despatch.

TORONTO, Oct. 31.—Fire, which broke out about half-past three this morning at 39 to 43 Pearl street, destroyed six printing presses, a cutting machine and other apparatus used in lithographing and resulted in damage to the building, machinery and stock of forty thousand dollars. The tenants suffering were: Alexander & Cable Lithographing Co.; The Aldine Press; P. S. Cooper Co., Embroidery Manufactures, and J. R. Irving, Bookbinders.

Alleged To Have Murder Record.

MONTREAL, Oct. 31.—That William Campbell, alias William Jackson, colored, who will be brought to trial here next week for the murder of George Muir two months ago, is Charles Jones, wanted in Cincinnati for several brutal murders committed there three years ago, is the opinion of Police Inspector Cowan. The inspector has communicated with the Cincinnati authorities in an effort to confirm his belief.

Methodist to Hold St. James'.

MONTREAL, Oct. 31.—St. James' Methodist Church trustees have decided to retain the church on the present site, and will hold a ten days' canvass to raise $153.50 weekly continuously as additional funds necessary to make the income equal to expenditure. Also they will try to raise a team of a hundred young men to promise twenty-five cents each weekly.

Two Quebec Bye-Elections.

MONTREAL, Oct. 31. The bye-elections in Huntingdon and St. John, for the Provincial Legislature, will be held on Nov. 2 and 11, respectively.

SPEEDED TO HIS DEATH

Record Holder Was Going 114 Miles an Hour

Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Percy Lambert, while endeavoring to lower the record for one hour at Brooklands Motor Car race track this morning, was killed.

While going 111 miles an hour a tire exploded. The car turned turtle, and throwing him off the track, fell on him, crushing him terribly.

Lambert held records for fifty miles, one hundred miles and one hour, having driven 103 3-4 miles in that time.

NEWFOUNDLAND IN ELECTIONS

First Returns Indicate Reduced Majority For Morris.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Oct. 31.—The first returns to-day from the general election favors the re-election of the Government by a reduced majority.

The question of Government expenditures forms the chief issue in the elections held yesterday.

The party of the Premier, Sir Edward Morris, urged the election of his supporters to the 36 seats in the House of Assembly on the plea that he had done much to develop the colony by his policy of Government aid to the construction of many branch lines of railway. Sir Robert Bond, heading the Opposition, has assailed this policy, declaring it has been too expensive and has placed a needless tax on the island's revenues.

Because of the remoteness of many districts it is likely to be several days before the result of the election is known. The Government provided special polling places in this city for fishermen now here disposing of their summer's catch, and unable to return to their homes in time for the election.

LAW REFUSED?

Was Replying to Overtures in His Speech Says Correspondent.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—If it were not for the statement yesterday by The Manchester Guardian's well-informed London correspondent that "the Prime Minister and Leader Bonar Law have already had an opportunity of seeing a formal statement of each other's views on the whole question," it might reasonably be assumed that Bonar Law's speech Wednesday night leaves the situation exactly as it was before, although both he and Premier Asquith seem in public to be warily skating round the outer fringe of the proposals for negotiations. As with the Premier's Ladybank speech, so with Bonar Law's oration. The criticism of newspapers opposed to the speaker make the more interesting reading.

Among the Liberal papers yesterday The Manchester Guardian alone exhibits real hopefulness.

Bonar Law's plea for a general election is summarily dismissed by all Ministerial papers save one—The Westminster Gazette.

Beats Jacob For Patience.

MONTREAL, Oct. 31.—After being engaged for forty years Miss Evelyn Smithers, aged 76, of Glasgow, has decided to marry her fiance, J. E. Campbell of Winnipeg, aged 82.

Miss Smithers arrived here yesterday morning on the Virginian en route for Winnipeg.

Hitherto Miss Smithers, who became engaged to Mr. Campbell in Scotland, has been afraid to cross the ocean and put the marriage off from year to year in the hope that Mr. Campbell, who is a grocer in Winnipeg, would make enough money to justify his retiring to his old home for the rest of his days.

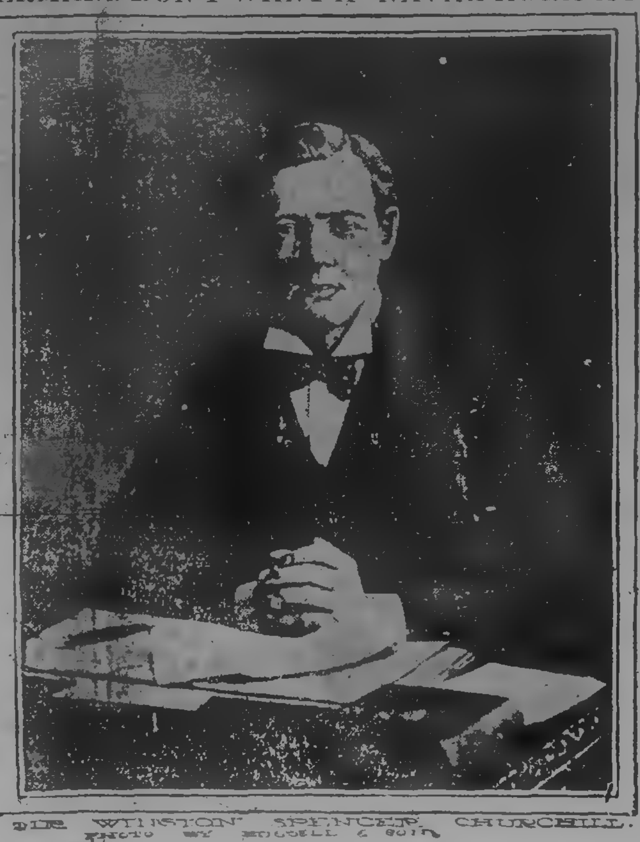
JUDGES UNDERPAID.

Quebec Superior Court Cadis Ask For an Increase.

QUEBEC, Oct. 31.—The judges of the Quebec Superior Court are dissatisfied with their present salaries which are now $7,000 for judges residing in Quebec and $5,000 for those residing in rural districts. They will request the Minister of Justice to increase their salaries to $9,000 for Quebec judges and $7,000 for rural judges, claiming that the cost of living has increased for them as for any other mortal.

Such was the decision taken yesterday at a meeting of the judges of the whole region of Quebec. The rural judges ask permission to reside in cities, as social relations in their districts may sometimes render the situation very uneasy.

GERMANS DON'T WANT A "NAVAL HOLIDAY"



SIR WINSTON SPENCER CHURCHILL.

The proposal by Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the British Admiralty, that England and Germony should declare a "naval holiday" in 1914 was received without sympathy by the German government, which regards it as not calling for a reply. It is generally considered doubtful whether any official notice will be taken of the suggestion, although it is thought Imperial Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg may perhaps refer to the subject later on in the course of debate in the Imperial Parliament.

THE RESULT IN SOUTH BRUCE

(Mail & Empire)

The bye-election in South Bruce yesterday was won by the Laurier candidate rather than by the auspices under which he ran. Mr. Truax began his canvass almost the moment Mr. Donnelly's appointment to the Senate was announced, and diligently pursued it throughout the intervening months. He is a veteran campaigner in that field. Among those who voted for him yesterday would be some who were in their infancy or not yet born when he was first elected for a seat in that county. After a term in the House of Commons, to which he was elected for East Bruce in 1891, he was returned again and again to the Legislative Assembly at the representative of South Bruce, being a candidate therefore in five general elections. A politician who has been over the ground so often, and who has become so well and favorably known to the electors as Mr. Truax could not but be a hard man to beat, and from the beginning of this bye-electino campaign the difficulty of holding that Liberal constituency against him was recogniezd. Mr. Cargill, the Goverment candidate, is an able and popular young man, but this was his maiden effort in politics. Moreover, we regret to say, at an improtant moment in the campaign his attention was taken from the contest by the family bereavement. He will, we hope, be heard from again in South Bruce politics.

(The Globe)

It may be said that the Conservative win in Chateauguay offsets the capture of South Bruce by the Liberals. It would be difficult to maintain this contention. In Chateauguay there were three distinct elements in the electorate, laying aside for the moment the element of fraud and corruption, which was decisive. There were Liberals standing for a Canadian fleet, Conservatives for a "single" contribution which was to pay all our debt to Britain, and Nationalists, who, as Mr. Bourassa afterwards stated, did not like either the Borden or Laurier policy, but preferred the contribution idea because it was "less advanced" and "less Imperializing" than Laurier's policy of a Canadian navy. It is obvious that there was no such clear-cut naval issue in Chateauguay as in South Bruce and East Middlesex. The Nationalist-Conservative alliance in Chateauguay was composed of men at bottom diametrically opposed to each other, one wing being against any naval defence policy at all, the other turning toward a permanent policy of contribition as thue only way out of the Government's troubles. Such an alliance cannot stand the strain of a general election. The moment Mr. Borden declares for a permanent policy of contribution the Nationalist-Conservative electors will fall away from him by the thousand.

BANK TELLER

John H. Murray's Guilt Alleged on Strength of False Enteries.

MONTREAL, Oct. 31.—The case of John H. Murray, late of Toronto, accused of having so falsified the "drafts payable" books of which he had charge as third teller of the Montreal branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, that he was enabled to appropriate $81.50, came before Judge Lafontaine yesterday.

Mr. Bowser of the Bank of Nova Scotia, said that the appropriation must have taken place because of the errors or false entries in the books. These proved the accused's guilt to a banker's mind.

Mr. Fitch, for the defence, argued that this was no proof of the actula appropriation, and Judge Lafontaine agreed that there was a difficulty.

The case was adjourned for farther documents to be obtained.

Yeggmen Blew Up Safe.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Oct. 31.—Yeggmen of exceptional daring blew up the postoffice safe in East Rochester about three o'clock yesterday morning and succeeded in making their escape with a large quantity of stamps. Several thousand dollars, deposited in an inner drawer, was undisturbed, giving the impression that the yeggs were pressed for sufficient time to make a thorough search.

Potteries' Strike Widening.

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio, Oct. 31.—Additional potteries in the East Liverpool district closed their doors yesterday because of the strike on Wednesday of 200 claymakers, although decorators are still at work in some plants, finishing the tableware on hand.

Regina Wants Congress.

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 31.—Selection of the 1914 convention city was the principle work before the International Dry Farming Congress yesterday. Wichita, Kansas, and Regina, Sask., were the strongest contenders.

Dr. J. H. Grisdale, director of the Dominion Experimental Work, Ottawa, Ont., in an address, said there were thousands of acres in his country now producing good crops which were given over to the wild grass several years ago.

HEIRS ARE WELL OFF

Adolph Busch's Family to Get $1,000 a Day Each.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 31.—Each of the heirs of Adolphus Busch, who, according to the will filed here late on Wednesday, are to have shares of the trust into which the estate is to be formed, will have an annual income of $375,000 a share, or more than $1,000 a day.

The son, August A. Busch, who succeeds his father in the management of the vast properties, is to have two shares of the trust, and his income consequently will be $700,000 a year, minus the provision he is required to make for his invalid brother Carl.

These figures were made known yesterday by a high officer of the Busch Corporations. According to this officer, the income of the estate is estimated at $3,000,000, which is a 6 per cent. return on a valuation of $50,000,000. The heirs are the widow and the seven children.

LIBERAL CANDIDATE WINS SOUTH BRUCE BYE-ELECTION

Liberal Appeal to the Germans of the Riding Based on Statements That Borden Navy Was to be Used Against Germany Brought Big Vote For Truax,

WALKERTON, Oct. 31.—The Federal riding of South Bruce, after being counted for five years in the Conservative column, returned to its allegiance to the Liberal party yesterday when Reuben E. Truax was elected to the Commons over W. E. Cargill by a majority of 124 in the bye-election. In 1911 the Conservative candidate, James J. Donnelly, defeated Mr. Truax by 103. Mr. Donnelly's elevation to the Senate some months ago created the vacancy.

The vote polled yesterday was much larger than at the last election. Moreover, it was polled very early in the day. At Formosa, for instance, the whole vote was in at three o'clock, and an hour before the polls closed in Walkerton practically every vote was in. Both sides were well organized and automobiles played a big part in getting out the vote.

The Conservative losses were most marked in the Townships of Brant, Carrick, Culross and Elderslie. In Huron Township the Conservative candidate made a big gain, but Greenock and Kinloss showed small losses. Of the towns, Lucknow, Chesley and Teeswater showed gains for the Conservatives, with losses in Paisley and Walkerton.

Carrick Township, was a notable battleground in the campaign. Its population is almost wholly German. It was here that the race appeal of the Liberals was made with very marked effect. The German farmers were told by word of mouth, by letter and by circular that the Borden naval plan was to send ships over to England to fight Germany. Every effort was made by Conservatives to meet this misrepresentation, but it had been spread everywhere and was difficult to counteract. Two weeks ago the vote from this township would have been even worse for the Conservatives.

Conservative workers began to gather at the party headquarters shortly after five o'clock. One of the Walkerton polls came first with a majority for Mr. Truax of somewhat smaller than in 1911. Others from Brant and Carrick soon followed, showing small changes that left the verdict doubtful. As more ominous returns came, however, the election of Mr. Truax appeared certain, and was conceded by six o'clock.

At the Liberal headquarters the successive gains brought cheers, and the successful candidate was serenaded at his home, where, surrounded by his family, he appeared on the porch and thanked his supporters.

"I have fought hard to win South Bruce, and you electors have fought hard, too, and we have won," he said, amid cheers.

Later an adjournment was made to the Town Hall, where speeches were made and the victory celebrated. For hours the streets were thronged by marching Liberals equipped with horns.

W. D. Cargill last night said: "I would like to say how exceedingly obliged I am to the many friends who assisted me in this campaign, and to tell them how much I appreciate their assistance."

REBELS MAY BE RECOGNIZED

This Will Probably be Wilson's Club Against Huerta.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 31.—President Wilson has formulated his plan of action. It will be made operative just as soon as President Wilson receives a definite statement from Mexico City as to the results of the elections held last Sunday, and what are the intentions of Gen. Victoriano Huerta, dictator of Mexico.

No formal note will be issued by the President. When he is ready to launch his new policy he will do so, and the action taken will be all the notification the world will receive.

It is said the President will make it known to Gen. Huerta that unless he resigns and in this way make it possible for the selection of someone for provisional president who will be acceptable to both the Cintifico (Porfirio Diaz and Huerta party) and constitutionalists (Carranza and his followers) the United States will take such steps as will deprive Huerta of his power.

President Wilson will also probably obtain an agreement from both factions in Mexico to an armistice pending the holding of a constitutional election which shall be safeguarded by supervision by the United States.

The alternative is to lift the embargo on the revolutionists from obtaining arms and ammunition in the United States, and to recognize the revolutionists as a de facto government.

Huerta Ticket Won.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 31.—With the election of Gen. Victoriano Huerta and Gen. Aureliano Blanquet almost a foregone conclusion, according to the official returns, the question as to what Washington proposes to do is keeping the foreign residents and the majority of Mexicans in a state of painful suspense. On the surface at least the administration, is giving little consideration to the subject, seemingly taking the ground that the Mexican people have declared in favor Huerta's continuance in the Presidency.

Although it is openly charged in many quarters that it was official pressure that resulted in the rolling up of the majorities for Huerta and Banquet, which are now being officially reported from all parts where the election forms were observed, the fact remains, and it is pointed out that there is no possibility of going back to the returns, as there is no thought that any other candidate polled nearly enough votes to place the Huerta-Blanquet ticket in jeopardy.

In view of Washington's previous representations on the subject, the next move of the American Government is awaited here with no little misgiving.

Many Americans have already packed their portable belongings preparatory to flight and are facing the necessity of leaving their household effects. The inadequate storage facilities are already over-taxed and most of those who contemplate flight expect to leave their homes in charge of Mexican caretakers, as the only alternative.

Plot to Kill Huerta.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 31.—A thorough search is being made by the police of the Federal capital for further evidence of an alleged plot against the life of Provisional President Huerta, disclosed to the authorities by two women Wednesday night. The women denounced several men who, they declared, had offered them $500 to induce Gen. Huerta to visit them, so that the plotters could have an opportunity of assassinating him.

The women asserted that they had declined to participate in the conspiracy.

Several men have been arrested.

"Keep Out." Official Warning.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31. — Americans desiring to go to Mexico will receive no assistance or encouragement from the administration. This became known yesterday when President Wilson declined to grant the request of Representative Mann of Illinois, Republican leader in the House, that the U. S. Sugar Co. be permitted to send a number of engineers, chemists and other employes to its plantations at Topolohampo Bay on the next Government supply vessel going down the Pacific coast.

U. S. Will Protect French.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31. — Acting Secretary Roosevelt yesterday instructed Rear Admiral Cowles, commanding the American squadron on the west coast of Mexico, to proceed as far as he deemed it practicable in protecting French colonists, said to be in peril in San Ignacio, in Lower California. Earlier instructions by the State Department were based on information that the French colony was in San Ignacio, Sinaloa, but it became known yesterday that the refugees who desire protection are in Lower California and that the nearest seaport is Santa Rosalie, across the gulf from Guaymas, where the armored cruiser California, Admiral Cowles' flagship, is now stationed.

Must Weld Empire First.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—Speaking at the Cutlers' feast at Sheffield, Hon. Thomas MacKenzie, New Zealand's High Commissioner, said his opinion was that until we could first weld together the various portions of the Empire in some common council we should never weld together one truly Imperial fleet.

ESKIMOS USE PARCEL POST

They Send Skins to Dealers and Get $20 Instead of $2.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31. — The benefits of the parcel post have extended to the Eskimo, and he is making use of the newest of Uncle Sam's aids to cheap transportation to the advantage of his own pocket and the discomfiture of the fur companies.

According to advices received in Washington yesterday the price of white fox skin among Eskimos in northern Alaska has jumped from $2 to more than $20 in the last few months. The natives have learned that they do not need to sell the skins to the fur traders, but that they can send them direct to the States to avoid the middlemen. Polar bear and other valuable skins have taken corresponding jumps in price at the source.

Big Railway Project.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 31.—Plans for a $20,000,000 railway project, the West Coast Railroad, were filed in the name of J. D. Farrell, president of the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation Co., a Harriman line, in the United States land office at Olympia yesterday.

SOUTH BRUCE

South Bruce has gone Liberal and we suppose the correct thing to do is to charge someone with corruption, slander the voters, or to try and explain the defeat away. But we have no desire to emulate our Liberal friends by going out into the market place and tearing our hair, polluting the atmosphere with vile epithets and calling damnation down upon our opponents.

This is a free land, every man can vote just the way which pleases him. Doubtless those electors who supported Mr Truax did so conscientiously. There are various reasons for the turnover. It may be that the report of the New Zealand naval decision had a great deal to do with the turning of many votes.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier had appealed, in his theatrical way, to the jingoistic element. He had misrepresented the Government as not merely shelving Canadian Naval defence, but had charged them with being possessed by iniquitous and Satanic motives in the conception of the Naval Aid Bill.

It is an easy and safe thing to paint a Canadian Navy on the imaginations of an election audience when you are not in office and are called upon to produce the real thing. Sir Wilfrid had an opportunity to materialise his dream of a Canadian Navy when he was in office, and all that came of it was the miserable Niobe and Rainbow folly. And like the fox who lost his tail in a trap, Sir Wilfrid would have Mr. Borden do the same.

If South Bruce voted for a practical Naval policy they have been deceived, for if Sir Wilfrid were returned to power again he would continue the old niggard policy of tinkering with a few useless ships, while the British Navy would still patrol the seas in our behalf and at the expense of the British tax-payer.

NEW ZEALAND A NATION

"New Zealand has been paying the Mother Country a subsidy of half a million a year to recoup the British Government for its outlay on the naval depot and the loaning of light cruisers."

Notwithstanding this their Autonomy is intact. There is no question about their self-government. Indeed, this "contribution" has so strengthened their self-government that they can now relieve the Motherland of the responsibility of taking care of those southern waters.

Certain Liberal journals have opposed the Naval Aid Bill solely because a contribution to the British Navy was supposed to endanger Canadian Autonomy. The example of New Zealand proves the opposite. It has strengthened both the Imperial ties and the freedom of the government of that Island Colony. This has all been done with an open heart and hand and a straightforwardness of purpose. There has been no clap-trap about "New Zealand a Nation." They have been content to develop slowly and creep before they walked, with the result that they are becoming a nation in reality. They have a sense of duty done to the Parent Islands and a feeling of security because they now own a real part of the Imperial Navy.

The Examiner describes the Borden Naval policy of "contribution" as "humiliating Canada in the eyes of the world." What is the testimony of New Zealand, of whom the Examiner seems so proud?

Is it humiliating to pay your debts? Is it humiliating to recognize your own Mother? Our contemporary quotes Scripture at some length over the land question. We would remind it of the passage which speaks of "forgetting the rock from whence we were hewn."

A CANADIAN DYNASTY

There is a tendency with some Canadian papers to take the reports or suggestions of British journals too seriously. They are described as "semi-official," or "evidently inspired" and so forth.

The article in the London Morning Post hinting that the Governor Generalship might become hereditory, was discribed by the Montreal Telegraph as "semi-official," or something to that effect. The bald truth is, the Morning Post is only a newspaper like the Telegraph and has no more authority to speak for the Government or the Royal Family than the Telegraph has to speak for the Borden Government.

The writer of the article in the Morning Post is possibly a denizen of one of the London swell clubs, and only retailed some tittle tattle over whiskies and sodas and cigars.

British journalists are merely human—all of them, and shall we deny them this little dream of Canada as a kingdom any more than we should deny some Liberal papers their dream of the whole of the North American Continent being governed from The White House?

EDITORIAL NOTES

One journal said the other day that Mr. Lloyd George spoke eloquently on the "burning land question." If some one in Canada would speak and act as resolutely upon the burning forest question as the little Welshman, they might put the fires of next summer out before they start—so to spake.

Is the subject of Empire to be banned from the Canadian Club? If not how can you talk about Empire without touching on the organization that binds it together? Can the subject of Canada a Nation be thoroughly discussed apart from the question of naval defence? Is the navy problem such a frivolous affair?

Mr. Rogers has at last gone under. Of course the majority for the Liberals would have been much larger if it had not been for "bribery and corruption." No man would vote Conservative from any other motive! How is it the Liberals are not concerned about the depravity of the great minority in South Bruce who voted Conservative?—no answer.

RECORD SHIPMENT OF FISH FROM PRINCE RUPERT

Through the fact that she brought south from Prince Rupert 150 tons of Halibut, the G.T.P. steamer Prince George established a new record for the fish business on the Pacific Coast. She had fifteen tons of glazed fish and 135 tons of frozen Halibut.

The trawlers operating in conjunction with the big Seal Cove cold storage plant near Prince Rupert have been making some good hauls of late as a result of the setting in of fine weather and the shore staff has been working hard putting the fish up. Large shipments of Halibut will continue to be sent south for some weeks yet until another spell of dirty weather forces the fleet to tie up and causes the supply of fish which is kept in reserve in the cold storage to be drawn upon and used up. 62

A wire clothesline can be cleaned perfectly by rubbing with a woolen cloth saturated with cold oil, and afterward with the same cloth liberally sprinkled with cleansing powder.

Put a cupful of Indian meal, half a cupful of white flour, and three tablespoonfuls of powdered borax into a paper bag. Articles that need cleaning can be put into this bag and shaken.

CONSERVATION OF WATERS FEEDING THE TRENT CANAL

That it is the urgent duty of the Dominion Government to at once take steps to conserve the waters in the back lakes in this vicinity, as feeders to the Trent Canal, is plainly evident from a despatch from Ottawa, which states that investigations which have been made in the district tributary to the Canal, indicate that this famous historical undertaking may be seriously affected by a lack of water unless measures are taken for the conservation of the rainfall. The Standard is reliably informed that plans for the conservation of the waters in some of our northern lakes, which are important feeders of the canal, were held up by Hon. Frank Cochrane's department this year, and as a consequence the water levels on the canal system in this vicinity were seriously affected thereby. Conservation dams on Kasbabog Lake, Burnt Dam on the North River and on Mudturtle Lake, would help greatly in regulating the supply of water for the Canal from Crow Bay to Trenton, and it is very probable that deputations from Havelock and Marmora, together with Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, M.P., and E. Gus Porter, M.P. will wait on Hon. Mr Cochrane in the near future and endeavor to impress upon the Minister the importance of prompt action along these lines— Havelock Standard.

THE MARKET

Latest Quotation in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Bears had the advantage today in wheat on account of more reassuring crop conditions in Argentina and Australia. Despite the fact that covering by shorts rallied the market, there was a weak tone at the close, with prices ⅛ to ¼c under last night. Death Found Him Kneeling.

TORONTO, Oct. 31.—Kneeling by the side of his bed with the gas turned full on, Mykta Matyck, an Italian about 40 years of age, was found dead in an upper room at 209 York street at two o'clock yesterday afternoon by the proprietor of the house, a Chinaman named Ing Sing. Matyck had locked the door, and the police theory is that he committed suicide.

The body was taken to the morgue, and no inquest will be held.

Pendleton's Lucky Dollar

And How It Found Him a Wife

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Bob Pendleton saw it gleaming in the dust of the road and stooped to pick it up. It was a small round gold dollar of the year 1852, and there was a tiny hole bored through it near the edge.

"Mine for luck," said Bob to himself as he tucked it away in a corner of his cardcase. "Wonder when it begins."

At that moment a motorcar came swiftly around the bend of the road, and Bob having unheeded the warning blast of its siren was unceremoniously hurled to one side as the machine tore on its way.

It was a matter of a broken arm and many bruises, and so Mr. Pendleton, cursing his ill luck, was borne to the nearest hospital and placed under the care of an extremely pretty nurse.

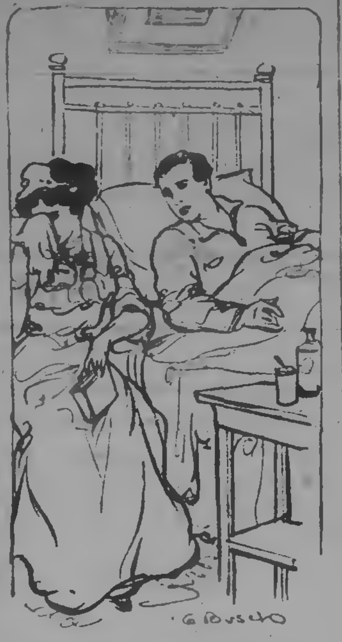
"I'm glad that I have no inclination to sleep in the daytime," said Bob one day to Miss Furniss, the day nurse.

"Why?" she asked absently.

"It would be such a waste of time when I might be"— he paused and blushed. He had been about to add rather a broad compliment, but the pretty nurse was gazing sadly from the window, her beautiful blue eyes heavy with unshed tears.

Bob's heart thrilled as it had never thrilled before. He had never cared for girls, but Miss Furniss! She was quite different, and, by Jove, she mustn't cry like that.

"I say, what is the matter?" he asked gruffly. "Any of your folks dead or anything?"



"I SAY, WHAT IS THE MATTER?" HE ASKED GRUFFLY.

The tears fell in a silvery shower and one warm drop landed on Bob's handsome nose, and he foolishly imagined that its presence formed a bond of intimacy between them.

"No," Miss Furniss sobbed softly; "it isn't anything like that. I haven't any people. I'm rather alone, you know."

"If you're in trouble it does a lot of good to tell it to some one," urged Bob kindly. "Don't you like your job here?"

"I hate it!" she cried viciously.

This was rather chilling information to the invalid, but Bob persisted:

"What's the matter with it? What would you rather do?" he asked.

Her reply was so unexpected that it left him speechless.

"I—I'd rather be married!" she sobbed.

"Married?" Bob asked this question after a long, long silence.

"Yes, married!" she retorted. "Sounds horrid, doesn't it?"

"Sounds rather interesting," returned Bob slowly. "You ought not to—er—have any worry over that, don't you know."

"It's his—m-m-mother," quavered Miss Furniss sadly.

"Oh, his mother!"

"She is—she is only his stepmother, and I was her nurse during a severe illness and long convalescence. Of course I met him there."

"Oh!" and Bob winced as he moved his injured arm. "And she didn't approve?"

"She was quite resigned to it, but she was a very eccentric woman and of a suspicious nature. One day I was with her in the motorcar, and she suddenly cried that she had lost something. It was an ornament. She accused me of taking it. She took me home and had me searched."

"And him—what of him?" demanded Bob fiercely.

"Peyton? Oh, he laughed and said it was all Mrs. Winton's nonsense, and I was not to mind, but I am proud, and I felt hurt that he did not fly more quickly to my defense, so I said that I would not marry him until the article had been found and both he and his mother had apologized. He made rather a fuss over it."

"When did it happen?"

"Two months ago," she said, glancing at her watch and rising. "Oh, Mr. Pendleton, I am afraid I have given you a dreary half-hour! You will forgive me?"

"I will if you will promise to let me help you out of your trouble," said Bob gravely. "Tell me what it was Mrs. Winton lost and where she lost it. I'm something of an amateur detective. Perhaps I can help."

"You are very good," she said, with a tender little smile that brought his heart to his throat. "We were driving on the Merrivale road when she said she had lost the charm from her long gold watch chain. She valued the charm because it had been given to her by her husband, who was dead."

"And the charm—what was it?"

"Oh, just a little gold dollar of the year 1862. Her initials were engraved on one side. Now, Monsieur Detective, what are you going to do about it?" She smiled mischievously down at him, her dainty cap poised like a white moth on her sunny brown hair.

Bob Pendleton's brown eyes flashed in a rare smile.

"I'm going to find it and restore it to the owner," he said briskly. "After that you will give me news of what happens?"

She blushed and nodded.

"They are sure to come to you at once," said Bob.

"Oh, you think so?" she asked, with a quick catch of the breath.

"How could they help it?" he asked and turned away his head so that she could not see the pain in his eyes.

She went away very softly, and Bob threw his well arm across his eyes and lay very still for a long time.

It was two weeks after that conversation that Bob Pendleton was discharged from the hospital. During the period of his confinement his beard had grown, and now, after having it trimmed to a careful and most becoming vandyke fashion, he made his way to the residence of Mrs. Henry Winton on Oakleigh avenue.

"You wish to see me?" inquired Mrs. Winton.

"Yes, Mrs. Winton. I was walking along the Merrivale road a few weeks ago, and I found this." Bob held out the gold dollar, one side of which was smoothly polished and bore three initials, "F. M. W."

"My charm!" she cried with pleasure as she snatched the coin from his fingers. "I rather thought it had been stolen," she said.

"I hope that if you suspected any one my returning it to you will establish their innocence," he said, with a keen glance at her harsh countenance.

She shrugged her shoulders.

"The person is no longer in my employ. It doesn't matter. No harm has been done. I am extremely obliged to you, Mr.—er"—

"Smith," supplied Bob, rising to depart.

"Mr. Smith," she finished, with a smile. "Perhaps you will excuse me now, but my son is to be married this evening, and I have a long motor drive before me."

"Ah, good morning, Mrs. Winton," said Bob dazedly, and he went away from the house with a stunned look in his face.

"Married! Married! What of her?" he muttered over and over again as he went back to his rooms. "The cur! And the woman, of course—they will never apologize to my poor darling." He paced the floor restlessly until the evening papers were in his hands.

There was an account of the wedding of Peyton Winton and some well known society girl at a magnificent country place. Bob Pendleton read every word, and then he put on his hat and went to the hospital.

It was Miss Furniss' evening off, and the attendant told him that he would undoubtedly find her at the Nurses' club near by. Presently he was seated in the empty reception room of the little club waiting with beating heart for the advent of Stella Furniss.

She came, looking strangely unfamiliar without her uniform.

"I have come to report," he said, smiling gravely at her look of inquiry.

"You haven't found it?" she asked, waves of rose color rising in her cheeks.

"Yes, I found it three weeks ago," and Bob told her all about finding the "lucky" dollar which in the beginning had proved so unlucky for him.

"So I restored it to Mrs. Winton today," he ended; "but, Miss Furniss, she impresses me as being a lady who would not trouble to apologize for an unjust accusation."

The color in her cheeks receded, but her eyes met his bravely. "Mr. Pendleton, you will think it strange, but since I had that conversation with you one day somehow I have not cared whether she—they apologize or not."

"Then you don't care a hang?" demanded Bob excitedly.

She smiled faintly, and her eyes dropped.

"Not a hang!" she said demurely.

"Then—then I'll have a chance. Stella, I'm rushing in where angels fear to tread, but I don't suppose you could like me a little bit? I love you, darling, I do, and if you only could care—why, Stella!" Something in the swift, shy glance she sent at him brought him to her side.

"When?" he asked.

"Oh, ever since—ever since you arrived," she whispered softly.

"Dearest!" This time their lips met.

And then later he told her of the wedding of Peyton Winton. She smiled scornfully. "Suppose I had married him!" she shuddered. "This all happened through that blessed dollar, Bob, and I never thought my road of bitter trouble would bring me to the broad highway of happiness."

"I shall always call it my lucky dollar," smiled Bob. "You see, it found a wife for me, and I never knew I needed one until I saw you."

One of Miss Keller's Gifts.

Many persons in an assemblage recently addressed by Miss Helen Keller marveled that this distinguished deaf and blind woman halted in her remarks and acknowledged applause at the proper moment, just as if she had been in full possession of her hearing. Miss Macy, the devoted instructor of Miss Keller, was approached by several after the meeting had adjourned, and she was requested to explain the "mystery." "Very simple," she laughed. "Notice of the applause was carried to Miss Keller by the vibrations that she felt through her soft soled shoes while standing on the platform."—Boston Post.

Clocks Run by Air.

Two Austrian watchmakers have built a clock which receives its motive power from a current of air blowing upon a turbine shaped wheel. The clock is so simply built that the current of air produced by a stove or kitchen range is sufficient to make it go. The air is brought to the clock by a pipe fixed upon the wall. A very strong current is reduced by a certain clever contrivance which regulates the speed of the works. This clock serves at the same time as a ventilator.

Interest by Mechanism.

A Hungarian citizen has invented an instrument which shows instantly the amount of interest due on any given sum for any period at any given rate of interest. The instrument, which is made in the size and shape of a watch, has a very simple construction, and all that is necessary to operate it is to place the hands in the proper position on the dial and the exact amount of interest in each case is indicated on the face.

Up to Date Grandma.

Grandma used to be an old lady who would throw a shawl over her shoulders and sit in a rocker and knit stockings all day. But nowadays she puts on a nickel's worth of prepared chalk, a straight front and a tight bobble and follows the crowd.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE TURN OF THE TIDE.

Ireland's Population Increases For First Time In 70 Years.

That the tide of Irish national life, which has been steadily ebbing for seventy-five years, has turned, and that the "old sod" promises to take on new vigor, is the claim made by Francis J. Kilkenny, originator of the Irish home-going movement.

In a statement to the press a year ago he asserted that a new era had already dawned for Ireland, which is now substantiated by figures of the recent Irish census. To-day he is out with new calculations which show that for the first time in more than 70 years the population of Ireland is increasing. During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1912, it appears that the birth rate exceeded by 1,102 the loss by death and emigration. For the same time the deaths from all causes were the lowest since 1871, and the infant mortality the lowest ever recorded, being only 86 in every 1,000.

"The population of Ireland was at high-water mark in 1841, the official figures for that year being 8,175,124," says Mr. Kilkenny. "Between 1841 and 1851 the loss by death and emigration amounted to over 1,600,000. Census statistics for the ten years ended in 1861 showed a decrease of over 11 per cent.; in 1874, the returns showed a 6 1-2 per cent. decrease; in 1881, about 4 1-2 per cent.; in 1891, a 9 per cent., and in 1901, 5 per cent. For the decade ended 1911 it was only about 1 1-2 per cent., and now for a single year there is shown an increase instead of the constant decrease.

The census returns of April 2, 1911, make the total population 4,290,310, viz.: 2,192,048 males, 2,198,171 females, being a decrease from the prior census of 68,556, or the smallest since the decade 1871-1881. So it is shown that Ireland at the time of her low tide has about half the population that she had 75 years ago, and that she is therefore the only country in the civilized world whose population has been terribly depleted through restrictive legislation.

"Ireland has suffered a heavy loss from emigration. The drain upon her population in this direction even during the past five years averages thirty thousand annually.

"From May 1, 1851, to March 31, 1911, nearly 4,200,000 natives of Ireland emigrated to other countries. The larger portion of these emigrants were between the ages of 15 and 25 years.

"One good sign of Ireland's growing prosperity is the increase in the number of inhabited houses. The number of inhabited houses in 1911 was reported as 861,879, or an increase of 3,721 over the returns for 1901, while the returns also show that a better and more modern class of cottages is being built than in former years. Another sign promising great things for the future of Ireland is that the vast estates formerly held by absentee landlords are now being cultivated by the Irish occupants of the soil, who, under the land act of 1901, and subsequent acts, have become the owners thereof. The land acts of 1903 and 1909, the laborers' cottage act of 1906 and the old-age pension act of 1908 were enabling measures which have given much relief and encouragement to the Irish people."

Lubricant For Aluminium.

Many machinists, especially those employed in the motor engineering industry, are frequently called upon to work in aluminium. To satisfactorily do this work various lubricants have been tried, which, however, owing to their volatility, are of little use. A suitable lubricant is tallow or robbley's wax. This latter does not dissolve quickly and consequently does not flow as freely as the volatile oils.—American Machinist.

CARPENTERS AND JOINERS ORGANIZED

Embraces Wood Workers in Factory and Outside Work

General Organizer Tom Moore, of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, presided at a meeting in the Labor Hall last night, when a local was organized with the following officers:—

President—Harry Saunders.
Vice-Pres.—Geo Shearer.
Rec. Sec.—Harold Lawrence.
Fin. Sec.—H. Bacon.
Conductor—John Dwyer.
Warden—Chas. Hadley.
Treasurer—Harry Carveth.

The charter number 672 was retained. All woodworkers in factory or in outside work are embraced.

ELECTRIC RAILWAYS SOME FUTURE TIME

There has been some talk of electrifying the several mountain passes on the Canadian Pacific, but this has yet to be realized. The company has, however, for years had its electric railway—the Galt Preston and Hespeler, to be accurate— which was the first electric railway in the Dominion.

This line is 11 miles in length. It has its regular schedule; it has freight and passenger departments. The freight is handled at night, which is a mercy to the inhabitants. The passenger service is adequate and rapid. The cars are clean and are built after, as it would seem, the model of those of the Southern Counties Railway—large and comfortable.

Berlin has a population of 17,000 people and is one of the most aggressive cities in the Dominion —forging ahead, as it is, in manufacturing.

Galt has 11,000 people; Preston 4,301 and Hespeler 2,866, and Waterloo 4,360.

It may be taken for granted that the large question of general electrification has not occured to the official mind. It is like the coal question.

Every now and then an alarmist figures out that the coal supply of the world is becoming rapidly exhausted, and that in the course of a day or two—or a couple of centuries at the outside—there will be a freezing world which will not have an ounce of coal with which to boil the matutinal tea-kettle.

Whereupon another wizard of figures comes out with the announcement that the coal supply of the world will last for 500,000 years and that we may go to bed and sleep, as far as that issue is concerned.

Electrification has excited considerable discussion in the American press. It is recognized that the railways will come to it, sooner or later not so much because of coal exhaustion as because electric science, in the course of a few years will have reached such perfection as to make it predominant in our industrial and domestic life.

When that time comes the problem will be simplified; and the world will see, without surprise, the trains moving at the rate of 100 miles an hour, without visible power to explain the phenomenon. No one will elevate an eyebrow anymore than did the British public elevate an eyebrow when after solemn resolution passed by the wise men of the time in London it was declared that gas could never be forced through pipes up into the drawing room of John Jones—Mary Jane produced the new illuminant with the aid of a match. When the thing is accomplished the edge of doubt and expectancy becomes blunted.

PETERBORO AS THE HOME OF CENTRAL EXHIBITION

Important Matter to be Brought Before the Board of Trade

According to the opinions of some of the prominent farmers of the county combined with those of a number of local gentlemen, Peterborough should be the home of a huge Central Fair.

Mr. O. H. Pennefather, manager of the Union Bank is one of the strong advocates of such a project. During the past month or so a large number of farmers have expressed opinions to him, that they were greatly in favor of having one central fair thereby doing away with the small fairs in the county. This would greatly add to the advantages of having the one fair as it would do away with the farmers having to take their stock from place to place in order to show them. This taking the stock is rather an expensive item on their yearly expense slip.

The gentlemen interested in the matter are holding a meeting at an early date and no doubt something definite will be decided. The matter will probably come up for discussion at the next Board of Trade meeting.

Such an amalgamation would take in Peterborough, Lakefield, Norwood, Millbrook, Keene and probably others.

CITIZEN WOULD LIKE TO SEE FIRE ALARM BOXES LIGHTED

To The Editor of The Review.

Dear Sir— Would you be kind enough to allow me, through the columns of The Review, to draw the attention of the City Council to the present condition of the fire alarm boxes. The boxes are not painted the correct color and there are no lights over them. His Majesty's mail boxes are painted red and can easily be noticed on a semi-dark corner, but the fire alarm boxes are of the same color as some of the posts on which they are attached and they are very hard to discern. If this was rectified and light were placed over them, the fire alarm system would be considerably strengthened.

Yours truly,

"CITIZEN"

In reference to the above letter, Fire Chief Howard expressed the opinion that Citizen was quite right in his contention and he heartily endorsed his views. At the same time the Chief said the City Council had asked for prices on a fire alarm standard, which consists of a small post with a fire alarm box attached and a red light placed on top. These could be placed on every corner on Geroge street throughout the business section. These can be procured for $66.

No arrangements had been made for the boxes other than those mentioned and the Chief stated that the Citizen's idea would be very fitting.

LOCAL SALVATIONISTS TO GREET GENERAL BOOTH

Twenty Five Members of Local Corps Going to Toronto for Meetings

THE BAND'S TRIP

About twenty-five members of the local corps, of the Salvation Army, will be in Toronto to take part in the welcome of General Bramwell Booth.

Adjutant and Mrs. McElheney and and others will leave for Toronto tomorrow morning. During the absence of the officers the several brigades will take charge of the services at the Temple.

The Adjutant and members of the band will take up the matter of the proposed trip to England next year.

General V. Bramwell Booth will arrive in Toronto on Saturday afternoon at 4.15 and will be met at the Union Station by ten brass bands and two thousand Salvationists. The procession will be reviewed by the General in Front Street opposite the Queen's Hotel. The entire body will then proceed to the city hall along Front and Bay streets, where the Mayor, the Board of Control, and aldermen will present General Booth with an address of welcome. The meetings will extend till Thursday.

Pasteurized Milk a Guarantee Against Disease

"There are two things the sanitarian and public health officer must demand of milk producers and milk dealers: That milk should be clean and that milk should be safe." In other words, milk should not contain dirt, and it should not contain disease.

"The modern methods of clarifying and pasteurizing milk gives us a sure guarantee that no harm can come from such milk, and when the public realize this fact there will be a greater demand for this milk, and a decrease in sickness, especially amongst children." (Extract from an address by Dr. North before the N.Y. Milk Committee.)

Our milk will stand the most rigid inspection and it is positively safe.

Three Apple-pickers Charged With Trespassing

Three apple pickers, Fred Payne, Harold Boyd and Earl Ballantere, of Colborne appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning on the charge of trespassing on the C.P.R. property. They pleaded guilty and were allowed to depart on their promise to find work at once or else leave the city.

Constable Weller, who arrested them gave evidence to the effect that they were found sleeping in the depot waiting room last night.

Asked how they got here, the three claimed that they had paid their way, and came to Peterboro for the purpose of getting work.

"You all know the law," concluded the Magistrate in dismissing the charge.

Jas. Sullivan, you are charged with misbehaving yourself.

"Guilty," replied James.

Evidence by Constable Patterson was to the effect that Sullivan went to the Bell Telephone office and caused a disturbance.

A BIRTHDAY SURPRISE PARTY

Presentation to Rev F.A. Conners by Bible Class

A READING LAMP

A surprise party, consisting of the members of the Helping Hand Bible classes of Park street Baptist Church invaded the home of Rev. and Mrs. Conners last night, to the number of about forty, to remember Rev. Mr. Conners on his birthday.

A very pleasant evening was spent in solos, recitations, etc., after which Mr. George Whatley read the following address, and at the proper time Mrs. A. Inkpin presented Mr. Conners with a beautiful reading lamp.

Peterborough, Oct. 14, 1913.
Rev. F. A. Conners, City:

Dear Pastor,—Having learned that you are now passing another milestone on life's journey, we cannot let the occasion pass without expressing to you our sincerest congratulations and we trust you may be spared to see many more amongst us.

During the short time you have been with us, both you and Mrs. Conners have endeared yourselves very deeply in our affections.

We are very thankful to you both for your deep interest in all the departments of our church work.

We would ask you to accept this reading lamp as a slight token of our love and esteem.

Signed on behalf of the Helping Hand Bible Classes of Park street Baptist Church.

GEORGE WHATLEY,
President.
MRS. A. INKPIN,
President.
BERT LEMON,
Secretary.
MRS. A. HILL,
Secretary.

Rev. Mr. Conners, who was so surprised, could hardly find words to thank the members of the two classes.

Refreshments were served by the ladies, after which all dispersed after a very pleasant evening.

FATHER OF T.W. MOORE PASSES

Mr. T. W. Moore, of the Moore Monument Co., received word yesterday of the death of his father, Mr. S. A. Moore, who died at Belleville on Wednesday afternoon.

The funeral was held in Belleville this afternoon.

EXTRA POLICE TO WATCH YOUNGSTERS

Extra "Cops" to Patrol the City To-night

Youngsters whose hallowe'en frolics cause damage to property must be on their good behavior to-night and confine themselves to legitimate fun.

Police Chief Thompson has called out reinforcements and the city will be patrolled with a view to protect property.

"They're going down to the school" one young lad was heard to remark last evening, "but I'll bet they'll get it if they are caught." He evidently had reference to other boys who had invented some scheme, with the school as the scene of activities.

BAD BOYS IN THE POLICE COURT

They Made Trouble but Magistrate Was Lenient

Six south end juveniles appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning on the charge of conducting themselves in a disorderly manner, thereby causing some residents on McFarland street considerable trouble. They pleaded not guilty and the case was enlarged until next Saturday in order to give them a chance to enjoy hallowe'en and learn to conduct themselves in an orderly manner and keep off the streets.

ASSAULT CASE

Judgment was reserved in the Harvey assault case heard before Magistrate Edmison yesterday afternoon. G. N. Gordon acted for the complainant, Charles Kreger, and F. D. Kerr on behalf of the defendants, George Brownlow and Peter Graham. The evidence taken was to the effect that there was apparently bad feeling on both sides, which terminated in a row.

Repeal Move in Orillia Did Not Meet Success

Orillia, Oct. 31—Several of the hotelkeepers attempted to start an agitation for the repeal of local option Orillia, promising that they would be content with the issue of two beer and wine licenses. After some preliminary work they started out with a petition on Tuesday. After a day's work, in which they got only thirty-two signatures, the promoters gave up the task, turned the petition in to the council, and asked them to act on it. The request was dealt with at a special meeting of the council, which declined to take any action. The fiasco has caused a lot of amusement in town and has strengthened the local option position.

IMMIGRATION

Ottawa, Oct. 31—The total immigration into Canada from April first to October first was 307,267, compared with 273,649 for the same period last year. There were 121,234 British, 72,880 Americans, and 113,183 of all other nationalities.

LAKEFIELD HUNT PARTIES ON THEIR ANNUAL TRIP

Lakefield News.

The call of the wild is beginning to manifest itself among our local deer hunters, and as the great day approaches the sportsman begins to handle his gun more lovingly, and its action is tried time and again to see that it works just right. A number of licenses have already been taken out, and this season will see a large number of hunters leave from this section.

Messrs. C. L. Bickell, of Toronto, and S. J. Charlton will hunt north of Apsley. They left for the hunting grounds on Wednesday.

The Still River Hunt Club will again hunt in the Parry Sound District. The party consists of the following:—D. McMillan, Brazil, S. A.; W. Gow, Vancouver, B.C.; P. Spence, Walter Nugent, Jacob Payne, Paul Payne, John Payne, R. H. Little, Nathan Payne, Walter Hamblin, Ed. Hamblin and Roland Hamblin. All the members of the party are experienced hunters and never fail to bring home their full number of deer.

Messrs. A. W. Moorehouse of Weston, Ont., and W. J. Perry leave on Monday for [illegible] Lake, in the Apsley district, where they will have their annual hunt.

Messrs. J. Grant, Russell Ball and Albert Ball will hunt this year at Beaver Lake.

Messrs. J. Reid, Russell Ball, C. S. Carter and D. Darling left on Thursday for a hunt in the Parry Sound District.

Messrs. A. J. Kidd, W. Adams and W. Preston will hunt in the Deer Bay district this year. The party left on Thursday morning for the hunting grounds.

Messrs. Dr. S. J. Gibson, H. Wannamaker, J. B. Isbister and C. Young left on Wednesday morning for the Parry Sound District, where they will spend the next two weeks hunting the fleet-footed deer.

The Sunshine Hunt Club, composed of local nimrods, will have their headquarters at Crowe's Landing this year. The party leave for the hunting grounds to-day.

THE POWDER MAGAZINE

North Monaghan Council May Take Legal Action

Patience has become a virtue with the North Monaghan Council in regard to their negotiations with a view to having the powder magazine removed.

Like the magazine, the township Dads are apt to blow up and take legal action against the city, for despite requests on the part of North Monaghan and resolutions by the City Council, explosives are still stored in the magazine.

"North Monaghan is not going to stand for it any longer," said one official to-day.

One half of the average man's life consists of owing money he can't pay and the other half in having money owed to him that he can't collect.

HIGH DEATH RATE AMONG CHILDREN

Lower Death Rate, More Marriages and Decline in Births

Toronto, Oct. 31. — A declining birth rate will be recorded in the forthcoming report of the Registrar-General. The rate for the past financial year was 22.4, the lowest since 1903, and two points below the figures for 1911.

There were 3,638 more marriages than in the previous year, an increase of about 2 per thousand. The decline in the birth rate is most noticeable in the industrial centres. The cities with a record of 22,929 marriages were able to report only 15,917 births, while the rural municipalities of the Province with but 10,910 marriages had 32,028 births.

There were in all 58,870 births in Ontario and 28,845 marriages. There was an increase of 155 in the records of illegitimate births, making a rate of 21.3 per thousand births. The cities were responsible for 72 per cent. of the illegitimacy.

DEATH RATE.

During the year 32,150 deaths were registered. This gives a death rate of 12.4 per thousand, a reduction of .2 on that of the previous year. About seven per cent. of the deaths are attributed to phthisis. The total number of deaths from this cause was 2,259, a decrease of 103 on the number for last year.

One child out of every ten born in Ontario dies before reaching the age of five years. In 1912 no less than 6,494 babies died within twelve months of birth, and 8,230 children under five years of age died.

MIXED MARRIAGES.

There was a decline in mixed marriages. Of Protestants and Roman Catholics marrying outside their faiths, 820 were men and 1,096 were women. There were the usual number of marriages between May and December and between Father Christmas and Mother Goose.

Railroad Blasting Kills Salmon Eggs.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Railroad blasting operations on a tributary of the Fraser River, in Washington, having killed more than one million salmon and prevented the spawning of between two and three billion sockeye salmon eggs, the Department of Commerce announced yesterday that the fish-loving American public might expect a decided shortage in its favorite article of food three to five years hence. The Department pronounces the slaughter of the fish to be a "catastrophe."

A Country Doctor's Story

By CARROL H. PIERCE

I doctored Farmer Chubbs' family for years and knew the constitution of every one of 'em. Billy, the only boy in the family, was a queer little chap. I never gave him a dose of medicine that he didn't ask me just how it was going to affect him, and, if it didn't act as I said it would, the next time I was called in he would throw it up at me. We doctors don't like that sort of thing, and I took a dislike to Billy.

The boy grew up and went off somewhere, I don't know where, but his mother said he was going to settle there and grow up with the country. She was sure he would be mayor or governor or something like that, for he was so smart.

One day when I was visiting the house to see some one of them that was sick Chubb asked me if I wouldn't buy a draft for him at the bank in Rogersville the next time I went there and drop it into an envelope he gave me addressed to his son Billy. He handed me $100 for the purpose, and I consented to oblige him.

This didn't look very well to me for Billy. He was twenty-four years old and hearty. His father was having all he could do to get along, and I didn't see why his boy should accept money from him. But I said nothing to the old man about what I thought, because it was none of my business. He asked me not to say anything to any one else about it, and I promised I wouldn't.

It wasn't long after this, when I was called in again for something, that Mrs. Chubb gave me $50 and asked me to buy a draft when I went to Rogersville payable to Billy and send it to him in the same way the old man did. But I wasn't to say anything to her husband about it. I agreed to send the money for her and promised not to let on to Chubb that I had done it.

"It beats all," I said to myself, "what people will do for their children!" Here was I doctoring the family without sending in any bill because I knew they were hard up and they sending money all the while to a man who ought to have been sending money to them.

You bet when I drove away from the house I was mad all over. I made up my mind that the next time any of them asked me to send money to the man, who was either speculating or gambling or loafing, I would let out what I thought about it. And I wasn't going to make any more promises not to tell, either.

But when it came to the scratch I couldn't do it. Mrs. Chubb sent another draft by me, and when I asked her if she didn't think Billy had better be sending her money she looked at me so reproachfully that I didn't say another word. She said that Billy had invented a machine for getting the seeds out of watermelons, or something like that, and what she was sending him was the last payment for his patent right.

One day a girl came to my house, pretending that she came for consultation. What she really came for was to ask me how she could send money. I told her to buy a draft, and she asked me if I wouldn't buy one for her, seeing I went to Rogersville, where the only bank was, nearly every day. I asked her what name I should make it payable to, and she said William Chubb.

I thought I should explode. The good for nothing chap was taking money from a girl. Howsomever, if a doctor learns anything it's to confine himself to his pills and keep his mouth shut. So I bottled up my wrath and told the young woman I would be happy to serve her. She gave me $18, but as she didn't know that the draft would cost anything I paid the exchange myself.

That was the last draft I was asked to send to William Chubb. His father introduced the subject of his son to me one day, but I cut him short, and he saw just how I felt and didn't press the subject. Mrs. Chubb didn't say anything, but it seemed to me she looked well pleased about something. Then one day Farmer Chubb astonished me by calling for my bill. It had been running seven years and amounted to $250. I made it $235. I was more astonished than ever to receive payment.

One day I was just starting out on my daily round of visits when a well dressed, prosperous looking young man stepped up to my buggy and accosted me.

"Don't you know me, doctor? I'm Billy Chubb."

"How de do, Billy?" I said, trying to appear cordial. "Where you been all this while, and what you been doing?"

"Oh, I've been slashing around. I've picked up something since I've been away. I've come back to be married. I want you to come to my wedding. I'm going to marry Sarah Crofts."

Sarah Crofts was the girl who had sent him the $18.

As soon as I saw Farmer Chubb again I spoke of his son and let him talk all he wanted to. He told me that Billy was a natural speculator; would take money from any or everybody to put a deal through, but he seemed to have a gift for knowing just what to take hold of and nearly always won.

And so it turned out. Billy not only made himself rich, but was enabled to give his father and mother anything they wanted. He adores his wife, and his wife is mighty well satisfied with him.

MOLECULES ARE INVISIBLE.

Yet Their Tracks Through Space Can Be Discerned.

It came to be evident about the middle of the last century that, in order to explain certain facts connected with the relative weights of gases, matter must not merely consist of atoms, but that these atoms must have the power of uniting in small groups. In forming a compound, indeed, this must be so. For instance, carbonic acid gas must consist of one atom of carbon, which, along with two atoms of oxygen, forms a small group of three atoms.

The novelty of the conception was in the notion that oxygen itself, in the state of gas, as it exists, for example, in the air, consists of small groups of atoms; in this case, two. To such small groups of atoms was given the name molecules. A molecule is that portion of a substance which can exist in the free state, as oxygen does in air. An atom generally exists in combination, but atoms may and sometimes do exist separately, in which case they also are termed molecules.

Now, can molecules be seen? Is their existence a mere assumption? The answer to that question is, No, they cannot be seen, but artificial molecules can be made which correspond so closely in their behavior to real molecules that the existence of real molecules is practically certain. Moreover, although no one has ever seen a molecule, still the track of a molecule moving through space has been seen, and, just as Robinson Crusoe was right in inferring the existence of man Friday from his footstep imprinted in the sand, so the real existence of a molecule may just as certainly be inferred from the track it leaves.—Sir William Ramsay in Harper's.

MONEY ORDERS AT CLARADAY P.O.

Mr. W. Grady, Postmaster at Claraday, informed the Review to-day that he has received word from the Post Office Inspector that owing to the increased revenue and business done in post office of Claraday, in North Monaghan, the Postmaster-General has found it necessary to make it an accounting office also. This means that money orders can be issued or paid.

This will no doubt be a great convenience to the people residing in this rapidly growing suburb.

NEW CONVENIENT TRAIN TO WINNIPEG

Canadian Pacific

The popularity of Canadian Pacific service, and the excellence of that road's equipment, has been so greatly appreciated by the travelling public that it has been found necessary to put into service an entirely new Through Standard Express Train between Toronto and Winnipeg.

Commencing Sunday, October 27th, the "Gate City Express" will leave Toronto at 2.30 p.m., and will run daily thereafter, arriving Winnipeg at 8.00 a.m. second morning. The train will consist of the highest-class modern equipment; Compartment Library Observation Car, Standard Sleeping Cars, Tourist Sleeping Car, Dining Car, First-class Coach and Colonist Car. This will be found the most convenient and best train between Toronto and Winnipeg on account of the daylight departure from Toronto at an hour when the Union Station is not badly congested, and also on account of the early hour of arrival at Winnipeg.

The present "Vancouver Express", will continue to leave Toronto at 10.20 p.m. daily and will consist of the same equipment as the "Gate City Express." This train is the best to take for points west of Winnipeg but for Winnipeg and east the "Gate City Express" is the right train to travel by.

THE MODERN CARPET OF BAGDAD

THERE are few people who do not know the story of the wonderful carpet on which the owner had but to sit, wish to be at some place and, lo! immediately he found himself there.

Some agents of this nature would be appreciated by many a manufacturer in jumping the demand for his product into a thousand places, a thousand miles away from his factory. Apparently to such a man there is no means of "getting there" and placing his name and his goods right into that territory, except by slow, laborious bit-by-bit acquaintanceship—and mouth-to-mouth testimonials.

But he has overlooked the modern Carpet of Bagdad.

It is Newspaper Advertising.

Fanciful! you say?

Did you ever hear of Edwards' Soups? Well, the genial old cook who forms the trade mark just jumped right from Ireland to a thousand places in Canada in a week—on the Carpet of Newspaper Advertising.

Ever hear of Tillson's Oats? The "braw Scot" who stands for this product stepped over night, as it were, from a small town in Ontario to practically every town and village in Canada.

Wrigley's Gum—Sunshine Furnaces—Comfort Soap—all have taken advantage of this Modern Carpet of Bagdad—Newspaper Advertising.

TO THE MANUFACTURERS OF CANADA:

If you have a name and a product that you wish placed in demand throughout Canada, take advantage at once of the modern carpet of Bagdad—Newspaper Advertising.

If you are doing a local business talk over your advertising problems with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

If you are doing a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have the counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency.

A list of capable advertising agents will be sent you on request, without cost or obligation, by the Secretary of Canadian Press Association, Room 503, Lumsden Building, Toronto.

HOCKEY

An executive meeting of the Hockey Club will be held at the Oriental Hotel to-night.

Galt will enter a junior O.H.A. tem and probably an intermediate team. At a meeting, the best held in years, the situation was thoroughly discussed, and it was agreed that Galt could have two teams this winter. A committee composed of T. T. Aitkin James Fraser and Dr. Deans was appointed to look up the material available, and report back to a meeting to be called by the committee.

Berlin is the centre of one of the most compact intermediate O.H.A. hockey groups in the big association, and the clubs expect the greatest year ever in amateur hockey. The teams are Berlin, Preston, Waterloo, New Hambourg and Elmira. The Preston team looms up something like this: Goal, Short; point, Ploethner; cover-point, Peiffer; rover, Bowman; centre, Etherington; wings, Mulroy and Rahn.

The Berlin probable line-up will be: Goal, Hainsworth; point, Trushinski; cover-point, Nichols; rover, Boettger; centre, Solomon; wings, Seibert and W. Uffelman. The Waterloo team: Goal, Richardson, formerly of Niagara Falls; point, H. Forler; cover-point, O. Uffelman; rover, Forler, formerly with Paris in 1910-11; centre, the star of the Waterloo-Oxford League; wings, Webber, another Western Ontario League star, and Jack Kube, of Port Arthur; besides several others to choose from.

Bruce Ridpath has resigned as manager of the Torontos, and his successor will be decided upon at a meeting of the club, which will be held in a few days.

CURLING

Orillia, Oct. 31.—The annual meeting of the Orillia Curling Club was held with about 30 members present. The officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

Patron and Patroness — Dr. and Mrs. A H. McLean.
President—Mr. F. L. McGachen.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. D. A. Macnab.
Secretary—Mr. T. C. Doidge.
Ass't Sec.—Mr. W. D. Craw.
Treas.—Mr F. L. McGachen.
Chaplain—Rev. Chas M. Marshall.
Representative to O.O.A.—Messrs. R. F. Stewart and G. T. Madden.
Executive Committee —Messrs. L J. Kearns, Geo S. Sinclair, J. Ed. Hinds, J. E. G. Curran, and Dr. Kirkpatrick.
Auditors—Messrs. D. A. Macnab and Geo. Rapley.

A meeting for the election of skips will be held shortly.

OF INTEREST TO TENNIS PLAYERS

One of the faults of the inexperienced doubles player which is most persistent is standing still. This is one of those necessities in doubles that are often overlooked. But no partner can do justice to his team unless he moves after every shot to the center of the angle of the return. In other words, both men must constantly change their positions, moving back and forth toward one side or the other, according to where they have sent the ball. If the net man has volleyed deep into the right hand corner both players move across to the right. The right hand player thereby protects the shot down his own side line and the left hand player protects the cross court shot down the central diagonal of the court.—Outing.

EXIT JAMES REYNOLDS BARBER AT PORT HOPE

James Reynolds, Port Hope's veteran tonsorial artist has retired from business, says the Guide. Jimmy has been barbering for 46 years 42 of which he has been doing business in Port Hope. Every barber here with the exception of R. Dunsford was an apprentice of his. Many others who served their time with him have left town and done well. Jimmy was certainly an artist with the razor and scissors and many of our old citizens had become so attached to him that they thought no other barber could do their work. Jimmy's life has been one of varied experience. He was always open to take a chance and made many strange bets. Our older citizens will remember Reynolds as an expert sack runner and on one occasion he raced a horse at the Town Park. He took part in the bicycle races to Cobourg and return, and a few years ago had a skating race. Then he won considerable notority in the walking game but this was unsuccessful. The undertaking to walk to Toronto and return was too much for him and we fear injured his health to such an extent as to make his retirement from work necessary. Jimmy has purchased a cosy little home on the Cranberry road and will move there next week. We hope that the change will be beneficial and that ere long he will be at the barber chair calling "next gentleman."

Evidence by Telephone

By EDWIN WATERMAN

There is nothing more irritating to a man than to be accused by a woman, especially when some part of the accusation is technically true. Being engaged to Clara Underwood, a very pious and lovely young lady, I felt it my duty before marriage not to give up certain amusements—a friendly game of poker, for instance—but to conceal such from my fiancee. It seemed to me that there would be no use in letting her know about them, for once married, I proposed to settle down and be a thoroughly domestic man.

What was my horror one day when my bosom friend, George Brewster, came to me and said:

"Great Scott, Billy! What do you suppose that tattler, Madge Ellis, has been telling Clara about you?"

"What?"

"Why, that you drink, gamble and have already jilted four girls that she knows of and as many more that she don't know of."

"You don't mean it!"

"I certainly do."

"I wish she were a man; I'd make her eat her words."

"She isn't a man and you've got a lot of diplomacy on your hands."

"What can I do?"

George thought awhile, then said:

"I have it—the telephone!"

"What do you mean?"

"At Clara's home there is a receiver upstairs and one downstairs. You go to see Clara and send up word that you've come to explain Madge's allegations. I don't know whether Clara will see you, but if she does don't try to explain by a denial; it won't do any good; prove your case by telephone. Station Clara at one of the receivers and call up Madge at the other; then make Madge go back on what she has said about you while Clara is listening."

"How can I do that?"

"Don't ask me. Have you no inventive power? Lay a plan, if you can before you begin to talk; if not, rely on your wits and be guided by what Madge says."

That afternoon I called on Clara, and I was half an hour getting an interview. When I succeeded I told her that I would call up a very dear friend of mine who would disprove the charges against me and that I wished her to hear what was said without the other person knowing she was listening. She consented, and I started the game.

Now, I knew what neither Billy nor Clara knew—that Madge was one of the girls I had jilted. That is to say she had tried to rake me in, and I had declined to be raked. Clara went to the receiver upstairs and I to the one downstairs. I called up Madge, and the following dialogue ensued:

"Is that you, Madge?"

"Yes. Who is this?"

"I'm Billy Meredith."

"Oh."

"How would you like to go to the theater with me tomorrow night?"

"The theater?"

"Yes."

"What would Clara Underwood say?"

"Oh, she wouldn't care. Didn't you know that my engagement with her is broken?"

"No; is it?"

"Yes; Clara broke it, but I have been for some time wishing to be free."

"Why?"

"For certain reasons."

"What reasons?"

"Well, I've never felt right about you. I didn't realize—but a telephone isn't the means by which to talk over—"

"Clara is a very lovely girl. I wonder you didn't stick to her."

"She has her faults."

"Well—yes—some faults."

"Such as?"

"Well, she affects to be awfully good. I don't believe she's any better than any one else."

"I don't either. She thinks I'm a bad one. That's one reason why she broke with me. Did you ever hear that I drank?"

"No. And I know you don't, at least not immoderately."

"Or gamble?"

"Certainly not."

"Or that I'm generally wild?"

"How ridiculous."

"Well, how about going to the theater tomorrow night?"

"I have an engagement for tomorrow night, but I can break it."

"I wouldn't do that. I haven't bought the tickets yet. I'll see for what night I can get them and call you up again. Goodby."

Without waiting to hear her own goodby I hung up the receiver and waited for Clara to come down to me. I feared that her ire would overcome her discretion, but she controlled herself, and in a few moments I heard her footsteps on the staircase. She approached me with extended arms, I clasped her in mine, and we stood for awhile without speaking. When she disengaged herself I saw that her eyes were moist.

"The horrid thing!" were the first words she uttered.

"You see that I'm not so bad as she painted me."

"Why, do you know the little liar told me you played cards for money at George Brewster's every Saturday night."

"Did she say that?"

"Yes, she did."

"What do you do?"

"I vote."

STRANGE CASE IS THAT OF ALBERT STANDING

Brought to Protestant Home From the Mimico Asylum

LIVED HERE ONCE

Attendant Says Dr. Bruce Smith Sent the Man Here

One of the strangest cases that has ever been brought about in connection with any of the local charitable institutions was brought to light here at the Protestant Home this morning.

On Wednesday evening a man was brought to the Home by an attendant who claimed that the man was sent here by Dr. Bruce Smith to be confined in the Home. The matron at first refused to take the man in as the Home is for the aged of the city, but when the attendant declared that he would leave his charge at the door, nothing remained but for the matron to take the man in. City Relief Officer Miller was notified of the affair and as result he finds that the man whose name is Albert Standing, has some history. Standing says that he was employed in the construction of the Market Building which was erected some thirty years ago. After putting in his time on the above work he went to Lakefield where he spent some time working in the woods and other places. He then went to King, a small village near Newmarket, where he resided, until he was committed to jail as being insane. Shortly afterwards he was sent to the Mimico Asylum where he was confined for nineteen years. His next move was to be sent here, from the asylum at the request of Dr. Bruce Smith.

Standing is a well built man, apparently about 63 years of age. According to his actions Mr. Miller is of the opinion that the Home is certainly no place for this man. Another question that no doubt will arise is the question of who will be responsible for the man's care. The temperment of the man will also be something extra to contend with as he will probably be allowed among the other inmates of the Home.

Standing hasn't the slightest idea, when he first came to this country, but declares that it is over thirty years since he left this city.

Besides his queer history, he has the idea that some one is trying to kill him. This idea it is said caused him to be confined to jail. He also had his throat cut with a razor, which he claims was caused during the struggle with his enemies who were trying to poison him.

The officials of the Home have not had any communication with Dr. Bruce Smith regarding the matter.

STEER FOR A GOAL

Are you just drifting along, or have you a real ambition? The man who works because he must, with no higher purpose than to live from day to day, is little better than a machine. Work for something beyond your work, if it's only to build a chicken coop or own your own home and you have become a human being. The world has plenty of machines. They all go to the scrap heap.

MUST NOT TAKE ICE FROM LAKE

Ice Harvest This Winter Will Take Place Elsewhere

That this coming season will bring some important changes for the iceman is evident from statements made by Sanitary Inspector Spence to-day. This winter ice taken from the Little Lake, will not be allowed to be used for domestic purposes, and also it will be against the new rules to have it stored in with the good ice in the same storehouse.

The new rules in this city are the result of a visit of the District Medical Health Officer, Dr. Clinton, of Belleville, to this city last week. Dr. Clinton was here in connection with the complaints made regarding the Gas Works. Owing to the fact that the oil of the gas house find its way to the river, and then to the lake, this is not a fit place to harvest ice.

The new rules will no doubt make it necessary for the icemen to either go to Chemong Lake or else find a new field of labor.

SWAT THE FLY

Another question that will receive attention as a result of the officer's visit to the city is the fly nuisance. A notice will be given out by the District Medical Health Officer at Belleville warning the public how to rid themselves of the fly. Dr. Clinton has done considerable work in the past in connection with the fly nuisance, and if he takes charge of the Peterborough campaign the public will no doubt lend a hand.

One of the moves will be against the hotels and restaurants. Notices compelling the owners to use wire screens and other equipment will be handed out.

Dr. Clinton will be in the city some time in the near future in connection with other sanitary matters.

Music and Drama

The Toronto Press is loud in its praises of the recital given by the pupils of the Toronto College of Music. The people of Toronto were evidently interested, as the great Massey Hall was filled to capacity.

As a general rule the only artists taking part in the program are the pupils of the College in Toronto, but this year exception was made in honor of two graduates of Lindsay Convent. One of these was Miss Mary Lonergan, of Peterborough, who made her course with the Sisters of St. Joseph in Lindsay, and took her degree A.T.C.M., from the College of Music, Toronto.

This is a high compliment paid to Miss Lonergan as well as the Convent, from which she graduated, and Peterborough is to be congratulated upon having so brilliant and promising a musician. The Globe says:—"Miss Lonergan played Beethoven's Concerto in C minor with a technical development that is very promising."

EVELYN NOT COMING HERE

The local engagement of Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw in Mariette, announced for November 11, has been called off.

The Moon Maiden, a musical comedy, will fill the date at the Grand.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

THE QUINLAN OPERA COMPANY

Warm Praise for Miss Felise Lyne

The Melbourne "Argus" in a review of the "Barber of Seville," as recently performed by the Quinlan English Grand Opera Company in Melbourne, gives that talented and young prima donna, Miss Felice Lyne, the following criticism:—"Miss Felice Lyne, who took the part of Rosina, who is wooed by her guardian, Dr. Bartolo, but won by the Count of Almaviva under his very nose, gave a specially delightful performance. She was both pert and arch, and the charming way in which she played a turn to Figaro and Bartolo in the latter scene, to the Count later on, when she gets her music lesson, and to all three in the last act, was perfectly done. Vocally Miss Lyne gave a brilliant performance of her opening song, the well-known "Una voce poco fa." The purity of tone and intonation and the brightness of the rich coloratura were the distinguishing features, but the young artist also showed in addition some exquisite cantabile work, which proved that in more expressive work she would would not be wanting. According custom, the aria Rossini wrote for the "lesson," she gets from her sham teacher (her lover in disguise) was replaced by an interpolated item, and this, according to the precedent set by many prima donnas, was "The Shadow Song" from Meyerbeer's "Dinorah." In this Miss Lyne scored a triumph, in all its elaborate arabesque phrases and ornate fioriture, displaying an agility of voice and purity of tone (the staccato notes in the upper register came out deliciously) which fairly brought the house down. The song was repeated from the final cadenza (in which the first flute had an important share), and with even greater success, the trills near the end and the final D flat (held for an abnormal time) being specially beautiful."

Miss Felice Lyne will be heard in Peterborough during the forthcoming visit of the Quinlan Grand Opera Company to this country next spring.

See Us and See Better

The eye is built just like a camera: the lens to focus: the lid as a shutter; the iris or color as the diaphram; the thick coating of the eyeball as the dark room; the retina or nerve as the sensitive plate, and strange as it may seem, the image in the eye is upside down the same as in the camera.

When any of this apparatus gets out of order the eye will not focus properly and needs the aid of glasses.

Duty to your eyes demands that they have good care.

FOUR CANADIANS RECOGNIZED CARNEGIE HERO FUND AWARD

Bert T. Yates, of Cornwall, Receives a Bronze Medal and $2,000 For Educational Purposes as Needed, For Saving Two From Drowning— Lynn F. Wilcox, of Pennant, Sask., Receives Same.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 1. — The Carnegie Hero Fund made public its quarterly awards yesterday. In all an aggregate of $71,600 is given in cash for deeds of heroism, the largest aggregate amount in the history of the fund.

Among the awards are the following to Canadians:

Bert T. Yates, Cornwall, Ont.—Bronze medal and $2,000 as needed for educational purposes. Yates, aged 17 years, a student, saved Percival A. Newman, aged nine, a schoolboy, and J. Frederick Shaver, aged 15, a student, from drowning at Mille Roches, Ont., on Aug. 29, 1909. Yates, Newman, Shaver and two other boys were crossing a section of the St. Lawrence river, near the foot of Mille Roches rapids, when an oarlock broke and the boat upset, 135 feet from the bank, where the water was 5 1-2 feet deep. Yates and two of the boys grabbed the boat, which drifted upside down, but Newman, who could not swim, called for help, and Yates swam fourteen feet to him. He placed Newman's hands on his shoulder and swam a few feet with him when he saw Shaver, who could not swim, beneath the surface. He pulled Shaver to the surface, put his arm around his body, and swam about seven feet farther with the boys to a punt which was coming to their aid.

Lynn F. Wilcox, Pennant, Sask.—Bronze medal and $1,000, as needed. Wilson, aged 23, a farmer, attempted to save Leroy A. Keller, aged 22, a farmer, from suffocation at Pennant, Dec. 1, 1911. Keller was standing on a bolt stuck through the end of a cable being raised from the bottom of a well seventy feet deep, in which dynamite had recently been exploded, when he was overcome by smoke and fumes and fell to the bottom. Wilcox had himself lowered, standing on the bolt. When he reached the bottom of the well he attempted to secure Keller with a rope. He found himself becoming weak and there was a roaring in his ears. He called for aid and was raised, leaving Keller at the bottom. Wilcox was semi-conscious when he was brought up, but he was revived. Another man, J. W. Augustine, attempted to save Keller, but both Augustine and Keller were suffocated.

In the same case the father of John W. Augustine of Pennant, Sask., was awarded a silver medal because of the death of his son, trying to save Lefroy A. Keller after Wilson had failed to get him to the top of the well.

R. Frederick Dayton, Battle River, Alta., silver medal to widow and pension of $25 a month.

STEAMER IS WRECKED

Halifax-Port Nelson Boat Lost in the North.

HALIFAX, N.S., Nov. 1.—According to a wireless message received at Halifax from the survey steamer Acadia, the steamer Alette, running from Port Nelson to Halifax, has been wrecked somewhere along the route in the Hudson Bay or the straits.

On board the Acadia are thirteen Chinese and several other foreigners who were picked up in a rowboat in the open sea. It cannot be learned from those who have been rescued, just how, when, or where the Alette was wrecked, they being unable to relate to the officers of the Acadia anything that happened. There is no one on board the Acadia who can make any meaning out of the efforts of the rescued ones to explain just what did happen, or how many were aboard the wrecked steamer Alette, which is owned in Newcastle, N.B.

The Acadia does not arrive in Halifax until late to-night, and until then nothing more can be learned of the disaster.

Schooner Is Stranded.

DIGBY, N.S., Nov. 1.—The American schooner Theodore Roosevelt, Captain Bovie, with a cargo of pickled fish for Gloucester, Mass., went ashore yesterday at Trout Cove, about 12 miles west of Point Primlight. A tug has been sent to her assistance.

RITUAL MURDER A FACT, HE SAYS

KIEV, Nov. 1.—Those who had been expecting sensations from the testimony of the experts in mental diseases at the trial of Mendel Beiliss for alleged "ritual murder" were rewarded yesterday by a sensational anti-Semite diatribe from Prof. Sikorski of Kiev University, who abandoned all pretense of the scientific limits of psychiatry in expressing his belief that Andrew Yuchinsky was murdered by blood ritualists. The witness refused to be interrupted by the president of the court, who vainly attempted to stop him on the vigorous protests of the counsel for the defence.

Carrying of Dynamite.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—In answer to a request of the court that the Government show proof that the dynamiters convicted in the McNamara plots specifically intended and did carry explosives on passenger trains, District Attorney C. W. Miller, of Indiana, yesterday argued before the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals that in every instance in which details of a dynamiting had been shown the dynamite had been carried into the state on a passenger train.

Blind Lawyer Dead.

CORNWALL, Nov. 1.—W. O. Stewart, the blind lawyer of Lancaster, died very suddenly at his home there Thursday. He had been about his office as usual the day before. Mr Stewart studied law in Toronto, being blind before he enrolled as a student. He was born in Lancaster [illegible] years ago. He leaves a widow and six children.

To Stop Separation Policy.

LISBON, Nov. 1.—The Government has published a proclamation stating that, since the recent uprisings and the general unrest have been caused mainly by the religious sentiment of the people against the anti-clerical policy of the Government, further steps for the separation of the state from the church will be suspended.

NOT FROZEN YET

Alaska Mail Carrier Brower Wants His Job Renewed.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—A bid for carrying the mails three thousand miles in the depth of an Arctic winter, over the mountains of northern Alaska when the snow lies so deep there scarcely is a bottom, was received yesterday by the Postoffice Department. The bid came from Charles D. Brower of Point Barrow, Alaska, the most northern postoffice on the continent and a close rival for northern honors with any in the world.

Brower wants to carry the mail from Point Barrow to Kolzebu Sound 500 miles southward. The man who gets the contract must make three round trips each winter when the seas are frozen.

Brower has lived in the Arctic 30 years and is the only white man who inhabits that far northern community. He is employed by a fur company.

CONTRACTOR HAD TO PAY.

Graft Investigator Tells of Tammany Campaign Methods.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—John A. Hennessy, former Governor Sulzer graft investigator, who has been campaigning against Tammany Hall, testified on the witness stand yesterday and declared that Wm. J. Connors of Buffalo had told him of having collected $25,000 from James Stewart, a state barge canal contractor, at the request of Charles F. Murphy. Hennessy was called as the first witness in the John Doe proceedings instituted by District Attorney Whitman to investigate the charges made by Hennessy against Murphy, Edward E. McCall, the Democratic candidate for mayor, and others.

"Connors told me," said the witness, "that Murphy had asked him to get a good contribution from Jim Stewart, and Connors did. Conners said he got the $25,000 from Stewart in Dunkirk, I think, in October, 1910."

SAVED FROM ARREST.

Mrs. Lind Let Mexican Deputies Hide In Her Stateroom.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The steamer that arrived last night from Vera Cruz with Mrs. John Lind, wife of President Wilson's special envoy, brought also two Mexican legislators, who owe their liberty, if not their lives, to her quick wit and generosity. To save the two Mexicans from arrest at Vera Cruz, Mrs. Lind hid them in her stateroom and sat up all night on deck until the boat left port and the officers of the Huerta Government had gone ashore.

A week ago the cables brought word that the Ward liner Morro Castle had been detained at Vera Cruz, while Huerta's agents searched for eight rebellious members of the Legislature of the State of Vera Cruz. Until the Morro Castle arrived here last night only those aboard knew that two of the eight "deputies" had escaped arrest. These men, Adolfo Dominguez and Migual A. Cordera, say they will stay in New York until Mexico becomes a safer home for the opponents of Huerta.

"While the search was going on," said Mrs. Lind, "the friends of these two men learned that I was aboard and they came with tears in their eyes begging me to help them. I said, 'Here's the key of my stateroom; take it.'

"That was all they needed. I spent the night on deck, and the two men hid in my room until the detectives gave up the search and went ashore. Then the ship was released and we sailed at five o'clock the next morning."

Three of the sons of Yuan-Shih-Kai, the newly inaugurated first President of the Chinese Republic, are now students of the Cheltenham College in England. Recently they were seen there by a Chinese education commission, including the Chinese Minister of Education.

BUSINESS SECTION OF WESTERN TOWN THREATNED

Residents of Strome Fight All Night Blaze Caused by Upsetting of Oil Lamp

Canadian Press Despatch.

WETASKIWIN, ALTA., Nov. 1.—A bad fire was raging all night at Strome, sixty miles west of here. It was caused by a book-keeper in Douglas Bros., Departmnetal store upsetting a lamp. The whole town turned out to fight it, but the fire spread to Hallman's drug store; Miss Hites' millinery store, and Freeman's restaurant, and at the latest advices, there was not much hope of saving any of the business section. The Camrose fire department was rushed to the assistance of the fire fighters.

ROYAL THEATRE TO SEAT 1000 PEOPLE

The Royal Theatre, already the most commodious of the local moving picture houses, is in a short time to have its capacity practically doubled. A gallery is to be installed, which will provide 400 more seats and give the theatre accommodation for one thousand people.

Mr. H. C. Winch, representing the Chamberlain estate, the owners of the property, entered into an agreement with Mr. M. Pappas, the lease-holder of the building, to have the work done for Mr. Herb Clayton, the proprietor and manager of the Royal, and it is planned to have the operations commence immediately after the New Year. Mr. Pappas, who has some good ideas in regard to the decoration and arrangement of the theatre, has arranged with a Toronto architect for complete plans for the improvements, and local contractors will be asked to submit tenders for the work. The alterations will make the Royal one of the largest and prettiest moving picture theatres in Canada. 1d

OPPOSES THE PREFERENCE

Rebate to U.S. Ships Would be Discriminatory Says McReynolds.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Attorney-General McReynolds yesterday sent to Secretary McAdoo his written opinion on the effect of the 5 per cent. preferential on goods brought to the United States in American ships, promised in the new Tariff Act. Although the opinion was not made public, it was generally understood that Mr. McReynolds did not differ from the ideas of the preferential clause held by State and Treasury Department officials — that the discount in American bottoms cannot be granted unless the same concessions be given to most of the nations of the world who figure in its commerce.

With this condition confronting the Government, department officials contend that this clause should not be allowed to become operative, for its enforcement practically would mean a reduction of tariff duties by five per cent. all along the line.

When a white enamel vessel has become discolored, simply fill the vessel with water and add a teaspoonful of chloride of lime. Let boil a few minutes.

Flour Expert For Japan.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 1.—Hon. Geo. E. Foster has written to M. H. Stevens, M.P., that the Dominion Government is planning to send a flour expert to Japan to demonstrate the Canadian product, the scheme to be handled through co-operation of Canadian millers.

Tried To Bribe Councillor.

VICTORIA, B.C., Nov. 1.—Herbert P. Winsby was yesterday convicted by an assize court jury of attempting to bribe a councillor of Saanich to whom he proposed giving $5,000 for a changed vote in a paving contract. Sentence was deferred.

Fire Destroys Rink.

EDMONTON, Nov. 1.—Fire early yesterday completely destroyed the Thistle Rink and the old curling rink adjoining, used as an armory for the 101st Regiment, Edmonton Fusiliers. With the armories were burned eight hundred uniforms, fifty thousand rounds of ammunition and instruments of the regimental band, and for a half hour the cartridges kept up a continual fusillade. The loss is $20,000.

The Thistle rink was used for the sessions of the Legislature in 1906.

NOT AMERICANIZED

Influx From U.S. Has Not Changed Canada Says Samuel.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Postmaster-General Samuel, in an interview with The Chronicle regarding his Canadian visit, says:

"I found everywhere a very intense sentiment of Canadian national patriotism which co-exists with warm loyalty for the British Empire. Towards the United States there is on the part of Canadians a feeling of hearty good-will, but they have an intense pride and belief in their own separate identity. The influx of Americans into Canada does not tend to Americanize the Dominion I was surprised to discover.

"A certain sensitiveness still survives in regard to possible interference from Downing Street, and it seems to me the people in Canada sometimes do not realize how completely the doctrine of autonomy is now accepted in the Mother Country.

"I made no disguise while there of my opinion of the present system which is that the executive management of the common affairs of the Empire left to a Government responsible only to the electors of one portion of the Empire cannot be final. But I said also that nothing would be more unwise than to attempt to press forward any solution of so vast and difficult a problem before conditions were ripe."

NEGLECTING THE ORIENT

Christians Not Doing Their Best Says Bramwell Booth.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—William Bramwell Booth, who succeeded his late father as head of the Salvation Army, arrived on the steamer Lusitania yesterday on his first visit to this country. He will go almost direct to Toronto and Winnipeg.

The general was a little under the weather during the trip over and remained in his stateroom. He is 57 years of age. For years he was his father's chief lieutenant.

General Booth told the press that he felt that western Christianity was not doing all it could for the peoples of the Orient. There was much, he thought, that the Salvation Army could do in China, Japan and Australia, and he expected to make a tour of those countries next year to study conditions with a view to extending the army's work.

To Accept Open Shops.

QUEBEC, Nov. 1.—The boot and shoe workers here have decided to accept for the time being the new rules laid down by the Quebec manufacturers, the most important of which is the decision to ignore all unions and to run open shops.

The change comes into effect on Nov. 1, and 5,000 hands belonging to the leather cutters' union are affected.

Skagway Steamer Arrives.

VICTORIA, B.C., Nov. 1. — The C.P.R. steamer Princess Mary arrived from Skagway, bringing two hundred and sixty passengers, the largest number from the north this season. She brought many furs also and other trophies of the chase and a gold nugget weighing seventy-two ounces, dug at Atlin.

Gimli Case Goes To Law Lords.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 1.—A. J. Andrews, K.C., counsel for E. L. Taylor, in the protest against Mr. Taylor's election to the Provincial Legislature as representative from Gimli, stated yesterday that the recent decision of the higher courts would result in the matter being finally carried to the Privy Council.

Canadian Team Won.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The result of the Roberts' Imperial trophy competition, issued last night, show the team from Canada with a score of 75 were winners. The United Kingdom had 74, New Zealand 64, and Transvaal, 62. The Canadians made more hits than in any previous competition.

TO COMMAND R.M.C.

Col. L. R. Carleton of Essex Regiment, is New Head of College.

OTTAWA, Nov. 1.—Col. L. R. Carleton, D.S.O., of the Essex Regiment, England, has been appointed commandant of the Royal Military College, Kingston. Col. Carleton succeeds Col. Crowe, who accepted last summer an important post under the War Office. The new commandant was selected for the position by Col the Hon. Sam Hughes, after consultation with the War Office in London last month. He comes to Canada with a distinguished record as a soldier and as an experienced and successful educationist and administrative officer. For five years he has been connected with the instructional staff at Sandhurst. He will at once assume his new duties as head of the Royal Military College. Col. Carleton served in the South African war.

May Be Woman's Slayer.

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 1.—The police of this city are anxiously awaiting the receipt of a description and photograph of William Campbell, colored, now being placed on trial in Montreal, charged with the murder of Charles Muir. The Montreal police believe that the man may be Charles Jones, who is charged with the murder of Belle Courtenay, a white woman, here three years ago. The headless body of the woman was found in a sewer in the Mill Creek bottoms, and for ten days remained unidentified.

Nothing has been heard of Campbell since he was seen with the woman a short time before her body was found.

Quebec Has Big Fire.

QUEBEC, Nov. 1.—Fire which broke out yesterday morning, destroyed the contents of the dry goods store of Edward Belanger, on Mountain Hill, and threatened at one time to spread to the adjoining premises, occupied by the Soleil Newspaper Co. Damage to the extent of $65,000 was done to the Belanger store, while the Soleil building also was injured by smoke and water.

Charged With Arson.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Capt. John Albert Fish, a member of the New York Yacht Club, and formerly a civil engineer with the British army during the Boer war, was arraigned yesterday charged with having burned the yacht Senta in Edgartown Harbor, Mass., three years ago for the purpose of collecting $15,000 insurance.

Hindus Fight Deportation.

VICTORIA, B.C., Nov. 1.—The 39 Hindus who are awaiting deportation on the next outgoing Japanese steamer are to invoke habeas corpus proceedings in an attempt to get into Canada. An application will be made to-day before Justice Gregory by one of the Hindus, which will act as a test case.

Arguments will probably be heard next week on the application.

Can't Afford To Go Without.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Hon. Mr. Miller, Australian Minister of Defence, dissents from the view adopted by certain advocates here that both Australia and New Zealand "can't afford the luxury of a navy of their own." While he deplores the necessity of diverting men and money for purposes of defence, he declares that neither dominion can now afford to be without its own unit.

MORRIS HAS MAJORITY

Partial Returns Indicate Thirteen Seats to Bond's Six.

IS SUSTAINED

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 1.—Returns up to last night indicate that the Morris Government has been sustained. Incomplete figures for nineteen seats give thirteen for the Government and six for the Bond party.

One of the surprises is the defeat of the Speaker of the Assembly, Mr. Warren, by Mr. Grimes, secretary of the Fishermen's Protective Union, which has formed a coalition with the Opposition, headed by Sir Robert Band, the former Premier.

Mr. Grimes, who is regarded as the first Socialist in the Assembly, had 174 majority in Port De Grace.

In Carbonear, Mr. Goodison, Government candidate, defeated Mr. Penny by 66 votes.

Harbor De Grace elected three Government candidates, Messrs. Picotte, Parsons and Young.

The two Bond candidates in Ferryland lost their deposits, Messrs. Cashin and Moore being elected.

Messrs. Woodford and Kennedy, Morris candidate, were returned in Harbor Main.

The contests in Bay De Verde and St. John's were the closest, the Opposition probably winning the latter, while the former is about split.

St. John's West, for which Premier Morris sits, is going strongly for the three Government candidates.

North St. John's will probably go to the Opposition, while the east looks like a victory, although the vote is very close.

Sacrificed Lives.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Grafton Stevens, a wealthy resident of the suburb of Wilmette, and his wife were burned early yesterday seeking to save a pet dog.

Returning late from the home of friends, they discovered their home, in which the dog had been locked, in flames. Both rushed in and were trapped when the roof collapsed.

C.P.R. EXONERATED

Railway's Austrian Agents Freed of Most of Corruption Charges.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—To those who have followed developments in the C.P.R. case in Vienna, the reports of the Parliamentary committee on emigration, which will be submitted to Parliament to-day, will cause no surprise. The net result of the inquiry is that the C.P.R. company is cleared of the greater part of the accusations laid at its door.

The commissioners have decided that the increase in the numbers of emigrants originated in distress in the country, and lack of work in Galicia and other provinces, and recommended that local Governments should take measures to provide employment for laborers. The more serious accusations against the Canadian Pacific Co. are held to be unfounded.

This rapid settlement of the question is, of course, due to active diplomatic intervention. The release of Altman, the company's representative in Vienna, is expected almost immediately.

Schildknecht Back In Tombs.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—John C. Schildknecht, the 20-a-week clerk of the Washburn-Crosby Co., who is charged with having spent $55,000 of his employers' money in high living within six months, pleaded not guilty yesterday to seven indictments charging him with grand larceny and an eighth charging forgery. In default of $10,000 bail Schildknecht went back to the Tombs to await trial.

Mexico City Panicky Over Report That Fifteen Per Cent. Levy Was to be Made on Bank Deposits.

POLICEMEN KILLED

Wilson's Policy is Called "Idealistic Grab" by London Outlook.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 1.—The Government yesterday encountered some difficulty in meeting its pay rolls for the ten days ending yesterday. In some of the departments only partial payment was made with the promise to the men that the balance would be forthcoming to-day. In other departments payment had to be entirely deferred. Later the Government secured funds and later began giving the men in all departments their money. The paymaster had instructions to continue at work all through the night if necessary.

Rumors of the inability of the administration to meet its financial engagements spread over the city together with another persistently circulated rumor that President Huerta purposed to levy a tax of 15 per cent. on all bank deposits. The latter report spread to such an extent that many persons withdrew their funds from various banks. Apparently there was no basis for the report.

Several leading bankers said they knew nothing further of it than the talk that was going on in the street and the fact that they were required to answer dozens of telephone inquiries made by anxious depositors. The withdrawal did not reach the proportion of runs on the banks, but bankers appeared apprehensive that this might be the result should the excitement continue to grow.

The manager of one of the leading banks expressed the opinion that Huerta, who thus far has confined his financial efforts to legal bonds, would not attempt to adopt such a measure as levying a 15 per cent. tax on deposits.

In the clubs, on the streets and at all meeting places, foreigners relate to one another with the latest embellishments, the reports of the Government's financial difficulty and prophesy a calamity in the near future. Many persons are taking advantage of the short holiday season to go to Vera Cruz in anticipation of unpleasant consequences as a result of the next meeting of the Cabinet in Washington.

"Idealistic Grab."

LONDON, Nov. 1.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Outlook declares that President Wilson's Mobile speech means a policy of "idealistic grab," by which all other nations except the United States will be shut out of the trade of the western hemisphere.

"Spain, from 1600 to 1800, The Outlook says, "forbade all other nations to trade with South America, which was strictly reserved to the commercial enterprises of Spain alone. In the year 1913 President Wilson wants to impose a practically identical yoke of domination on the commercial relations of the great independent communities which have grown up between the Rio Grande and the Antarctic extremity of the continent. The further assurance that the effect of the opening of the Panama Canal would be to abolish foreign concession hunters in favor of the investments of the United States completes the exposition of this astounding scheme for the barefaced appropriation of the hemisphere.

"It is barefaced, indeed, but wildly absurd. What everybody suspects is that behind the President there is embattled in full array the New York trusts."

Massacred 47 Policemen.

SAN LUIS POTOSI, Mexico, Nov. 1.—A force of 600 revolutionists on Thursday rounded up, tortured and killed 47 out of 50 mounted policemen sent from here to protect a ranch twenty miles to the west. Their mutilated bodies were in many cases hung on trees. The three policemen who escaped returned here.

Bodies of revolutionists yesterday threatened communications between here and Aguascalientes. A train left that town yesterday morning carrying a heavy guard and rapid-fire guns.

SHOWS THE GRAVE

Farmer Confesses to Murdering His Neighbor in Cold Blood.

MILFORD, Mass., Nov. 1.—By the flickering light of lanterns, Daniel J. Cooper, a farmer, led a party of officers last night into the depths of a swamp in West Upon, nine miles from here, and pointed out the grave he said he had dug to hide the body of his neighbor, Alfred Bradish, whom he confessed he had killed with a revolver bullet on the morning of Oct. 4.

In his confession, which came after an all-day examination by the police, Cooper said he shadowed Bradish from his farmhouse, and without a word came up behind him and fired. Then he hid the body in the woods until the next morning—which was Sunday — when he dragged it an eighth of a mile to the swamp, where it was found last night.

ARE YOU WITH THE GERMANS?

The result in South Bruce is not surprising to some. The German Catholic element of the population has according to the votes of the various sub-divisions gone contrary to the vote of 1911. It is generally admitted that the German population voted against the Borden Navy policy because it seemed to indicate the strengthening of the British world force. This was set before the electors by Sir Wilfrid, the Hon. McKenzie King and the Hon. G. P. Graham in the most lurid light.

The fact of the matter is it was really a case of taking the side of Germany against the British Empire. The Mail says that the Catholics resented the action of the Borden Government regarding Ne Temere in referring the matter to the Courts. It is an all-round triumph for the Liberal party but at a great cost to the self-respect of the electors.

Not that we wish that the Borden Government should win every seat. Such a thing would undoubtedly be bad in the case of any party and in any state, but that we should array ourselves on any pretence against British civilization is a striking commentary upon craving for power. There are evidently some people who would sacrifice all that they possess and all that they have inherited for the "seats of the mighty."

SEMPER IDEM

Just fifty years ago the Archduke Maxmilian of Austria, was offered the throne of Mexico. He consented upon one condition, that he should be elected by the mass of the people whom he was to govern.

Mexico might well take to itself the motto "Semper Idem" in this matter of appointing a ruler. Is not Huerta's difficulty the same as that which stood in the way of the Archduke fifty years ago?

THE DESERTED VILLAGE

The Ottawa Journal calls attention to the cry of "Back to the Land," and says, very sensibly, that the cry should not be "back" but "forward?"

Ever since the days of Goldsmith the same cry of the "deserted village" has gone up, and we have been perpetually told that the country is going to the dogs because of the mad rush of young life to the cities.

Farm-life appeals to certain natures, but man is a gregarious animal; the lure of the city is very strong and with most people it is irrisistable. No one can blame the young people for having a desire to mingle with their fellows, and it is futile and foolish to chain them to the earth.

Hog-raising is doubtless a profitable pursuit, but to live too much with hogs or cows has a tendency to drag the mind down to the level of the stable. Parents who have perhaps had the advantages of a city upbringing, or who have in their young days seen a little of the world of mankind before they settled down to farm life, seem to forget that their children have not had these advantages.

It is to the young people's credit that they have these desires for a larger life. The human mind cannot be stunted without a struggle and without radical injury. There is a way of dealing with this problem of the deserted village, and that is by making the village less deserted.

We will have something further to say on this subject later. In the meantime we would be glad to hear from readers of their experiences along with their views on this question.

ORIGINS

Sir Oliver Lodge, speaking at the British Association on the subject of the determination of sex, said that one of the phenomena of plant life which has always interested him was that some plants produced both male and female flowers. The same sap came up into the stems, but just at that junction where the differently sexed flowers. The same sap from each other there must be some profound change in the sap.

"I don't know what it is," he said, "and the microscope tells me nothing about it. Perhaps if physiologists could find out just what happens in that little plant joint they would get some clue to the reason why some human beings are born boys and others girls."

This admission on the part of the great scientist only goes to show that Science is practically in the same position as to the origin of life, and no further than Tennyson was half a century ago, when he plucked the flower out of the crannied wall. We quote the poem from memory;

Little flower in the crannied wall,
I pluck you out of the crannies;
If I could know you,
Root and all, and all in all,
I'd know what God and man is.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Orillia Packet says that "Toronto has at last got a culture club," and asks, ambiguously, "but what is one among so many?" So many what? Is the Packet afraid to speak out?

The villagers of Denton-Green, Kent England, have adopted an original and striking method of pulling up reckless motorists. They have hung out in their streets a long banner with the legend: "MOTOR DEATH ROLL, 4 KILLED, 6 INJURED." They have also held indignation meetings and threaten reprisals. The Courier thinks that Canada also needs some such public demonstration against mad motorists.

The Queen's Quarterly, just received, contains some important articles, and that they are well written goes without saying. The first is on "British Supremacy and Canadian Autonomy," and covers the question historically and impartially. "Deferred revenge in Hamlet" is the promising title of the third article. "Arnold's doctrine of the Grand Style," and others make up a good intellectual feast provided by the Queen's Quarterly.

The Westminster is a magazine published by the Westminster Company of Toronto, under the editorship of Mr. Robert Haddow. It has greatly improved of late, as Mr. Haddow has been able to give more time to it since Mr. McDonald took over the chair of the Presbyterian. This month's Westminster is a good number and contains an illuminating article upon the emigration movement in Great Britain. There is also a too brief article on Whittier. There is a sonnet by Arthur L. Phelps which, while it is a fair attempt, is not a true sonnet; at a glance it will be seen that one line is too long and another too short. Rising poets should be careful with this, the highest form of verse.

About a Bachelor

The following is from Oshkigmong Indian village:

I do wish that Leap Year would come soon, so the ladies would ask our bachelors to marry them. Our new Chief and our new Indian Agent are both bachelors, and our member of Parliament is another. I need not mention the names as I am sure all will know the parties I mean.

FOREST DESTRUCTION BY FIRE AND THE AXE

Mr. Burnham M.P., has furnished a report of a most comprehensive character, that has been collected by a few persons interested in the future of the forest lands throughout this district, says the Bobcaygeon Independent. Much of the area comprising the Trent watershed is by nature, speaking in general terms intended as a forestry and not for agriculture. For the last 50 years it has been cut over, and destroyed in the most shamefully wasteful manner, with sole regard to the immediate dollar, and utterly without regard to future potentialities. So little regard is given to the future of this great asset, that it may be said to be without fire protection. The necessity of some system of patrol protection was made apparent in July and August when twenty townships suffered by bush fires, an area of 176,000 acres were burnt over, representing 15 per cent. of the forested area of the Trent watershed, and 28 per cent. of the area classed as former pineries. Careful estimates of the loss sustained by the destruction of young trees on these burnt lands figure the pines at two millions at maturity, and pulp wood at one million on maturity. The investigation made shows that the destruction last summer originated from sixteen fires. Four of them are reported as cause unknown, and four as being set out with malicious intent. If the culprits in the latter four cases could be discovered they might be shot with less compunction than disposing of dogs running deer out of season. Three were caused by the carelessness of farmers working in hay marshes, one by a tourist camp fire, one by berry pickers, one by lightning and two by railway engines. Ten of the sixteen fires started on public lands not patrolled by a Fire Ranger. Two of the fires in patrolled limits were in a region where one ranger looks after 100 square miles. Mr. Burnham is certainly doing a valuable public service in giving his attention to the Trent watershed, a district that is fraught with potentialities of such vast and far reaching importance.

NEW CONVENIENT TRAIN TO WINNIPEG

Canadian Pacific

The popularity of Canadian Pacific service, and the excellence of that road's equipment, has been so greatly appreciated by the travelling public that it has been found necessary to put into service an entirely new Through Standard Express Train between Toronto and Winnipeg.

Commencing Sunday, October 27th, the "Gate City Express" will leave Toronto at 2.30 p.m., and will run daily thereafter, arriving Winnipeg at 8.00 a.m. second morning. The train will consist of the highest-class modern equipment; Compartment Library Observation Car, Standard Sleeping Cars, Tourist Sleeping Car, Dining Car, First-class Coach and Colonist Car. This will be found the most convenient and best train between Toronto and Winnipeg on account of the daylight departure from Toronto at an hour when the Union Station is not badly congested, and also on account of the early hour of arrival at Winnipeg.

The present "Vancouver Express" will continue to leave Toronto at 10.20 p.m. daily and will consist of the same equipment as the "Gate City Express." This train is the best to take for points west of Winnipeg but for Winnipeg and east the "Gate City Express" is the right train to travel by.

Full particulars from any Canadian Pacific Agent, or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto. 60

The Fall Trade

It Brought With It Business of Another Kind

By MILLARD MALTBIE

"Ethel," I said to my fiancee, "we must fix our wedding day either before the fall trade begins or after it is over, for I can't get away when it is on. If we fix it before it must be within, say, a month; if after we shall need to put it off for at least three months."

"I am afraid," said Ethel reflectively, "that it must be later rather than before. I've done very little in the way of getting ready and couldn't possibly complete thy preparations within a month."

"You mean buy your trousseau?"

"Well, yes. But there are some small matters that need to be cleared up before we're married, and they all require time."

"Such as"—

"Oh, they are of no importance to you, simply affairs between me and acquaintances of mine."

"Obligations you wish to pay off?"

"Oh, no; not that at all. I'm not indebted to any one for favors."

"Old scores then?"

"That's more like it."

"Mention one of them."

"Well, there's Nell Blanchard. Last summer when we were at the Springs together she treated me very badly. Ned Franklin was there and devoted himself to me. Nell prejudiced him against me and got him away."

"What sort of a retaliation do you propose?"

"That's something I wish to speak to you about especially. You may object."

"Well, out with it."

"Why, the only way I can punish her is to show her that I can have him if I want him."

"Phew!"

"I was afraid you'd act mean about it."

"You mean that on the eve of your marriage with me you propose to bring down another man?"

"Only to punish Nell Blanchard as she should be punished."

"Do you think that it is treating me right to carry on a flirtation while making your preparations to marry me?"

"But I'm telling you beforehand that it's for a special purpose. Besides, how many cases there are where everybody is surprised when an engagement is announced, persons saying, 'Why, I supposed she was going to marry So-and-so.' Nobody knows yet that we are engaged. How you will laugh in your sleeve when you hear of reports of my engagement to Ned Franklin!"

"It will be just too funny for anything, won't it?"

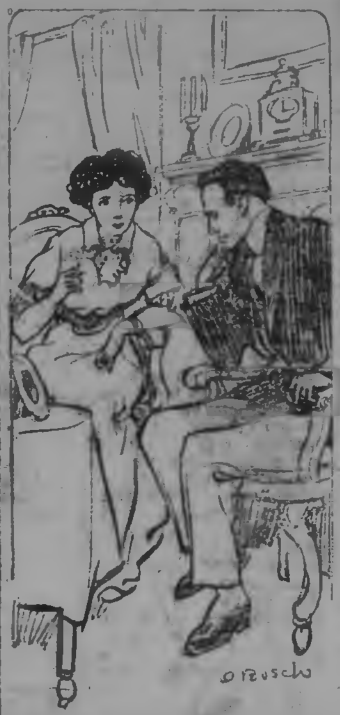
"And won't Nell be mad!"

"She'll burst for spite."

Being one of those fellows who consider the courting period a season wherein the girls are prizes to be gambled for, I saw no way but to chime in with my fiancee, pretending that I was quite willing she should remain in the ring till the last minute. Some men would have informed the lady that the old scores were ended upon her engagement and if she proposed to still take a hand in paying them off she must take back her freedom. But for me, I never considered a girl a woman, but, rather, one to be played like a fish. I had supposed that I had landed Ethel, but now I saw that the landing must be deferred. So I told her that we had better put off our wedding till after the fall trade, and by that time I expected she would have paid all her indebtedness in the way of punishments and would have especially caused Nell Blanchard to rue the day that she had stepped in between Ethel and Ned Franklin.

At this she declared I must not be [illegible] she would encourage Franklin.

We had a busy season, but I was not too busy to keep an eye on my fiancee.



"WHY DID YOU NOT TELL ME OF THIS FORMER LOVE AFFAIR?"

A lover is a pessimist, and I was by no means easy in my mind upon this vindication Nell was arranging for herself. Franklin I knew had been her favorite before I had appeared on the scene, and prior to our engagement I had suspected that I was serving for a snare by which to trap him. I heard something of his recent attentions to Ethel since she had begun her vindication, and some of my intimate friends, who knew that I was interested in her, began to look upon me with commiseration. Now and again I asked Ethel how she was getting on with her vindication, and she said that Nell was simply green with envy and jealousy.

I have never believed in defensive warfare. It is a military principle that the advantage preponderates to the attacking force. I considered bringing the matter to a focus by telling Ethel that if Nell was green with envy and jealousy nothing more was required and there was no further necessity for her playing Mr. Franklin in the matter; also that she had been reported to be engaged to him and all the surprise she could wish for would occur when her real engagement with me was given out, with the wedding soon to follow. But did not Ethel know all this without my telling her? And if she knew it what was to be gained by telling her?

If Mr. Franklin was destined to win in the game—as I strongly suspected he would—the end would be Ethel's giving me a rigmarole about her having unwittingly, unknowingly and unintentionally got into an unfortunate position and that she was obliged to give pain to me or Mr. Franklin and she was absolutely crushed; also that she had loved him and he had loved her till that horrid Nell Blanchard had come between them and made all the trouble. Then under such distressing circumstances I would be expected to do a magnanimous, noble part by relieving her of her frightful embarrassment by releasing her without blame.

One day I received a note from Ethel chiding me for not having been to see her for a week. She simply called my attention to the fact without comment. I replied that the fall trade was at its height, and I was working nights. I received another note stating that I had not worked every night, for I had been seen at the theater in company with a pretty girl a few evenings before. My reply to this was a confession. The young lady I had taken to the theater had once been a "flame" of mine. She possessed certain letters I had written her when I thought I loved her, which I was desirous to get into my possession before being married. In order to do this I must dissemble. When I had won her confidence I could the better devise a scheme for securing the letters.

I was quite sure this would bring matters to a climax, and it did. Ethel wrote me to come and see her at once. If I delayed she would send back the engagement ring I had given her. I thought over my next move and decided to go to see her. I found her very much troubled, though she endeavored to conceal evidence of the fact. Her face was heated, her eyes were restless and her bosom heaved.

"Why did you not tell me of this former love affair?" she asked in an accusatory tone.

"Because I supposed it was off long ago."

"And now it's on again."

To this I made no reply. I looked at the ceiling.

"Unless you wish to break with me you must drop it at once."

"I have not yet recovered my letters."

"Your letters! Nonsense!"

There was another silence. I took my eyes from the ceiling and directed them out through a window.

"Well, what are you going to do?" Ethel asked.

I responded in a quiet, reflective tone that if she would not object to my letters being used against me after my marriage with her I would let them remain where they were. I would call the next evening upon the lady possessing them and endeavor to persuade her to give up all idea of there ever being anything between us.

"Is it necessary that you should call to do that? Can't you write?"

"I committed myself in these letters I am anxious to secure and I should use diplomacy in the matter, just as you have been diplomatic in setting yourself right between Franklin and Nell Blanchard. By the by, how is that affair progressing?"

I looked at her with a cold stare.

"I have finished it," she replied ruefully.

"Indeed. It's a pity I had not taken up mine earlier; then they would both have been ended together."

"I thought you said you would end the matter at once."

"I said I would endeavor to do so."

She had taken hold of her engagement ring and was toying with it. I knew she was meditating taking it off and handing it to me.

"You would not have me treat a girl who loves me harshly, would you? You know how you have been situated with regard to Franklin."

There was a long silence. I thought it time to bring the matter to a focus.

"I will make you a proposition," I said. "Drop Franklin without a word, written or spoken, and I will do the same in my own case."

Another long silence, at the end of which she put out her hand to me; I clasped it, drew her to me and that was the end of paying off old scores.

By this time the rush of the fall trade was over and we were married within a month. We crossed over the border dividing the stage from the matrimonial [illegible] [illegible] gave way to [illegible].

A LOVELY BABY BOY

This Mother is quite Enthusiastic over a well Known Food.

Mrs. J. W. Pateman, 34 Harriet St., Toronto, in writing about Neave's Food says "When I first knew one of my friends, her baby Jack was eight months old and dying by inches. She had tried three foods because her Jack could not digest milk. At last, I fetched her a tin of Neave's Food. At the end of a month, Jack was rapidly gaining flesh and was bright and happy. He is a lovely boy now and she declares Neave's Food saved his life. And it did.

Then I recommended it to a friend on Victoria Avenue. She had a baby 6 months old that was not thriving a bit. She put the baby on Neave's Food and at the end of three months, the baby was twice the size.

I have never seen two bigger, stronger boys than mine for their ages and we owe it all to Neave's Food. I have the utmost faith in Neave's Food."

DANGER PERIOD OF WOMANS' LIFE FROM 45 to 50

Interesting Experience of Two Women—Their Statements Worth Reading.

White Oak, Ont.—"At Change of Life when doctors could do no more and I was given up by my friends, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound came to the front and did wonders for me. I had been having female troubles for years, my head troubled me severely at times, I had bearing down pains and backache and I was very anaemic from excessive flowing. I recommend your Compound highly and do all I can to advertise it as a genuine woman's medicine."—Mrs. SYLVESTER MANNING, White Oak, Ontario.

The Case of Mrs. Kirlin.

Circleville, Ohio.—"I can truthfully say that I never had anything do me so much good during Change of Life as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Before I had taken one half a bottle of it I began to feel better, and I have continued taking it. My health is better than it has been for several years. If all women would take it they would escape untold pain and misery at this time of life."—Mrs. ALICE KIRLIN, 358 W. Mill St., Circleville, Ohio.

The Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. At such times women may rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The Peoples of Italy.

There is a marked difference in stature and temperament between the people of north Italy and those of south Italy. The Longobards, or Lombards, who about 568 took possession of northern Italy and permanently established themselves in the rich valley watered by the Po and its affluents, were of Teutonic stock, their original home having been the region on the left bank of the Elbe, round about Madgeburg and Luneburg, Germany, while the Italians south of Lombardy are of the old Latin stock. This fact explains the physical and other differences between the people from the north and the people from the south of Italy.

Cistern Filters.

Cisterns that are properly constructed and receive rain water from roofs generally afford water of good sanitary quality, but if water of doubtful quality is stored in cisterns the supply is of course not safe for domestic use. Filters used in connection with cisterns are of value in making the water clear, but are generally of no value in removing disease germs. Many cisterns are divided into two parts by a brick wall, the water being admitted into one compartment and drawn from the other. In such cisterns the water passes through the brick and in that way is improved in clearness and color, but not generally in sanitary quality.

Broke Up the Show.

A man in Paris made a good deal of money exhibiting a curious animal. The most interesting feature of the show was the fact that no one could tell to what species the animal belonged. The showman professed that he didn't know, and the spectators hazarded many guesses. One day a visitor entered, accompanied by a dog. Immediately the wondrous animal humped its back like a diminutive camel and began to hiss and spit. The mystery was solved. It was a shaved cat! The show closed up that very day, but no one denies that a man who could shave a cat deserved to make money.

KEEP BABY HEALTHY

To keep the baby healthy his little stomach should be kept sweet and his bowels working regularly. Nine-tenths of the maladies which afflict little ones are caused by some derangement of the stomach or bowels. Baby's Own Tablets are the ideal medicine for little ones. They sweeten the stomach; regulate the bowels; break up colds; make teething easy; dispel worms and cure constipation and digestion. Concerning them Mrs S. Shannon, Urney, N.B., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my two little ones and think they are just what children need. I would not be without them." Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

No man in good health has any excuse to be a pessimist.

Trustworthy.

The late Lord Young was responsible for enlivening many a dull case. One of the most amusing remarks that ever fell from his lips was the reply to a counsel who urged on behalf of a plaintiff of somewhat bibulous appearance:—

"My client, my lord, is a most able man, and holds a very responsible position. He is manager of some waterworks."

After a long look, Lord Young answered:—

"Yes, he looks like a man who could be trusted with any amount of water."

To Test Alaska Coal.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 31.—The steamer General Hubbard is on the way from San Francisco to Seattle to take on board three hundred heavy horses and nearly 300 tons of supplies to be landed at Knik, Cook Inlet, Alaska.

The horses will haul to Knik the 800 tons of coal mined last summer in the Matanuska field by the U. S. Government expedition. The coal is to be tested by a man-of-war to determine its availability for naval purposes.

They keep the whole system in the pink of condition.

Their singular curative properties discovered by an Indian tribe—introduced to civilization nearly a century ago—compounded since 1857 in the Comstock Laboratories at Brockville, Ontario.

BROOKLYN TABERNACLE BIBLE STUDY ON A GOD-FEARING BAD MAN.

—Nov. 2.—Numbers 22:1 to 23:10— "A Double-minded Man Is Unstable In All His Ways."—James 1:8.

AFTER the Israelites had entered Canaan and were fully recognized as God's holy people, apparently all dealings between God and the Gentiles were discontinued. Before that time, men of faith in God were recognized by Him; for instance, Abraham, Job, Melchizedek and Balaam, the central figure of to-day's lesson. Balaam lived on the Euphrates. He was known far and wide as an oracle.

The King of Moab perceived that the Israelites conquered all with whom they battled, and greatly feared them, although they had not molested Moab. After conferring with the ruler of Midian, King Balak sent four hundred miles to get Balaam to come to curse Israel. A considerable reward was offered.

Balaam inquired of the Lord whether he should go on this mission. The reply was, No; Israel was blessed of the Lord, not cursed. Balaam gave the decision, and the messengers returned. King Balak then sent messengers of higher station, intimating higher rewards. Balaam knew the mind of the Lord on the subject, but somehow hoped for a chance to get some of the rewards of unrighteousness. In response to his second inquiry whether to go, he obtained permission to go.

The messengers returned.

It was on this journey that Balaam was reproved by his ass. An angel of the Lord stood in a narrow place where the ass, seeing him, could not pass. The ass, being beating, remonstrated. Even this miracle did not stop Balaam's money-lust. He would do anything in his power to obtai the coveted wealth.

Received by King B9alak with honor, Balaam directed that altars be built and sacrifices be offered to God. He would have a form of godliness, even while desiring to do contrary to the Divine will, which he already knew. Then he began his prophecy, which the king hoped would be a curse, but which was really a blessing, the words being Divinely inspired. As St. Peter wrote, "Holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit."—2 Peter 1:21.

The disappointed king sought the exercise of black art. He took the Prophet to another viewpoint, and urged the curse of at least thus much of Israel. Altars were built again, and sacrifices offered. Again the hoped-for curse did not come. Getting angry, the king insisted that a portion must be cursed, and led the Prophet to another standpoint, from which a still smaller portion of Israel was visible. Again the resu s were blessings.

Balaam's double-mindedness was abundantly manifested by his course. He wished to be a Prophet of the Lord and to speak His word; but he also wished for riches and honor. He wished for what God's providences had not seen fit to give him. Right and wrong, God's way and the way of riches—both were before him. He chose neither, but tried to have both. —2 Peter 2:15,16.

Alas, how many in every age have the Balaam spirit! Jesus warned against this spirit, saying, "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." How many have found the Master's words true!

If, overtaken in a fault, Balaam had started on the journey with the hope of gaining the evil reward, he should have been thoroughly aroused by the incident of the ass. Even an ass knew better than to attempt to go contrary to the higher power. Evidently humanity's greater reasoning power and courage may be disadvantageously used.

The double-minded prophet.

Balaam's heart was wrong. The professed man of God grovelled in the mire of sin in his desire to obtain Balak's proffered wealth. He said to the king, The only way to bring a curse upon Israel would be by tempting them to disobedience to God. King Balak communicated with the Midianites, and urged that their wives and daughters should apparently fall in love with the Israelites, and introduce them to Midian's sensuous religious rites.

God allowed matters to take their course, and a great lesson to be taught. The scheme was successful. Some of the Israelites were attracted to adultery and idol-worship. Forthwith a plague started among the Israelites, according to the terms of their Covenant with God.

Not only did God punish Israel, but He also punished Midian and Balaam. Under Divine direction Moses called for an army out of the tribes, and wiped out Midian as a nation, including Balaam, who evidently remained to oversee the iniquitous work.

In His last message to the Church, our glorified Redeemer foretold that some of His followers would imitate Balaam, and for earthly advantage would put a stumbling-block in the path of the brethren. The intimation is that the harlotry and false worship would be on a higher plane than that which stumbled Natural Israel—as everything in this Christian Dispensation is antitypical.—Revelation 2:14.

COMMISSIONER FRASER AT WORK

Is Adjusting Claims in This District

Chief Commissioner Fraser is going through this district finally adjusting T. V. C. claims, leases, and all other than engineering government business. He will be at Mr. Burnham's office at a date in the near future when various matters will be considered.

Those having business with him will be notified by Mr. Burnham through the press of the exact date of his return to the city. It will likely be in the second week in November.

DREADED EPILEPSY

A Case That Should Bring Hope to Other Sufferers

There are many cases of epilepsy incurable so far as present medical knowledge extends and the sufferer is doomed to go through life a victim to a disease which has stricken him suddenly and without warning, and with each recurring affects his mental powers. Taken in time, however, many cases of epilepsy have been permanently cured by the use of Dr Williams' Pink Pills, and in cases where the disease has not reached an acute form this remedy is worth giving a fair trial. Among the cures we give the following. Mrs. Robert Stringer, New Liskeard, Ont. says: "I have long felt that we should write you and let you know what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for our grandson, who was attacked with epilepsy. The trouble seemed to come on following an attack of whooping cough. His parents seemed to notice that his eyes seemed to bulge out, and that he would be unconscious for a few seconds and would go about his play as usual. The child was five years old at this time. The trouble seemed to be growing more severe and the attacks to come oftener, and as the local doctors were not helping him they sent him to the Children's Hospital in Toronto. He remained there for a short time when the doctor said his trouble was epilepsy and they could do nothing for him. Time went on and the attacks grew worse, and in the fall of 1908 my daughter wrote me that the little fellow was getting so bad that they wanted to send him back to the hospital. I asked her to send him to me for a time, and as one of his eyes had become crooked I took him to an occulist, who said this trouble could be cured, but it had nothing to do with bringing on his other trouble. As I knew that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were a splendid medicine, I decided to give them to him, in the hope that they might benefit him. We were very careful as to diet, and as to keeping the child from excitement. In about a month we noticed that the trouble was lessening, and at this time the little fellow returned home and his mother kept up the treatment. In a few months he seemed fully cured, but during the holidays the trouble came back in a milder form and the Pink Pills were again resorted to and again the trouble disappeared, and although more than a year has passed there has not since been any sign of it, We feel so deeply indebted for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for him that we hope this plain statement of our experience will benefit some other sufferer."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

Foster Gave Grey Idea.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The controversy over a site for the Canadian Government's new offices in London is unabated. J. S. Redmayne, a Canadian in financial business here, wrote The Westminster Gazette the other day dismissing Earl Grey's scheme for the dominions to congregate at the Aldwych site as "the pleasant but unpractical idea of an amiable Englishman." Earl Grey retaliates nearly a column long declaring that the idea of a permanent exhibition of a Dominion produce was conceived after a talk with Hon. Geo. E. Foster, while greater parts of the contribution towards the payment on options came from Canadians.

REV. DR. MACKENZIE AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCHES

Hero of Honan China and Moderator of Church in Canada to Give Three Addresses

Since the days of Robertson, no name has been so much upon the lips of Presbyterians in Canada as that of Dr. Murdock MacKenzie. What Robertson was to Canada's west land, MacKenzie is to Honan, China, and both have served under the same church.

Twenty-five years ago Dr. MacKenzie was among the first to face the foe in Honan. The growth of Christianity in Honan is known to him by personal experience and if the experiences of the Boxer movement were awful, Dr. MacKenzie knows that too for he barely escaped with his life. He is well worthy of the title "the Hero of Honan." Because of the man and the history associated with his service of the Church, when the time came to select a Moderator for the Presbyterian Church in Canada, his was the only name, and it was sounded from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

It has been arranged that Dr. MacKenzie will speak in the three Presbyterian churches to-morrow; in St. Paul's at eleven, in St. Andrews at 7 and in Knox at 8. Knox service will not commence until 7.30 p.m.

ABOUT THE CURFEW LAW

Reader Outlines the History of the Problem in Peterboro

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—As the Curfew Law, the care of neglected children and the liberties of youths and maidens to loiter in streets and public places at night are subjects of serious interest to many parents, kindly allow me space for a brief contribution to the present discussion of these matters.

The Curfew Law was announced on June 5th, with strong commendation by the Examiner. From that date until Sept. 27th, I saw no word in regard to this law or its enforcement in the Examiner. Meanwhile, children of both sexes frequented streets and public places at night and no effort to enforce the law was apparent to me, even at a "public place" where its violation was and is especially disgraceful to those responsible for enforcement of this law. As a matter of fact the Chief of Police was specially requested by a deputation to act in this case. But so far as I have seen the request was made in vain.

On the 27th Sept., the Examiner took up the Curfew Law to criticise it adversely and declare it "worse than useless." (See leading article of that date.)

On Oct. 18th, the Examiner's article "Make the Law Effective," while ostensibly favoring enforcement of the law, casts doubts and difficulties in the way especially pointing out its alleged defects in a way likely, I should think, to hinder its enforcement. In the same issue appears Mr. J. J. Kelso's circular inviting the co-operation of editors and clergymen.

On Oct. 24th and 25th, the Examiner complains that some Peterborough lady charges the press and police with negligence and the press especially with "somnolence"—sleepiness. I have seen no letter making this charge. I venture to doubt that it was made at all. However, the hostile attitude of the Examiner to the Curfew Law in September and its more recent and repeated boggle at the "permissive" word "may" affords some grounds for suspicion that "somnolence" is not the difficulty under which its editor labors. His warnings against the streets at night as "The Devil's School" for children have been both eloquent and frequent, and I for one, commend his efforts, so far as they go, in this direction. But why mention only the streets? Are there not "public places" far more dangerous and subversive of all our good editor holds dear in children than any of our streets are?

Why does the Examiner not mention among the dangers that lurk for young girls and children at night a certain regular place of meeting for sporty dressed and reckless youths and maidens who neither work nor go to school, as is plain by their idling presence in the afternoon—that resort at which idlers and blackguards loiter as they choose and from which proceeds that brawl and din which disturbs the peace and offends the dwellers in the neighborhood—that open trap for neglected children and truants — that menace to school children who can and often do loiter as they pass. If the streets at night are "The Devil's School," then whose school is this?

That the Examiner knows more than I do about the ownership, operation and character of this resort and the history of its manager, I would gladly disbelieve if I could.

"The Examiner among newspapers 'must protect itself'"—ITSELF forsooth? Now whom or what does the Examiner really seek to protect? Its articles of the 24th and 25th, seem calculated to discourage or intimidate by ridicule anyone whose efforts point in the direction of Curfew Law enforcement at the place in question. How, otherwise, has it any quarrel with the lady who interviewed clergymen and others upon the written suggestion and desire of Mr Kelso? The lady—at least one lady who did this never accused the Examiner nor any other newspaper of sleepiness. Whether she or any other accused the police in published letters I do not know. But those of us who saw nightly the violation of the Curfew Law at the resort during the past months think we have ample reason to accuse the police. And since police are mentioned may I ask why they have not enforced the law at this place where enforcement would be an easy matter and not subject to the difficulties so elaborately urged by the Examiner in regard to streets?

POLICE LEFT WARNING AT POOL ROOM

For some time past some of the local pool rooms have been under the eye of the police as a result of the suspicion that a number of illegal games were played. Last night Chief Thompson walked in on the Ideal Pool Parlor on George street, and as a result a warning was issued to the proprietor that he might have his license cut off unless conditions changed.

Visited Almonte

ALMONTE, Nov. 1— His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, recently consecrated bishop of Peterboro, paid a visit to Almonte yesterday. Yesterday he visited the convent where he met several of the sisters of St. Joseph who came here from Peterboro.

Plaited Skirts.

The return of the plaited skirt is favorable to the wishes of the thousands of sensible women who deplore the preposterous tightness of the fashionable dress of today. These plaited skirts are made in very soft and supple materials, such as homespun, voile and the favorite silk and satin. Tailors catch down the plaits invisibly at the back and in that way maintain the adherence to close outline, but even this is often in a very modified sense, and in consequence deliverance from the mermaid skirt seems not impossible in a few months.

With these plaited skirts the jackets worn are very short, some of them having no basque whatever. They are made in embroidered silk, satin or crash, with rather large patterns in the liveliest of colors. One in slate blue is embroidered with yellow roses and very bright green leaves. The revers and collar match the rest of the little garment, and the sleeves are just long enough to turn the elbows.

THEY INSIST ON FAIR PLAY.

Russian Women Demand Educational Freedom and Are Winning Out.

If ever Alexander II. of Russia met on his walks a girl student in spectacles and Garibaldian cap he began to tremble, thinking that she must be a Nihilist, bent on killing him. His hatred of women who endeavored to obtain higher education to fit themselves for the service of the masses would have been ludicrous if it had not been such a serious thing for the women themselves.

And yet even the prejudice of kings could do no more than temporarily check the feminine march to educational freedom. Recent events show that woman's part in public life has grown to the proportions of a mass movement with the awakening of human conscience, and that Russian women are actually making as much progress as the women of other European countries. The University of Tomsk has petitioned the Minister of Education to enable women of Siberian birth to graduate in medicine and an important congress in St. Petersburg, presided over by the ex-Minister of Education, and comprising 1,000 delegates, has suggested many reforms that will render the path of women's education less thorny.

It is a psychological effect of the recognition of woman's advance that they have spontaneously developed an amazing ability, courage and organizing power. The fact that there are now about a thouasnd Russian women practicing as doctors is sufficient justification for their advent into that profession.

The question of admitting women to the bar was recently raised by the appearance of a lady, whom the St. Petersburg Bar Association had accepted as a member, as attorney in a criminal case. The prosecuting attorney refused to proceed with the case, holding that women under Russian law were not authorized to practice and he was supported by the Imperial Senate. Over 100 women have qualified as lawyers and they are making great efforts to obtain a footing in the legal profession. There is urgent need for their services in wide areas where the population of the country districts is entirely without legal advice. The agitation to obtain that reform is powerfully supported and a large and influentially attended meeting has been held in St. Petersburg to protest against the continued exclusion of women.

POLICE CHIEF CLAIMS PARENTS ARE TO BLAME

Young Girls Cause Far More Trouble Than the Boys He Says

"That some definite means of keeping their daughters off the streets evenings should be seriously considered by the parents of young girls under the age of sixteen," was the strong opinion expressed to a Review reporter by Police Chief Thompson, in speaking of certain conditions existing in this city.

"The girls are causing us far more trouble than the boys, for the boys take heed to what an officer tells them, but the girls feel indignant that a policeman should have anything to say to them regarding their walking the streets," said the Chief.

THE PAPER BOYS.

"As far as the boys are concerned, the streets are generally cleared of them every night, which makes about the best record in the province. In fact a number of people are complaining as they are unable to get a paper boy around after nine o'clock. That is all due to the vigilant watch of the officers who chase the boys home as soon as the clock strikes. In such cases as appeared in Court to-day an example should be made of them which would provide a good lesson to others.

THE BACK STREETS.

"The main trouble lies with the girls, young girls at that, walking around the back streets with young fellows, where all the trouble arises, and owing to insufficient men on the [illegible] we are unable to patrol these districts properly."

At this point of the conversation, two girls passed walking up and down, waiting for some one. Both were young and apparently had no business on this particular part of the street at the time.

"The whole trouble lies with the parents and something has got to be done. In regard to the children under the age of sixteen, if they are found on the streets after they have been warned sufficiently, their parents may be summoned to appear before the Magistrate and fined, which will no doubt prove a lesson for others," remarked the Chief.

"Then, you are of the opinion that the parents are to blame?"

"Certainly," was the reply.

REMANDED TO JAIL FOR SENTENCE

Young Man Found Guilty of Procuring Drugs for Illegal Purpose

BAIL REFUSED

Garnet Innis, charged with procuring drugs for illegal purpose, was found guilty by His Honor Judge Huycke yesterday afternoon, and was remanded to jail for one week for sentence, bail being refused.

G. N. Gordon defended the prisoner and Crown Attorney Wood conducted the prosecution. Practically the same evidence as taken at the preliminary hearing at Police Court was offered in the case.

Norman Graham, one of the witnesses for the Crown, testified that he had heard Innis speak of the girl several times, and that he was with Innis the day that he purchased the gin and turpentine produced in court. Witness had also seen Innis and the girl out driving.

Constable Weller gave evidence to the effect that he had purchased pills produced in court at Warne's Drug Store for Chief Thompson. These pills were identified by the girl as similar to those given her by Innis. Mrs. O'Brien, who was also a witness, identified the pills as the same she had seen on the girl's dresser in her room, and which she had destroyed.

Mr. P. Bond, of Warne's Drug Store, said the pills were sold by all Druggists at two dollars a box.

Garnet Innis, the prisoner, denied ever buying the pills for the girl. He bought the gin and the other at her request, and was not aware of the fact that there was anything wrong until a day or so before his arrest. He first learned of the trouble over the 'phone from the girl herself, and the next day was arrested on the charge of seduction.

"Then you deny ever buying any pills," questioned the Crown Attorney.

"I surely do," replied the prisoner."

Several character witnesses were then called by the defense.

Evidence by Mr. Robert Fair as to the prisoner's reputation was to the effect that it was of the very best, but that he had only known him through business dealings. Witness was not aware of what his private life was.

Mr. Conway said he had known the prisoner for some time and that his reputation was very good. Questioned by the Crown Attoney, witness did not know what his private life was. His reputation was all right in regard to business dealings, in the opinion of Mr. Roland Denne. Walter Oke and Angus Ferguson were also of the same opinion as the former witnesses.

In summing up the case, His Honor pointed out that it was a very serious offence. The evidence for the defense was based very much on the young man's business character. The last witnesses had spoken well of the prisoner's business capacity, but were not apparently acquainted with his private life. His reputation in business life being very good, which spoke well for the young man.

His honor remarked that he was not sorry he had declined to have the court room cleared as it would be a great object lesson to the number of young men present.

The girl, as far as the court knew, was a good girl, and one thing that did credit to the prisoner, and that only, was that he had not attempted to lay the blame on any other persons.

The pills were found in the girl's room and the one most interested in the position would be the most likely to purchase them, and therefore he must accept the statement of the girl and find the prisoner guilty of the charge.

Judgment will be given on Friday next.

Unreal pleasures are the most expensive.

The Slashed Skirt, Draped, Reveals an Underskirt with a Deep Point of Transparent Lace.

AN economical woman can reduce the expense attendant to having several evening gowns this winter by judiciously acquiring several tunics that can be posed over one skirt of satin or brocade. Those who have a generous dress allowance will be able to have a widely varied selection of evening gowns because of the great number of different models now in style.

Most of the new skirt models retain the slash—it is still in evidence in most elaborate evening gowns—but there seems to be a disposition to underset it with lace or pleated chiffon or to fold over the skirt so widely that little more than the ankle is visible.

Minaret, pegtop, tunic, ruffled or trouserlike skirts give a sufficiently varied choice in the matter of silhouette. One can look like a modernized beruffled "Second Empire" figure minus the crinoline, or a Persian engraving come to life, or even risk a drapery that is reminiscent of the days of the bustle.

The minaret, or wired lamp shade, tunic gown is made with both a long and a short foundation skirt: long, if it is for elaborate evening affairs; short, if it is for the afternoon. These foundation skirts are usually of velvet, satin or charmeuse, while the minaret tunic top is of tulle, chiffon or heavy metal net or brocaded chiffon, often fur edged. The tunics generally end in square cut shape. In front they are slashed and crossed widely, one side often being draped up, while the other hangs straight.

The ruffled skirts are made in two or three tiers, generally of lacy net and lined with an equally filmy chiffon, flesh or pink in color. Such dresses often have an overdrapery of satin that sometimes trails off to a panel-like serpentine train, while the foundation dress is cut dancing length all around.

Both in the minaret and ordinary tunic dresses the foundation waist is of lace or tulle, even when the skirt is of a heavier material, for the satins and brocades do not mount onto the waist except in bib-like points or high girdles. Sometimes when a woman is very stout or the material very heavy a skeleton lining of satin, deeply cut out at the neck and armholes, is dimly discerned under the diaphanous corsages. The Turkish trouser skirt is made by raising up the skirt a little in the centre, front or back, so that the material falls in between the feet in a trouser-like fashion.

Evening colors are wonderful together this season, especially because the tango orange, geranium reds and Bakst greens harmonize so well. In brocades these colors are shot with gold and silver threads that give them an added richness. Over these lace tunics are draped, not white, but of cobwebby lightness of texture, and in all the tones from ivory to a deep ochre that looks like gold. These cream tones make soft harmony with the rich red and green and orange colorings of the brocade or satin skirts.

The beaded tunics of chiffon and fine net are often the color of the rest of the dress or are posed over black or white satin. All shapes and colors of beads are used, simulating embroidery stitches and patterns.

Varied in type, the gowns shown on this page give a correct idea of the trend of fashion in evening gowns. Draped from one piece of material, a white satin skirt is folded across in front so that the slash, though there, is invisible. A mauve mousseline de soie tunic embroidered in mauve, white and gold is posed over it, the corsage part tacked to a lace underwaist of point design. The skirt is crossed diagonally by a white satin sash placed just at the height of and under the tunic edge; from its lower edge falls a white lace ruffle, matching the under corsage. Short garlands of mauve satin flowers hold the tunic points together over the shoulders and are placed in sprays near the tunic edge.

In another evening gown the white satin skirt is deeply slashed, but it is drawn up in such a drapery that it looks more like an overskirt. It is posed over a drop skirt having a deep point of beaded lace like that used to make the foundation waist. The tunic is of rose colored tulle, very one sided in shape, and is embroidered with Florentine bead motifs, very cleverly placed, so that one comes at the girdle closing. A silk rose and velvet chou, placed at the tunic edge, fastens it to the skirt.

Two views of a geranium red velvet dress are shown here. The waist is of filmy lace, posed over flesh colored chiffon, the sleeves replaced by a bertha ruffle. The velvet mounts above the girdle in three bib points in front only. The skirt is one piece of material draped and crossed so that the hem is lifted from the ground in front; at the back the drapery is caught up under a horizontal flat fold.

Mauve mousseline de soie is used to make a very charming dancing or dinner gown, rather Greek in line. In this the skirt is slashed in front, but is underset with a foundation skirt of the same material, which has a box pleat in front. The drapery is caught up by a folded mauve satin ribbon on the skirt. On the corsage it outlines a collar, extending beyond to tie loosely, the ends weighted by beaded fringe.

So it is seen that in spite of the fact that the skirt is still tightened in about the feet to preserve the now exaggerated vase-like contour of the figure, the slash has been disguised by various modifications and one can move about with untrammelled ease without disclosing more than a chance ankle.

The Fashionable Accessory and the Small Belonging.

MANY are the little details of fashionable dress that give added style to a new frock or a touch of chic to one that is slightly passé. Take the fashion of neckwear, for instance. Last season we were all wearing feather or tulle boas; this season newer still are the big neck Pierrot-like frills of velvet or net, in black and colors, that are worn by those who do not like to don furs too early.

The neck ruches are generally of two tones or colors. They are made of eighteen or twenty inch wide net, either doubled over or single, and are gathered through the centre. This outer Pierrot ruffle is of a big round meshed mercerized or silk net in some one of the new rich colors. A narrower ruche, one-third less than the other width, is of full gathered tulle of a contrasting color or tone. These Pierrot collars encircle the neck and fasten in various ways. One is fastened with an oblong steel buckle slide, and another with velvet ribbons about three-eighths of an inch wide tagged on the ends with pretty metal ornaments. A third has a narrow strip of fur through the centre and is fastened with a tail and a rose. Another closes with a passementerie cabochon.

Brown and purple, black and beige, green and violet and white and brown are some of the most successful combinations. When these neck ruffles are of silk or velvet they are the same width, but of one piece only, shirred through the centre and with both the upper and the lower edge cut into scallops about the circumference of a collar—the scallops more petal shaped than round. The lining is of a contrasting color.

For later in the season there comes a matching muff of enormous size of black velvet lined with white or color, the ruffle ends scalloped in the same fashion. A lovelier set for those who do not care to wear furs cannot be imagined. For those who are not long or thin necked enough to wear the wide double ruffle there is a smart velvet piece, cut like a standing collar, fur edged on the upper and front sides and finished with a [illegible] bow and tails.

Collarettes, fichus and revers are to be found in the new lingerie neckwear. A cape collar, shoulder depth, with a V-shaped décolleté, is made of white mousseline de soie, a velvet ribbon following the décolleté under the mousseline, dropping below the waist line into jet bead tassels. The cape shaping is done by V tucks placed at regular intervals and an inset of Valenciennes beads the two inch hem. Lace buttons hold the velvet to the collar, two on the hem and two on the insertion at each side of the front. A fichu of white tulle ends in front with two tassels of white ball fringe, and at the back it crosses in fichu style, so that the five inch outlining band of ivory tinted Milan lace forms a sailor collar shape along the edges.

Dancing garters and bloomers are now worn with the dancing frocks of those who go in for the new dances. The bloomers are of crêpe de Chine, generally the color of the stockings or the dress. The [illegible] are frilly little trifles of lace and ribbon that cover the elastic round, for [illegible] elastic and stiff [illegible] present the [illegible] that the [illegible] demand. The tango corsets, as they are now called, are practically without supports, made often of elastic tricot. It is said that the devotees of the dance have gone so far as to have stockings made that reach to the waist and are firm enough to hold in surplus flesh that is released by the shortened corset. The separate petticoat is reserved for the daytime dress; for filmy robes, the combination princess slip, so lace trimmed that it seems to have more perforations of lace than it contains material. It is generally slashed in the bargain.

Neck chains are longer, those of beads are more oval shaped than round, and the combination of amber and green jade, pearl and gold or jet and gold is very effective, because different shaped beads are used and they are strung on heavy colored green or yellow cord, which often is used to make a pendent tassel. Clouded amber is seen more than the clear, and is often shaped in flat lozenges. White coral, carnelian and turquoise matrices are also used in these bead chains that descend to or below bust depth.

Swathed Movement Expressed in Arrangement of Hair.

IN spite of all the exaggerations and eccentricities of fashion it must be admitted that there exists side by side with these "bizarreries" an undoubted sense of style and of harmony of the ensemble. It is for this reason that the swathed movement, which seems to be the synthesis of present costumes—and more especially of the evening toilettes, is also found expressed in the new coiffures. The orderly bands and the chignon à l'anglaise knotted low on the nape of the neck seem to have had their day. "Ondoyante et diverse," the hair will be now swathed in silky waves round the head. Sometimes it is arranged like a small tiara which gives to the physiognomy the enigmatic charm of an idol.

Sometimes the hair is gathered up in a retreating mass on the head and arranged à la Lamballe. A big butterfly bow in black or "tête de nègre" tulle may be placed rather high up above the nape of the neck, filling the space left by the hair which is brushed straight up from the roots.

The tiny fringe worn on the forehead takes away from this coiffure its somewhat too austere look, and it is sometimes outlined by a string of pearls. The same tulle bow may replace very successfully for evening wear the moiré or taffetas bow which serves to tie the hair of the young girl.

Some of the hairdressers have tried to revive the chignon arranged like an "8." But the thick twisted coil of hair is preferable, as it shows off to so much advantage when carried from the nape of the neck to the top of the head, and held in place by a large tortoise shell or jewelled comb. Moiré bandelettes are also much worn. They are fastened at one side either with a bow or a jewel, and make a pretty frame for the face like a graceful wreath.

Paradise aigrettes are as popular as ever, and are usually worn quite at the back, where one may also find the feathers which will be seen once more standing straight up skyward and planted in the masses of hair.

Some lace butterflies may still be seen at the last days of summer will see them go the way like the others because of the too great popularity with the "vulgum pecus."

THE SPORTING WORLD

ARRANGEMENTS FOR USE OF Y.M.C.A. AND THE RINK

Committees Appointed at Hockey Club Meeting— Club May Hold Smoker

All officers of the Peterborough Hockey Club were present at a meeting held last night in the parlors of the Oriental Hotel, with President Picard in the chair.

It was decided to ask Mr. R. M. Glover to stand for re-election to office in the O.H.A. Mr. Glover is a member of the executive.

TO WIPE OUT DEFICIT.

The Club has a deficit of $200 but it hopes to have this wiped out before the season opens and also have a reasonable account to start with. Ways and means by which to reduce the liabilities were discussed and the program suggested includes a smoker or other form of entertainment, which the officers believe would receive hearty patronage.

TRAIN AT Y. M. C. A.

The officers are favorable to the idea of the players training at the Y.M.C.A. and a committee was formed to wait upon members of the directorate with the object of making arrangements.

RINK ARRANGEMENTS.

The rink management will also be approached regarding the use of the rink. It has been generally reported that J. Mcbarry wishes to enter a team in the O.H.A. but it is hoped that all interests will work together and confine representation in the Association to not more than one team in a series.

CANADIAN LEAGUE

Guelph and Berlin Still on the Map

General business was dealt with at the meeting of the Canadian Baseball League in Toronto yesterday. No action was taken regarding the transfer of franchises held by Guelph and Berlin.

AGGRESSIVE BASEBALL.

McGraw's Scheme Is Go as Far as You Can on Every Play.

Writing on taking a chance versus playing it safe in baseball, Hugh S. Fullerton in the American Magazine says:

"It remained for the New York Giants to develop the 'take a chance' style to its highest form since the days of the old Baltimore team. Probably no man understands or realizes the weaknesses and strengths of the Giants as well as does the little general who leads them. He knew that to win a championship the team must score many runs; must, in fact, score an abnormal number. He knew that speed was the chief asset of the team and that to win he must utilize the best asset to the limit. The object of having fast men on the bases is not so much to have them steal as it is to force the other team to throw the ball and throw it quickly. One moment of demoralization of a defensive team is enough to lose a game. McGraw's aim was to make opposing teams beat themselves by hurrying their plays. He reverted to the Baltimore system of ignoring the number of times a runner is caught trying to steal, provided some one steals or takes an extra base at the critical moment.

"Get on! Get a base on balls; get hit; get anything, but get on. And once on, run! Go as far as you can on every play.

"That, in brief, sums up McGraw's system of attack, and its success has been demonstrated. While no official statistics are to be had, I believe the Giants are caught stealing much more frequently than are the runners of any other team. But they lead in stolen bases, and their running netted two pennants. In one game that I watched five Giants tried to steal against Archer. The Chicago crowd went wild as Archer threw all five out, one after another, as fast as they started. The sixth reached first and started without hesitating. Archer threw wild, the runner raced on to third, scored on a fly ball and eventually New York won the game by one run."

An Economist.

"Now, look here, my man," said the philanthropist to the tramp; "there is no use of an ablebodied fellow like you passing his days in idleness. Come to my office and I'll give you work."

"Thank you, sir," said Weary. "But I'm afraid I can't come. I'm tryin' to keep my income down under $3,000 so's as I can save the income tax."—Judge.

Very Untidy.

The great baseball player's wife had never seen a game, but he finally persuaded her to view one in which he was to play. He was doing his best, of course. One strike had been called on him, and, as usual in baseball anecdotes, two men were out and the bases full. Our hero was gathering his strength for the swat he was going to give the ball. And the ball came. He knew it was his as the ball started, and with a mighty crack he lifted it into space. Dropping his bat he sped for first, and ere the roar of applause burst out a slight woman in the grand stand rose and called:

"Will, come back here and put that bat where it belongs!"

Never Learned the Turkey Trot.

How old am I? Well, never mind.
I've had my little fling,
Yet, though I've led a merry rout,
In one thing I have quite missed out—
It is of this I sing.
And oftentimes at cabarets
At others longingly I gaze—
I never danced the turkey trot.
I never learned the turkey trot.

Ah, how I envy these trotteurs!
Theirs is a happy lot.
The chairs and tables cleared away,
They gather in a brave array
To do the turkey trot,
While I, with many a vain regret,
Have overlooked this single bet—
I cannot dance the turkey trot.
I never danced the turkey trot.

The bunny hug I fain would try
Or yet the chicken reel
And other steps and figures, too,
Based on the barnyard and the zoo,
With primitive appeal,
But I must be a wall flower still,
Because I fear I never will Learn how to dance the turkey trot—
Ah, me, to dance the turkey trot!
—Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Double Confession.

Mr. and Mrs. Justblnwed occupied the same armchair.

"Darling," suddenly whispered he into her little pink ear, "I shall never be really happy until I've told you something."

His little wife's heart fluttered wildly as she cooed:

"Then tell me, love."

"You remember the reason you married me, don't you?" resumed her reminiscent hubby. "You gave yourself to me in gratitude for my having saved your life from drowning. Isn't that so?"

"Yes, sweetheart." Little Mrs. J.'s voice was sweetly tremulous.

"Well, dearest," her better half continued, with set face and tragic calm, "I deceived you. The water was but waist deep."

A deathly silence, broken only by the deep breathing of the self confessed culprit.

Then out of nowhere came a meek, small voice, which said:

"Don't worry, dear. I know, because I had my foot on the sand all the time."—Detroit News-Tribune.

It Was His Own.

"What's the baby crying for now?" asked the head of the house from the depth of his paper.

"He wants his own way," answered the mother.

And with his mind on the latest stock quotations hubby replied: "Well, if it's his, why don't you let him have it?"

THE PASSPORT AND TRAVEL.

Official Credentials Necessary To Cross Frontiers.

The passport will disappear as a condition of international travel only with the coming of the millennium. It would be easier to drive a camel through the eye of a needle than to smuggle a foreigner into Russia without a passport. Whether he cross the Czar's frontier from the sea, by the gateway of Batoum, or by land, where the Nord Express runs through Wirballen, the traveler will be called upon to stand and deliver his passport almost before he has filled his lungs with Russian air. It is a case of passport first and customs after, for if the traveler's credentials are not in order his luggage need not be opened. It might be thought that inspection at the former would suffice; but there is another examination to undergo at Tiflis or St. Petersburg, as the case may be; and, indeed, during a stay of some weeks in the capital the document is usually retained by the manager of the hotel, and must be endorsed again by the police before the holder leaves the country. The one redeeming feature of this otherwise irritating surveillance is that it costs nothing, since the Russian authorities undertake all the necessary formalities without exacting so much as a rouble for their trouble.

It is the fashion to resent, as well as ridicule, this attitude of the Russian police; but tourists who are impatient of such scrutiny are free to stay away, and the methods of Muscovy are, after all, not more prying or impertinent than those of Montreal. The Canadian Immigration bureau demands from each arrival an assurance that he is not an Anarchist, a polygamist, cripple, or hereditary imbecile. It insists on knowing whether he has paid his own passage. It asks questions about his parents and grandparents, and in fact displays an inquisitiveness of which Russian officials would never dream.

The trouble in Turkey, where the ordinary passport of other countries is replaced by the teskere, is, on the other hand, that of continual petty exactions of a few piasters here and a few piasters there, not only (in the days of Abd-ul-Hamid) on entering, but actually on leaving the country as well. Nowadays, however, this rule of inspecting the teskere of anyone quitting Ottoman territory, which were merely an excuse for a last backsheesh, has wisely been done away with.

The object of the passport has altered during the past two centuries. The "license to travel" of Elizabethan times represented in effect an export duty on tourists, and was insisted on in the hope of discouraging foreign travel, which the authorities regarded, in post-reformation days, as subversive of Protestantism and likely also to undermine the patriotic sentiment of English youth. Edward VI. and Elizabeth both gave letters, which may virtually be regarded as passports, to commercial adventurers trading in Russia and Persia. Nowadays, on the other hand, a passport is simply a certificate of citizenship, in which the foreign secretary for the time being calls upon all those "whom it may concern" to pass the bearer "freely, without let or hindrance," and to afford all necessary assistance and protection.

The modern passport is a coldly impersonal and official document, with none of the glamor of these old letters from princes; but something analogous to them survived until recently in Morocco, where the grand vizier used to give his sign manual to favored travelers in the atlas or other wild regions of the Shereefian empire, whereby they were sure of the assistance of country kaids and of immunity from attack or imposition. The priceless letter used to cost nothing beyond thanks at an audience and the only obligation which it entailed on the holder was that he should at his own expense include a couple of Moorish soldiers in his retinue. The armory of these warriors was somewhat obsolete, but they were handy men in pitching a tent or lighting a camp fire and were generally worth more than their very modest keep and wage.

The Sneezing Prayer.

The custom of following a sneeze with a prayer goes so far back into the past it is next to impossible to say when it actually began. According to Strada the custom originated among the Assyrians, who, through an opinion of the danger that attended it after the act of sneezing made a short prayer to the gods. The Romans after sneezing cried out, "Jupiter, help me!" The custom is mentioned by Homer, the early Jewish writers and others, and is found among many savage tribes.

THE MARKET

Latest Quotation in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 31.—The growing tendency toward firmness in American wheat and fear of lighter Canadian offers stimulated support at opening and prices were unchanged, these offsetting the late easiness in America at the close. Following the opening there was urgent covering by shorts and prices advanced ⅛d to ¼d with strength in December, in which offers have suddenly become light. The firmness in spot, especially of American and Canadian grades, and firmer Manitoba offers over night for near shipment and predictions of light world's shipments other than America, together with unfavorable reports from India and apprehensive conditions in the Argentine, were responsible for the advance. At 1.30 p.m. the market was strong, ⅛d to ¼d higher with good support in May.

Corn—Opened unchanged and later advanced ⅛d. The closing firmness in Buenos Ayres, light Argentine shipments and the strength in wheat held the market in the face of large supplies here, and a ½d decline in spot.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Wheat today showed strength largely because of a sudden falling off in world shipments. Closing prices were steady at a shade to 3-8c net advance. Corn lost 1-8c to 3-8c and oats 1-4c to 3-8c. In provisions the market in general finished with a range of 7 1-2c off to 12 1-2c up. October pork was an exception, being hammered down to 75c.

WEIGHING OF BUTTER AND CHEESE

For a considerable time persistent complaints were made to officials of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa by producers and vendors of dairy produce in Eastern Ontario and Quebec regarding the unsatisfactory methods by which butter and cheese were weighed in Montreal. So numerous were the charges and so serious allegations that it was considered necessary by the Government to have the matter properly investigated. Consequently in the summer of 1912 a Royal Commission was appointed. The investigation by this Commission covered several months and involved the taking of evidence at many points and from many people who were considered likely to be able to shed light on the subject.

The Commission consisting of R. A. Pringle, chairman; A. J. Hodgson, and S. J. Macdonnell, completed their work some time ago and presented a report to the Honourable the Minister of Agriculture. In this, the advisability of amending the Act respecting the weighing, measuring and gauging of certain articles of general consumption is recommended, as well as the appointment, under the control and direction of the Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner, of a competent official, with headquarters at Montreal, who shall be charged with the duty of investigating the weights of cheese when shortages arise.

The report of the Commission, consisting of a pamphlet of 17 pages, is ready to be sent to those apply for it to the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa.

Sizing Up the Situation.

"So she was untrue to the man she was engaged to?"

"Yes. You see, he drinks, smokes and gambles."

"Oh, I see. She was too good to be true."

A Gentle Hint.

"Life at best is but a gloomy prison," said the moralizing bachelor.

"So much the worse for men who deliberately choose solitary confinement," remarked the girl who had her trap set.

The Vote That Counted.

"And what was your family's decision?"

"Practically unanimous in my favor," answered the young lawyer "mother voting aye and father dissenting."

ASTHENIC PERSONS.

Conservation of Their Vital Forces Is Their Only Hope.

"Asthenia" means "without strength," and it describes a condition of general debility. Nerve weakness is "neurasthenia," and muscular weakness is "myasthenia," but the word without any prefix whatever means a general weakness of the system that the sufferer brings into life with him. In infancy a child with asthenia is incapable of prolonged muscular effort. The normal baby screams lustily and kicks vigorously, but the asthenic baby cries feebly as if fatigued and nurses with slow and feeble movements.

Such children cut their first teeth late, with a good deal of digestive disturbance; they catch disease easily and are slow to stand and walk. The motor apparatus — that is, the nerves and muscles used in moving the body — is not and probably never will be capable of much hard work.

In later years, especially during adolescence, life goes more hardly with the asthenic person. His lack of stamina may show itself in any one of a number of ways — among others backache, chorea, weak eyes, weak heart, slowness of wit, poor digestion or undue fatigue after ordinary exertion. These symptoms all indicate that the asthenic person cannot work or play like other people, but must arrange his life with regard to his constitutional weakness.

Many asthenics are persons of superior intelligence and moral force, and they often offset their physical limitations by an exercise of will. The ability thus to exert the will and to triumph over fatigue marks the difference between them and the neurasthenic or the simply indolent.

The greatest mistake a person of the asthenic type can make is to use his will power in an effort to keep up with normal people in their work and play. He can often hold his own in the battle of life surprisingly well, but he cannot do it by "burning the candle at both ends." Success in life for the asthenic means a careful conservation of all the vital forces from hour to hour.

Instead of just beating butter and sugar together for hard sauce, stir into it one-half cup of whipped cream and the white of an egg, beaten very light.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Harbour and River Improvements in the Mission River, Fort William, Ont.," will be received at this office until 4.00 P.M., on Friday, November 21, 1913, for the construction of the Harbour and River Improvements.

Plans, specifications and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the offices of W. P. Merrick, Esq., District Engineer, Fort William, Ont.; J. G. Sing, Esq., District Engineer, Confederation Life Building, Toronto, Ont.; J. L. Michaud, Esq., District Engineer, Post Office, Montreal, P.Q.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered, unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,

Prominent People Proud To Testify For "Fruit-a-tives"

MR. TIMOTHY McGRATH

130 ATLANTIC AVE., MONTREAL,
March 1st. 1912.

"For years, I suffered from Rheumatism, being unable to work for weeks at a time and spent hundreds of dollars on doctor's medicines, besides receiving treatment at Notre Dame Hospital, where I was informed that I was incurable. I was discouraged when a friend advised me to try "Fruit-a-tives". After using three packages, I felt relieved and continued until I had used five packages when a complete cure was the result after years of doctoring failed. I consider "Fruit-a-tives" a wonderful remedy. You are at liberty to use this testimonial to prove to others the good that "Fruit-a-tives" has done me"

HALLOWE'EN REVELLERS SPENT NIGHT IN CELLS

TWELVE YOUNGSTERS CAPTURED

Twelve youths ranging from 15 to 20 years of age, all Hallowe'en celebrators, adorned the inner ring at the Police Court this morning. In the absence of Magistrate Dumble, Mr. H. Rush heard the cases. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the boys.

Six of the lads centred their jollifications around the north end of George street. They loudly protested when they were charged with destroying property, and stated that the ywere going around singing, etc. when Special Constable Dundas came along and arrested them. Mr. Rush first called out a fine of $2 for disorderly conduct, but their case was left in abeyance till next Wednesday.

The other six were up for the same cause, but their scene of enjoyment was around Gilmour street, where several fences were pulled down and property damaged. Their cases were adjourned till next Wednesday.

The boys were kept in the cells all night, and when they asked permission to 'phone to their parents they were refused by Sergt. Adams and P.C. Brown. The Chief said that it was not according to the rules to allow this, but Mr. Gordon exclaimed, "It's according to rules of humanity and common decency."

HOODLUMS LIBERATED COWS; TWO WERE KILLED

Were Struck by C.P.R. Train at the Canal Bridge

Last night hoodlums damaged a fence at a pasture field near the Canal bridge and four cows belonging to Mr. A. E. Sedgwick gained the highway.

The cows found their way to the railway tracks and two of them were found dead this morning, they having been struck by a train.

The other two animals were injured. The cows were valued at $50 each.

WAS SHOT IN THE HAND

Cyril Devey Was the Victim in Revolver Episode

Hallowe'en festivities ended rather disastrously for a party of young people last night as Cyril Devey, the elder son of Mr. R. J. Devey, Park street, was shot in the hand.

A party was being held at a home in Smith, on the Chemong Road, but the boys vacated the house for the open air. One of the party had a small revolver and in some manner Cyril Devey was shot in the hand.

Dr. Eastwood dressed the wound. The affair will be investigated.

CROWDS STRUGGLE TO HEAR GENERAL BRAMWELL BOOTH AT MASSEY HALL

Remarkable Scenes Witnessed in Toronto on Occasion of Visit of the Head of Salvation Army—Wave of Emotion Swept Over Andience and Weeping Was Heard Everywhere.

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—Eager to hear General Bramwell Booth, and excited by fear that they would not be admitted to the meeting, hundreds of citizens fought desperately for places in the lines formed near Massey Hall yesterday afternoon and evening. Women were crushed and children jostled about until driven to tears, while many robust men found their strength useless to cope with the throng. Thousands were turned away, but remained nearby in the hope that room would be made for them, when the fortunate people vacated their seats.

To the police must go the credit for preventing serious injury to scores who risked body and limb in the mad scramble to reach points of vantage to see the general on the streets or to force an entrance into the hall.

Except a few women who became faint, nothing serious resulted.

After a short preliminary service, the tall, white-haired leader advanced to the front of the platform and began a most impressive and interesting speech. The first part was taken up with a sketch of his father's life, which he described as a life of service, of complete surrender to the will of God. He was above all a worker who knew no weariness in his chosen and absorbing task. The secret of his success was summed up by a saying of the late general, "I made up my mind that God should have all there was of William Booth." The mainspring of his life and work was love, love for all God's creatures, and a love which found its highest expression in never-ceasing humble service. To himself he was not only a father, but also a companion and friend. "I rejoice that God gave him to us," simply and reverently said the general.

At the conclusion of the general's speech, Commissioner Lawley made an impassioned appeal to the people to join the movement. As he spoke a storm of emotion swept over the audience, several of whom became hysterical and gave vent to their feelings in an unrestrained manner. Large numbers, burying their faces in their handkerchiefs, sobbed and moaned and advanced to the penitent form.

Woman Burned To Death.

GUELPH, Nov. 3.—Mrs. Hewer, aged 66, living at No. 14 Oliver street, met a horrible death Saturday afternoon, being burned to death. The clothes were burned almost completely off her body, and death was caused by the inhalation of the flames. The cause of her being on fire is unknown, but it is supposed that it was done in attempting to light an oil stove which she was about to use. It is thought that she was bending over to start the fire, when she fell, the match setting fire to her clothes. The flames spread with terrible rapidity, and the aged woman rushed out of the room a mass of flames. Death occurred soon afterwards.

BULLET FROM POLICE KILLS EXPRESSMAN

Shots Were Fired to Drive Cattle Back to Yards

Canadian Press Despatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—When sixteen steers escaped from a railroad stock pen on the west side this morning the police fired a fusilade of shots to drive them back.

Few people were abroad, but one bullet found its billet in the brain of Georle Beattie, the driver of an express wagon, and toppled him dead from his seat.

FREE M'MANIGAL

Dynamiter and Informer May Be Released This Week.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 3.—Ortie E. McManigal, whose confession as an accomplice of the McNamara brothers figured in the trial at Indianapolis of the union labor leaders, whose appeal was taken under advisement Friday after arguments in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago, may be a free man within six days.

County authorities said yesterday that with the decision on the appeals, McManigal probably would be released from the Los Angeles County Jail, where he has been a prisoner for two and a half years, having left it only for a few weeks to testify for the Government at Indianapolis trials last year.

COACH LEAVES TRACK CRASHES INTO ENGINE; ONE KILLED, TEN HURT

Accident Happened Early This Morning as Express for Toronto Was Leaving Moose Jaw--

Canadian Press Despatch.

MOOSE JAW, SASK., Nov. 3.—Miss Lillian Pettypiece, the sixteen-year-old daughter, of Mrs. C. Waterman, Ottawa, was killed, and ten persons were more or less injured in the west yards here this morning, when a second-class car of No. Four Canadian Pacific express for Toronto left the track.

It is supposed that the switch was imperfectly closed, and the coach was shattered against a freight engine standing on the siding.

The injured are:

Mrs. Waterman, Ottawa, skull fractured.

Henry Urren, Caljary, jaw broken.

Henry Pope, Vancouver, bruised.

Dan Brooks, Edmonton, leg broken.

Clifford Johnson, Besper, Arkansas, cut and bruised.

T. S. Hillan, Gull Lake, head cut.

C. R. S. E. Urbigg, New Hamburg, Ont., back sprained.

E. Johnson, Crandef, Ont., forehead cut.

W. Pick, Toronto, burns on feet.

The accident occurred at five o'clock this morning. The engine and baggage car passed the switch safely, ly, but the second-class left the track and smashed into the freight engine.

STORE HOUSE COLLAPSED AND FELL ON DWELLING

Two People Were Killed and Two Others May Die — Firemen Say Faulty Construction Was Cause of Collapse

Canadian Press Despatch.

HARTFORD, CONN., Nov. 3.—John Hughes, stone cutter, aged 59, and niece, Eva Dooty, aged five, were killed in their sleep.

Mrs. Hughes, and her daughter, Margaret Hughes, and Mrs. Henry Dooty, was perhaps fatally injured and Irene Dooty was severely injured early this morning, when the Loveland storehouse, a four-storey brick dwelling, used to store tobacco and rags, collapsed and fell on Hughes' small dwelling. It was first reported that the explosion was caused by the collapse, but firemen say it was due to faulty construction.

Rudderless Boat Makes Port.

COBOURG, Ont., Nov. 3.—One of the most clever steamboat handling was done here late Saturday night when Capt. Cousins, of the steamer Ralph, belonging to the Point Anne quarries, brought the steamer right into Cobourg harbor with the barge Sophia Minch without the use of his rudder, which was broken out in the lake. It was very difficult to bring in both the boats as there was a strong gale blowing from the west, but he did so and had them tied to the dock without further damage. The boats left yesterday on their way up the lake.

Health Expert Goes To Africa.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Col. W. C. Gorgas, whose work in producing healthful conditions in the Panama Canal zone brought him world-wide fame, left here Saturday for South Africa, on a mission to help the medical experts in the Transvaal, devise ways and means to decrease the mortality caused by pneumonia. Mrs. Gorgas and Major R. E. Noble accompanied him abroad. He expects to return in January.

HE GOT HELP FROM BANK

Huerta's Salaries Were Paid for Him

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 3. — Daniel and Evaristo Madero, who are confined in San Juan prison at Vera Cruz, have been placed at the disposal of the Federal District judge here for a period of seventy-two hours, during which time evidence against them will be considered. If this evidence is inconclusive. It is probable that their release will be recommended to the Federal authorities.

The financial stress apparent Friday has been relieved temporarily by assistance given to the Government by the National Bank. All the Government employes are now said to have been paid.

The members of the special Mexican embassy to Japan, who are now on their way back to Mexico from Havana aboard the training ship Zaragoza, are not under arrest, according to officials here, but they will be subjected to an inquiry as to the expenditure of 90,000 pesos by them on their trip abroad with General Feliz Diaz.

Calero Goes to Havana.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 3.—Manuel Calero, the candidate of the Liberal party in the recent Presidential elections, was a passenger on the steamer Corcovado, which sailed for Havana yesterday. Senor Calero will proceed to Washington. He was closely watched by detectives while here.

A Baffling Situation.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The Daily Telegraph, in an editorial, this morning argues that for the European nations the Mexican question is not one of ethics but of practical politics. It readily admits, however, that there is a great deal to be said on the other side, and that the whole matter is so perplexing and baffling that the only prudent course is to wait on events.

"We believe we are right in saying that both France and Germany, as well as Great Britain, will take no decided action until the situation is clearer," says the paper.

The Daily Graphic again urges the Government to retracc its steps in the Mexican affair.

Waiting For Wilson.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—In British diplomatic circles there does not seem to be much concern regarding adverse press comments relative to the handling of the Mexican situation. The tendency is to wait for definite action that will show just what course President Wilson and the United States Government intends to pursue. It is believed that a definite pronouncement by the United States Government will not be long delayed.

VICTIMS OF HALLOW'EEN

Mother and Daughter Died of Heart Disease Within 30 Minutes.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Two boys are dead as the result of Hallowe'en pranks played here Friday night. While trying to pull down an arc light, Morgan Campbell, 15 years of age, came into contact with a charged wire and was instantly electrocuted.

Tomaso La Quinto died in a hospital from injuries sustained when he was knocked down by a fire department wagon which was answering a false alarm some joker had turned in.

Mrs. Hulda Ewart, aged 52, and her daughter, Mrs. Alma Stenersen, 32, both widows, died of heart disease within thirty minutes, the latter at a Hallowe'en party and the former while on her way to join her daughter, when informed of her illness.

The daughter died within a half hour after being taken ill. Her mother was notified of her illness and dropped dead on the street corner. The body was found by a policeman.

THEIR WEDDING WILL BE OF NATIONAL INTEREST

LATEST PHOTOGRAPHS OF MISS JESSIE WOODROW WILSON, HER FIANCE, MR. FRANCIS B. SAYRE, AND THE HOUSE THEY WILL OCCUPY IN WILLIAMSTOWN, MASS.

Invitations to the marriage of Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson, daughter of the President and Mrs. Wilson, to Mr. Francis B. Sayre, in the White House, November 25, have been sent out. Between seven hundred and eight hundred persons were invited.

The President and Mrs. Wilson believe that the wedding should be modest, as that of a girl should be who always has taken more interest in home affairs than in society, and yet the official position of the family demands that it be more. Just where to draw the line has been the question.

THEOLOGIANS NOW

Involved Questions on Ritual Murder Are Hurled at Priests.

KIEV, Nov. 3.—Counsel for the defence in the trial of Mendel Beiliss, charged with murdering the Christian boy Yushinsky, have succeeded in preventing the prosecution from having the minutes read of previous cases dealing with alleged ritual murder. The medical testimony having been concluded, the sitting yesterday began with the testimony of theological witnesses, among whom only one upholds the views of the prosecution, namely, the priest, Father Pranaites, whose evidence has already to a great extent been repudiated by the Vatican authorities.

Among other experts to be heard is Prof. Kakavsoff, a relative of the Russian Premier. A long list of abstruse questions concerning ritual murder was put to the theological experts, neither questions nor answers apparently being comprehensible to the jury, which is composed of peasants and small shopkeepers. The list included such questions as "By what did the Jews replace the victim in the case of the first-born sacrificed to Jehovah?" "What portion of the body, according to the interpretation of the Talmud and the Cabala, is it out of which the soul is mostly held to issue with the blood?"

While Father Pranaites was testifying he mention Christ, whereupon the president of the court declared that the name of Christ could only be mentioned when the court was sitting behind closed doors. Pranaites contended that the extermination of the Christians was the main object of the existence of the Talmudists.

CAR SERVICE IS PARALYZED

Indianapolis Strike Sympathizers Force Company to Withdraw Cars.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 3.—The Indianapolis Traction & Terminal Co., whose men went on strike Friday night, attempted to run its cars yesterday, but gave up when notified by Supt. of Police Hyland that the police would be unable to prevent bloodshed unless the cars were withdrawn. Joseph Johnson, a striking motorman, was shot and wounded by a policeman, who fired into the crowd that surged around the first car to be sent out. Two cars were taken from the barns, each filled with policemen, but the crowds packed around them so tightly they could not be moved. Soon after the shooting of Johnson they were ordered back to the barns.

Governor Ralston, in a statement last night charged that the city authorities are not doing their duty in failing to provide police protection. He refused a request of Mayor Lew Shanks that he call out the militia, and declared that the mayor has full authority and power to provide sufficient protection to run the cars.

A further attempt will be made to start cars to-day. Supt. of Police Hyland notified Robert I. Todd, president of the traction company, that he would supply as many men as possible and Todd declared he would start the cars as soon as the police were ready to go with them.

The downtown streets remained packed with people all day, although most of the disturbances ended when the attempts to move the cars ceased.

MANCHESTER COMMERCE DAMAGED IN BELLE ISLE STRATS

STEAMER HITS AN ICEBERG

Fog Obscured Course, But Although Damaged the Boat Made St. John's

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—The Manchester Commerce struck an iceberg while passing through the Straits of Belle Isle early on Saturday morning and sustained injuries which, though severe, did not incapacitate her entirely, for she was subsequently able to shape her course for St. John's, Nfld., where she will be docked for overhauling and repair.

The weather report from Point Amour on Saturday morning, as supplied by the signal station at that point, was "cloudy," no mention being made of fog; but fog sometimes falls quickly in the straits at this time of the year, especially when ice in floating in the vicinity, so it may yet transpire that it was on account of sudden fog obscuring her course that the Manchester Commerce met with the accident which compelled her to make for the nearest port. Meagre details of the accident reached here late last night.

J. R. Binning, managing director of the Furness-Withy interests in Montreal, stated that he had merely been informed that the Manchester Commerce had struck an iceberg. As to the extent of her injuries he had received no details. However, he was confident that she was in no immediate danger of sinking.

Icebergs are known to be afloat in the steamer track in the Straits of Belle Isle, as the White Star liner Canada encountered four of them during her last trip from Liverpool. Capt. Jones reported upon arrival here that the first of these bergs bad been met 80 miles to the east of Belle Isle; the second five miles to the east, the third off Cape Norman, and the last 13 miles west of that point, all four being directly in the track of the steamers navigating the straits.

The Manchester Commerce, which is commanded by Capt. Couch, is an iron screw steamer built at West Hartlepool in 1899. She is of 5,663 tons gross register, 430 feet 5 inches long, 48 feet 2 inches beam, and 30 feet 3 inches deep. Her officers and crew number about 40. She has few if any passengers aboard.

Crew of Schooner Saved.

BOSTON, Nov. 3.—The crew of the schooner Gypsum Emperor, which was dismasted in a storm, were picked up by the Hamburg American line steamer Barcelona, from Philadelphia for Hamburg, according to a wireless message received here yesterday.

The Gypsum Emperor was bound for Halifax from New York with coal. She was built in 1892 in Parrsboro, N.S., and was owned by her master, Capt. Thomas Martin of Philadelphia.

Civic Paving Plant Pays.

CALGARY, Nov. 3.—The report of the city commissioners announce the Calgary paving plant effected a saving to the city of $25,000 during the 12 months, compared with the cost of paving by contract.

The municipal plant lays a paving at an average cost of $2.15 per yard. During the season 140,000 square yards were laid. Calgary's paved streets measure 52 miles.

Building In Edmonton Brisk.

EDMONTON, Nov. 3.—Two wholesale warehouses, each 50 by 135 feet, five storeys and basement, are just completed and occupied. Another is nearing completion.

Building permits for the year to date are $8,808,100. October permits included a bank building and 115 residences.

Bridge Cuts Freight Charges.

EDMONTON, Nov. 3—The completion of the high level bridge over the Saskatchewan river by the C. P. R. results in a reduction in freight charges on the traffic effected by the bridge from five to ten dollars each car.

RUBBER HORRORS AGAIN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3. — Unofficial reports have been received here of alleged outrages on Bolivian natives in the rubber country, almost paralleling the Putamayo atrocities in Peru. Following the precedent set in the Putamayo case, officials here expect Great Britain will call on the United States to investigate, and in that case the facts will be examined by consular officers and a report made to London.

Will Electrify Swiss Railways.

BERNE, Switzerland, Nov. 3.—The Swiss Government is providing for the expenditure of $7,600,000 for electrification of the St. Gotthard Railway. This, it is said, will be the first step in the electrification of all the Swiss national railways.

KILLED BY TRAIN

Gananokue Youth Falls Off a Freight and Dies of Injuries

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 3. — Harold Williams, aged 18 years, whose home was at Gananoque, died Saturday afternoon at the hospital here as the result of terrible injuries received on the line of the G. T. R., some three miles east of Belleville, earlier in the day.

With two companions, Williams was riding on a freight train and in some manner fell off. The result was his right arm was amputated at the shoulder by the wheels and he was otherwise injured. The victim was brought to the city hospital but never regained consciousness.

An inquest was opened and adjourned for the taking of evidence. The remains were subsequently shipped to Gananoque.

ASQUITH IS ATTACKED

Suffragettes Throw Pepper and Wield Horsewhips

FOUR ARRESTS

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Suffragettes attacked Premier Asquith again Saturday afternoon, throwing pepper on him and trying to get at him with whips, as he motored from Larbert House to Stirling.

The onslaught took place as the Prime Minister passed through Plean Village. Several militants surrounded his automobile and jumped on its steps. One of them filled the car with pepper while another wielded a dog whip, but the lashes failed to reach Asquith.

Scotland Yard men following in a police car drove the woman away. Asquith was unhurt and refused to have the suffragettes arrested.

Four women well known in Edinburgh and Glasgow as militant suffragettes were arrested last night as principals in the attack on Premier Asquith.

Mrs. Pankhurst and Gompers.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English militant suffragette, arrived in Chicago early Saturday from Nashville, to fill a lecture engagement yesterday afternoon. She plans to remain here until to-morrow, when she will go to Minneapolis to address a meeting Thursday.

Saturday night the British militant and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor led the grand march at a Hallowe'en dance given by the Women's Trade Union League.

HUGE WATERSPOUT

Officers of Cedric Report One 600 Feet In Height.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—A remarkable story of watersprouts in mid-Atlantic is told by officers of the White Star liner Cedric, which arrived at Queenstown Friday. The first they saw had the appearance of a black, funnel-shaped streak. This was a few miles off the starboard bow in mid-Atlantic on the outward voyage from Queenstown. The waterspout, which was estimated to be 600 feet high, was traveling at the rate of five miles an hour.

As the column faded away in the distance it was succeeded by a smaller spout, which in turn was followed by a severe squall, accompanied by vivid lightning. Then came two more waterspouts, bringing to an end the strange phenomena, which the officers unite in saying were the most remarkable they ever witnessed.

Barge Blocks Canal.

CORNWALL, Nov. 3.—The barge Cornwall of the Montreal Transportation Co., in tow of the tug Emmerson, parted its lines while coming down the Cornwall Canal and swung around, blocking navigation for a short time. She was finally faced about and taken out of the canal to the lake, where she was beached. Shortly afterwards the barge sank, and it is feared she will be a total loss. Part of the bow is out of the water. The Cornwall is one of the old barges which navigate with tow lines. She was laden with 40,000 bushels of No. 1 hard wheat, and was bound for Montreal.

Failed To Break Record.

PARIS, Nov. 3. — The half-yearly competition for the Pommery Cup, it is officially announced, has been won by Marcel G. Brindejone des Moulinais, who last June flew from Paris to Warsaw by way of Berlin, a distance of 1,500 kilometres (approximately 933 miles), in 13 hours. Eugene Gilbert, who on Friday ascended at Villacoublay in an attempt to beat this record, covered only 935 kilometres (581 miles, in 5 hours and 11 minutes.

SCALDED IN BATH

Toronto Woman Succumbs to Scalding at Boston, Mass.

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—It was learned in Toronto last night that Miss Agnes Horgan, superintendent of the St. Philip Neri Hostel, Sherbourne street, died in the City Hospital, Boston, Mass., at 1.30 yesterday afternoon.

Miss Horgan went to Boston two weeks ago with a party attending the Catholic missionary conference, and was scalded in her bath tub on the night of her arrival. She was attended by the house surgeon and staff of the city hospital, where the best medical care and attention was given her, and it was expected that she would be able to return to Toronto in a week. Instead of this the scalding was so severe that it resulted in her death.

Miss Mary Hoskin, president of the women's auxiliary, and Mrs. Bannon remained with her in Boston when the rest of the party returned to Toronto last week, and were with her at her death. Her own sister, Miss Mary Horgan, left Toronto yesterday and reached her bedside just before she died.

The body will reach Toronto on Wednesday morning.

After hearing both sides a fair story you are in a position to pass it up [illegible]

IS CANADA IMPREGNABLE?

Mr. Norman Angell, the author of the "Great Illusion" (the Montreal Mail has "Allusion") a book which tries to prove that war never did any good, and that neither sides can profit by conquest, has been telling a London audience that Canada is impregnable to invasion by any foe, and therefore military preparations are unnecessary.

He bases his argument upon the fact that the Dominion is so large that it would be practically impossible for an enemy to conquer it, as it would be necessary for to occupy the whole country before a conquest would be effective.

This looks very plausable on the face of it, like many of Mr. Angell's arguments which are based upon idealism rather than facts. Mr. Angell ought to know that it is not necessary for an enemy to occupy the whole of Canada to conquer it. England is not a very large place but if Germany, or any other power, got its army into London, it might dictate terms with the rest of the British Isles without occupying another city.

The same thing applies to Canada. If Quebec and Vancouver were taken Canada could be shaken to its utmost bounds by a determined invader. The Grand Trunk and the C.P.R. lines are the vital arteries of the Dominion, and with these under the control of a foe all the vast territory would not save Canada. You have not to subdue every individual, or seize every acre of a country to conquer a nation. All you have to do in Canada is to seize Mr. Borden and the Government building, the post office, the telephone, the railways and you could starve and terrorize this great Dominion into submission.

The question as to why any other nation should desire to conquer Canada was also raised by Mr. Angell, and he seemed to think the idea ridiculous. But there are a great many ridiculous things in this world, and men and nations are apt to do some unexpected and unreasonable things. Why did Great Britain conquer the French? That was long ago of course. But has the world changed in its desire for conquest? Why all these navies and fiendish inventions for the destructions of life and property? These engines of war are deliberately devised for human slaughter.

That these things are all made for fun is hard to believe. Why they should be made at all is a question which Mr. Angell should seriously consider and meditate long and deeply upon for the next six months and give us the benefit of his cogitations.

THE HUMOR OF POLITICS

Some Liberal journals speak of the South Bruce bye-election as if it was the last word on the naval question. The Globe particularly emphasizes it as an indication that Ontario is opposed to the Government's naval policy and would return Sir Wilfrid Laurier to power if Mr Borden appealed to the country; it says "there will be no thirty-five million dollar emergency" contribution, South Bruce and Middlesex have settled that."

There is a saying that "one swallow does not make a summer." South Bruce did look at first sight like a swallow. As for Middlesex only a "prisoner of hope" could construe that bird into anything in the nature of a swallow.

"Hope springs eternal in the human breast," and no will deny them of this their only consolation.

If one could not see the humorous side of political controversy it would be a very depressing business. To follow the editorial columns of the Globe for instance, is, to one with a sense of humor, a source of amusement. It is true the humor is for the most part unconscious.

That journal has been, ever since the rejection of the Naval Aid Bill by the Senate, trying to prove that there was never any "emergency," yet it has repeatedly informed its readers that "emergency" was "dead." But it is evident that this "emergency" has more lives than the proverbial cat; the last salute of the Globe is "good-bye, dear old emergency."

It would thus appear that the editor is rather reluctant to part with this dear tenacious creature, like a lover on the door-step, who holds the hand of his loved one and fain would dwell forever in perpetual parting. "Parting is such sweet sorrow."

POETS AND PREFERMENT

Mr. Duncan Campbell Scott has been appointed to the head of the department for Indian affairs at Ottawa at a salary of $5,000. Mr. Scott is a well known poet, and so large a salary is rather unconventional for a bard. Canada treats her poets better than they do in the Old Country. Perhaps that explains the fact that they have the sweetest singers in Great Britain. Shelley says that the saddest songs are the sweetest, and it is positively ungrateful, not to say unrespectable, to be sad on $5,000 a year.

Whatever may be said of the hard lot of the poet in England it is certain that much of the finest poetry was distilled from tears, or struck off in the clash and antagonism of adverse circumstances. Some of Spencer's sweetest lyrics were the outpourings of a disappointed suitor at a tardy court. In his "Prothalamion" he sings:

When I, (whom sullen care,
Through discontent of my long, fruitless stay
In Prince's Court and expectation vaid
Of idle hopes, which still do fly away
Like empty shadows, did afflict my brain)
Walked forth to ease my pain
Along the shores of silver, winding Thames.

It is a shame to say it, but it is probable that it would have been better for Duncan Scott, the poet, if someone else had got the preferment, and he had been sent to wander down the banks of the Ottawa River musing over a blind and heartless generation. The Indian department would have been none the poorer, while the Canadian Muse would have had another gem in her crown!

EDITORIAL NOTES

King George has been banqueting British workmen in London. Claypipes and tobacco were passed round freely. We are not told whether His Majesty took to the "clay" or not in lieu of the usual "Havana," but it may be assumed that he avoided the "thick twist."

Mrs. Pankhurst has had a rather cool reception in the States. This goes to prove that apart from her militant spectacular tactics the suffragette leader is a very uninteresting person.

Gibbons, the historian, said that one of the greatest Greek controversies of the Early Church turned only on the difference of one letter. Anent this Mr. G. K. Chesterton remarks in the Illustrated London News that "Going to Hull and going to Hell contains only the difference of one letter." One would have to go to Hull to decide the point.

If apples to be used for salad have little flavor, sprinkle them after they are cut up with a goodly amount of lemon juice, to which a few cloves have been added. At the end of half an hour add the mayonnaise. It will be a decided improvement.

BIG JOKE ON SIR WILFRID

The veteran statesman and leader of the Liberal party was the victim of a cruel joke on the part of the electors of South Bruce in the recent election. He spoke once in that riding and only once, at Teeswater. The Liberal majority of 1911 at that point fell away in the recent contest to nearly the vanishing point. Yet the Liberals gained in other parts of the riding Such is the irony of elections. It is said that there is to be a protest. Truax the winner was unseated once before.

SAFETY FIRST MOVEMENT

An official circular just issued by Mr. Howard G. Kelley, Vice-President of the Grand Trunk Railway System, shows the earnest, thorough and determined manner in which that System is endeavoring to prevent personal injuries to patrons and employes.

This circular is the result of an exhaustive study of the personal injury problem on the Grand Trunk by Mr. George Bradshaw, an expert Safety Engineer, who was engaged some time ago to study conditions and inaugurate the "Safety First Movement."

Safety Committee composed of the local officers and one or more employes from each branch of the service, are organized on each division and in the principal shops and terminals, there being about 500 members of such committees. These local committees are directed to meet at least once a month, employes being allowed their necessary expenses and compensation for any time taken from their regular duties on account of committee work.

The purposes of the Safety Organization, as stated by Mr. Kelly, are:

(1) The correction of unsafe conditions and practices before an injury has resulted.

(2) The investigation of accidents which may occur with a view to discovering the causes thereof, and applying corrective measures, where possible, to prevent a recurrence.

"It will be the duty of members of Safety Committees as they go about their regular work to note unsafe conditions and practices, and to correct or take up the same for correction. Most railroad accidents are caused not by collisions, derailments and wrecks, but by little conditions and practices of an unsafe nature which can to a great extent, be overcome by thinking about prevention before instead of after an accident has happened."

A general Safety Committee is created at Montreal, composed of the Vice-President, Operating Department Chairman, Engineer, Engineer Maintenance of Way, Superintendent Motive Power, Superintendent Car Department, General Superintendents, Chief Claims Agent and the Safety Engineer, Secretary. This Committee will consider all matters of a general nature referred to it by the local committees. 1d

"Hey, Jim! I got a job for you. Do you want to make a quarter?"

"No," said the ragged one. "I done got a quarter."

MYSTERY OF NECKLACE

MAX MAYER'S PEARLS WERE LOST AND FOUND AGAIN.

A Fascinating Problem For Police and Public Has Resulted From the Theft of Fabulously Valuable Gems Which Disappeared In the Mails—Came Back In a Parcel Like So Many Marbles.

Fascinating from its first chapter, the mystery of the stolen and recovered pearls belonging to Mr. Max Mayer of London has reached a climax, without providing an explanation of some of the extraordinary incidents connected with it. As it stands, the story has all the elements of the most thrilling detective romance, one which is bound to fill the authors of such works with professional jealousy; while as a record of plain matters of fact it will inevitably take a high place amongst the remarkable adventures of famous gems and jewels with which history abounds.

Like most effective dramas of the kind, the plot opens in quite a matter-of-fact way. Mr. Mayer was owner, last July, of a magnificent string of pearls, sixty-one in number, and valued at $585,000. They had taken many years to collect, the worth of a necklace of this kind lying in its perfect harmony of coloring, and the beautiful gradation in size of the beads composing it.

With a view to sale, the owner decided one day, two months ago, to have the string sent to him in London from the French capital. Similar things are done constantly. Between London and Holland an incessant stream of diamonds passes on the way to be cut in Amsterdam, and valuables of the highest kind constantly go to and fro across the Channel.

In general the process is so safe, the delivery of the treasure so certain, that no one thinks much of the matter. Thus Mr. Mayer, with a light heart, had his pearls registered and posted by his agent, Mr. Salomons, and awaited their arrival with the utmost confidence.

This was Scene I.; the curtain ringing up for Scene II. disclosed the priceless box, its seals untouched, its coverings apparently untampered with, being unpacked by the gentleman in question in Hatton garden, no doubt with pleasurable anticipation of again handling such lovely playthings. Paper, string, and box were all in good order, and then—Sherlock Holmes himself would have felt a thrill of that moment when the last covering was removed—a glance as the lid opened showed that the pearls had gone!

In their place were a few lumps of white sugar, put in, probably, to make up the correct weight, and a scrap or two of soiled French newspaper. Where had the gems gone? They had certainly been posted, and as certainly never arrived. Whatever else may be said of it, their abstraction on the way was a beautiful feat of legerdemain, a striking example of expertness on the part of the thief or thieves, and, seeing how small were the clues they had left, the prospect of recovering the treasure or capturing the plunderers looked remarkably small at the outset.

Small as the clues were, the Scotland Yard detective department, to whose credit it must be said that it seldom or never acknowledges itself defeated, set to work with vigor to trace the thieves of the pearl necklace. A reward of $50,000 was offered on behalf of Lloyd's underwriters, and elaborate "trap" negotiations, begun on August 15, were continued until the commencement of September. The story of these negotiations is too lengthy to follow here, Parisians jewelers, postmen, dupes, and dummies flitting alternately across the scene in rapid succession.

How far the police all this time knew that they were on the actual track of the criminals is not disclosed, but later developments suggest that the holders of the necklace recognized that the authorities knew more than was desirable from their point of view. All we know at the moment is that, while everyone was asking, "Where is the pearl necklace?" a working man strolled into a north London police station recently, laid down a muddy paper bundle on the superintendent's table, and casually remarked, "I found that in St. Paul's road, Highbury."

The paper was unrolled, and there, unstrung but undamaged, lay fifty-eight of the sixty famous pearls. Naturally, the police were incredulous for the moment; the incident was too extraordinary to be believed off-hand, but a reference to a local jeweler and a subsequent visit from Mr. Mayer himself left no further room for doubt. The treasure for which Europe had been ransacked had been picked up in a quiet Highbury thoroughfare, and then, by an inimitable touch of fate, at once ironical and farcical, offered by the finder in exchange for a glass of beer at a public house bar—and refused.

How it came to St. Paul's road simply adds one more scene to this engrossing romance. It is almost incredible that the pearls should have been dropped accidentally, and if this were not so, then their disposal in such a manner suggests that the pursuit was becoming more dangerous than the nerves of culprits could endure, and they took an ignominous means of ridding themselves of their booty.

It need hardly be said that Mr. Mayers and Lloyd's underwriters have been overjoyed at the recovery of the necklace, and there for the moment the matter rests. The public, which has watched the case with the keenest interest so far, will certainly follow it to the end with equal avidity, the final stages of the mystery promising to be as absorbing as those which have preceded them.

The Diamond Block

A Case of Too Strong a "Detective Instinct"

By CLARISSA MACKIE

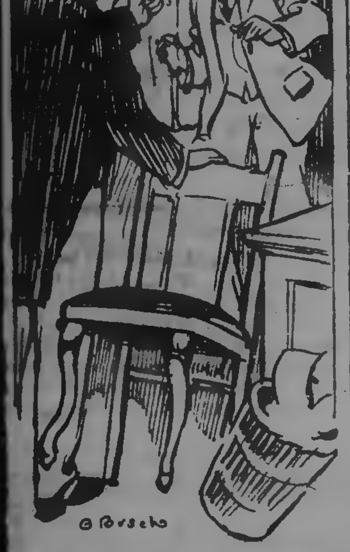
It happened in Chicago.

The Diamond block stands on a corner formed by two principal thoroughfares, a tall building with buff stone walls rising above the crowded streets until the upper floors are a blur to the eye below.

Up on the twentieth floor are the offices of John Diamond, owner of this building and many others of the same kind in the big metropolis. Many and varied are the interests of this rich man and the transaction of his affairs requires the reservation of the entire twentieth floor for his offices.

All day long dozens of clerks pore over ledgers, typewriters and adding machines.

Mr. Diamond was seldom seen about the building. Most of his business was transacted through competent executives, of whom Henry Robinson was the chief. The Diamonds lived in a magnificent house on the lake front and went in for society. Helen Diamond, the beautiful daughter of the multimillionaire, had drifted through the offices once or twice to see her father, and her coming and going had blazed a trail of fire in the heart of George Brown, the newest clerk on the force.



"WHAT DOES THIS MEAN?" HE DEMANDED.

It was a singular fact that Mr. Diamond's rare visits to his offices were invariably on the eve of his departure for Colorado and Arizona, where he had extensive mining interests.

It was immediately after one of these periodical visits of John Diamond that young George Brown, the new accountant, did a bit of detective work that brought him to the personal notice of the great John Diamond himself.

Young Brown was a slim, dapper youth, who did not hate himself in the least and who was not in love with work of any sort. He read detective stories and knew positively that he was one of the chosen few. He possessed the "detective instinct." He believed himself quite fascinating enough to win his employer's daughter, Helen Diamond, flattering himself that he was capable of becoming general manager of the whole business and so would be an acceptable son-in-law.

One morning young Brown entered the elevator and was sped up aloft with other workers. The car stopped at the eighteenth floor to let off passengers and again at the nineteenth to drop Trowbridge, who worked in the Dover Insurance offices. Up it shot to the twentieth floor, where Brown got off with a puzzled frown marring his ingenuous brow.

The empty car dropped down and as it went he watched it intently. Then he walked to another elevator and rode down to the ground floor, counting each floor as he passed. When he again mounted to the twentieth floor there was a strange light in his eyes and excitement tingling every nerve of his sensitive frame.

He was on the verge of a mystery, the solving of which would place him in the limelight of publicity and bring down upon his talented head the eternal approval and friendship of John Diamond.

Over his ledger Brown pondered the facts as he had stumbled upon them. Between the nineteenth and twentieth floors of the Diamond block there was an expanse of white wall quite unaccounted for—why, that blank wall was the height of any of the other floors in the building and yet there appeared no door to mar its surface. The elevators were of special construction, with walls of solid metal plates and a grilled door, and the passing of this fifteen feet of unaccounted for space might be quite unnoticed unless one was sharp eyed and sharp eared, like young Brown. Why should there be such a waste of space in this great building, where every foot of room was valuable?

That was the mystery, and George Brown resolved to solve it.

At noon, as he waited for the elevator, he saw the roof of the ascending car stop just below his floor level, and he distinctly heard Mr. Robinson's voice. When the elevator reached the twentieth floor it was empty.

"I thought Mr. Robinson was on the car," said Brown curiously.

The middle aged operator shook his head negatively.

Henry Robinson, the manager of the Diamond interests, was a martinet in discipline. George Brown despised him accordingly and knew with unerring certainty that he could fill Robinson's job with one hand tied behind him.

Brown argued thus: Henry Robinson had supervised the building of the Diamond block—what more natural than he should connive to have one of the floors sealed to public knowledge, yea, even the knowledge of his guileless employer, and use it to his own advantage? What sort of work was carried on secretly there? George Brown had it all figured out to a nicety; counterfeiting, of course.

Robinson, the counterfeiter! What a morsel for the amateur detective to roll under his tongue.

But George Brown wanted to be very sure that he was right before springing his information upon the unsuspecting John Diamond. Just at this time Mr. Diamond was in the west.

So George Brown entered the tall building across the street and surveyed the Diamond block from the outside and studied the Diamond block from an upper floor whose windows were on a level with the windows of the mysterious unnumbered floor of the Diamond block.

Counting carefully he found the nineteenth floor, gold lettered windows of the Dover Insurance company quite distinct—then another set of windows unlettered, closely curtained, then above them the wire screened windows of the Diamond offices, known as the twentieth floor.

At last he decided to consult a detective.

So one evening at 6 o'clock the elevator carried up five passengers—George Brown, Allen, the detective, and two policemen in plain clothes and a reporter from the Daily Dishup, for Brown did not want his triumph to pass unnoticed.

When they had risen several stories Allen placed his hand on the arm of the elevator-man and showed a revolver.

"You are my prisoner," he said coolly. "Now, my man, no fuss. Just stop at that unnumbered floor between the nineteenth and twentieth."

White of face and with muttered protests the man brought the car to a standstill before that mysterious, unnumbered space that had attracted the attention of keen young Brown. Instead of opening the usual door, the man turned and slid back a door in the rear of the elevator, disclosing a corresponding doorway in the wall.

That was the entrance to the unnumbered floor.

George Brown was a-tremble with exultation.

The five entered the door and found themselves at once in a narrow passageway, softly lighted and thickly carpeted. As they passed from one luxuriously furnished room to another Brown pictured the downfall of the guilty manager when his secret should be disclosed to Diamond.

Handsome library, luxurious smoking room, billiard room and then the murmur of voices from an adjoining room brought the five to a standstill before a closed door.

Then with one movement the five pushed into a small, lighted study, where sat Robinson, the manager, in intimate conversation with—John Diamond himself!

The millionaire sprang to his feet and stared angrily at the invaders.

"What does this mean?" he demanded.

The detective, Allen, was quite unwilling to share the honor alone. He grasped George Brown by his coat collar and pushed him to the front. In picturesque words he explained the situation.

"And this young pinhead"—he ended in a gasp of rage as he shook George Brown as a terrier shakes a rat.

Mr. Diamond was smiling austerely.

"Gentlemen," he said at last, "this private suit of rooms is the only refuge of a man weary of the noise and clatter of the world and the hollow thing called 'society.' Here I can hide for weeks at a time, absorbed in my books and in my experimental work in the laboratory yonder. Now that you have spied me out I can no longer remain unless I have your word of honor that my secret shall remain unpublished."

Freely they gave the promise, all save George Brown, who was too crushed for utterance. He merely nodded his head in a broken hearted way and was glad that he knew of another job that he might have for the asking, a job where there was so much work to be done that there was no time for the development of the detective instinct.

But the reporter of the Daily Dishup yielded to temptation one day and published the whole story, and to the end of it he appended the announcement of the engagement of Miss Helen Diamond to Henry Robinson, general manager of the Diamond interests.

And George Brown, sticking manfully to his new job, smiled bitterly when he read the announcement and took to his breast the one crumb of consolation it afforded him.

He had been right in his argument that a millionaire's daughter sometimes marries her father's general manager.

The Way to Clean Matting.

A broom is not good for matting, and neither is the frequent use of a wet cloth. The carpet sweeper, used across the grain, is better, but the vacuum cleaner is best of all. The hearth brush is a life preserver to matting, and a labor saver to the housekeeper.

It raises little dust, keeps the matting and the corners in proper conditions and does not roughen or injure the matting's surface. This brush may be washed without injury if quickly dried.

Care of Gold Jewelry.

Gold jewelry that is dulled may be brightened by dipping it into a solution of warm soapsuds containing one part of ammonia to three parts of water. Rinse well and polish with a clean chamois rag.

Dull gold may be cleaned by rubbing it gently with a soft brush moistened in bicarbonate of soda and water to which a few drops of ammonia have been added. Rinse thoroughly and dry in pure, warm sawdust.

For Walking on Water.

A shoe factory of a novel kind has been working near Berlin for some time past. The "shoes" made will not run much risk of being worn out on pavements or country roads, for they are solely intended for the purpose of walking on water. That these "hydroshoes" are of a certain practical value is shown by the fact that the Prussian minister of war has placed an order with the enterprising firm. Tests are to be made by a number of soldiers of the engineer regiments.

Had Them Breathless For a Moment.

A regular customer at a certain restaurant was a confirmed nontipper. Not only so, but he loudly advised his friends not to tip. At last, says The Manchester Guardian, the waitresses resolved to give him a lesson. One brought him his change before his friends. It was 1s. 5d., all in coppers, neatly spread on a tray. The mean man looked at it, and his friends thought that this time he would have to give something.

"There's a penny," said the nontipper. For a moment it was thought that he had swerved from his principles, but he added, "Now young woman, take all that away and get me a shilling and a sixpence."

A SLEEPY HOLLOW LANDMARK.

Passing of Treaty Tree Under Which Washington Irving Wrote.

Washington Irving's great treaty tree at Sleepy Hollow, in the Philipse Manor section, lost its last three leaves recently. Tourists and visitors have noted with much concern for over a year that it was dying. It is twenty feet in circumference at its base. It had bravely withstood the disease that has destroyed most of the chestnut trees throughout the east, and it is probably the last to die in the Sleepy Hollow and Tarrytown sections.

This monarch of the forest is known in history as the tree under which the last treaty was made between the whites and Wequasqueek Indians. Under its romantic shade also Irving wrote his famous "The Headless Horseman," with scenes laid at Philipse Manor.

Although the treaty tree is practically dead, it will not be felled and destroyed like hundreds of its fellows there. It is to be preserved, and long trailing flowering vines have been planted about its base to cover it completely in the future. It stands almost in the center of the Philipse Manor property, close to the Hudson river, in full view from Broadway or the old Albany post road.—Tarrytown News.

BLACKLISTKR GOT THE SHORT END AGAIN

Appears in Court With Discolored Optics and Pays $10

HE "HE MET A FRIEND'

With a pair of beautifully decorated optics, Joseph Findley, a blacklister, appeared in court this morning on the charge of being drunk while on the prohibited list. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10 to be paid in ten days.

Questioned as to where he got his liquor, Findley told of how he met a man by the name of Jack Moher, who treated him to a drink out of his bottle. Then he gave Moher a dollar to get a bottle. Moher got the bottle and they drank it.

"Was it a dollar bottle?" enquired the Chief.

"I think it was by the taste of it," replied the witness. "It made a good drink any way."

Asked by the Chief, how much money he had, Findley said that he had a one dollar bill and three fives, and that he gave the one dollar bill to Moher for the purchase of the bottle. He could not understand how it was that he had only thirty cents on being searched at the Police Station.

Magistrate Dumble—How did you you get those eyes?

"I don't remember anything," was the answer.

A phone call to the Police Station late on Saturday night resulted in the man's arrest at the residence of a man named Doig.

"UNDER THE WEATHER."

Robert Lavoy, the man who was arrested on Saturday in the Woolworth Store, appeared before His Worship on the charge of being drunk and disorderly. He pleaded guilty and was fined $5.75 Lavoy while in the store pocketed some articles but owing to his condition at the time only one charge was preferred.

OLD HOMESTEAD IS FIRE SWEPI

Mr. Strickland's House in Lakefield is Destroyed

R.C. Strickland's property—a big stone house, one of the oldest in the village—was destroyed by fire Saturday mornihng. It waas not tennanted but there was furniture and other goods in the house, belonging to Mr. Strickland. A large barn on the opposite side of the road, belonging to Mr. Ed Watley, caught fire, but this fire was extinguished

The fire was first noticed by Mr. John Botterill, who lives near by, and he woke up the neighbors and they released the cattle from the barn in case the fire should spread.

The Lakefield fire brigade was in attendance, but were hampered owing to the lack of water, the wells being dry. They carried water from a field and succeeded in abating the fire in the barn, but the house was gutted and only two walls remain standing. It is said to be insured.

ANOTHER FIRE

Mr. W. Down, of Lakefield, noticed a bright reflection in the sky in Smith Township, and it was discovered to-day that a small dwelling house was burnt down opposite Mr. Harry Bickell's property, about six miles from Peterboro.

"Our idea of cleverness is being able always to pick the windward side of the ash-can when we dump it."

SEIZURE OF SKINS

Quite a large number of skins which were brought to the city, have been conficated by Inspector Watt, it being charged that the skins were taken from animals killed in the close season.

URGES MILK STRIKE.

Mayor of Hamilton Calls For a Four-Day Boycott.

HAMILTON, Nov. 3.—That Mayor Allan is firm in his desire to conduct a crusade against the high cost of living in this city, was evident Saturday when he issued the following request:

"I strongly advise and request every citizen of Hamilton who is in good health and who desires to get milk at a reasonable price, to refrain for the next four days or a week from taking milk from the retail dealers of this city. I also advise these citizens to try condensed milk. It will not be a very great hardship, and I am convinced that it will have very great results."

His worship regards the situation as critical and he is taking every possible course open to him to force the retailers to abandon their high price for milk.

Three Killed in Auto Crash.

BAY CITY, Mich., Nov. 3.—Three men are dead as the result of an automobile accident during the late hours of the Hallowe'en celebration here early yesterday. The machine, carrying three women and five men, was wrecked when the driver lost control of his steering wheel. Marvin Luke and George Jones both of Detroit, were thrown beneath the car and instantly killed, and Alexander Turpin of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., lived but a short time after the accident.

Record Grain Shipment.

PORT ARTHUR, Nov. 3.—From Port Arthur elevators Saturday there was shipped 949,431 bushels of grain, a new record for a day's shipment. During the month of October 11,000 cars have been unloaded in Port Arthur, compared with 800 cars for the same month last year and 12,500,000 bushels came into the city during October, compared with 3,500,000 bushels for the corresponding month last year, which establishes another new record.

Greece Inciting Albanians.

ATHENS, Nov. 3.—Italy and Austria have presented a collective note to Greece, complaining that the delimitation of Albania by the international commission is being hampered by the attitude of the population under Greek incitement. Greece is informed that both Italy and Austria have instructed their representatives on the commission to regard as Albanian all villages where opposition is encountered.

Can Prove an Alibi.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—R. T. Richardson, a prominent dairyman, residing at Woodroffe, near this city, has been served with a summons to appear in Toronto police court to-day on the charge of driving an automobile on the wrong side of Dundas street, Toronto, on Oct. 25. As a matter of fact, however, he has not been in Toronto since Exhibition week. This is the third case of Ottawa people being erroneously summoned to appear in the Toronto courts for similar bylaw infractions. Richardson has turned the summons over to the local authorities and says he will not appear.

Public Ownership of Drugs.

CALGARY, Nov. 3.—The city council will consider establishing a drug dispensary where pure drugs will be supplied citizens and doctors' prescriptions filled at cost.

CANADA CHRISTIANIZED DECADENCE OF THE HOME

Dr. Murdoch MacKenzie at St. Pauls — Strong Sermon on Canadian Life and Foreign Missions

Dr Murdock MacKenzie, the Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Canada, preached on Sunday morning at St. Paul's Church to a large congregation. The service was opened by the Rev Dr. Marsh of Springville, who introduced Dr. MacKenzie as one of the patriarchs of missionary enterprize.

Dr MacKenzie has spent many years of his life in China as a missionary and is full of enthusiasm for work in the foreign field.

He took for his text the words: "The work is great; it is not for men but for the Lord our God." He said that though the Jewish nation to whom this was spoken, is scattered and the temple has perished these principles remain, and these words are a message to Canada to-day. He had moved all over Canada, east and west, and had realized the vast resources of the country. But we had not only resources of material wealth but traditions of a noble ancestry, handed down to us Our fathers and mothers had fought and toiled for the heritage that we enjoy.

"Nations," said the preacher, "are made great, not by territory, gold, or rich harvests, but by purity and uprightness." China was larger than Greece or Palestine, but Greece supplied the world with wisdom and art, and Palestine gave us one Man who changed the history of the world."

HOME LIFE

Dr MacKenzie spoke of the decadence of home-life in Canada and compared the present state of the home with that which is described by Burns in the "Cottar's Saturday Night" When the father was head of his household and created a religious atmosphere in the home by the leading in family prayers and the reading of Scripture.

"From scenes like these old Scotia's grandeur springs."

"Young Canada's grandeur must spring from the home. Woe betide the Canadian Dominion when there is no piety in the home."

Dr. MacKenzie is a typical old Scotchman, with all the intense fervor of his ancestors. He drove home his arguments with earnest eloquence. "This is a rushing age," you say, you have no time for these things—the family altar is needed all the more. Blessed is that people whose God is the Lord."

FOUNDATIONS

The doctor kept repeating his text "The work is great" Canada is laying its national foundation They are preparing for a high building in Toronto and they are digging out the foundation. Canada must get down to the base of things if she is to build high in the air."

He spoke of the work in the West. British Columbia in particular, and said the work was great out there. It was a land of wonderful opportunity. But he was sorry to say that there were vices taking root which needed immediate attention.

TRAP DOORS TO HELL

"Some of the men who are opening the trap-doors to hell in British Columbia, were once church members in Ontario."

He had heard of a definition of a Canadian as "a man who smokes, swears, drinks and gets paid for his vote at election time."

"We do not believe in an Americized Canada, or a Scotch, Irish or Anglicanized Canada; Canada must be Canadianized, but she must be Christianized or she will go the way of Rome and all the nations who forget God."

The doctor spoke at length on the work in China and urged the claims of foreign missions. We owe our Christianity to the work of the missionary and we ought to hand it on to others.

"The work is great Ours is a great God. He has given the world a Great Saviour."

ADDRESS FROM ST. PETER'S T.A.S. TO BISHOP O'BRIEN

His Lordship Visits The Society at Sunday Afternoon Meeting

The regular meeting of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society, was held yesterday. Several new members were initiated. The appended address was presented to his Lordship Bishop O'Brien on the occasion of his first visit to the headquarters of the Society, since his elevation to the Bishopric. His Lordship replied in a few well chosen words, in which he expressed his hearty appreciation, of the kind welcome afforded him, and assured the members if his continued interest in the work of the Society. The address was as follows:

To Rt. Rev M. J. O'Brien, D. D.,
Bishop of Peterborough:

My Lord,—In the name of St. Peter's T.A.S. we offer you a hearty welcome on this, your first visit since your elevation to the position of Chief Pastor for the Diocese of Peterborough. It is indeed a great pleasure to have a visit from a Bishop, but when that person is one who for ten years was our Spiritual Director and one who has done so much for the cause we represent, we assure you that it is a double pleasure to welcome you this afternoon. We, as members of St. Peter's T.A.S. appreciate a visit from a distinguished official of the State, but when our visitor (as on this occasion) is not only a dignity of the Church, but the Rt. Rev M. J. O'Brien, words fail us to express the welcome fitting the occasion. However, my lord, in an humble way we tender to you the freedom of our quarters.

We assure your Lordship how delighted we were to learn that one so near and dear to us was chosen by the Holy Father for the position of Chief Pastor for the Diocese of Peterborough, and we take pride in the fact that the choice was not only a member of our Society but our former spiritual director.

We were pleased to learn from your inaugural address that total abstinence would be one of the planks of your platform, the virtue that means so much for our spiritual and temporal welfare. We will always have the parting of the ways—one the way of temperance and good Christian manhood, the other intemperance and the terrible consequences which follow; and we like to look into the future as we can look into the past and see one so noble and so able as the Rt. Rev M. J. O'Brien standing, as it were, at this parting, directing all to take the path of total abstinence.

We offer through your Lordship, our loyalty to the Church and pray God to give you a long and happy life as Bishop of Peterborough.

LOUIS RILEY,
President.
HAROLD LEBARR,
Secretary.

Mr. C Butler favored the meeting with an excellent address on "Irish Literature," while Mr. Albert New rendered a solo entitled the "Holy City," with Mr. Jack Armstrong as accompanist.

Loss of Musical Memory.

One of the most notable cases of sudden loss of musical memory related is that of Emile Prudent. One day in a concert while playing his own concerto with orchestra he lost all consciousness of the connection between the notes, and from that time he had music only as confused sounds. Neither from his own playing nor from that of the orchestra could he gain a distinct idea and found that he had completely lost the ability to read the notes. From this attack, however, he soon recovered. The gravest symptoms disappeared the next day, but from that time he could play only from notes.

Pity the Editor.

"What's the matter?" inquired the foreman as he entered the sanctum for copy, and noted the editor's swollen forehead, puffed red eye, and tattered, dusty coat. "Did you fall downstairs?"

"No—only that," replied the editor, pointing with his finger to a paragraph in the paper before him. "It's in our account of the Crapley-Smith wedding. It ought to read: Miss Smith's dimpled, shining face formed a pleasing contrast to Mr. Crapley's strong, bold physiognomy.' But see how it was printed."

And the foreman read: "Miss Smith's pimpled, skinny face formed a pleasing contrast to Mr. Crapley's strange, bald physiognomy."

"Crapley was just in here," continued the editor, throwing one blood-streaked handkerchief into the wastepaper basket, and feeling in his picket for a clean one, "and he—but just send that proofreader man here! There's fight left in me yet!"

NOT DECIDED ABOUT LOCATION OF TELESCOPE

Question Will be Decided on Scientific Grounds

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.— The question of the location of the big telescope being built for Canada is still under consideration, and the question will be decided entirely on scientific grounds. Wherever the telescope will prove of the best service to scientists, there it will be placed. This was stated to-day by a government official.

This question was brought to the front by a definite statement made by Dr. W. K. King in a lecture on the work of the Dominion observatory, in the course of which he explained that the telescope may go out west.

This is the telescope that the Royal Astronomical Society, Peterboro centre would like to see located in or near Peterboro.

FABRICS THE THING.

Gorgeous Coloring In Materials Never So Pronounced.

COSTUME OF OLD ROSE PEAU DE PECHE.

The chic of the new frocks lies in the fabrics this season. It is the beauty of the coloring and the novelty of the weave in the material that distinguish the best looking costumes, not the line nor the design. The result is a vast amount of materials richer in tone and more original in design than anything that has bewildered the eyes of women in the past.

Of all the silk materials duvetyn (a combination of silk and wool) is at the present moment the most popular. It is claimed that duvetyn is not practical because the silk face causes it to wrinkle easily. For this reason some of the exclusive importers are advising peau de peche, a fine interpretation of velours de laine and in all wool material. It has a high luster, which makes it quite as dressy as duvetyn and, being wool, it is said not to wrinkle and show the signs of wear quickly.

The very delectable costume seen in the illustration is of peau de peche in a lovely shade of old rose, having the new full tunic skirt effect over a tight skirt of velvet. An oriental embroidered brocade vest crosses in the front of the coat and ends in a broad folded girdle across the back.

School Shoes and Boots.

If the girl who is to spend three or four months at a school so far from home that she cannot economically visit it at stated short intervals is not provided with several extra pairs of shoes and boots she cannot be thoroughly comfortable in so far as her feet are concerned. And the comfort of the feet always reacts upon the mental condition. For wear in the house and in the classrooms there should be three pair of lightweight oxfords, in order that the same ones need not be worn two days in succession, even while one pair is being repaired

While exercising in the open air during cold weather the boarding school girl should wear quite high topped waterproof boots with heavy soles rather than lightweight shoes under rubbers, as the latter are apt to heat the feet and make them tender if worn for several hours at a time. But as heavy soles take a long time to dry there must necessarily be two or more pairs of such boots always on hand.

The girl who attends the average moderately priced boarding school can get along comfortably with two pair of evening slippers or low cut shoes—one pair in bronze or black kid and the other in white glace or suede. Satin in any shade is much too dressy looking to go with the sort of evening frock that sensible girls pack into their boarding school trunks.

To clean a net waist, put it into a two-quart fruit jar filled with gasoline. Be sure that it is well screwed on. Let it stand over night. In the morning shake the can back and forth. The motion will clean the dirt out of the waist.

DELIBERATE AND EARNEST ARRANGEMENTS THE ONLY SAFETY

LESSON FROM THE FIVE FOOLISH VIRGINS

A bright and helpful service was provided last evening at Murray street Baptist Church, for a large congregation which included many young people.

The subject dealt with by the pastor, Rev. J. R. Webb was "Behind Closed Doors." His text was from Matthew 25: 10, 11, which tells of the door being closed to the five virgins, who neglected to replenish their lamps with oil.

The preacher brought out many points as he sought to impress upon the young people the necessity of making deliberate and earnest arrangements for the final call. That, he pointed out, was the only safety.

If the love of God could reach a soul in the next world, God would do it, but the preacher did not believe that Christ would have suffered as he did on Calvary, if there was any other way that man might be saved.

The music included a solo "Over the Line" which was given in good voice by Mr. Asa Huycke. Miss Clara Kidd took the solo in the anthem

THE MISSIONARY CONVENTION HERE

Was Referred to by Canon Davidson at St. John's

All Saints' Day was observed at St. John's Church yesterday with special services. Canon Davidson, assisted by Rev. Mr. Soward, conducted the services, which took the form of special reference to the day in question and remembrance of former members of the church who have passed away during the year, or have removed from the city. The day also marked the 25th anniversary of the re-opening of the church.

At the evening service Canon Davidson made special mention to the missionary convention which will be held shortly, and urged for large contributions.

Rev. W. E. Fitzgerald will preach next Sunday.

PROPERTY CHANGES AT BOBCAYGEON

BOBCAYGEON, Nov. 3— Property has been changing hands of late. Mr. Green, C.P.R. agent, having purchased the W. J. Read property on the corner of Sherwood and King streets, has sold his former residence to Mr. J. J. Bardeau, barber, whose premises were recently destroyed by fire. Mr. George Humphries too has sold his residence on the island next the Forest House bridge, to Mrs. McIntyre, of Stonyhurst. Mr. Humphries is at present in St Catharines, and his family will join him later. Mr. Albert Earle has sold out his blacksmith business to R. R. J. Henderson, and Mrs. Robert Patterson has disposed of her property on Duke street, to Mr. Thos. Purdy. Mr. E. J. Broad purchased the Jackson-Reid property, owned by Robert L. Wright, and moved in, while John Fick, of North Verulam is the purchaser of the Cain property on King street, lately vacated bby Mr. Broad.

OXEN AS POLICEMEN.

Curious Methods of Caring For Spanish Fighting Bulls.

Whatever one's views may be in regard to bull fighting there is one feature of the national sport of Spain which is particularly interesting to the visitor and sightseer. The bulls for the arena are usually kept in large paddocks, wild and unfettered, for, as Sir Albert Rollit, who has visited one of these paddocks near Seville, says, "The animals know nothing of ropes or chains during lifetime."

It is a dangerous business, however, entering these paddocks. Sir Albert stood some fifty paces from the bulls and in his interesting letter describing the scene, published in Country Life, says, "We entered with our lives in our hands."

The bulls, however, are kept in order by a cordon of tame oxen, which, if a bull attempts to escape, at once prevents it doing so, acting skillfully and effectively as a species of bovine police. "The night before the spectacle in the bull ring at Seville," to quote Sir Albert, "the bulls are driven, still quite at large, by picadors along the boulevards, intermixed with the oxen and restrained only by them. On my asking if there must not be danger to the public using the boulevard, the reply was that occasionally a bull might hide in the bushes of the central gardens and fall foul of a workman in the morning, but such incidents did not seem to be regarded as matters of much importance compared with the popularity of the national amusement. At times many of the aristocracy and others of both sexes ride on horseback in advance of the bulls, which is regarded as fine, but rather dangerous sport.

"When at or near midnight the bulls thus enter the bull ring, the scene is one of great turmoil, noise and excitement. In rush the driven animals, bulls and oxen, helter skelter, a motley crowd of men and beasts, a veritable pandemonium. The last scene is most interesting of all. Stables with open doors encompass the arena, in front of each of which is a sliding door and at the back a lighted lantern. These lanterns the bull makes for one after another, smashing them and extinguishing the lights, and as each light is observed by an attendant to be put out, he slips down the door of the stable and the bull is thus encaged and ready for the Spanish holiday of the morrow. Successively the lights disappear, and when all are out and the doors of the stables closed the police oxen are driven out of the bull ring to return to their more peaceful paddocks and to render similar service to other bulls and other devotees of the bull ring."

"Some men refuse to be pessimists because that is so easy."

TREASURY RELICS

Historical Treasures on File In the Auditor's Office.

ACCOUNTS OF G. WASHINGTON.

These Cover a Period of Eight Years and Are In the Handwriting of the Great Patriot—Receipts Signed by Daniel Webster and Henry Clay.

The archives of the United States treasury are rich with relics. In the files of the office of the auditor of the treasury department may be seen the canceled check showing the payment to Lafayette in 1824 of $200,000 by the United States "in consideration of his services and sacrifices in the war of the Revolution." William H. Crawford, then secretary of the treasury, signed the warrant, and in the characteristic French handwriting on the reverse is the indorsement of Lafayette. A canceled check or warrant for $15,000,000 represents the payment for the Louisiana purchase under the treaty of 1803.

The purchase under the treaty, characterized at the time as "Seward's folly," of Alaska is evidenced by a warrant for $7,200,000, signed by F. E. Spinner, who at the time was secretary of the treasury. The wording of the warrant begins and runs, "Pay to the undersigned envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of his majesty the emperor of all the Russias." This warrant called for payment in coin and was so paid through the Riggs bank, then a private banking institution of Washington, after being indorsed by Edward de Stoecke the Russian minister at that time.

The purchase of the Philippine Islands from Spain is represented in the important financial transactions of the government by four warrants of $5,000,000 each. As a treaty cannot be entered into by one country directly with one with which it is at war, the warrants were indorsed by Jules Cambon, the French minister, who had delegated authority to represent the Spanish government.

The Panama canal purchase represented the largest financial transaction of the government. The payment was made by a common draft, payable to "J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., special disbursing agent," through whom it was paid to the French company, the former owner. The late J. Pierpont Morgan himself indorsed the draft. A short time previous there had been issued a warrant for $10,000,000, covering the cost of the canal zone, an area of ten miles on each side of the canal. As these canceled checks are held as receipts, it could happen, in case of their loss, that the government might not be able to show that the moneys were actually paid.

Not less interesting as relics are "Accounts—G. Washington with the United States, commencing June, 1775, and ending June, 1783, comprehending a space of eight years." Under the caption are three or four dilapidated calf bound account books in the handwriting of the great American patriot. These accounts were mostly kept while he was on the march, but they were brought up with great accuracy from day to day.

At the end of each book there is a comprehensive recapitulation. Individuals, money and funds of the government expended by him are specifically indicated. In a footnote he calls attention to a particular item which he appeared to have paid, but for which he had no voucher. He deducted the amount of the item from his credit until the matter could be definitely settled. All of his accounts are expressed in English money.

A contemporaneous account book kept by Caleb Gibbs shows the personal expenses of Washington and his military "family," meaning, no doubt, his immediate staff. The entries are usually headed, "Headquarters, on the march." For the most part they cover purchases of food supplies, but now and then are such entries as:

"To cash for a broom that Peter bought some time ago, sixpence."

"Cash paid for mending the chariot, 1 shilling."

"Agreed with Peggy for 4 shillings per month for the general's washing and 4 shillings per dozen for the gentlemen of the family."

Among other things of interest in the auditor's office are books showing allowances to members of congress to and from Washington. In the Thirteenth congress $983 for mileage is receipted in a faint, uncertain hand "D. Webster." A payment of $580 for 111 days' attendance is shown to have been made to Henry Clay.—Harper's Weekly.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

The Feet.

Pumice stone used frequently keeps the skin of the feet smooth. It is especially necessary on the heel and on the ball of the foot, where the weight of the body rests in walking.

Never cut the toe nails too short, as they are more likely to become ingrown. And file them smooth with sandpaper, so they will not catch and pull the threads of your stockings.

SCRAMBLE FOR A SUPPER.

Dainty Methods of French Solons When Free Meals Are Served.

Describing the supper arrangements made for French legislators during late sittings in the Palais Bourbon, the Paris Liberte says:

"At the appointed time the marble tables in the restaurant are covered with plates of larded veal, saveloys, cold ham, salad containing little cubes of Gruyere cheese and baskets of bread. As soon as the chamber gets wind of these preparations a general exodus takes place, and the member addressing the house is left to address his successor, the president, the ushers, reporters and other melancholy officials.

"It is not exactly a stately banquet that the legislators sit down to. There are no knives, no forks and in the place of plates just a few saucers. The members first fling themselves upon the bread baskets and pick the nicest looking pieces; then, making free use of their elbows toward the veal, the saveloys or the ham, seize a slice in their fingers, put it on the bread, keep it there with the thumb, while they squeeze their way out of the press and devour their spoil.

"Such manners take us back to far off prehistoric days, when our ancestors ate on the floor of their caverns. But it is just this return to the simplicity of nature that exercises such a healing effect on party animosity. The legislator who has, by a series of subtle maneuvers, secured a bottle of wine shares it with his thirsty neighbors.

"It has been noticed that the deputies from rural districts usually carry a pocketknife, which they lend to their town colleagues. This, too, makes for harmony and the healing up of strife."

ADVERTISING

A STORE'S importance is rightly judged by its advertising. Not altogether by the size of the advertisement, but by size and tone, and quality of announcement.

What the store has to say is one thing. Quite as important is how it says it.

Given that the clerical force is competent and up-to-date, it will say, over the counter, the very best to be said in reference to the goods enquired for. It may, and should, suggest other goods, not in the customers view.

This implies that the customer is in the store. But what brings him or her there? The wish to buy and the belief it is a good place to buy at.

How is this learned of?

By advertising. The advertisement is a message, an intelligent middleman, doing service between seller and buyer. The space talks to thousands, even while the store is closed for the night.

Use The REVIEW and tell the story of your store and its opportunities for good service.

Trapping a Horse Thief

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

A posse consisting of a sheriff and three men were climbing a canyon in Colorado. The canyon came to an end a few hundred yards above them in a pocket, from which there appeared to be no egress, the sides being perpendicular.

Suddenly the men came to a little cabin perched on a ledge overhanging the boiling mountain stream zigzagging down the canyon. A woman, a slatternly, ill favored creature with tousled hair, was standing beside a board supported by stakes driven into the ground just outside the door washing dishes.

"Is this Jaycox's cabin?" asked the sheriff.

"Yes. What dy'e want with him?"

"We're prospectors and have heard that he has struck paying dirt in a hole hereabout. We wouldn't mind putting up some cash to work it if it looks well."

"Better have nothin' to do with Bill Jaycox. He'd get yer money, and you wouldn't get anything."

The sheriff pricked up his ears at this, wondering if the woman could be used to help him land a man wanted for horse stealing.

"Oh, that's the kind of a man he is, is it?"

"There hain't no meaner galoot than Bill Jaycox on this side of the divide. He's treated me brutal ever since I come yere to live with him. As soon as I gits these dishes washed I'm goin to dig out and leave him to git on alone. There's nothin' mean about me I'll leave things to rights."

"What's he been doin' to you?"

"Look a-here," said the woman, pulling up the sleeves of her dress and showing on her arm a recent bruise, then pulling her dress down over her shoulder and showing another bruise on her back. "What d'ye think of that?"

Up to this moment the sheriff feared that the woman was playing a part with a view to aiding Jaycox to get away from them, but this evidence that the man and the woman were not living happily together convinced him that he had found her at an opportune moment to make her useful. Doubtless she wished to be revenged for the brutal treatment she had received, and an appeal to her cupidity as well would help the matter. The relationship between Jaycox and the woman was a common one among certain rough persons who inhabited the mountains at that day. A woman, usually of very low grade, would take up with a desperado, live with him as long as she could stand his cruelty, then leave him.

"Do you want to make some money?" asked the sheriff, pulling a handful of glittering gold pieces from his pocket and exhibiting them temptingly. He was watching the woman's eye and saw covetousness in it. If you'll turn Jaycox over to us I'll give you ten of these; they're $5 each."

"I'm powerful bad off for money," replied the woman thoughtfully. "I dunno where I'm goin' to get a bite to eat when I leave yere, and there's nothin' to take with me. I suppose you wouldn't pay before you git Jaycox, would ye?"

"No. I wouldn't like to do that, but if you agree I'll give you one of 'em to bind the bargain."

The woman held a yellow dish in her hands, wiping it and thinking. "Ef he hadn't said what he did to me before he went away I wouldn't do it."

"Where is he?"

"Up there," motioning in the direction of the pocket.

"Is there any outlet?"

"One. Only he and me knows it."

"Suppose you go to him, pretend to make up your quarrel with him and bring him back. We'll hide and take him in."

"I don't know as I kin find him."

"Oh, yes, you can. Just as soon as we git him I'll give you the rest of the money."

The mention of the gold appeared to decide the woman.

"He may be up the canyon, and he may have gone down. I'll go up, and if I don't find him I'll go down. Anyway, I'll git him for you."

Putting the dishes in the cabin, she started off. Most of the time she was hidden from their view, but at times they could see her climbing over a rock. Half an hour passed and she did not return. From the cabin they could see any one who moved out of the canyon, and one of the party was deputed to watch. Presently they saw the woman passing down. They hailed her, but instead of replying she simply waved her hand to them and passed on.

An hour passed, and the sheriff, becoming impatient, started with his men up the canyon. There was no egress. When they had gone as far as possible they saw their quarry sitting on a stone smoking a cob pipe. They called on him to surrender, which he did.

"By thunder," exclaimed one of the men who had approached the horse thief with a pair of handcuffs, "it's the woman!"

And so it was. She had exchanged clothes with Jaycox, and it was he who had passed down the canyon.

"Do you think, sheriff," asked one of the men, "that it was a put up job on us from the first?"

"No; I don't think that. What I think is—well, you never can tell just what a woman is going to do. She doesn't always know herself."

The Suffragist's Dilemma.

I shall not vote for Mrs. Briggs.
  I do not like her gown.
And I remember well the digs
  I got from Clara Brown.
Jemima Patterson Magee
  Shall get no vote of mine.
A horrid, stuck up thing is she.
  And also I decline
To vote for Anastasia Bunce.
  I fairly boil with rage
When I recall that more than once
  She lied about my age.
And Mabel Jones and Agnes Carr
  And Clementina Ball
I'll scratch because they never are
  At home the days I call.
I cannot vote, you understand,
  For Angelina Pratt,
Because she isn't stylish, and
  She wears a last year's hat.

Oh, goodness me! That brings me through
  The list. This ballot's small.
There's no one left. What shall I do?
  I cannot vote at all!

It Sounded Like Thunder

By F. A. MITCHEL

I met Lillie Longman and was introduced to her at a barn dance. I fell head over heels in love with her at once. There was some attempt at fancy costume among the girls, and Lillie was dressed like an Indian girl, her long black hair hanging below her waist. I knew scarcely any one there and stood watching a set of dancers who were doing a quadrille or some other of those old fashioned square dances. Lillie was bobbing about, feeling happy in the consciousness of looking very pretty and showing her long locks, and all the while she was firing quick shots at me with her black eyes.

After the dance I hunted for some one to introduce me to Lillie and was successful. The girl had known I was watching her in the dance, and every one of her antics was for me. I wasn't a dancing man and persuaded her to sit out a dance with me. Then a nice looking, dapper young fellow took her for another dance, and I looked on again. This time her antics were for me all the same, but they were of another kind. She flashed her eyes alternately at me and into those of the fellow she danced with. I was too stupid to see through this feminine device then, and it had its effect. Quite likely it would have worked just as well with me if I had seen through it. When a girl wishes to attract and a fellow wishes to be attracted it's the easiest job in the world.

It wasn't long before I was going to see Lillie. She was an orphan and lived with her grandmother, an old lady deaf as a trolley car conductor whose car is jammed full of strap hangers. She was half blind too. But she must have heard by contact with substances if she didn't hear through the air, and, as for seeing, the darker it was the better chance she had of distinguishing objects. She was like other deaf and blind persons in that respect. She couldn't see or hear what she should see and hear, but had remarkable facilities for detecting what was most inconvenient for others for her to know.

About the time I made Lillie's acquaintance her grandmother was taken with her last illness. Lillie loved the old lady, and her approaching demise was an affliction to the niece. As for me, I was but twenty-one years old and had years before me in which to do courting, but so impatient was I that I grudged the old lady what little time she needed from Lillie. I feared I would be too old for matrimony before the invalid got into her grave and ceased to require attention.

Now that I look back on this period I can see that I was very unreasonable. I would go to the house and wait a whole evening for Lillie while she remained upstairs with her grandmother, hoping every minute that she could come downstairs for a brief sitting with me. One evening when I had waited a couple of hours in this way I concluded, considering that the old woman was blind and deaf and her imperfect senses must be further deadened by illness, to go upstairs to the sickroom, steal in and see if I couldn't get a word with Lillie.

I tiptoed up the staircase and to the door of the room, which fortunately I found ajar. Lillie was sitting in a chair where she could see me. She came to the door, and I told her that if she couldn't come to me I was bound to go to her. She went back into the room, turned the light very low and beckoned me to enter. There was a sofa placed where the invalid could not very well see it. I stole toward it, and Lillie and I sat down side by side with our arms around each other.

We whispered more love than today, at fifty, I could talk in a year, and to be heard by each other we scarcely needed to whisper, for when I spoke my lips touched her coral ear, and when she spoke her lips were a millionth of an inch from mine.

"Who's there?" came from the invalid.

Lillie arose, went to the bed and asked her grandmother if she wanted anything. She replied that she thought she heard whispering. Lillie told her that she must be mistaken, put her hand on the sick woman's head to soothe her and told her she had better try to get a little sleep.

Whether grandma was satisfied with this or not she said no more, and Lillie, after coddling her awhile, came back to me. I had been wishing I could burst the remains of the drum of the old lady's ear with a ramrod, but when Lillie came back I felt better. However, we didn't think it prudent to do any more whispering and refrained. I took a pencil from my pocket and some old letters and wrote what I had to say—very short sentences, in every one of which the word "love" figured conspicuously.

Men, instead of choosing, as is supposed, appropriate opportunities for proposals, are quite likely to choose the most unfitting. I was unable to even whisper without being heard by a deaf and dying old woman, and yet I must needs choose the moment to make a declaration (on paper) and ask Lillie to be my wife. She accepted me (on paper), and I sealed our engagement with a kiss which was unintentionally a smack.

"Lillie!" came from the sickbed.

"What, grandma, dear?"

"Is it raining?"

"No, grandma."

"Oh, I thought I heard something that sounded like thunder."

A Knowing Parrot.

"What a fine parrot you have!" said Harold to the young woman on whom he was calling. "How is he on imitating?"

"Great!" said the hostess. "He can imitate almost anything."

"Over at Smith's," continued Harold, "they have a bird that can imitate a kiss to perfection. Can your bird do that?"

"No, indeed," answered Mabel indignantly. "Parrots can only imitate, and it is not likely that our bird would repeat a sound it is not accustomed to hear."

Then Polly spoke.

"Don't, Will; don't, dear," it said. "Wait until I take this wretched bird out of the room."

P.C.I. SENIORS HAD EASY WIN FROM LAKEFIELD TEAM

Locals Were Always Leading---Final Count Was 27-5

Despite the fact that a wind or rather a gale blew across Nicholls Oval on Saturday afternoon the Rugby played between Lakefield and the Peterborough Collegiate Institute was one of the best of the season. The handful of fans who shivered and smoked for the hour were well rewarded for the game was filled with clever and brilliant plays. Two games were scheduled; one between Grove School and P.C.I. II, and the other between Lakefield and P.C.I. Seniors. The latter game alone materialized for through some misunderstanding the Grove aggregation came in the morning and it was impossible for the players of the P.C.I. II. to be rounded up. When they did turn out in the afternoon the visitors had returned home.

Taken on the whole Lakefield had it on the locals for weight, but they lacked condition and speed, also good judgment. "Grey matter" was a minus quantity on the part of the visitors especially in the last quarter when they were away behind and had the wind in their favor they tried unsuccessful bucks and end runs when punting might have counted something. Bullock, their captain and centre half did some fine bucking, running and kicking and had he used Leahy his left half a little more in the first half, the locals might not have gained such a lead. Leahy's line plunging and end runs were very prominent.

The shining star of the P. C. I. team was Richardson, the flying wing. Time after time his following up and neat tackling held the ball in Lakefield's territory. Captain Rogers contributed several nice runs while Long's kicking and line-plunging was a big feature. The most prominent man on the wing line was Eastwood whose headwork stopped several centre bucks.

The locals got away to a good start and with the wind in their favor soon started piling up a score. At the end of the first quarter they had 11 to Lakefield's nil. Lakefield then tried kicking and netted four points, but Long punted well against the wind and at half time P.C.I. lead was lessened by only one point, the score being 14—4.

In the second half it was all P.C.I. and the visitors made but one point. The final score, P.C.I. 27, Lakefield 5.

The line-ups:

Lakefield—Flying wing, Garvey; Halves, Leahy, Bullock, McDonald; Quarter, Madill; Scrimmage, Lemay, Murdith, Hill; Outside Wings, W. Lemay, Graham; Middle Wings, Austin, Murphy; Inside wings, Sherrin, Stewart.

P. C. I.—Flying Wing, Richardson; Halves, Long, Rogers, Smith; Quarter, Stratton; Scrimmage, Huycke, Horsfield, Cann; Outside Wings, Jobbit, Eastwood; Middle W[illegible] St[illegible]on, Caniff; Inside Wings Knox, McDonald.

RUBE IS VICTIM OF WHITE PLAGUE

Former Star af the Diamond Also Without Funds

HICKMAN, KY., Nov. 3 — Rube Waddell, who spends most of his time in Hickman and on Reelfoot Lake when not playing ball will not be a resident of Hickman this winter and possibly not again, as his health will not permit of this climate now.

After having three spells of pneumonia, Waddell contracted tuberculosis, and will have to pass the winter on the coast of California and possibly the rest of his life. Waddell, known in the baseball world for the last eighteen years, is declared to be without funds.

REGAINING CASTE.

Ordeals Natives of India Will Face to Be Cleansed.

It is astonishing the belief natives in southern India have in their "caste" and what they will do to regain it if lost. A certain day in the year is set aside for the ceremony of regaining "caste."

An inclosure about twenty feet square is fenced off, and in this logs of wood are burnt, the ashes of which are kept red hot by continual fanning.

Those going through the ceremony have to wash themselves in the river about a mile away; then, with strings of flowers hanging round their necks they run to the inclosure. By the time they reach it the red hot ashes have been raked all over the floor and the idol of whatever caste they belong to has been placed on a platform at one end.

In rush the "casteless," barefooted without the slightest hesitation, and dance round and round on the red hot ashes until they drop from exhaustion and are dragged out by their friends. Before going through this painful ceremony of regaining "caste" a man is first supposed to fast for at least three days.—Pearson's Weekly.

Concerning Women.

W. C. Brownell has given two new prizes to Vassar college in memory of his wife, who was a graduate of the class of 1873. One hundred dollars is to be given each year to the senior holding the highest rank in biology and $100 to the senior holding the highest rank in history and economics.

Delegates from the principal industrial countries of Europe will meet Sept. 15 at Berne, by invitation of the Swiss government, to consider the drafting of an international agreement to prohibit the employment of boys and girls below specified ages and to fix a maximum ten hour day for workers within certain ages.

Refinishing Easy.

A chest of drawers or an old cupboard that is in need of refinishing can be restored by the application of a coat or two of mahogany stain after the old paint or varnish has been removed. In place of the wood or brass handles to the drawers substitute the little glass knobs that adorn real pieces of colonial furniture. The glass knobs cost merely a trifle and are easily screwed into place.

GREAT WALL CRUMBLING.

China's Man-Made Marvel Is Nearing End of Long History.

China seems to be wasting away in many directions, particularly financially. Let us hope it is a case of darkness before dawn. Even her Great Wall, one of the wonders of the ancient world, is gradually wasting away. The process of decay, reports Mr. Monroe Woolley, who has observed it, is nevertheless very slow, a testimonial to the thorough methods of the builders and the lasting qualities of the material. The wall was built 249 B.C., during the reign of the Tsin dynasty. Probably there isn't a similar work of this magnitude, as old as the wall, in existence to-day.

China's Great Wall, says Mr. Woolley, is capable of rousing big emotions, from when one stands on a mountain summit and sees the wall crawling here and there at irregular angles like a huge serpent over mountain ranges and penetrating into dizzy valleys as far as the eye can reach, the magnificent work seems wholly beyond the power of human hands.

The wall seems to have no end. It might girdle the earth. The fear the builders had for their enemies must have been intense to bring about all the toil that is wrapped up in this crumbling barrier, which has stood through centuries while nations have come into being and passed away.

The engineers, who superintended the hordes who worked on the wall, must have been remarkable men. In those days they cared little for straight lines; surveying instruments were evolved many hundreds of years later. There were no hungry steam shovels to eat away mountain sides; no hydraulic dredges to fill deep depressions; no colossal machines for automatically mixing mortar; no giant traveling cranes for lifting massive boulders into place. The supposition is that all the work was done with the naked hands, with plain brute strength, and such crude devices as the men of that age could improvise.

The Great Wall extends from the coast along the northern boundary of what was ancient Cathay to the westernmost province. Since the acquisition of Mongolia, the stone barrier stands as a grim relic in the centre of the empire. There are several arms or branches to the wall. One of these runs east and west just north of Pekin, while the main arm to the coast extends some distance still further north from the capital. It extends for hundreds of miles into regions where all sorts of conditions are to be met. It wends its serpentine way across barren deserts, mountains, and lowlands—now and then making a break for rivers crossing its path. One of these is a twin, or double river, for many miles, and it is said that it has changed its course nine times in two thousand five hundred years.

China is notorious for her lack of roadways. Even to this day the remote regions can be reached only on camels or by boats towed up stream for hundreds or thousands of miles by men running along the banks. It is claimed by some that the top of the wall was used as a thoroughfare especially during the construction. At places on the southern side of the wall, graded inclines are built to the summit. These might have been used for driving beasts of burden to the top of the wall for trips up and down the length of the structure, while the work was under way.

The wall is not high. In places an athlete might clear it with a vaulting pole were is not for its unusual thickness. At regular intervals are formidable stone towers. Here no doubt the commanders of the defending legions took their stations when invaders came from the north.

Neighborly Amenities.

"No, we never stay at home Sunday. It's too disagreeable."

"Disagreeable?"

"Yes. Our next door neighbor goes away and leaves his dog locked up in the house and the poor brute barks and whines all day."

"It gets on your nerves, eh?"

"No, it isn't that. But the neighbors expect us to interfere."

"Well, why don't you? Tell your neighbor frankly about his howling dog."

"How can I when we've just got a new phonograph and my eldest daughter is learning to sing?"

Horrible.

"Oh, Henry," she said when she had thrown off her wraps and flung herself into a chair, "I'm so mortified."

"What's the matter, dear?"

"I met Mrs. Biggles at the reception this afternoon and she seemed so nice that I stood there before the crowd for half an hour and talked to her. When we were leaving her chauffeur drove up in an old four cylinder car and after she had taken her seat in it she called out right before everybody that she would expect me to call on her soon."

What Surprised Him.

Dr. Thirdly was a mild, gentle and prosy clergyman. But at one evening service he grew a bit sarcastic.

"I see a great many of you sleeping," said the good doctor mildly. "I do not wonder at this, for your work is hard, and many of you have come a long way. Therefore, I am not surprised to see many of you sleeping soundly, but what does surprise me a little is to see so many sleeping who had such a comfortable sleep at both our morning and our afternoon service."

Her Accomplishment.

She knows a silly smatter of a lot of petty things.
She twitters of the poets, and she really thinks she sings.
She always calls it Paree when she chops a little French.
She owns a bleary poodle, who wins ribbons on the bench.
She's just a fluffy ruffles, and nobody thinks she's bright—
But watch her dance the tango, for she always gets it right.

NEW CONVENIENT TRAIN TO WINNIPEG

Canadian Pacific

The popularity of Canadian Pacific service, and the excellence of that road's equipment, has been so greatly appreciated by the travelling public that it has been found necessary to put into service an entirely new Through Standard Express Train between Toronto and Winnipeg.

Commencing Sunday, October 27th, the "Gate City Express" will leave Toronto at 2.30 p.m., and will run daily thereafter, arriving Winnipeg at 8.00 a.m. second morning. The train will consist of the highest-class modern equipment; Compartment Library Observation Car, Standard Sleeping Cars, Tourist Sleeping Car, Dining Car, First-class Coach and Colonist Car. This will be found the most convenient and best train between Toronto and Winnipeg on account of the daylight departure from Toronto at an hour when the Union Station is not badly congested, and also on account of the early hour of arrival at Winnipeg.

The present "Vancouver Express" will continue to leave Toronto at 10.20 p.m. daily and will consist of the same equipment as the "Gate City Express." This train is the best to take for points west of Winnipeg but for Winnipeg and east the "Gate City Express" is the right train to travel by.

As a Curiosity.

"Mother's compliments," said a youngster recently to a certain butcher who kept a shop in a busy suburban thoroughfare, "and she sent me to show you the big bone brought with the piece of beef this morning."

"Tell your mother next time I kills a bullock without bones in it I'll make her a present of a joint," said the man of meat.

"Mother's compliments," continued the boy, "and she says next time you find a bit of sirloin with a shoulder of mutton bone in it she'd like to buy the whole carcass as a curiosity!"—Exchange.

Approval.

Si Simlin says his wife may be
A little bit inclined
To throw the dishes round too free
When speakin' of her mind,
But Si won't let her manner quaint
Cause him to pine or fret.
He simply says he's glad she ain't
A London suffragette.

When Si his well cooked dinner carves,
Although her smiles are few,
He's glad she's not the kind that starves
Herself and men folks too.
And when she lets a skillet fly
More forceful than polite,
"Three cheers for Marthy Jane!" says Si.
"She don't use dynamite!"

EXPECT 800 MEN AT BIG BANQUET FOR LAYMEN

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Laymen's Missionary Campaign being planned for Peterborough was held Saturday evening in the Y.M.C.A. parlor with Mr. A. W. Creasman presiding and Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr, as secretary.

Mr. R. F. Downey reported that 1,000 tickets had been printed for the banquet which will be held in the market hall Thursday evening of next week and at which it is expected that at least 800 men will sit down. A certain number of tickets have been allowed to each congregation. Several churches report that they expect to send 100 men each to the banquet. The banquet will be in charge of a caterer but it was decided to ask each church in the city to furnish a number of young ladies dressed in white to help wait on the table. As the banquet is to be opened to the County of Peterborough large delegations from out of the city are expected. One church at Hastings is sending eight delegates and reports have come to hand from Havelock, Millbrook and other points that they will be well represneted.

Thursday of next week, morning and afternoon conferences will be held in the Murray Street Baptist Church. A program for these meetings has been practically completed and will be submitted to the general committee for final approvement at a meeting to be held in the Y.M.C.A. next Friday evening.

OMEMEE MAN HAD NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

Omemee, Nov. 3,—Robt. Newman, of Omemee, had a narrow escape while out fishing on Pigeon River. In some way he upset out of his boat and got tangled in the trawling lines.

Some school children saw him and gave the alarm and Mr. Percy Parsons went out with another boat and rescued him after he had been in the water over half an hour and had almost given up. Medical aid was called but it was some time before Mr. Newman was himself again.

The accident was near the scene of the McCaffrey fatality of a year ago.

CALGARY'S PAVING PLANT EFFECTS SAVING OF $25,000

Ald. Duffus has expressed the opinion that the city should provide a paving plant and continue paving operations on its own book.

Calgary is so equipped and as a result the report of the city commissioners announces that the plant effected a saving to the city of $25,000 during the 18 months, compared with the cost of paving by contract.

The mnicipal plant lays a paving at an average cost of $2.15 per yard. During the season 140,000 square yards were laid. Calgary's paved streets measure 52 miles.

MEDAL IS SECURED FOR BRAVE LAH

David Cumberland Prevented Drowning at Chemong Lake

David Cumberland, the thirteen-year-old lad, who was instrumental in saving the life of Miss Traill, of Lakefield, from drowning at Chemong Lake, this past summer, will be presented with a medal in recognition of his heroic deed.

Rev F J. Sawers and others have interested themselves in the matter. Application was made to the Royal Humane Society, and the medal has been received here.

Arrangements are not yet completed for the presentation.

THIS MAN GETS YOUR NUMBER

If You Travel on the Gravel Road

Certain motorists are looking for information regarding the actions of one who asks questions, but fails to disclose his identity.

On the Gravel Road, the motorists say, a man is stationed and he takes the number of every passing automobile. He also halts the drivers of other vehicles.

HE WANTS TO MARRY THE GIRL

It is understood that Garnet Innis who was remanded to jail for sentence on Friday, has expressed his willingness to marry the young girl in the case, and also that the girl is willing to marry Innis.

The mother resides in Belleville and she may have something to say.

It is further stated that an analysis on a sample of the pills, which at is alleged Innis purchased for the girl failed to show them to be of any use for the purpose intended.

"This is the season of the year when a man discovers that she has cut all the buttons off his last winter's underwear, and used them on the children's garments."

Music and Drama

The first Twilight Musicale of the season held on Saturday afternoon in the Conservatory Music Hall, under the auspices of the Women's Art Association, was very largely attended.

A very enjoyable program was rendered, of which the vocal solos by Miss Winnifred Fick, and the piano solos by Miss Killmaster, two members of the Conservatory Faculty, were exceptionally well received. The orchestra was composed of twelve members of the string section of the Conservatory Orchestra.

The following was the complete program:

Scene from "Rigoletto" .... Orchestra.
Vocal Solo—"Good-bye Summer" ... Winnifred Fick.
Selections from the Works of Charles Gounod ... Orchestra.
Piano Solo—"Sonnet del Petrarca" ... Miss Killmaster.
Sextette—from "Lucia Di Lammermoor" ... Orchestra.
Vocal Solo—"His Lullaby" .... Winnifred Fick.
Piano Solo—"Elfin Tanz" .... Miss Killmaster.
Grand Selection—"Il Trovatore" .... Orchestra.

Not often does one see on the stage such sweet feminity as Miss Bernice McCabe, who appeared in the title role of "The Quaker Girl" at the Grand on Saturday. The Girl won her audience at her first appearance and throughout the three hours of entrancing music and Victor Morley, this winsome miss was the magnet first and all the time. Her beautiful voice was heard in several pretty numbers, and altogether her conquest was complete. Mr. Morley as "Tony Chute" also received a flattering reception and the co-stars were given splendid support by the large company.

Special mention is also due Mr. Moore, who as "Prince Carlo" won the unstinted approval of the audience with his rendition of one of the most pleasing of the many musical numbers "Come to the ball."

Mr. Short appeared before a Grand audience again as "Jeremiah" a Quaker. Mr. Short will be remembered for his work in the "Yankee Consul" the attraction which opened the theatre.

The stage dressings were very fine as were also the costumes of the ladies

The Dramatic Club in connection with St. Peter's T.A.S. are making arrangements for the presenting of a drama "The Limb o' the Law." It will be given some time during November.

See Us and See Better

The eye is built just like a camera: the lens to focus; the lid as a shutter; the iris or color as the diaphram; the thick coating of the eyeball as the dark room; the retina or nerve as the sensitive plate, and strange as it may seem, the image in the eye is upside down the same as in the camera.

When any of this apparatus gets out of order the eye will not focus properly and needs the aid of glasses.

Duty to your eyes demands that they have good care.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and marked "Tender for Section No. 5, Welland Ship Canal," will be received at this office until 12 o'clock noon on Tuesday, November 18th, 1913.

Plans, specifications and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on or after this date at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Engineer in Charge, St. Catharines, Ontario.

Copies of plans and specifications may be obtained from the Department on the payment of the sum of fifty dollars. To bona fide tenderers this amount will be refunded upon the return of the above in good condition.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind, that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque on a chartered Bank of Canada, for the sum of $100,000 00 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals, must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Dr. A. Reed Cushion Shoe

More men become old before their time on account of foot troubles than for any other reason.

The soft fibre cushion insole of the Dr. A. Reed Cushion Shoe is an insulator and protects the feet from damp and cold with the consequent coughs, colds, grippe and pneumonia.

Your feet rest on a cushion that prevents bagging and drawing of the uppers—eliminating corns and bunions.

All these points cheerfully explained and your foot fitted without obligation.

MAYORALTY CAMPAIGN IN NEW YORK BRINGS UTTER DEFEAT TO THE TAMMANY MACHINE; BIG MAJORITY FOR FUSIONIST CANDDIATE

Mitchell is the New Mayor—Ex-Governor Sulzer Beats Murphy Man

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Fusion carried New York City yesterday, electing John Purroy Mitchel mayor by approximately 35,000 plurality, and retaining control of the important Board of Estimates by an overwhelming majority.

Tammany Hall saw its nominee for the mayoralty, Edward E. McCall, go down to defeat by one of the biggest pluralities ever given against a candidate of the organization, and it looked near midnight as if it might not even save the New York County offices out of the wreckage. The big vote for Mitchel pulled through even the Fusion candidates for president of the board of aldermen and comptroller, George McAneny and Wm. A. Prendergast, against whom Independence League as well as Democratic organization candidates were running.

The election of Mitchel by a sweeping majority was early apparent, but not until nearly two-thirds of the returns were in was the success of McAneny and Prendergast assured. With figures at hand from something less than seven-eighths of the election districts in the greater city, however, Prendergast had a lead of more than 10,000 over Herman A. Metz, Tammany, for comptroller, and the Tammany leaders conceded the former's re-election, together with the election of Mr. McAneny, who had piled up a lead of approximately 35,000 over Joseph A. Goulden, his Tammany opponent in almost the same number of districts.

"It looks as if we had lost everything," Secretary Thomas Smith of Tammany Hall finally admitted. At the same time Samuel E. Koeing, chairman of the Republican county committee, claimed the election of the entire Fusion ticket in the greater city and of the New York County ticket as well.

William Sulzer, ousted from the governorship of New York recently, was elected to the State Assembly yesterday from the sixth district. The vote was unexpectedly close, but both Democrats and Republicans concede his election. He ran on the Progressive ticket.

There was jubilation unbounded in the former governor's headquarters as the count began to record his victory. Sulzer himself was all smiles. He regarded his triumph as a personal vindication, he said, and issued a statement thanking his supporters and scoring Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, who, he declared, was condemned by the vote that gave the district William Sulzer as its representative at Albany.

Election returns at a late hour last night showed a complete triumph for the Democrats in Massachusetts, where a governor and state ticket were chosen in a four-cornered fight, the selection of Democratic governor and state ticket in Virginia without contest, the ascendency of Fusion over Tammany in New York City with indications of Republican victory for the New York Assembly and judicial ticket, and a close fight for the state ticket in New Jersey, where President Wilson and administration forces fought to elect Jas. F. Fielder to the governorship.

In Massachusetts David L. Walsh, Democrat, present lieutenant-governor, was elected by a plurality of about 50,000 over Augustus P. Gardner, Republican; Charles S. Baird, Progressive, and Governor E. N. Foss, Independent. Henry C. Stuart was chosen governor of Virginia, together with an entire state ticket, Republicans and Progressives having declined to name candidates because of inability to agree on a united ticket.

PEOPLE HAVE REVERSED THE FINDING OF TAMMANY COURT

SULZER'S STATEMENT

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—After the result of his contest for position of States Assemblyman in the sixth district was known and his election assured, William Sulzer, who was recently impeached and thrust from the governorship of New York State by the agency of Tammany Hall, made the following declaration to his supporters:

"The people of the Sixth Assembly District think better of me than of Mr. Murphy. They know why Mr. Murphy removed me from the governorship; they know when Mr. Murphy asked me to do wrong I refused to do wrong; they know when Mr. Murphy threatened me I defied his threats. The voters now have condemned Mr. Murphy, reversed the judgment of his high court of infamy, and vindicated me by the verdict of the polls, which, in the last analysis, is the opinion of mankind.

"From Mr. Murphy's high court of infamy I appealed to the higher court of public opinion. Mr. Murphy says that there was no appeal from his court, but Mr. Murphy was mistaken; and he knows now that the judgment of the people can reverse the judgment of any court."

Sulzer made his fight for election to the Assembly on the lines of the statement he issued last night. His canvass was a whirlwind affair, demonstrative crowds greeting him wherever he spoke. He rarely went outside of his district, but his speeches within that territory were directed as much at the Tammany organization in its city-wide and state bearings as to an appeal to his immediate constituency.

DEMOCRATIC LANDSLIDE IN MASSACHUSETTS

Women in Illinois Voted to Close the Saloons

WON 18 OUT OF 20

Canadian Press Despatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5— While Mitchell the Fusionist candidate led McCall "Tammany" in the mayoralty contest yesterday by 121,209 majority the complete figures from Massachusetts recorded a Democratic landslide, Walsh being elected governor with a plurality of 53,691, the largest ever given a Democratic candidate for that office and Republicans grip on the legislature was weakened at Vincennes, the oldest town in Indiana, which went Republican for first time.

Four out of every five women voting for the first time in Illinois, voted to close the saloons, and of twenty-four municipalities voting on local option, the "drys" won in eighteen. In Philadelphia, the Republicans won a decided victory over the Fusionists,

STATISTICS FROM THE SCHOOLS

Showing Percentage of Pupils Affected by Diseases

In addressing the members of the Board of Education last night, at the request of the local Council of Women, Dr. Jessie Birnie gave some statistics from schools where medical inspection had been introduced. The following is the average for the schools:

Serious defects of vision, 10 per cent; defective hearing, 4 per cent, suppurating ears, 2 per cent; adenoid tumors or hypertrophrical tonsils obstructing the nose or throat, 8 per cent; advanced dental caries, 30 per cent; ring worm, 1 per cent; tuberculosis, 1 per cent; heart disease 1 1-4 per cent; malnutrition, 10 per cent.

MRS. BEEMER NOT CALLED TO APPEAR IN COURT

Poisoning Case Is Remanded by the Grand Jury.

FRIENDS HELP HER

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 5.—At 5.30 o'clock, the grand jury, which is considering the crown's evidence against Mrs. Grace Beemer, charged with the murder of her husband, Frederick Beemer, of Blenheim Township, was dismissed for the night, they having heard only about half the witnesses to be heard up to that time. The evidence was a repetition of that given at the inquest. It is expected they will not be in a position to report regarding the indictment until nearly noon to-day, and until that time the case will be held up.

Mrs. Beemer did not appear in court at all yesterday afternoon, although the large crowd in attendance waited long in the hope of getting a glimpse of the prisoner.

Frederick Beemer, so the autopsy showed, died from swallowing strychnine in March last on his farm near Drumbo. At the inquest, John Mason, employed by a neighboring farmer, testified to having seen Mrs. Beemer pour some white stuff from a bottle labeled "poison" while she was ministering to her sick husband, and that she afterwards threw the bottle in the stove.

Mrs. Beemer had no funds with which to furnish her defence, but about five hundred dollars has been contributed to a fund for her by the people of Woodstock and surrounding places, including her own neighborhood, near Drumbo.

Outlays on Public Works.

OTTAWA, Nov. 5.—Expenditures by the Public Works Department last year aggregated $18,844,223, according to the annual report, now being issued. Of this amount, $10,177,831 was spent on harbors, including dredging, and $7,420,885 on public buildings.

Large buildings now under construction include a new postoffice at St. John, costing $381,800; Quebec postoffice, $385,000; Montreal examining warehouse, $999,000; Brantford postoffice, $244,308; Toronto customs, $4,000,000, and Ottawa customs, $1,500,000.

Norwegian farmers produce more hay than can be used at home.

KEPT JAIL IN TERROR

Two Drunken Prisoners Kept Festival With Riot Gun

MORRISTOWN, N.J., Nov. 5—Two drunken prisoners with a riot gun and 1,000 rounds of ammunition held high carnival at the Moris County jail here from midnight till dawn yesterday, terrorizing other inmates, riddling the keeper's office with bullets, and failing in their plot for a wholesale jail delivery only because they drank too much liquor after escaping from their cells.

The two prisoners, Eugene Sampson and John Burns, picked the lock to the ward which leads into the keeper's office. Entering the office they broke open a desk and procured a bottle of liquor, from which they drank freely.

Then they broke into a store room and obtained a riot gun and ammuntion. Returning to the hospital ward, they closed the iron door and began firing through it. As each shell contained a number of bullets, the keeper's office was riddled.

At daylight deputies and detectives entered the jail. They found the inmates in a state of terror. Burns and Sampson were asleep in a corner.

M'MANIGAL IS RELEASED.

Lawyer Says Ill-Health; Jailers Suggest Over-Eating.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 5.—The poor health of Ortie E. McManigal, the confessed dynamiter, was the reason given yesterday by District Attorney John D. Fredericks for ordering what is believed to be the permanent release from the county jail of the untried co-worker of the McNamara brothers and chief witness against 33 labor union leaders who were sentenced to the Federal penitentiary in Leavenworth for complicity in the nation-wide dynamite conspiracy.

According to jail attendants, McManigal's appetite and constantly increasing girth and weight indicated that his ill-health might have been due to overeating. They said, however, that he had actually gone to an hospital, but it was to have a surgical operation performed to remove from his forehead a great scar by which he feared former associates might recognize him.

Woman Sentenced To Hang.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 5.—Mrs. Bessie J. Wakefield and James Blew were sentenced in the Superior Court by Judge Burpee yesterday afternoon to be hanged at the state prison on March 4 next for the murder of Wm. Wakefield, the woman's husband.

EASY TO MAKE THIS MISTAKE

But Meat Dealer Had to Pay Costs and Refund $150

The case of H.L. Mcllimoyle, charged with selling pork under weight, was dismissed with the defendant paying the costs and also $1.50 to the purchaser. Magistrate Dumble was of the opinion that the mistake could easily be made.

Dan McMillan gave evidence that he purchased a quarter of pork from the defendant, who sold the meat at the weight of 61 pounds at 15 cents a pound, amounting to $9.15. On weighing the pork at home he found it to weigh only 50 pounds making a difference of about $1.50.

Mr. Harry Winch gave expert evidence as to the shrinkage of meat, and said that pork might possibly shrink a couple of pounds.

H.L. Mcllimoyle in the box said that he weighed the meat but must have mistaken the 51 for 61.

EXPRESS WRECKED

Number of Dead Estimated at Twelve

Seven Coaches Practically Reduced to Splinters

PARIS, Nov. 5.—The Marseilles-Paris express was in collision last night with another train, and seven coaches filled with passengers were practically reduced to splinters. The wreckage is now burning. The number of dead is estimated at twelve.

The accident occurred near Melun, which is 27 miles from Paris. All the doctors in Melun were requisitioned and others have been urgently summoned from the surrounding towns. At midnight last night the many dead and injured had been taken from the ruins.

There were no American or Canadian passengers on the express.

MONTAGUE IN AGAIN.

Former Minister of Agriculture Joins Roblin's Cabinet.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 5.—Hon. W. H. Montague was sworn in yesterday as Minister of Public Works in the Manitoba Cabinet. This followed the receipt yesterday of Hon. Colin K. Campbell's resignation. Premier Sir Rodmond Roblin, who returned on Monday from Ottawa, found the letter containing the resignation on his desk. It was a complete surprise to him, but he lost no time in gaining Lieut.-Governor Cameron's assent to Dr. Montague, who was at once offered the post.

Dr. Montague has lived in Winnipeg many years. While here he has been engaged in the land and investment business. He was born in Adelaide Township, Middlesex County, Ontario, his father having been one of the early settlers in the Adelaide district.

From 1886 until 1900 he was member of Parliament for Haldimand, for some time Minister without portfolio in the Dominion Cabinet. During his Parliamentary career he was known as one of the best-informed debaters in the House. Finally he became Secretary of State and afterwards Minister of Agriculture of the Dominion.

DIDN'T KNOW HE WAS "LISTED"

JOhn Moher's Excuse as Told in Police Court

John Moher pleaded not guilty at police court, this morning, to the charge of supplying liquor to a blacklister, through his counsel J. R. Corkery. John Findley, a blacklister, claimed that Moher supplied him with a dollar flask on Saturday. Moher, the defendant gave evidence to the effect that he did not know Findley was on the "list," but admitted getting a dollar flask for him.

The case was adjourned until tomorrow morning.

WOMEN ARE FOUND MURDERED

Head And Chest of One Victim Crushed.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 5.—With her head and chest crushed in as though beaten with heavy stones, a woman, believed to be Mrs. Mary Louissa of St. Clair, near here, was found dead yesterday in a clump of bushes on the outskirts of Pottsville. Mrs. Louissa disappeared from her home about two weeks ago, and her 12-year-old daughter created a stir when she reported to the police that her father had thrown her mother down a mine breach and killed her. The mine breach was searched in vain.

A week ago the husband, Michael Louissa, disappeared, leaving four small children alone. They are now being cared for by the county.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Mrs. Samuel Cito, 25 years old, was murdered yesterday in the kitchen of her flat in the Italian quarter. The alarm was given by the six-year-old child of the slain woman, and the police found her lying dead on the floor with the stiletto which had been used still sticking in her body. A year-old baby was splashing and crying nearby in a tub of water.

Mrs. Cito had been bathing the child when she was attacked. The murderer was said to be a young man wearing a brown sweater and grey trousers.

Workman's Serious Fall.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 5.—The first serious accident in the construction of the new arena took place yesterday, when George Anderson, one of the workmen, slid off the roof to the ground, 30 feet below. He was very severely hurt, sustaining internal injuries, and his physician thinks his hip joint is broken.

TO ARBITRATE CASE.

Board of Conciliation Granted In the C.P.R. Dispute.

OTTAWA, Nov. 5.—Over 5,000 maintenance-of-way employes on the C.P.R., from coast to coast, want an increase in pay, with better working conditions than now prevail. Through their representatives they have made application to the Labor Department for a board of conciliation to look into the dispute with the company, and Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, has consented. The men have named Henry Irwin of Portage la Prairie as their representative, and the company Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., of Toronto. A chairman will be named by the two.

It has not yet been decided where the board will sit, but it will likely be in Toronto or Ottawa.

Hunter Killed by Officer.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 5.—A hunter, who refused to obey a command that he cease shooting in Swope Park, was shot and killed yesterday by Frank Robinson, a special officer. There were no adequate means of identification on the hunter's body.

Robinson was attracted to a wooded region of the park by the sound of shots. He found the hunter in the act of shooting a squirrel and ordered him to desist. The hunter replied by firing a charge at Robinson. Robinson then shot him through the head.

SPANISH AEROPLANE SCARES NATIVES AND TURNS TIDE OF BATTLE

Detachment of Cavalry was in Danger of Annihilation.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. — A cable from Madrid to The Tribune says:—For the first time in actual warfare, according to reports received from Morocco, an aeroplane has decided the success of a fight.

A detachment of cavalry was attacked by a larger force of natives near Ceuta, Morocco, and it was near the point of being annihilated when the Infante Alfonso, in his aeroplane, appeared, followed by some other members of the aerial flotilla, who recently arrived here. The natives were so frightened by the airship that they fled, and the survivors of the detachment escaped.

Commission To Tour.

KINGSTON, Nov. 5.—Next week the members of the prison reform commission will start out to visit several prisons in the United States to get information. They intend to visit Stillwater, Minn.; Mansfield, O., and Concord, N.H. This means that the sessions for hearing evidence will not be resumed until the end of the month, and it may be early in December before work is again taken up. There is plenty of evidence yet to be heard, in addition to hearing charges that have been preferred against H. S. Begg, assistant overseer of the penitentiary hospital.

Protestant Home

The directors of the Peterborough Protestant Home intend holding a jam and linen shower at the Home on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 12th, from 3 to 6 o'clock. The public are cordially invited and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance, as the Home is greatly in need of house linen and also jam, fruit and pickles for the winter. Tea will be served.

DIED AT ROCHESTER

Word Received To-day of Mrs. Ward's Death

Word was received to-day by Miss Agnes Ward, clerk in Hooper's Confectionery Store, stating that her mother Mrs. Edward Ward, died in Rochester. The telegram contained no further information as to the cause of death.

Mrs Ward, up till last Thursday, resided in this city, on Wescott street and she moved to Rochester to take up her abode with her daughter. She has two daughters living in this city, Miss Agnes Ward and Mrs. Charles O'Hara.

NO ULTIMATUM GIVEN SAYS SECRETARY BRYAN

In Absence of President Wilson From Washington No News of Developments in Mexican Situation Can Be Gained.

Gen. Garranza, Leader of Rebels, Says Invasion Would Be a Highly Unwise Step.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Beyond a formal statement that no "ultimatum" had been delivered to President Huerta by this Government, Secretary Bryan declined to comment yesterday in any way on the Mexico City despatch printed yesterday morning that the United States had called on Gen. Huerta to resign from the Presidency and not to install as his successor any man who was intimately associated with him. Mr. Bryan said, in answer to questions, that his denial was intended to be comprehensive in its application to the report that there had been an "ultimatum," but he refused to go into particulars or to indicate whether any communication embracing a new American policy had been made to the Mexican Government.

In view of the attitude of Mr. Bryan, and in the absence of President Wilson, it is difficult to obtain any satisfactory idea of what moves have been made by this Government that would have justified the Mexico City press despatches. Senators who have shared to some degree the confidence of the Administration in connection with Mexican affairs, have no knowledge of any drastic action by this Government, and beyond the fact that the American battleship division in eastern Mexican waters is to be augmented, no preparations are or have been made by the Navy Department or for that matter by the War Department to meet an emergency calling for a display or the use of force.

Want Arms Only.

NOGALES, Sonora, Nov. 5.—Gen. Venustiano Carranza, head of the Mexican constitutionalists' revolutionary movement, asked Dr. Henry Allen Tupper of the International Peace Forum last night to telegraph Secretary of State Bryan and learn if the reported American communication to Huerta indicated an indication to intervene with arms in Mexico.

The first chief of the constitutionalists also desired Dr. Tupper to express to Mr. Bryan his belief that armed intervention would be a grave mistake and uncalled for, since the constitutionalists were convinced that with the privilege of freely importing arms and war munitions they would be able to overthrow the Huerta regime in a short time. On the other hand, Gen. Carranza said it would require years for the United States to pacify Mexico.

To his original request, presented Sunday to the officials at Washington, Gen. Carranza added another last night. He not only desires the embargo on the export of arms to Mexico lifted but wants the privileges of transporting his soldiers over American territory.

Chicago Troops Leave Friday.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Acting under orders issued in the War Department at Washington several days ago, four troops of the Fifteenth United States Cavalry are preparing to leave for Sheridan, Ill., for El Paso, Texas, next Friday.

The troops and equipment will travel in special trains over the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad from Fort Sheridan to Chicago and Pacific line from Chicago to El Paso, Texas.

Must Fight Says Tageblatt.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—The policy of President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan in Mexico has resulted, as was to be expected, says The Tageblatt yesterday, in commenting on the Mexican situation, and has left the United States with no alternative except to employ force or to back down ingloriously.

The newspaper says it expects there will be a speedy landing of troops at Vera Cruz, but it fears that President Wilson underestimates the military difficulties in Mexico.

U. S. Battleships In Force.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels reiterated yesterday that the three battleships of the second division of the Atlantic fleet will remain in Mexican Gulf waters until further orders, notwithstanding that four battleships of the third division arrived at Vera Crus last evening.

Rear Admiral Fletcher, commanding the second division, will take command of the entire squadron. The New Hampshire and Nebraska will keep station at Tampico, while the Louisiana, Michigan, Rhode Island, Virginia and New Jersey will await developments off Vera Crus. In addition to these seven dreadnoughts, the gunboat Wheeling and the cruiser Takoma are off Vera Cruz, while the gunboats Petrel and Nashville are in Dominican waters, not far away.

On the west coast the armored cruisers California and Maryland are at Guaymas and Mazatlan, respectively The gunboat Annapolis also is at Guaymas and the armored cruiser Pittsburg is en route to that port.

Two Drowned in Wreck.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I., Nov. 5.—The mystery of the ship reported to have foundered on Canoe Cove, has been solved. The Government steamer Brant, in her search yesterday for signs of the reported wreck, located the spars of a vessel projecting a few feet above the water, about four miles off Canoe Cove. The vessel was the 52 tons schooner Flora T., which left Pugwash, N.S., on Friday with a cargo of brick for Charlottetown. The vessel had only two of a crew, her captain, Bliss Trenholm, of Port Elgin, N.S., and Philip Arsenault of Summerside, both of whom went down with the vessel.

STRONG MAN OF CHINA HAS ASSUMED ROLE OF DICTATOR; DEPUTIES OUT

YUAN SHIA KAI.

Ritual Murder Ridiculed.

KIEV, Nov. 5.—The defence scored yesterday in the proceedings against Mendel Beilias, who is on trial for the alleged murder of the Christian boy, Yushinsky, when Profs. Kokovsoff and Tihomiroff, theological experts, ridiculed the idea that the Jews practiced ritual murder.

Prof. Kokovsoff, who is attached to the St. Petersburg University, said: "Were I told that the body of a child had been drained of its blood, and were is proved to me that this had been done by a Jew, the supposition that the crime had been perpetrated for the purposes of eating would be less absurd to my mind than the theory of ritual murder."

Elder Statesmen Are Now Likely to be Recalled—Summary Executions.

PEKIN, Nov. 5.—The struggle between the Chinese Parliament and President Yuan Shi Kai has brought about drastic action by the President, which in the opinion of many will have a serious effect on Parliamentary Government. Lengthy Presidential proclamations were issued at midnight, expelling the Kwo Ming Tang party, number more than 300 members, from Parliament. The proclamations recount the difficulties with which the Government has been struggling since the Manchu regime, and describe the disasters which are certain to follow if parties, such as the Kwo Ming Tang party, are permitted to exist.

The Kwo Ming Tang party was formerly headed by Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the first Provisional President of China, who is now in exile, but during the recent rebellion was required by Yuan Shi Kai to dismiss its southern leaders. Nevertheless, members of the party continued to fight in Parliament for the curtailment of Yuan Shi Kai's authority.

A crisis was reached last week when the draft of the proposed constitution made the President absolutly dependent upon Parliament. Martial law is in operation in Pekin; the authorities are engaged in making arrests and summary executions, which have been numerous since the rebellion began, it is understood, will continue. Preparations are under way for the Elder Statesmen, who served under the Manchus, to resume their positions in the Cabinet.

At various legations the opinion is held that only by strong action can the President prevent the disruption of China by her own people. Very little has been accomplished by Parliament, which has devoted its time to opposing the President since it convened, while disorders are spreading.

UNION LABEL

FULFILLING THE LAW

The Gazette publishes the following despatch from London, which will interest and instruct certain Little Navyites:

"Admiral Freemantle, writing on the naval question in the Morning Post this morning, says he is disposed to treat lightly the alleged difficulty of combination between the Admiralty and Canadian or Australian squadrons in time of war. The Australian navy at all events can scarcely be sneered at as tinpot navy, and he thinks it is already a force to be reckoned with.

But whether large or small, any squadrons provided by the Dominions, born and bread as they would be in the traditions of the British navy, could not but be anxious to join in making one great Imperial navy in the event of war.

"The centralists," says the Admiral, "insist that when Great Britain fights every dominion must be fighting too. What is a free choice for Britain they would make a compulsory choice for the dominions. And we are compelled to answer, 'Certainly, and Laurier's tentative proposal for the neutrality of Canada under certain conditions is an unpractical chimera.' An empire must 'bear each other's burdens.' Not only in European complications, but in a fishery or boundary dispute of Canada, or an Australian or New Zealand or Japanese scare, the trouble must concern the whole Empire, whether federated or not. It is a narrow view to suppose that the difficulty is always a purely British one, as the South African war should have made clear.

"I believe that this latter point will become more evident as the question of union for defence is further studied. We may have federation, representation, co-operation or union, but the Empire must act in unison. Our dominions beyond the seas have in times of peace the advantages of making use of our diplomats and consuls, and very often of our money, and they must share with us the disadvantage of the United Kingdom's geographical position in close proximity to powerful empires with aims and ambitions which may conflict with the interests of the British Empire."

This is according to Scripture, where we are told to bear one another's burdens and so fulfil the law of Christ."

WILL HUERTA GO?

The United States Government has at last taken the Mexican bull by the horns, if the last report of the situation is correct. Huerta is to go, along with his whole retinue. Whether he will obey these marching orders is another matter. He has so far stuck tenaciously to his guns, and unless he has changed somewhat of late he will not go for the first telling and may have to be forcibly removed.

To the lay mind it does seem a stubborn policy on the part of President Wilson not to recognize Huerta as being the only man in power in a country that is honeycombed with sedition. But doubtless the United States know more about the character of Huerta and the conditions in Mexico than anyone else and President Wilson is acting cautiously. It would be no easy task for any nation to pacify Mexico, for that country has never been at rest for the last hundred years and more. Unless something happens to alter the nature of the people, or someone strong enough to rule them arises in their midst, there is little hope of a contented Mexico.

SCIENTIFIC INSANITY

Sex education in schools was forcibly condemned by Rev. Dr Brophy in St. Agnes' Roman Catholic Church, Montreal on Sunday last. He said it would be demoralizing to our youth and would contribute to the war of flesh and spirit. "Imagine your innocent children being led by teachers whom you know not, into secrets which should be entirely foreign to the pure mind of childhood. The thought is sickening and even criminal. It would furnish images to the imagination, topics for conversation, license for promiscuous discussion of that problem, all of which would corrupt the most pure of heart."

Dr. Brophy went on to say that this duty lay with the parents, and and even with them it was a delicate matter. He condemned "eugenics," and said that no doctor-guided marriages could take the place of love springing from the heart.

This priest has come very close to the truth on this matter of sex-education. There has been a lot of infamous rubbish written and spoken upon this subject within the last few years, and this by people who profess to have the morals of the community at heart.

"Eugenics" and "sex-problems" are symptoms of scientific insanity. They are civilization gone mad. So far from these things being a sign of advancement they are virtually a retrogression to naked savagery.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The official report on the recent Zeppelin airship disaster says it was caused by a vacuum formed in the centre gondola behind a wind shield used for the first time. This shield sucked the gas escaping from the aluminum structure into the gondola, where it was exploded by a motor spark. Such a possibility had not even been thought of, the condition being an entirely new one with respect to airships. The designers and builders of the air craft have still much to learn in the way of making them safe to ride in. The Zeppelin lesson was a costly one.

The young Prince of Wales has already got himself into the marriage market. He is certainly a good catch for some fortunate Princess. The papers are all busy helping him to choose his future wife, he might well tell them to mind their own business.

SAVE THE GIRLS

A Strong Indictment---Time Something Was Done to Protect Young Life of City

To The Editor of The Review.

Sir,—The mothers of Peterborough have appeared before the School Board to beg that the future of our young girls will be looked to. All honor to the mothers! God knows it is time. Peterborough is rotten with what they complain of. It is cruel to spend our efforts and our money on China, Japan, Ecuador, &c., when our young girls are unprotected from the men. But what of the men? It is well known that grown men are preying upon young girls. Let the lay missioners and the gilded Christians of the Y.M.C.A. and elsewhere follow the law of the mothers. It is a heartbreaking business, but God knows it is true. Twenty-one births in a thousand in Ontario are illegitimate! Give up your banquets. Cut out your spasms of goodness and your shows. Get to work to save your young girls from your young devils. When you have done that there is a mighty lot more for you to do right here. You can say that this was handed in by

THE MARKET

Latest Quotation in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Lower cables to-day formed the chief cause of a decline in wheat, ranging from 3-8 to 3-4c net. Sympathetically other grains were carried downward, corn to a net loss of 1-8 to 3-4c, and oats to a drop of a shade to 1-4c. Provisions also suffered from the general weakness, losing from 7 1-2 to 20c compared with the previous close.

Liverpool wheat closed ¾ to ⅞ lower; corn, ¾ to 1 lower.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Nov. 4.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 78 cars, comprising 1408 cattle, 725 hogs, 1062 sheep and lambs and 83 calves.

Butchers

Choice steers, $7 25 to $7.50; choice heifers, $7, good steers and heifers, $6.75 to $7; medium, $5.75 to $6.25; common, $5 to $5.50; choice cows, $5.50 to $6; good cows, $5 to $5.35; medium cows, $4.50 to $4.75; canners and cutters, $3 to $4.25; export bulls, $6 to $6.50; butchers' bulls, $5 to $5.75; bologna bulls, $3 50 to $4.50.

Stockers and Feeders

There was a fair trade in stockers and feeders at Monday's decline. Steers, 1000 to 1100 lbs., sold at $6 to $6.35, steers, 900 to 1000 lbs., at $5.75 to $6, stockers, 500 to 800 lbs., at $5 to $5.75, rough eastern stockers, at $4 25 to $5.

Milkers and Springers

Receipts of milkers and springers were small and prices were firm, at $60 to $110 each.

Veal Calves

The calf market was firm at unchanged quotations. Choice veals sold at $9 to $10, good calves, $8 to $9, medium, $7 to $7.50, common calves, $6 50 to $6.50.

Sheep and Lambs

Sheep and lambs were in demand at steady prices, as follows: Ewes, sold at $4 25 to $5.25; culls and rams, $2.75 to $3 75; lambs, $7 40 to $7 50; bucks, culled out, at $1 per head less.

Hogs

Deliveries of hogs were light, consequently prices were firm; Selects, fed and watered, at $9 to $9.15; $8 75 to $8.85, f.o.b.; $9.25, weighed off cars.

New York Life in Fiction.

The Book Publisher—Well, sir, your story has been carefully considered. I have read it myself. As a story it is fair. As a story of New York life it is impossible.

The Author—Why impossible?

The Publisher—There isn't a murder in it. Nobody is divorced. No brokers give midnight suppers for chorus girls. No women smoke cigarettes. No political boss wrecks honest reformers. No Black Hand gangs intimidate the public. That's the only sort of New York life that novelists are supposed to understand. The story won't do.

The Author (after a thoughtful pause)—I have it. I'll rewrite the first chapter, explaining that the story is a moral dream, and I'll wake 'em all up in a lobster palace at the end.

The Publisher—Fine! We'll take it! —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

NEW CONVENIENT TRAIN TO WINNIPEG

Canadian Pacific

The popularity of Canadian Pacific service, and the excellence of that road's equipment, has been so greatly appreciated by the travelling public that it has been found necessary to put into service an entirely new Through Standard Express Train between Toronto and Winnipeg.

Commencing Sunday, October 27th, the "Gate City Express" will leave Toronto at 2.30 p.m., and will run daily thereafter, arriving Winnipeg at 8.00 a.m. second morning. The train will consist of the highest-class modern equipment; Compartment Library Observation Car, Standard Sleeping Cars, Tourist Sleeping Car, Dining Car, First-class Coach and Colonist Car. This will be found the most convenient and best train between Toronto and Winnipeg on account of the daylight departure from Toronto at an hour when the Union Station is not badly congested, and also on account of the early hour of arrival at Winnipeg.

The present "Vancouver Express" will continue to leave Toronto at 10.20 p.m. daily and will consist of the same equipment as the 'Gate City Express.' This train is the best to take for points west of Winnipeg but for Winnipeg and east the "Gate City Express" is the right train to travel by.

Full particulars from any Canadian Pacific Agent, or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto. 50

RENTING ROOMS

The total amount of rent money paid for furnished rooms in this city each week is enormous! Nobody knows how much. It goes to thrifty people, who like to lessen their own rent or living expense by sub-letting one or more spare rooms to an agreeable person. If YOU have a desirable extra room you can become a receiver of rent by ordering a "Furnished Room to Let" ad. in the Review. The cost is nominal—one cent a word for first insertion and half a cent a word for subsequent insertions, run consecutively.

RED ROSE TEA "is good tea"

When Bessie Moved

Two Quick Decisions Made on That Occasion.

By MARIE WAIT.

Bessie sat with her face against the pane of the south window. Ever since the gathering dusk of the winter afternoon had settled down she had watched the road for signs of the team. Two of the loads had come and gone. The last should have started only an hour or so after the others, yet it was nearly 9 o'clock and the familiar form had not put in an appearance.

Then a knock at the door startled her, and she cowered into the darkness, hoping that the intruder, whoever it might be, would become tired and go away. Instead, the knocking contiued, and presently there was a gust of cold air as the door was thrown open. It could not be the folks. They were coming from the south. It must be a tramp.

The furniture was still piled in the center of the room, and there was no hiding place save the great cupboard that had been Grandma Bailey's. Softly she stole across the room, but was just concealing herself when a man entered carrying a lantern.

Tremblingly she obeyed his command to come out and stood facing him. There was nothing very terrible about his appearance. He was muffled up to his eyes in coats and scarf, but the eyes were frank and kindly, and there was a twinkle suggestive of fun.

"Give an account of yourself," he demanded. "Trying to steal the house?"

"We are moving in," she cried indignantly. "I came on with the first load, and mother and father were to be here with the last. They have not arrived yet. I don't know what can be keeping them. I am Bessie Lyford," she added as an afterthought.

"And I'm Joel Ware," he introduced. "I just got back from town and saw the lights. I did not know that the new owners were moving in and came over to see if tramps were in the house. I live across the way."

"I have been here since 11," she said. "We are moving over from Groton. I was to show the men where to put the things. The last load went—oh, years ago."

"And you've been sitting here since then watching for your folks," he said, looking at the chair by the window. "Had your supper?"

"I had a cold lunch," she said indifferently. "The kitchen things are on the last load."

"I'll bring something over," he declared. "I haven't had my supper yet."

He slipped out, and Bessie sank into the chair by the window to resume her watch. After awhile he returned and she went out into the dining room, where he was straightening out the chairs. The steam of the hot coffee filled the room with its delicious odor and for the first time she realized that she was hungry.

"I brought mine too," he explained. "It'll save time."

He drew up a chair, and presently she found herself chatting as she sipped the coffee and munched the biscuit. Joel, she found, kept bachelor hall in the little farmhouse across the way. In the summer he had several hands helping him, but in the winter he lived by himself and was glad enough to have neighbors again.

She almost forgot her troubles until the tray was depleted and Joel rose.

"I'll take these things over to the house," he said, "and then come back. You won't be scared, will you?"

Bessie shook her head laughingly. There was a certainty of movement about Joel that induced confidence, and as she watched the light go up in his kitchen while he moved about at his work the occasional silhouette against the light brought comfort to her. Then the light went out again, and she could see him striding through light snow that had begun to fall.

She looked up with a smile as he entered.

"I was tempted to run across and help you with the dishwashing," she said. "I never thought or I should have offered to do so before you left."

"I guess I can do my own chores," he laughed back. "I was wondering how it would do to hitch up and drive back Groton way. I've got a fresh team, and if you don't mind being alone I can find out what's the matter. I brought my revolver over so you would feel safer. I don't suppose you'll need it, but it might be a comfort to feel that you had it."

"But it's such a long, cold drive," she protested.

"I guess a little snow won't hurt me or the team much," he laughed. "You'll be worrying till you know what the matter is. I'll bring in some wood for the stoves and then get along."

He built up a roaring fire and then turned to Bessie.

"This is a sort of back road," he explained. "The tramps mostly hold to the line of the railroad, so don't worry. I'll be back as soon as I can."

She watched him drive out of the yard presently, and as the well matched team sped down the road a sudden sense of loneliness came over her. It was not quite the feeling she had experienced before. That had been the loneliness of solitude. Now she was lonely because Ware had gone, and even while she cried softly to herself her heart glowed as she remembered how quietly he had taken possession and had brought light into the gloom.

She fell asleep after a time and was unconscious of the speeding hours until she was awakened by a light touch. She sprang to her feet with a cry of alarm, but was reassured by a glimpse of Joel's kindly face.

"I found 'em about seven miles out," he explained. "It seems that the sled tipped over turning out for another team. Your ma broke her leg, and they took her into Deane's and set it. They have been so busy with their own troubles that they never thought that you might be worrying and did not send any one on to tell you. It's all right, though, and your ma said not to worry. She'll be in shape to move in the morning, and they'll bring her here."

"Poor ma!" Bessie said softly. "But I'm glad to know that it's only that instead—instead of some of the horrible things I was thinking."

"I thought you'd sleep better if you knew just what the matter was," he smiled.

"Sleep?" she repeated. "I can't sleep tonight."

"Yes, you can," he insisted. "I'm going over to put up the team. Then I'll come back and sit here awhile. You get a bed fixed up, and I'll warrant you'll sleep."

He was a true prophet, for after she had won from him a half promise that he would not sit up all night she went to her room, and, exhausted by the emotions so foreign to her usual placid life, she dropped asleep.

The soft black of the winter night was turning to the gray of dawn when she roused herself and stared dumbly for a moment at the unfamiliar room. Then recollection returned, and she slipped on a wrapper and crept downstairs.

A light was burning in the sitting room, and Joel sat reading. He sprang up at her approach with a cheery "Good morning."

"I thought you were not going to sit up all night," she reproached.

"I thought you might wake up in the night and be scared," he confessed. "Now I'm going over to make some coffee and bring it over. It won't take very long."

He was out of the room with the same alert step that had marked his carriage the night before. There was no trace of weariness in his stride, though every bone in his body ached. He was soon back with a breakfast, and this time Bessie had the table prepared.

"You'll have your folks here by dinner time," he said as he gathered up the dishes. "I guess this ends our picnic."

"I'm sorry," she confessed softly. "You have been very good to me."

"Just neighborly," he said awkwardly. "I was glad to help out, though it's going to seem pretty lonely over at my house now. A woman sitting across the table does give one an appetite."

"You should get married," she suggested, with a blush.

"I'm going to," was the straightforward answer, "just as soon as it's possible to propose to you—that is, if you'll have me."

"I'll say yes now if you ask me," she promised. "I knew that I loved you when I watched you drive down the road last night and felt that you were going away from me."

"I beat you!" he exulted. "I knew that you were the girl for me the moment you stepped out of that wardrobe."

Frank Jarrell wrote this criticism of the lawyers a dozen or fifteen years ago:

"When a man gives another man an orange he says, 'I give you this orange,' but when the transaction is intrusted to the hands of a lawyer to put in writing he adopts this form: 'I hereby give, grant and convey to you all and singular my estate and interest, right, title, claim and advantage therein, with full power to bite, cut or otherwise eat the same, or give the same away, as fully and effectually as I, A. For the Children

Prince John, Son of the King of England.

© by American Press Association.

Prince John, the handsome boy here pictured, is the youngest son of King George V. of England. The little prince was born eight years ago, and the photograph was taken on the anniversary of his last birthday. He has four brothers and one sister and, being the baby, is the pet of the family. His sister, Princess Mary, is devoted to her small brother and spends much of her spare time in aiding him in his studies and as his playmate. Princess Mary is in her seventeenth year and is the third child of King George and Queen Mary. The two boys next older than Prince John are Prince Henry, thirteen years old, and Prince George, who is eleven.

The Kaiser's Meal.

About twenty-five years ago, when the German emperor was traveling in Austria, he found himself very hungry after a hunting trip miles from his destination and food.

"What shall we do?" asked his majesty.

His companion, Count Dolma, remembered a farmhouse not very far away.

"Yes; follow me," he answered, and in a few minutes they stood within the old farmhouse.

"Well, my good woman, what can you give us?" asked the emperor.

The woman placed bread, milk, butter and sausage on the table.

"Milk, bread, butter and sausage!" exclaimed his majesty. "Why, this is a feast fit to set before the king!"

He and his companion started in, and the woman had the satisfaction of seeing her food quickly disappear. Finally the emperor said, "My good woman, take this and go and buy yourself more sausage and more bread," and he placed a golden double eagle in her outstretched hand. "And," he continued, "if you happen to see a cheap picture of the kaiser buy it so that you can point to it and say, 'I once saved that poor man from starvation.'"

Riddles.

Why should an architect make a good actor? Because he is an adept at drawing houses.

When was wit a father? When a pun became apparent (a parent).

Why is an elephant different from other animals? Because if you cut off his head and tail you don't take it from his trunk.

What grows the less tired the longer it works? An auto wheel.

What sea would a seasick person like to be on? Adriatic (a dry attic).

What kind of a cat lives in a library? A cat-alogue.

Why are these riddles like monkeys? Because they are farfetched and full of nonsense.

The Word Fiasco.

When a play or performance turns out badly or any cherished plan meets with failure we call it a fiasco. Fiasco is the Italian word for bottle or flask, and at first glance the word bottle seems hardly to fit the meaning we imply. But the use of this word came about logically enough.

When the Venetian glassblowers, in making their beautiful glassware, detected a flaw in the bulb they would convert it into an ordinary bottle or flasco. In this way the word bottle came to be synonymous with failure.

Not Magical.

How can you draw a circle around a person placed in the center of a room so that he will not be able to jump out of it, though his legs should be free? Draw it around his body.

Starching Humans.

From London comes the news that starch will have the same effect in human laundry as it has upon the family wash. Taken in the bath, it will stiffen the muscles and smooth out the wrinkles of care. Here is the formula for its application:

All you have to do is to buy a pound of ordinary pure starch from your grocer. Then dissolve the starch in a saucepanful of hot water and pour the solution into a well filled bath of water at a temperature of 95 to 98 degrees, but not exceeding blood heat. Then to take the cure lie down flat in the bath—with all but the face and hair immersed—and remain there for at least twenty minutes. No more hot water must be added or the beneficial effect will be considerably marred. Paris is raving over the stimulating effects of such baths, which impart to the flesh a feeling as though one had bathed in rich cream. A starch bath is restful and soothing to the nerves and leaves a delightful sense of exhilaration for several hours afterward. The bath is best taken before breakfast or before dressing for dinner.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION DELEGATES MAKE REPORTS

Valuable Pointers for the Training of the Young People

Mr. R. J. Kidd, the president, presided at a representative meeting of the Sunday School Workers of the city, held at St. Andrew's Sunday day school hall last evening.

Mr. McKenzie reported regarding the work of the Adult Bible classes. He emphasized organization. All classes should aim to paint the picture of God upon the heart so that it could not be rubbed off.

The life of an adult class required activity, comradship, Bible study and soul-winning.

The bringing in of new scholars was a necessity. The roll-book should be put into the hands of certain pupils so that they might visit absentees. This was valuable also because of its social nature. In going out after new scholars pick out definite persons and send definite persons and send definite pupils to visit these. They should continue to visit the prospective members until they meet with success.

The Sabbbath school should reach from the cradle to the grave. Some of the scholars should visit old people who cannot go to the meetings. This brightens the life of the old and really develops the life of Christ in the visitors.

The teacher should visit the home of the scholar. Often he is the only spiritual life that enters the life of the home. Scholars are of different temperaments and to understand these visits to the home are quite necessary.

The social side of a class is apt to be emphasized too much, perhaps. The idea of club life is excellent in all classes. Debates, etc., draw out the ideas of the pupils. Mission study should balance this up and thus give a good all round development to the scholar.

Teachers should also guide pupils as to dangerous temptations and entanglements. Teachers must bring out good spiritual food out of each lesson. Make the lessons fit every day life. To-day's life is an extension of the Acts of the Apostles. We ought thus to make the lessons practical.

WINNING OF SOULS

Soul-winning is the most important work of the Bible class teacher. It is the teacher's duty to speak personally to every scholar in his class and not take anything for granted. This is a difficult thing to do and yet every teacher ought to overcome his diffidence in doing it.

Teachers ought to remember that they are taking mortal souls into their hands every time they enter the class.

It is not equipment, etc., that makes a successful class. The consecrated teacher is the chief factor of success. The teacher should study deeply at all times, regarding the lesson, and not limit himself to, perhaps, an hour's study. The teacher should think over the lesson at work or wherever he may be. Give the best that is in you to your class.

Let the class feel that each member is responsible for the welfare and growth of the class. Even God cannot accomplish without human aid, so every member ought to assist in bringing people to Christ. We do not know when we are helping others how much others may be helping us or our friends.

ELEMENTARY GRADES

Miss Logan gave quite a comprehensive review of the speakers and subjects of the elementary grades. Among other things she mentioned that even the youngest child should give regularly to the funds of the church, and that the pastor should give simple addresses to the children, or devote a part of each sermon to them. This added a great interest to the child in church services.

Mrs. Hilson reported on teacher training. The Bible deserves careful study and competent teachers as the age demands such. A teacher-training class ought to be organized and held during the regular session of the Sunday school, if no other time is available.

Examinations of those who take the teacher-training course are held at the convenience of the student. The secretary of the Sunday school Association of Ontario can provide all the information necessary for a teacher-training class, including books. There is no cost for the course but only for the books. Examinations on each book are held separately and can be taken at any time. This makes the course easier for all candidates.

The Mission Department was reported upon by Mrs. Parker.

The Sunday School is the place to give the missionary spirit. If it fails to do this it fails as a Sunday School. Teachers must therefore have the missionary vision of all the world redeemed for Christ. All the world should know about God as the teachings of Christ were for all nations, not for us alone. Teachers must thus be awake regarding conditions in the world. The Bible is all one great missionary book. The teacher must know the missionary facts. Remember your obligation to God in this regard.

Missionary pictures and motoes for walls are good to interest the junior pupils. Pictures of children in foreign lands, curios, etc., all add a great interest to the children. Impress upon the children that Christ was a great missionary.

Have pupils take an interest in some special field. Let boys have parliaments and discuss and debate missionary subjects. Have also good missionary books in the library and let teachers arouse an interest in these books. The teacher conduct the pupils in this regard. It is a good thing to have missionary books in the home. These should be made attractive in appearance in matter, so that the children will take an interest in reading them.

It is wise to have missionary talks early in each session of a Sunday school. These need not be long but will keep up the interest in missions.

TEMPERANCE.

Miss Curry reported on the Temperance Department.

She advocated organization in regard to temperance in each shcool. Temperance instruction should be of the highest quality and the quarterly Temperance Sunday should be arranged for some time ahead.

The Sunday School library contain good temperance books. Study also what the Bible contains regarding temperance. Use plenty of illustrations in teaching temperance lessons. Newspaper clippings are good to illustrate effects of intemperance.

Statistics showing the amount of money spent in liquor in comparison with other things, are valuable and such illustrations should be vivid. The standard in Sunday Schools should be to have every member sign the pledge.

The World's Temperance Sunday should be made an important day. Let the preachers preach temperance sermons, have temperance literature distributed and let the pupils sign the pledge. Have pupils recite temperance gems. Use all legitimate means to promote the cause of temperance.

Mr. Anderson gave a general report. He dealt chiefly with the intermediate classes—the boy in his teens. Boys should be organized; they organize in their play life, why not bind them together in Sunday Schools. Do not organize boys of all ages into clubs, but rather have the boys of about the same age. Organize for amusements. The organization must be the channel for the teachers to do his work. The teacher thus works from the inside instead of from the outside. The salvation of the boy must always, of course, be the aim.

The teacher should be the leader of the class. The boy's interest must be kept paramount; we must advance the Kingdom of God and guide the boy into right channels. Boys have special instincts such as the amusement instinct. Boys will pick up with chums and let the teacher be thus one of the great chums. The fighting instinct and the sex instinct much be rightly developed to promote courage and love and such goodly qualities. Boys readily change their associates and thus he can readily be brought under the influence of better associates if it is desired.

Clubs can take up a vast variety of amusements, as baseball etc. If plans fail, then the teacher is likely to be the one to blame. The teacher must study the boys and thus understand their characteristics, aims, etc. The Sabbath School teacher has really taken the place of the parent and thus each teacher must feel the responsibility of bringing the child to Christ, because if children are not brought to Christ early in life, the greatest chance of ever doing so is lost. There should be opportunities given the child to accept Christ.

Parents have also a responsibility in sending pupils to school. They should see that they are sent. The boy at first goes to day school because he is sent, so it ought to be in the Sunday School, after a while the boy will begin to think why he is going to the Sunday School and thus will arise opportunities to direct him right. The teacher must have the interest of the scholars at heart and must be thoroughly dedicated persons.

A very helpful discussion of the papers in general was then held.

PAVEMENTS NEED TO BE CLEANED

To Prevent Trouble With Storm Sewers

The paving of George and Hunter streets being now completed, so far as this year's operations are concerned, it would be well, in order to have a fair start, if the Street and Bridge Department would have the paved sections thoroughly swept. The curbs and water tables contain a large amount of sand and debris from the cement mixers, and rubbish as well. This will find its way into the storm sewers, if not removed, and to that extent assist in blocking the flow of surface water. Besides the cleaning up will afford a fair chance to view the improvement under fair conditions.

At the end of the paved section (crossing of Brock street) a trifle of street mending is in order. The depression in the street surface is deep now, and will be worse if not attended to.

CAME BACK AND GOT THREE MONTHS

Magistrate Couldn't Break His Word to Strangers

Thos. Ryan and Thos. Jones, who were discharged yesterday, came back again this morning to Police Court. At yesterday's session they were told to get out of the city by noon, but they couldn't leave the city.

"He was bound to get us. Its a piece of rotten spite work," remarked Ryan with a bitter look towards Constable Sills, who gave evidence that he found the both men drunk and disorderly.

"I told you yesterday I would give you six months if you came back, and I can't break my word," answered His Worship.

Their future address will be Central Prison for the next 180 days.

Manley Smith appeared in court, looking a hundred per cent better for his week's trip to the hill. He was fined $10, to be paid in ten days.

He also has many other deals pending, with prospects of an early settlement.

LUXURIOUS HOTELS

London Is Having an Epidemic of Hostelry Building.

London is being transformed in no sphere more markedly than in its hotels. Within the last few months a number of well-known hostelries have disappeared, and several ambitious schemes have been proposed to replace them. Among hotels that have recently closed their doors are the Gaiety Hotel and restaurant, the Inns of Court Hotel, the Capitol, in lower Regent street, while the Old Ship, at Greenwich, the Star and Garter, at Richmond, the Tollard, in Eagle street, the Albion, in Aldersgate street, and the Bedford Hotel, Covent Garden, also have been closed within the last year or two. The Salisbury Hotel, off Fleet street, is to be changed into an International Roman Catholic Club, but it will still give hotel accommodation to its members, together with an oratory as part of its equipment.

But the closing of old hotels is interesting no less for the sequel—the opening of new. Architectural splendors and modern luxuries are nowadays aimed at everywhere. The development of the hotel has gone hand in hand with the development of traveling facilities. Hotels de luxe are now to be found in every direction within reach of a 25 or 50 cent fare from Charing Cross, which is the hub of the hotel world in London. During the last ten years it has been computed that a sum of no less than $50,000,000 has been expended on hotel building in London.

Apparently it is generally accepted among hotel proprietors and shareholders that the building business is not being overdone, although statistics might be given to show that the great companies do not pay as they ought to pay.

"Luxury and more luxury is what is wanted," said the managing director of one large west-end hotel," and with the enormously greater number of people who live the hotel life this luxury can be provided at very little greater cost than when people were more modest in their wants. It is like the store and everything else — co-operative."

To meet the modern demand for artistic surroundings in the best hotels immense sums have been expended. In the frontage alone of one $5,000,000 was spent a few years ago and $150,000 on a new ballroom. About $400,000 was spent on the new winter gardens and palm courts at the Hotel Cecil, the spacious and beautifully decorated "Cecil Beach," as it has been called, which is sumptuously furnished in blue and gold and forms a charming approach to what is considered one of the finest hotel buildings in the world.

The newer hotels that have come into the fashionable life of London include the Ritz, famous for its luxury, and the Piccadilly Hotel, built at a cost of $2,500,000. The Strand Palace Hotel, with its no-tipping regime, has a piquant interest among the latest hotel enterprises, and the proprietors have two others at present under way to be run on the same lines. One is in course of erection at Piccadilly Circus, with frontages in Regent street and Shaftesbury avenue. Containing 1,000 bedrooms, it is being built at a cost of more than $5,000,000 and will be opened in 1914.

The other huge hotel of the no-tip variety, to be called the "Palatial," is shortly to be built at Baker street station. Another which is being erected, on the site of the historic Princess Theatre in Oxford street, will soon be complete. It will cost about $2,000,000, and will also contain 1,000 bedrooms. An offer of $40,000 a year has just been accepted by the London County Council as the rental on a ninety-nine years lease of a site in Aldwych Crescent, on which a hotel will be built.

The biggest hotel in the world will be erected at a cost of $8,000,000 on the site of St. George's Hospital Hyde Park Corner, which has been purchased for the purpose.

Reduced Him.

A London advertising expert was praising the change that has come over the advertisement. "In advertising, as in other things," he said, "it has been found that honesty pays, and to-day, throughout the world, the successful advertiser is modest and conservative in his statements. Advertising is no longer mistrusted. Things are no longer as they were in Phatts' day. He weighed over 400 pounds. Well, he saw an ad. in the paper — 'Fat folks reduced, one guinea'—and he answered it." "Did he get any reply?" asked a listener. "Oh, yes; it was just as advertised." "That's good. How much was he reduced?" "Why, just as the advertisement said—one guinea."

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Choral Society Granted Use of Hall at Collegiate

The Board of Education met in regular session last evening, with Chairman Morrison presiding, and the following members present: Messrs. Eastwood, Hayes, Turner, Miller Middleton, Burnham, Ackerman, Hill and Crane.

A letter from A. P. Brown & Co. soliciting trade from the Board, was referred to the Property Committee.

A letter from the St. George's Choral Society was received, and the Society's request for the use of the Assembly Hall on the night of the 25th was granted.

The Property Committee will deal with the matter concerning the charging of the power for the East City School, as per letter from the Peterborough Light and Power Company.

The request of Miss Nina Ross for two months' sick leave was granted.

THE SCHOLARSHIPS.

Principal Kenner, of the Collegiate Institute, wrote the Board that he had received instructions from the Deputy Minister of Education as to the highest marks, entitling them to the following awards:

Normal Entrance—Clarence McKee—$15.

Jr. Matriculation—Gladys Fife—[illegible]

Faculty Entrance 1—Beatrice Malane—$20.

Honor Matriculation — Meredith Huycke—$20.

Mr. Kenner advised the Board that the above amounts be paid over at the Commencement Exercises, which would be held about the last of the month.

On motion of Messrs. Hill and Middleton, the contractors for the two new schools, Messrs. Johnston and Langford, will be paid $2,000 on account, leaving fifteen per cent. of the amount unpaid.

REPORT ON APPOINTMENTS.

Your Committee on Appointments beg to report and recommend that Miss F. Daisy Walker, of Sylvan, Ont., and Miss Lucinda C. Kirkwood, of Terra Cotta, Ont., be appointed on the Public School staff, at salaries according to schedule, and duties to start January 5th, 1914.

All of the above are highly recommended, and your Committee are of the opinion they will give entire satisfaction.

Respectfully submitted.

W. H. HILL,
Chairman.

BUILDING COMMITTEE

Your Building Committee beg to report and recommend that the following furniture be purchased for each of the two new schools:

Principal's Room—Desk, chair and settee.

Lady Teacher's Room—Rocker, couch, chair, table, mirror.

The total cost of the above not to exceed one hundred an dninety-five dollars

After a self-made man has been elected to office two or three times he gets the idea that his death would be a public calamity. And maybe it would.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Flies and Dust.

One of the chief reasons why stomach complaints are more frequent in summer time than in the cold season of the year is the great prevalence of dust and flies. Dust is simply dirt and oftentimes the most filthy and fatal kind of dirt and is usually loaded with excretory matter and germs. All foods and drinks should be most rigidly protected from dust, whether in the shop, the pantry or on the dining room table, if one would avoid infection and disease. The fly must be looked upon as one of the greatest enemies of mankind and should be kept out of the home and away from all foods and drinks.

WOMEN WHO SMOKE.

London Tobacconist Tells of Weeds For Fair Sex.

"The average tradesman comes across more queer people in a month than the man who has never served behind a counter meets in a lifetime," said a tobacconist to a London reporter in the course of a recent conversation. "Of course, the majority of my customers are of the male persuasion, but I daresay my shop is visited by a hundred women or so every seven days. As a rule they buy cigarettes, most likely for their own consumption, for the fair sex, as you know, has taken to tobacco during the last few years. Ladies smoke cigarettes on their way to the theatre, they smoke on the return home, they smoke after luncheon in restaurants, and some of the least modest can be seen puffing the 'fag' on top of motor-'buses. The day is coming when women will smoke anywhere."

"In this neighborhood there is over a score of lady cigarette smokers who are numbered among my regular customers, and, curiously enough, half of them are married. This fact either points out that women are becoming masters of the household, so to speak, or that modern husbands see no harm in their wives puffing clouds of smoke as they busy themselves about the house.

"A month or two ago I was visited by a handsome lady of about forty-five summers whose complexion openly displayed the fact that she had spent many years abroad. She purchased from me a hundred small cigars, commonly known as 'whiffs.' Last week her husband came into the shop and asked for another hundred of the same kind, informing me that his wife had purchased a like number some time before. 'I am glad to know that they appealed to your taste, sir,' I said. His reply was a bit of a startler. 'I smoke nothing but a pipe,' he said quietly. 'The cigars are for her. She picked up the smoking habit in Spain.'

"Last spring an old man wearing a threadbare coat, and whose boots were badly in need of new heels and new soles, crept timidly into my shop and asked the price of the best cigar I had. 'Far more than you would care to pay,' I answered, taking my visitor to be as poor as the proverbial church mouse. 'I asked for the price of your best cigar, not for an insult,' gasped the old man angrily. With that I brought down from a top shelf a box and opened it under his nose. 'They're a shilling each, sir, but if you purchase them by the hundred I can do them at a little less.' 'Ah!' ejaculated the aged and ragged individual as he carefully examined them, 'I'll take ten at present.' He paid and went away, and I fell to wondering who he could be. A few days later a man in livery came in and ordered a thousand of the cigars I had sold his master—the man in the threadbare coat. I learnt from the servant that the shabby old man was eccentric, especially where his personal appearance was concerned. It was his whim to pose occasionally as a man without a penny, when all the time he had a banking account that ran into six figures."

GIRL BROKE SHOULDER BONE IN ESCAPING FROM ROOM

Twelve-year-Old Lass Fails to Appreciate Kindness of Foster Parents

In Shakespeare's representation of Julias Caesar he pictures Brutus as a very wise and discreet man. The only section in all the great writer's work where literary men of the present age are wont to criticize, is the part where Brutus tells what should be done to Ceasar, "and therefore, think him as a serpent's egg, which hatch'd would as his kind grow mischievous and kill him in the egg." The reason for the criticism is that at the present age the custom is to give a person a chance to become better if he or she is mischievous when young, but we have an instance in this city where a child is truly like a "serpent's egg" and in growing is becoming not only mischievous but also villanous.

Some eleven years ago, a man and wife both well known and highly respected residents of this city were bereaved of their only daughter. To lessen to some extent the inevitable loneliness, they corresponded with an institution and obtained a little girl then nearly two years old. With nothing in the way of financial conditions to trouble them they thought that this little girl would be a comfort to them in their old age but alas! she has been a total disappointment. The past eleven years have been nothing but a series of sorrowful days for this elderly couple and although they have tried in every way to bring her up as a model child, she has, like Brutus predicted about Caesar, "become mischievous."

TWELVE YEARS OLD

It is hard to understand the strange actions of this child, who is now about twelve years of age. From her first advent to school she has been a truant, and for days at a time she would leave for school regularly and yet would never attend. She would go to nearby grocers and obtain on her foster parents name various dainties, notwithstanding the fact that she could have these at home if she would ask for them. She would take money from her home and spend it and she carried off various articles and gave them away. She is truly a very young kleptomaniac and this last three weeks her wild tactics have known no bounds.

She went to school one day last week and had not arrived home at six o'clock, so a search party set out and about ten o'clock she was found sleeping in a near-by vacant house. The man and wife, who were nearly broken hearted, thought it best to send her to the shelter. The child was wise enough to know that her wild pranks would be stopped and begged to be given another chance. As she had been so long under the roof of these kind people, they had, despite her mischievous ways, became attached to her and they thought that perhaps she would turn over a new leaf. Monday morning she started out for school and didn't come home to dinner or supper. Immediately after six o'clock several neighbors set out mid the heavy rain to try and locate her, and she was found a few minutes before midnight between two outhouses of a residence some distance away. The patience of the people was about exhausted, and it was decided to send her away as soon as the authorities could be communicated with.

JUMPS FROM WINDOW

The next morning she was put in her room and the door locked, for she had threatened to run away. Her foster mother is not in the best of health and could not possibly catch her if she once started out, so the only way to keep her till the authorities arrived, was to lock her in. About nine o'clock she was gone and how she had escaped was a mystery. An examination of the house revealed nothing, and, with the exception of an upstair window being open, the house was in good order. It was not thought likely that she would get out a window some 14 feet from the ground. She was searched for but not found. A few minutes before six o'clock last night she returned. She was crying and said she broke her arm. She was questioned as to how the accident happened and she told a very feeble story about getting hurt at school but when asked how she had got out of the house in the morning she admitted jumping from the upstair window.

After some deliberation she told how she fell on her back and hurt her arm, but still maintained that she had been to school. Dr. M. McCullough was summoned and the shoulder bone was found to be broken. It is beyond imagination how a little child only twelve years old could remain away all day with a broken shoulder, yet such was the case.

The fracture was reduced this morning, and just what steps the sadly disappointed foster parents will take remains to be seen.

OMEMEE NEWS

Special Correspondence.

OMEMEE, Nov. 4.—At Mount Pleasant, on Wednesday afternoon, at the home of Mr. Joseph Lowe, wedding bells were ringing merrily, the occasion being the marriage of his daughter, Miss Jessie, to Mr. Geo. H. Keen, of Toronto. The Rev. H. J. Keith, of Peterborough, officiated.

To the strains of the Wedding March played by Master Herman McLean the bride entered the parlor, attired in white crepe and brocaded crepe de chene, trimmed with shadow lace and pearls. Her bouquet was orchids and lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Mary Lowe was the flower girl; she carried a shepherd's crook. Miss Evelyn Bland was the bearer of the ring, which was nestled in the folds of a cushion of white satin. Both maids were dressed in pink voile with lace trimmings. The gift of the groom to the bride was a handsome gold wrist watch; to the bride's attendants, gold bracelets, and to the musician, a pearl stick pin. The invited guests, to the number of 30 or 40, partook of a sumptuous wedding breakfast, after which the young couple were accompanied to the 4.50 p.m. train at Cavanville. The usual confetti and old shoes were not omitted. Mr and Mrs. Keen will visit on their honeymoon trip, Toronto, Buffalo and New York. The bride is a very popular young lady, and her esteem was evidenced by the large number of choice, pretty and costly gifts presented to her. The groom is a prominent business man of Toronto, in which city Mr. and Mrs. Keen will reside.

Last week Mr. Eli Dancey shipped two cars of stock from Bethany and four from Omemee. On Saturday morning he and Mr. W. J. Moore left for Calgary, Alta., with two cars of cattle.

The W.F.M.S. of the Presbyterian Church will meet at the home of Mrs. A. G. Hodgetts' on Wednesday afternoon. Miss Lamb will give a paper on the subject for study. All ladies of the congregation are specially invited Great sympathy is felt for Mr. and Mrs. John Sandy, whose son, Edward Wellington Sandy, was called away to eternity at the early age of 13 years. From the family residence, Concession 14, Cavan, the funeral took place on Monday afternoon, a large representation of friends turning out to the obsequies. Interment took place at the Emily Cemetery.

Hallowe'en has come and gone without much of the often customary petty and annoying pranks. Some of the small children indulged in taffy pulls or appeared on the street in masquerade costume, scampering about ringing door-bells and having a jolly good innocent time. Our adults were splendid models of discretion and who will deny them the praise due suchmodern wisdom?

Dr. Cameron of Peterboro came to town on Sunday in his car.

The Rev. Mr. Cree of Norwood preached excellent sermons, morning and evening, in the Presbyterian church, Omemee, last Sabbath. Next Sunday being Missionary Sabbath, an exchange of preachers will be general in all the Peterboro Presbytery. Rev. R. Johnston of Millbrook will conduct the service in Omemee Presbyterian Church, at 11 a.m.

Mr A. E. Byers spent the week end with his daughter, Mrs. White of Sturgeon street.

Our drayman's horses, taking note of their driver's absence from the rig for a few minutes on Friday afternoon, dashed up King and Sturgeon streets and entered the Presbyterian church sheds a little winded but having done no damage.

The hunters of town have been discussing the subject of their annual shoot at the fleet-footed, nimble deer, and some have left with others to follow for the north country to try their luck.

At 6 p.m. on Wednesday last, a very pretty wedding was celebrated at the home of Mr. James H. Best, when his youngest daughter, Maud, was joined in the holy bonds of wedlock to Mr. Thos. Magee of Omemee Rev. D. H. Currie performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The number, beauty and utility of the presents to the bride attested her esteem and popularity. Mr. and Mrs. Magee will reside in town where both are well and favorably known, Mr. Magee being a member of our town council

Mrs. Sheppard of Coldwater is the guest of her mother, Mrs. N. Clarke of George street.

Miss Wray, teacher of the classes in the primary room, went to her home at Lindsay on Thursday evening suffering from a severe cold. Her many friends wish her a speedy recovery.

All Saints' Church, Peterborough, was the scene of a quiet wedding on Wednesday. In the presence of a number of friends and relatives, Miss Mona Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Wilson was married to Mr. Sluggitt, both of Omemee Rev. Mr. Grobb was the officiating clergyman. On the return to Omemee, the celebrants and friends partook of a dainty wedding supper. The bride was the recipient of many handsome and expensive presents, showing the high esteem in which she is held. The young couple are popular and will reside in Omemee.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wylie, of Toronto were in town on Wednesday attending the Sluggitt-Wilson wedding.

On the evening of Oct. 22nd, a pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. Joseph H. Lowe, of Mt. Pleasant, when a surprise party—in honor of Miss Jessie Lowe—entered, and presented the young lady with a miscellaneous shower. The bride-elect received many beautiful and useful gifts, showing the marked appreciation of her numerous friends. The evening was spent in music, games and the serving of refreshments. Jessie had been a valued member of the Presbyterian choir, was a devoted advocate of all movements for the public good and her friends in saying good-bye to her expressed many felicitious wishes.

Miss Gladys Henderson, of Toronto, is staying for a short time at her home here.

Miss Parrington has returned after a visit with friends out of town.

Mr. W. H. Kennedy called on his friends at Nestleton last week.

Mr. Dewey Stinson, of Norland, was the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Stinson, on Monday.

Mr. John G. Staples principal of the Omemee Public School, was a business visitor to Lindsay last Saturday.

Mrs. C. Fairbairn, of Lindsay, visited her daughter, Mrs. Henry Magee.

Mr. Gordon Wright, of Peterborough, was in town on Monday week.

Dr. Simms did not visit Omemee officially this week, but he will be here next Monday.

Mr. Joseph Bradley has rented a farm of Mr. Robert Thorn, at Reaboro and also Mrs. Watson's farm.

Misses Cora and Ella Switzer, of Bethel, paid a visit to friends at Midland.

Mr. Ira Gardiner, of Franklin, was a recent visitor to Omemee.

Mr. Fred Corneil, of Peterborough Normal, was home for over the week end.

Miss Maye McConnell, of Keene, was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. G. McConnell.

Miss Bessie Irwin, of Sharbot Lake, is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Carey, of George street.

SIMPLE SPELLING

Addressing the education section of the British Association at Birmingham, Sir W. Ramsay described our present system of spelling as an abortion and entirely unscientific. There must be simplification. Foreign students had the utmost difficulty in learning English because they had to learn the written proper language, the sort of language that we spoke, and the language that should be spoken. (Laughter.) The trouble occasioned to foreigners ought to be reduced by at least one-third. He did not regard the American system of simplification as a good one because it consisted in taking out a number of words and altering the spelling. The English reform system would enable ayone to spell in five minutes, although he admitted that some words would look strange. That, however, was not an insuperable obstacle, and could be surmounted.

"Spelling always seems to me a matter of providence," said Sir Oliver Lodge. "I happen to have no difficulty about spelling." Bad spelling struck him like a bad note in music. He knew it was wrong, if not why it was wrong. "I have known scholarly people unable to spell," said Sir Oliver, "but I think in their cases they knew too many modern languages. I would not worry children too much about spelling. Our ancestors never bothered about it. The real thing is the spoken language, and the object of writing it is to convey our meaning; to convey that particular word, and whether you spell it in our way or the way Mr. Andrew Carnegie spells it does not much matter. Someone had said that Mr. Carnegie spelt deplorably, the suggestion being that he was not educated. But Mr. Carnegie does it of set purpose." (Laughter.)

IF women resembled angels at Deauville this summer because of their diaphanous finery, they will certainly look like them this winter in some of the new ball gowns. Sleeves are nil in the really up to date models. A seeming mist of tulle and laces, long and scarflike in shape, is draped over bust and bare arms, covered at most by a simple kimono slip of flesh colored chiffon. This naturally accents the already transparent look given by the tulle and laces. The floating scarves fly out charmingly as the wearer moves or dances, often giving the illusion of wings.

In spite of the elegant ceremoniousness of the season's brocaded fabrics used to make the lower part of these gowns, few boast trains. Even when the occasion requires a train, it does not consist of sweeping yards of material trailing their damasked loveliness over polished floors, but an extended panel or breadth, lengthened out just enough to flop about the feet of the wearer with every step. One or two new models show trains of exaggerated length, but they are simply individual fashions, not "the" fashion. Even in the models of trained gowns the slash is still present, but instead of being at the front and side as last season, it is considered smarter to have it at the back of the gown. This may be because of these dances having the knee bending dips and quick backward steps, and, alas, the skirt hem still measures only about twenty-seven inches around in the most exclusive French model gowns.

A typical dress, having style details that shape the ultra fashionable contour of the figure, is shown here in a back and a front view. Ideal for a stout or matronly figure, either young or old, it has the princess lines so difficult to find in the present modes. Of blue and gold brocade interwoven with tinsel threads and in Persian pattern, it shapes over the bust in softly wrinkled folds; below the hips it is tightened in about the feet by a wide draped breadth of the material, which seemingly melts into the rest of the gown. At the back there is the desirable slash to give the necessary ease in walking and dancing. Blue tulle, draped in a veritable winglike fashion, veils the bare arms and filmy slip of flesh colored chiffon; both are held at the pointed décolleté by a garland band of bright passementerie.

All in black is another gown with winglike shoulder draperies. In this the sash is in the front of the skirt, which, in itself, is about as unlike an ordinary skirt as any heretofore seen. Wide and shapeless, a breadth of one of the very wide satin materials, it is gathered unevenly into the waist line under a wide girdle, and caught up at one side under a black and gold buckle slide, Chinese in design and character. A black Chantilly lace shoulder drapery is posed over the inevitable flesh pink chiffon slip. In front it forms an embroidered décolleté and drops in the back like folded wings.

Such gowns are a success, not because the woman who wears them is stout or thin, but because they are worn over an up to date corset. This does not necessarily mean one of the lackadaisical new elastic models with curves—it would be folly for a very stout woman to attempt to wear that kind—but a corset that makes the best of one's figure regardless of the wearer's size.

Two amusing dresses for youthful figures, shown here, are delightfully up to date. One has a minaret tunic combined with the new shaped girdle, the other is a filmy slashed affair with a skirt resembling Turkish trousers. This latter effect is gained by the long slash in front that allows the dress to fall in about the feet and give it that illusion. The bayadere sash swathes the figure in true Turkish fashion. The gown is of crystal beaded net over white satin; the girlish blouse has an inset of plain chiffon down the shoulders and sleeves. The silk sash fairly glows with warm Oriental tones. A gold lace and beaded cocked hat, jauntily posed, has two long aigrette ornaments at one side, caught by a blue cabochon ornament.

Of black satin, both the skirt and sash in another model contrast in color and texture with the white filet lace tunic that is lightly wired about the edge. The gown top is of white chiffon, the elbows defined by black tulle frills. As a gown for a débutante it is perfect, but it also contains style details enough for half a dozen frocks for the girl who must be satisfied with less beautiful materials and simpler dressmaking in her day and evening dresses.

Fashionable Details for the Autumn One Piece Suit.

AS a daytime costume the one piece dress is so firmly rooted in feminine favor that it is now considered an indispensable adjunct to every woman's outfit. It is especially suited to our climate, which is too warm in summer to allow for a coat and too cold during most of the winter for anything but long fur or heavy cloth coats. It slips nicely under the automobile coat and is equally good taste when worn to the business office under a fur or storm coat.

One piece dresses have their dressmaking peculiarities. The skirt is seldom lined, an under princess slip or clinging underskirt answering the purpose well enough. Waists are lined in two different fashions. Sometimes there is a simple fitted lining of white silk to protect the underwear from the dark materials of which such dresses are often made. This lining has an added wide girdle of belting about the waist, which holds the weight of the skirt and allows the corsage to blouse slightly. Other dresses have only a little net lining that looks like a party chemise with no armhole and straps over the shoulders to hold the body part in place. This light and skeletonlike under lining serves to hold the corsage in place. A strap of stiffened belting holds it at the waist.

One piece dresses are to be found in every sort of material, from the pique and cotton ratines used by the college girl to the elaborate brocaded crêpes and ottoman weaves for matinee, five o'clock tea or calling. In the more elegant models it only takes a matching coat wrap to make a complete street costume, of which, if carried out in velvet or satin, the coat may sometimes serve for a wrap with other dresses.

A front slash on a simulated underskirt has the appearance of being discreetly buttoned in a one piece dress that has especially well arranged style details. The gown is of black satin, and it also is slashed most of the way up the centre seam of the skirt. The simulated skirt, of cherry colored satin, shows under this wider slash and looks as if it were buttoned closely all the way down the slash seam by round cherry enamel buttons. Both of these skirt slashes have the lower corners rounded off. A cherry satin sash does not encircle the waist, but crosses the skirt diagonally, tying low at one side, and has heavily fringed ends. A slender net and lace frilled fichu finishes the décolleté, passing between two collars at the back. Two lace frills finish each long sleeve. A tiny black satin hat is worn, banded and decorated by two large butterfly loops of velvet. A Japanese apple cluster is thrust into the belt.

A clever tunic effect is arranged in a black and white dress. The dress, of white liberty satin, is laid in loose unstitched pleats in the front of the blouse, the collar and shoulder yoke being of a beautifully hand embroidered batiste. The skirt is half white material and the black satin is added as if it were a deep fold. Both are cut on straight breadths, so that the pleats in the skirt do not extend to the dress hem, a detail of the new skirts.

Simple but very up to date lines are to be seen in a bright blue Shantung frock. There is a slight baggy effect made by the shaping of the side skirt seams. The long sleeved blouse is cut away to disclose a white satin vest outlined with two white lace revers ruffles. The yoke is of white tucked net with a lace sailor collar finishing off the round neck. A pink rose gives a touch of contrasting color at the belt.

"DAD" STEWART SAVES MAN FROM BEING KILLED BY TRAIN

Medal Due Right Fielder of London Ball Team

The following from the Haldimand Advocate, published at Cayuga, refers to Carl "Dad" Stewart manager of the St. Thomas Canadian League baseball team in 1912 and right fielder of the London Club in 1913. Mr. Stewart is now a brakeman on the Wabash Railway out of St. Thomas.

"While returning from the glass factory Tuesday evening, Mr. Gubbins not seeing the engine of the local backing up to take water, stepped immediately behind the caboose. In a second the train would have been over him had it not been for the bravery of brakeman Stewart. At the risk of his own life Stewart jumped from the end of the caboose and caught Mr. Gubbbins, throwing them both on the side clear of the track, the train passing on just grazing them as they lay on the cinders. Brakeman Stewart undoubtedly saved the life of Mr. Gubbins and deserves more than mere words for his bravery and should be awarded a life-saving medal."

Dark Enough.

The sort of story most in favor for serial publication in many newspapers is apt to be tragical and bloody in the extreme.

A contributor offered a continued story intended for such publication to the head of a syndicate.

"Is your story sufficiently dramatic?" asked the syndicate manager. "Does it contain crimes, poisonings? Is it dark enough?"

"Dark?" reiterated the author in surprise. "Why, the moment you begin to read it you'll think you're on a train and have gone right into the tunnel!"—Detroit Free Press.

POETS AS PUGILISTS.

Maeterlinck Can Use His Fists as Did Byron and Others.

According to a French newspaper, the Cri de Paris, Maurice Maeterlinck, the Belgian poet and dramatist, some time ago agreed to spar a number of rounds with Carpentier, the celebrated heavyweight champion of Europe. The poet and the pugilist appeared on behalf of a deserving Paris charity.

The author of "Pelleas et Melisande" is thus following in the steps of another celebrated poet, Lord Byron, who prided himself on being a skilled boxer. He frequently attended meetings of the "fancy" at Cribb's and elsewhere, and in his diary he writes: "I have been sparring with Jackson this morning and mean to continue and renew my acquaintance with my mufflers. My wind is in good plight, and I am not in flesh. I used to be a hard hitter."

From Byron's friend and fellow bard, Percy Bysshe Shelley, such a resolution would have been impossible; yet, although in every sense of a retiring disposition, he could when needful resent an insult in true British style. Keats used to relate how Shelley once astonished a drunken and abusive waterman by pitching into him in such unexpectedly vigorous style with his fists that the fellow soon bawled for mercy.

Keats himself, although constitutionally delicate, was broad shouldered and possessed no small amount of physical strength. He was, indeed, well able to take his own part, as he conclusively proved when assaulted by a hectoring butcher, who mistook for cowardice the poet's naturally retiring manner. Quickly did he find out his error as he rose, amid the jeering laughter of his companions, from the mud into which he had been sent by a straightly delivered blow.

SIGN OF THREE BALLS

IT WAS DERIVED FROM FAMOUS SHIELD OF THE MEDICI.

Florentine Family Whose Operations In the Field of Banking and Loans Brought Them Enormous Wealth Ruled the Civilized World For Three Centuries — Six Balls at First.

Back in the 13th century, there lived in Florence, Italy, a family called Medici, whose chief business was running the city of Florence and most of the banks in the civilized world.

Besides owning a large number of banks, the Medici had a monopoly on the loan business in that part of the country. Their coat of arms was a shield with six balls emblazoned on it, but as the loan business spread to other parts of the world and slipped out of the Medici hands, three balls and the shield were dropped and the remaining three, suspended over a doorway, have always sufficed to indicate that within money can be borrowed.

No other house in mediaeval Europe can boast of such a strange career as that of the Medici. Bankers by profession, possessing no military resources, gifted with no experience in war, aided by no general convulsion, they established a despotism which lasted for three centuries. The Medici owed their earliest distinction to their success in various branches of commerce which brought them enormous wealth, and the liberal spirit with which they devoted their money to general utility.

Cosmo de Medici was fond of paying the taxes of those who had run behind and so when he suggested to this large majority of the city that he would like to take a hand in running Florence as it ought to be run, they all agreed that they should like to see him do it. And when a rival family, called the Albizzi, established a successful opposition against the policy and credit of the Medici rule, they came forward and chased the presumptuous Albizzi clear up to Venice; and Cosmo, who had been banished to the same city, came back and became the uncrowned King of Florence, and was given the title, "Father of His Country."

The most famous member of the family was Lorenzo, surnamed the Magnificent. He was a grandson of Cosmo, and besides running loan shops and banks in France, England, the Low Countries, the Levant and a few other places, he became the virtual head of the Florence state, and what he said was law. He had a crowd of five or six men hanging around who, theoretically, had something to say about how the city should be governed, but Lorenzo merely ignored them, and they were glad to be allowed to draw their salaries.

Before he succeeded to power, and while his father, Pietro, was getting things in smooth running order for him, Lorenzo married Clarice Orsini, a member of one of the greatest families in Italy. Lorenzo was not very enthusiastic as he had had his eye on a certain black-eyed Lucrezia Donati, but his wise father realized the benefit of an alliance with the Orsini who divided the most of territorial Italy with their hereditary enemies, the Colonna. Besides the house was famous for its numerous cardinals and gay blades, valuable considerations in those days.

In 1478, the conspiracy of the Pazzi came near putting an end to the Medici, but after much mutual murder and with the help of the Orsini, Lorenzo got a firmer hold on the state of Florence than ever, so that in the end he was glad he took Clarice instead of running after Lucrezia.

Lorenzo now started in to rule his native city as it had never been ruled before. He followed in the footsteps of his grandfather and won the favor of the lower classes, thereby making absolute his own power. And to win the favor of the highbrows, struggling authors and the club women he encouraged literature and the arts, employed learned men to collect choice books and antiquities for him from every part of the known world, established printing presses in his dominions, founded academies for the study of classical learning and filled his gardens with a collection of the remains of ancient art. He himself wrote a number of poems and dramatic compositions, and could talk Greek and Latin as well as he did Italian. When his munificence and conciliatory manners had gained for him the affection of the higher and the devotion of the lower classes, Lorenzo lost no time in making use of his popularity. While they were all praising him and telling each other what a noble fellow he was, he slipped in and took away from them all forms of constitutional independence that he and his predecessors had allowed to exist.

Some few Florentines, alarmed by the progress of the voluptuous refinement which was smothering every spark of personal independence, tried to call a halt on Lorenzo and stem the current of corruption by an ascetic severity of morals, which gained for them the name of "piagnoni," or weepers. Foremost among them was the Dominican friar, Girolamo Savonarola, whose eloquent appeal to the people in favor of a popular government and a life of asceticism threatened for a time to overthrow the Medici. But after Lorenzo's death a reaction against the monk's preaching set in and he was burned at the stake.

Lorenzo's name is associated with all forms of loveliness, yet his physical personality was peculiarly unlovely. He was above the middle height and strongly built, but his face was undeniably plain, the nose flat and spreading, the chin sharp, the complexion sallow and the eyes weak. His movements were exaggerated and ungainly, his voice harsh and croaking. His sense of smell was almost wholly lacking.

BELGIAN CUCUMBERS

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.

The county of Vernon in a certain middle state was at peace. Farmers, mechanics and merchants met each other and asked:

"How is old Vernon county?"

And the answer would be:

"Old Vernon county is all right—you bet!"

Fifty men saw X. M. Davis, as he came to be known, when the bus drove up to the inn at Clifton with him as the only passenger. He was a middle aged man, and he had the face of a true American patriot. He had come to give Vernon county such a chance to get rich as had never been held out to her before. Years ago his grandfather had died and had been buried in that county, and it was consecrated ground to him. That is why he had come to it instead of any other county.

Mr Davis had come to Clifton direct from Europe. He had gone over there to study the agriculture of the country at his own expense. He had returned with what might be called a great find. The Belgians were almost secretly growing a specimen of cucumber that was bound to revolutionize the world.

It was amazingly prolific.

One acre of ground would grow 5,000 cucumbers, each three feet long and weighing five pounds.

It was like eating oranges. It was a breakfast food in itself. It left behind it an exhilaration not known to any other vegetable in the world.

This cucumber was certain to take the place of grains of all sort in a year or two more and would displace the potato and the turnip entirely.

Mr. Davis did more than talk and exhibit seeds. He put $50 cash in bank as a prize to the person raising the most Belgian cucumbers the next spring or summer. It was November then. Between November and April Mr Davis sold over $3,000 worth of seeds and received his money for them.

When he went away he went boldly, and he left the prize money in the bank. By so doing he escaped all suspicion.

Now came a mystery. In Clifton lived a widow named Lee. She had been there only two years, and the people knew little about her. She was nearly six feet tall, rugged and strong, and she neighbored with none. She went to Mr. Davis for some seeds, but refused to pay the price. She offered only a penny apiece and when turned down made use of some very strong language.

April was a forward month in Vernon county, and the cucumber vines were beginning to run by the middle of May. One night some one pulled up and stacked the vines in ten different gardens. They found tracks of a man's boots, but nothing further. The next night more gardens suffered. Just who to suspect was a puzzler, but of course it was a case of jealousy and spite. Every man who had any vines set a watch on them.

Deacon Tracy was the first one to report a clew. He had half an acre of vines and was sitting up to watch for the vandal when a man came suddenly upon him and knocked him senseless. When he recovered his wits his vines had been destroyed. Tracks left by a man's boots—that was all.

Of course there were excitement and indignation. A reward of $5 was offered for the arrest of the marauder, and owners of vines as yet untroubled hired watchmen. Then the man of night betook himself out among the farmers. He raided far and wide. He destroyed nothing but the cucumber vines, but he did not spare a bill of them that he could get at. He was chased by men and dogs; he was shot at; traps were set for him in twenty different places, yet no one earned that reward.

At Farmer Johnson's place he and his son were hidden in the smoke house when the unknown appeared. He had scarcely pulled a vine when they were upon him. Both were strong men, but the struggle was over in a minute. The unknown knocked them both silly and got away with their hats and pieces of their shirts as souvenirs. It was figured that he had got such a scare, however, that he would not appear again. He returned next night when no one was watching and attacked the vines.

The excitment was now at fever heat, and the whole county was asking what should be done, when the marauder came to his end. A widow named Jones had twenty hills of vines she was watching. She had an old army carbine, and a neighbor had loaded it for her. She was watching from a window, and as the man of night appeared and began his work she fired at him. He dropped, but struggled up and ran.

A hundred men turned out and searched the streets and alleys and the country around, but they did not find the wounded man. They had given up the quest when word went round that no one had seen the Widow Lee for three days. The locked doors of her house were broken open, and she was found dead on the floor. A bullet had struck her in the chest—the bullet fired by the other widow. She was dressed as a man from head to heel and had false whiskers besides.

The Belgian cucumbers? Oh, they were a fraud, of course—just plain, everyday American cucumbers, with the usual 90 per cent water. It's just as easy to swindle a whole county as it is to swindle a single man. All you have to do is to get a new idea.

Twenty-Two Years Spent in Central Africa

Rev. J. R. Webb Tells the Story of a Disciple of Livingstone

The Ladies' Missionary Circle of Murray Street Baptist Church held a Thankoffering Service last evening. Rev. J. R. Webb, pastor, gave a lecture on Dan Crawford, the famous missionary, who recently returned to England from Africa, after an absence of 22 years.

Mr. Webb told of how he met Dan Crawford at the Northfield Convention this year, and gave some graphic descriptions of the meetings and of the personality of the missionary. He described Mr. Crawford as a rather short man inclined to stoutness and told how he had personal interviews with him during the convention.

LIVINGSTONE HIS HERO.

The story of Dan Crawford's missionary life is one of the most interesting since Livingstone, and almost as marvellous as that of the famous missionary. Dan Crawford went to Africa in 1887, he was then nineteen years of age, his health had broken down and he was ordered to go to a warmer climate. He had at that time been reading the life of Livingstone and was so fascinated with the story of the African explorer-missionary that he made Livingstone his hero. He decided to go to Africa and set out determined to explore the place which Livingstone had hoped, but had failed, to reach.

LAND OF LONG GRASS.

He described his exploits into Africa as "boring in—shut in—boring out." Mr. Webb brought out many interesting points in the life of Crawford among the Africans. The natives of Central Africa had never heard of the name "Africa" until Dan Crawford told them ;they called it "The Land of the Long Grass," for the grass grows from thirteen to twenty-two feet high, and this was the chief difficulty he had to contend with in "boring in." For twenty-two months he "bored" through this grass and could see nothing but the sky "like a strip of blue ribbon" above him.

The natives who journeyed with him gave him the name of "Mr. No Toes" because he wore boots. He said he had lived one thousand miles from any store and six hundred miles from the nearest white missionary. He had many encounters with lions, and had on a number of occasions saved the lives of natives by the use of his rifle, but although he had been twenty-two years in Central Africa, and had many times been threatened and had found himself in tight corners, he had never shot a human being.

"GOD WAS A FOOL."

When Dan Crawford first told the Gospel story to the natives, they asked him why God let His Son die if He was good? They said that "God was a fool to let His Son die." But Mr. Crawford told them how that the foolishness of God was wiser than the wisdom of man.

Mr. Webb told the story of this wonderful missionary in a bright and interesting way and there were many illustrations which are worthy of recording if space permitted.

The first thing that Crawford saw when he came out into civilization after 22 years, were the two steel rails of a railroad, and the sight so overcame him that he broke down and blubbered like a baby."

The name by which Dan Crawford is known among the natives is "Son of God" and he cannot disuade them from using this name. Dan Crawford does not desire to introduce denominations into Africa, but he confesses himself "a Methodist." He goes back to Africa next February "never to come out again."

The meeting of the Circle was one of the most successful ever held at Murray street, both from point of view of attendance and offering.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

At 5.30 last night the Fire Brigad was summoned to a chimney fire on Carlisle avenue. There was no damage.

Owing to the serious illness of Mr. J. J. Evans, B.A., of Toronto, who was to have addressed the Charlotte Street Literary Society on Friday night, the lecture has been postponed indefinitely.

There will be a meeting of the executive of the local Council of Women in the Board Room of the Public Library, on Friday, November 7, at 4.15 p.m. A full attendance is desired. Convenors who have reports to present are asked to be present.

Local Conncil of Women Ask Board of Education to Supply Room for Meetings

MEDICAL INSPECTION URGED

Two deputations from the local Council of Women appeared before the Board of Education last night. The first deputation was composed of Mrs. Rev. Rollins, Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. J. C. Davidson and Mrs. Stevenson. Mrs. Rollins asked that the Board grant the use of one room in one of the schools, one night each month, for the purpose of holding lectures and discussions for the benefit of the mothers, and also to promote the higher interests of parents.

"Owing to the number of young girls visiting the cheap places of amusement here, we are going to conduct these meetings for the purpose of advancing the higher moral views of the home," said Mrs. Rollins.

Mr. Hill said that the suggestion was one of the best. The matter was referred to the Supervision Committee with power to act.

MEDICAL INSPECTOIN

The second deputation, Dr. Jessie Birnie, Mrs. (Dr.) Sutton and Miss Davidson asked that the Board take up the matter of Medical Inspection among the schools.

Dr. Birnie pointed out that it was impossible to stop the diseases among the school children without the medical inspection

Chairman Morrison— "I am certainly in favor of the matter and of the opinion that, probably, we could get the assistance of one of the nurses of the Health Association.

The chairman also pointed out the big expense the Board was under in the building of the new schools so that it be rather hard to get a doctor to assume charge of the matter at present.

"Educate the people to the danger, and start the project on a small scale," was the opinion of Dr. Middleton who also mentioned that the matter had been discussed at the regular sessions of the Board, on previous occasions.

Mr. Turner suggested that the Medical Health Officer might be able to look after the matter.

Mr. Hill pointed out that eighty-five per cent of the children in a school in Montreal, were found to be affected.

Mr. Grane told the ladies that the matter had been discussed on other occasions and that this time it would be most favorable dealt with.

After the ladies departed, Inspector Mowat said that only the other day he had occasion to find a little girl at the North Ward school, who could not see the black board when only three feet away. He had sent several different cases to Dr. MacPherson.

Mr. Eastwood was of the opinion that the best thing to do would be to get some information from some of the places that have medical inspection.

The matter will be dealt with by the Supervision Committee.

REPORT IN EVENING TECHNICAL CLASSES

Efforts of Teachers Meeting With Large Measure of Success Enrollment of 235

Mr. Vincent Eastwood presented the following report to the Board of Education last night:

Gentlemen,—The Industrial, Technical and Art Education Committee have pleasure in submitting to you the report of our Supervising Principal. This report, you will observe, gives a list of teachers engaged by the Committee for the different classes established, the number enrolled, the number of fees paid, the average attendance and the liability incurred in the matter of supplies, apart from the teachers' salaries.

We are greatly encouraged with the work and with the zeal and industry shown by the Supervising Principal and his staff. We hand you herewith a copy of the report, which we would ask the Secretary to forward to Dr. Merchant, of the Department of Education, Toronto, with the request that he may find the opportunity to pay a visit to the classes at an early convenient date.

Respectfully submitted.
V. EASTWOOD,
Chairman.

Gentlemen,—As Supervising Principal of your Industrial Classes I have the honor to report as follows:

Acting with your sub-committee the following teachers have been engaged, and our record of attendance goes to show that their efforts are meeting with a large measure of success. Mr. Ford Turner and Mr. Bowness are taking the three classes in Mechanical Drawing and Mathematics. Miss Welsh and Miss Rose take Thursday Dressmaking class. Miss Howell and Miss Wilson take Monday and Tuesday Dressmaking class. Miss Dawson takes the Millinery class. Miss Ferguson takes three classes in Domestic Science. Mr. Firth, of the Collegiate Institute staff, takes Electricity.

Following is the enrollment by classes:

	No. Enrolled.	Fees paid
Drafting and mathematics	60	53
Dressmaking	66	61
Domestic Science	60	50
Millinery	19	17
Electricity	30	28
Total	235	209

It is perhaps sufficient to say that the attendance on these classes so far has been very gratifying, and we are looking forward to a larger and better enrollment after the New Year. Percentage of attendance for the month is 85.6 per cent.

The expenditure up to the present is, we are glad to say, well within the amount set apart for each class, and is as follows:

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) A. F. HAGERMAN,
Supervising Principal.

FELINE CAUSED SOME TROUBLE

But Magistrate Dismissed Case at Police Court

A cat was the cause of an assault case which was aired in Police Court this morning, when Patrick Jeffries appeared in court, charged with assaulting Wm. Keenan. W. H. Moore, K.C., represented the defendant.

After hearing the case Magistrate Dumble dismissed the case contending that "both were Irishmen and therefore were possessed of hot tempers."

DESERTED THEIR SHIP, BUT WRECKED CRAFT GOT HOME BEFORE CREW

Cook of Fishing Schooner Annie M. Parker is Drowned and Captain and Three Mates Missing as Result of Strange Accident of the Sea.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 6. -- The death of the cook and the probable loss of their captain, Vincent Nelson, and three of their mates, form part of a tale of the sea brought here last night by the fourteen survivors of the crew of the Gloucester fisherman, Annie M. Parker. The fact that their abandonment of the stranded schooner near Nantucket and the loss of life was unnecessary was not known to the crew until word reached them last night that the schooner was in port at New Bedford practically undamaged.

Nine survivors of the Parker's crew reached here aboard the lumber schooner Tifton from Jacksonville, which had picked them up from dories thirty miles off Nantucket Sunday morning after they had been afloat twenty-four hours without food or drink.

A tenth survivor, Harry Nelson of Beverly, son of the captain, was left behind on the Boston fisherman Josie and Phoebe, exhausted from his experience, but hoping to find trace of his father.

Reuben Kenney, the cook, found a watery grave when he was swept overboard from a dory while his mates looked on powerless to help. His home was at Glenwood, N.S. He leaves seven children. The missing men, besides Captain Nelson, are: Lester Fletcher of Argyle Sound, N.S.; Ross Worthen of Pubnico Head, N.S.; Thomas Landry of Arichat, N.S.

The Annie M. Parker, bound home from the fishing grounds and carried off her course by adverse winds, went aground on Rose and Crown's Shoal off the Nantucket coast early Saturday morning. The vessel was wrecked by the waves, and the crew agreed with Captain Nelson that hope for safety lay in getting clear of their craft. So they abandoned her.

The British steamer Astrakhan, bound from New York for France, sighted the Parker on Monday, drifting about with all sails set. Boarding the schooner, the officers of the steamer learned that she had evidently been abandoned in haste. Four of the eight dories usually carried on the fisherman were "nested," and lashed to the deck. The other dories were missing. The clothing and valises of the captain and crew were found in their bunks. A few burned pieces of bread were all the food that was found in the galley, indicating that before leaving the crew had hastily gathered together a supply of provisions.

The schooner was not leaking and appeared to be in perfect condition, except for the loss of one jib that was carried away, possibly after the vessel was abandoned.

POLITICIAN GOT REVENGE

This Candidate Burnt Houses of His Antagonists.

WILLIAMANTIC, Conn., Nov. 6.—Startling evidence was given in the Superior Court yesterday at the trial of Frank E. Howarth, a young Putnam lawyer, charged with arson by Mrs. Viola Bennett, a detective retained by the state, who swore that Howarth told her he burned a number of buildings in Putnam to get "revenge" for political defeats. Some of the houses burned were owned by political opponents of Howarth, Mrs. Bennett declared.

Howarth, who is only 24 years of age, is charged with causing 14 fires in Putnam during the past year or so.

Mrs. Bennett said she visited his office under the pretext of doing business with him and that during the course of 16 interviews he told her he had set fire to some of the buildings.

New Island Confirmed.

HALIFAX, N.S., Nov. 6.—The Government steamer Acadia arrived in port yesterday morning and confirmed the reported discovery of new land in the Atlantic off Sable Island. The Acadia had on board the crew of the steamer Alette, which was beached at Port Nelson, Hudson Bay, some weeks ago, to prevent foundering. The Acadia had been ordered by wireless to proceed to Sable Island for the purpose of reporting officially upon the existence of the new island.

Ludwig Is Now King.

MUNICH, Nov. 6.—King Ludwig, formerly prince regent, yesterday formally proclaimed himself King of Bavaria, in accordance with the recent constitutional amendment adopted by the Diet.

Two members of the Bavarian Diet were on Tuesday sent as a delegation to Fuerstenried Palace to visit the mad King Otto. They found him, according to their report, in a pathetic condition, and when he saw them he stammered some inarticulate words.

CAUGHT BANK AT BRAMPTON

Self-styled Lumber Agent Got Away With $1950

TORONTO, Nov. 6.—Although reports appear in the newspapers nearly every day of swindlers getting money from banks by means of fake checks, there seems to be no let-up in the game. The latest bank swindle was pulled off in Brampton Tuesday.

The man dressed as a lumberman and posing as the agent of a northern lumber contractor got a well-known Toronto horseman to introduce him to the manager of the Sterling Bank at the corner of Adelaide and Simcoe streets, Toronto. There he said that he had an account in the Union Bank at Owen Sound and got a check for $2,500 marked. He went to Brampton ostensibly to buy some horses. He called on Albert Kee, a Brampton horse dealer, and when he had completed his fake horse deal deposited the check for $2,500 in a Brampton bank and drew $1,950 in cash. Then he disappeared. The check marked in Toronto was sent to Owen Sound and was returned by the Union Bank branch there marked no funds.

The Toronto police have a good description of the man, but so far they have been unable to locate him.

Show People Starving.

GHENT, Belgium, Nov. 6.—A body of 55 Filipinos, who were brought here as one of the attractions at the exposition, appear to be actually starving, and nine of them have died from exposure. They alleged yesterday that they had received no wages for eight months, owing to the failure of the amusement enterprise by which they were engaged.

The Filipinos have petitioned the American consul-general at Antwerp to be sent home, declaring that otherwise they must starve or be sent to jail as vagabonds.

ENTIRE STATE MILITIA TO QUELL DISORDERS

MARTIAL LAW TO BE DECLARED

Canadian Press Despatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 6.—On account of the continuation of the street railway strike, which has been accompanied with assaults, some of them fatal, Governor Ralston has ordered out the state militia and announced that he will declare martial law.

The Indiana National Guard numbers two thousand and the whole force is expected here late this evening.

ONE HUNDRED AND THREE YEARS OLD

Canadian Press Despatch.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 6.—Timothy Mellon, of Rodney, died last night, aged one hundred and three years. He was born in Donegal, Ireland, and came to Canada in eighteen hundred and thirty, and worked in the woods near Kingston.

Since eighteen hundred and sixty-five he had lived in this part of the country. The children surviving are: Joseph, Chicago; Patrick, Windsor; Charles and Mrs. Owen Coleman, Aldborough.

Escaped Prisoner Caught

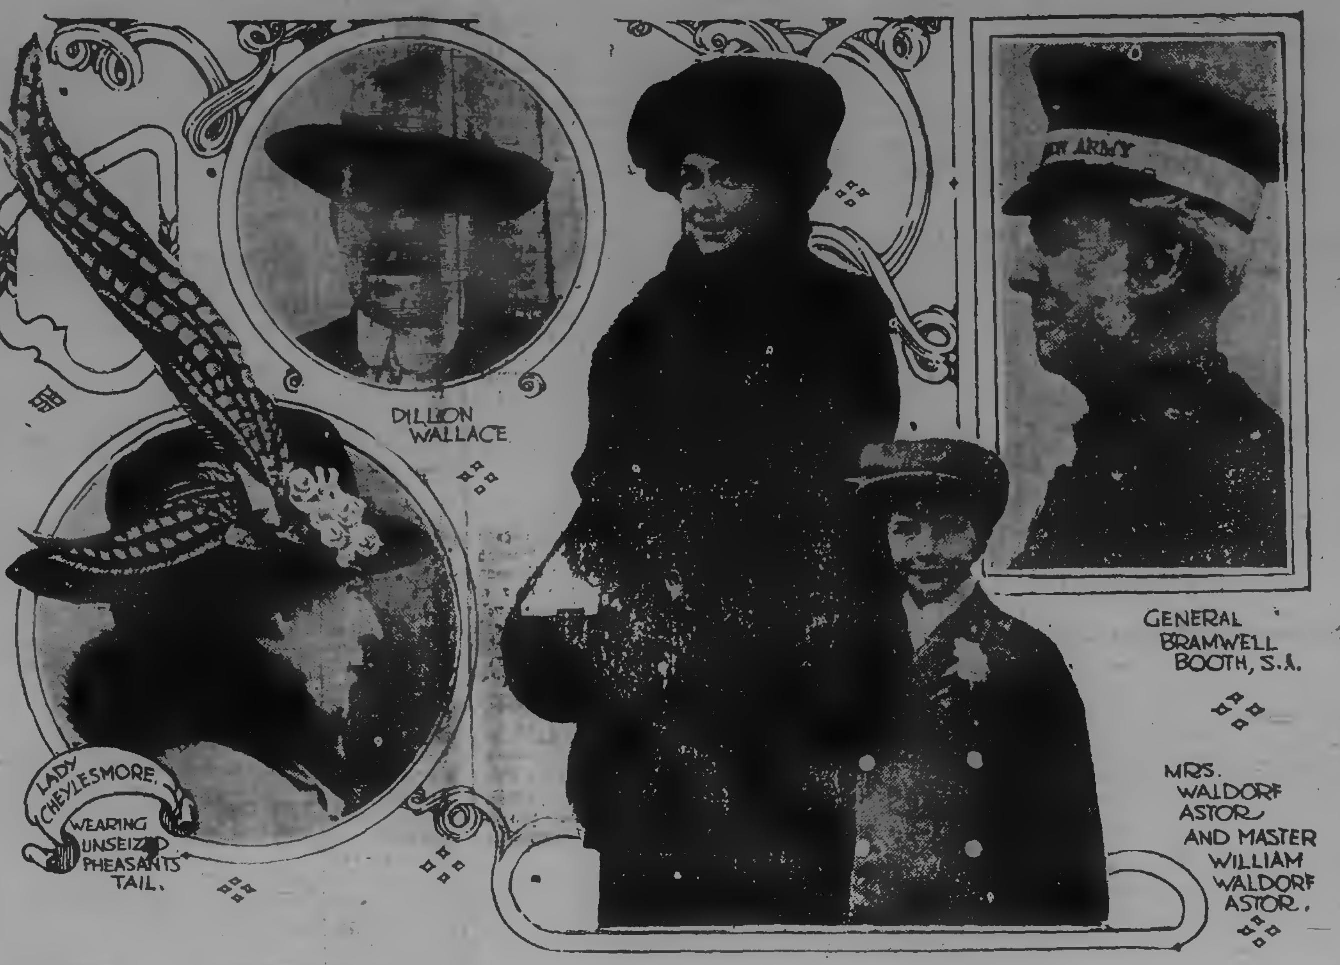
SARNIA, Nov. 6.—Word was received here Tuesday by the police that Arthur Reynolds of Sarnia, in company with F. Fleming and James Newman, fellow prisoners, had escaped from the Guelph Prison Farm.

At a late hour Tuesday night, P. C. Maitland arrested an anxious-looking man at the ferry dock and the latter admitted that he was Fleming.

Child Scalded To Death.

STRATFORD, Nov. 6.—Two-year-old Tommy Ryan, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan, was scalded to death yesterday morning in boiling water. The accident occurred about 8.30 o'clock when the little lad's mother was lifting a boiler of water which tipped and the contents poured over the child.

IMPORTANT PERSONAGES WHO RECENTLY ARRIVED IN AMERICA



DILLON WALLACE
GENERAL BRAMWELL BOOTH, S.A.
LADY CHEYLESMORE, WEARING UNSEIZED PHEASANTS TAIL.
MRS. WALDORF ASTOR AND MASTER WILLIAM WALDORF ASTOR.

Mrs. W. Waldorf Astor and her six-year-old son, "Bill," arrived in America from England for a stay through the winter in Virginia. Unlike her husband, the ex-American citizen and present Member of Parliament, Mrs. Astor is exceedingly democratic and has a lingering fondness for her native country. She was formerly Miss Nannie Langhorne, one of the beautiful Langhorne sisters of Virginia, all of whom were most popular society girls.

General Bramwell Booth, commander of the Salvation Army, also arrived from England. He expects to secure American Salvationists as volunteers for China, where the work of the Salvation Army is to be increased.

Dillon Wallace, who was reported lost in the wilds of Labrador, also was a joyous arrival. He went north to mark the grave of Leonidas Hubbard, the explorer. He was successful in his mission, but nearly lost his life.

Lady Cheylesmore, wife of Major General Lord Cheylesmore, was among the arrivals. She wore on her hat a pheasant tail. She was first told that the plume came under the ruling against the entry of wild bird plumage. Lady Cheylesmore protested vigorously, however, and pleaded that in England the pheasant is raised as a barnyard fowl.

This argument was a new one to the Collector's office and raised a point not considered before. The customs men finally decided that if pheasants are raised in English barnyards English pheasants do not come under the ruling of wild birds and therefore can be brought into the United States.

Ambassador Off For Holiday.

BOSTON, Nov. 6—After a few days spent here, the British ambassador, Sir Cecil Arthur Spring-Rice left last night for Washington. The ambassador has improved in health recently, but his physicians insist that he spare himself as much as possible until he has fully recovered from his debilitating illness. Lady Spring-Rice had preceded him to the capital.

The ambassador came here Saturday, following a cold snap that made the summer embassy at Dublin, N.H., uncomfortable. He was accompanied to Washington by Sir William Tyrrell, private secretary to the British Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Sir Edward Grey, who will be the guest of Sir Cecil for another month.

Seekers After His Job.

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—Tuesday the Ottawa papers announced the death of Horace St. Louis, French translator of the Commons. The announcement was accompanied by a very flattering obituary. Yesterday there was a rush of politicians for the position. The applicants were much surprised to find that Mr. St. Louis is still very much alive, and while he is ill, he hopes to be on the job again next session.

ANOTHER TERM FOR R.C. MILLER ?

Will be Called Upon Again to Give Evidence

Another Term For Miller?

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—R. C. Miller of Montreal, who went to jail rather than divulge to the public accounts committee of the House of Commons how he spent $41,000 in securing Government business.

When the Parliamentary session ended Miller was released. It is learned that the public accounts committee will take up again this coming session the inquiry into the dredging administration of the late Government. Miller is bound to be called again to testify in this connection, and unless he is willing to supply the important information which he so obstinately withheld last winter he seems booked for four or five months as a state prisoner.

Tramp Steamer Raided.

BOSTON, Nov. 6.—Customs inspectors impressed a gang of stevedores as an attacking party in a raid for opium on the British tramp steamer Kendal Castle yesterday. The steamer's Chinese crew had resisted the inspector's entrance, but surrendered when the stevedore joined in the attack. The officials seized a large quantity of the drug, charging that it was being smuggled into this port from Montreal. The steamer had just arrived from Louisburg, N.S. No arrests were made.

Express Car Robbed.

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 6.—A Dominion express car over the Canadian Pacific from Winnipeg to Edmonton, was robbed somewhere along the route and a number of parcels taken. The discovery of the robbery was not made until the car arrived here, and there is no clue.

DISCREPANCIES IN STORIES COMPARED WITH THOSE TOLD AT INQUEST

Beemer Had Attack Four Days Before Violent Illness—The Court Room Crowded.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Nov. 6.—Sad of face, but without a trace of nervousness, and with her nine months' old infant in her arms, Mrs. Grace Beemer of Drumbo, who was placed on trial before Mr. Justice Kelly at the Criminal Assizes here yesterday on a charge of murdering her husband by administering strychnine in a dose of salts, sat in the prisoner's dock and listened silently to the stories told by the crown witnesses. When court resumed after the noon adjournment yesterday the grand jury, after a ten hours' deliberation returned a true bill against the accused woman. The courthouse was crowded all day, and hundreds of people were unable to get in. A number of people brought lunches and stayed in the court all day.

Upon being arraigned Mrs. Beemer pleaded not guilty. It took just fifteen minutes to obtain a jury.

Mr. Edward Meredith, K.C., of London, the crown prosecutor, expects, so he informed the jury in his opening address, to prove that the accused woman was the dominating spirit in the man's death, despite the fact that the defence would undoubtedly attempt to show that Beemer himself was responsible for his death.

Sylvester Beemer, a brother of the deceased man; Charles Cassidy, Jas. Smart and David Troup, who testified yesterday, were subjected to a vigorous cross-examination by Lieut.-Col. W. T. McMullen, K.C., the defending counsel. The bulk of the evidence was a corroboration of that given at the coroner's inquest and the police court investigation.

The defence, however, succeeded in bringing out a few adidtional features, which, it is said, will have an important bearing when its case is presented. The testimony of three of the witnesses differed slightly on certain points from that appearing in the certified copies of the evidence taken at the previous investigation. Another important point for the defence was the statement of David Troup under cross-examination to the effect that four days prior to the day Beemer was taken violently ill, the witness was present at the Beemer homestead when Beemer drove home from Galt. Upon entering the house he said Beemer complained of stomach trouble.

The crown, in presenting its case, examined the witnesses at some length relative to the actions and the conditions which asserted themselves when the witnesses, all neighboring farmers, were called in to render assistance. They declared that when Beemer was seized intermittently with violent spasms, he shrieked with pain, and insisted upon his limbs being held down, as it served as a measure of relief. On one occasion, said a witness, he saw him drink almost eight gallons of water. They had seen Mrs. Beemer giving Beemer what they supposed to be salts on various occasions, in fact they had been present when Dr. Woolner had prescribed salts and certain tablets to be administered periodically. They could not say whether Mrs. Beemer had put any other ingredient in the mixture. The salts had been supplied by two of the witnesses, who had used similar salts without injurious results. They had never heard of family squabbles in the Beemer household, and had frequently noticed Mrs. Beemer helping her husband in the fields.

Charles Cassidy was taken to task by the defending counsel for telling different stories relative to the occasion upon which he accommodated the Beemers with the loan of some Epsom salts. At the previous investigations Cassidy said that a little boy had been given the salts to take to his mother, but yesterday he stated that James Mason, the farm hand, who claims to have seen Mrs. Beemer put something in a dose of salts, was the messenger that carried the package to the Beemer house. He was satisfied the latter statement was correct.

It is expected that the crown's case will be closed to-night. The crown will call twenty-five, and the defence twenty witnesses.

THEY ASK LENIENCY.

Reduction In Terms of Nanaimo Strikers Is Sought.

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—J. C. Watters and Fred. Bancroft, president and secretary respectively of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, have laid before Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, a plea for reduction of the heavy sentences, ranging up to two years in prison, imposed on the miners at Nanaimo, B.C., who were convicted of being leaders in the strike riots there last month.

It is likely that every branch of organized labor in Canada will sign a petition supporting the plea.

The Minister has promised to get a copy of the evidence taken at the trial at Nanaimo so that he can acquaint himself with the facts of the case.

Charge Is Dismissed.

TORONTO, Nov. 6.—Robert G. Leahman and Capt. Wm. Crawford were found not guilty and honorably discharged by Judge Morgan in the Criminal Court at the City Hall yesterday morning on the charge of distributing forged tickets for the Laurier meeting held in the Arena on May 5, which was organized by F. G. Inwood, Liberal organizer for the province.

THE LAST LABORS OF SCOTT

Tragic Diary Published in Full for First Time

LONDON, Nov. 6.—"Capt. Scott's Last Expedition" is published to-day in two big, handsome volumes. It contains Capt. Scott's diary of his journey to the South Pole and its tragic conclusion, written methodically day by day from the departure of the Terra Nova in 1910 to the moment in March, 1912, when, with death actually in the tent pitched for the last time in the frozen waste of the great barrier, the dying commander wrote:

"The end cannot be far. It seems a pity, but I do not think I can write more. For God's sake, look after our people."

In addition to his diary, when dying, Capt. Scott wrote letters to friends and relatives. An extract from his last letter to his wife is:

"Make our boy interested in natural history if you can. It is better than games. Keep him in the open air. Above all, you must guard him against indolence. Make him a strenuous man. The great God has called me. Take comfort in that I die in peace with the world and myself, and not afraid."

Scott, next to the blizzards and the phenomenally low temperatures on the Barrier, ascribed the disaster mainly to the astonishing failure of the strongest man of the party, Petty Officer Evans, a physical giant. A study of the diaries shows the course and the causes of the failure.

Capt. Oates did not begin to fail until March 3, when he reluctantly admitted that his feet were frostbitten. On March 6 Scott expressed fear that Oates would not survive the increased cold.

SCOUT CRUISER

U.S. Warship May be Used For Rapid Wireless Messages

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—Secretary of State Bryan was willing to say yesterday that he had received several telegrams from Nelson O'Shaughnessy, U. S. Charge d'Affaires in Mexico, reporting on various phases of the Mexican situation; but he did not feel at liberty to make public the nature or the contents of Mr. O'Shaughnessy's communication.

Nothing that occurred here yesterday gives ground for the likelihood that European or other foreign Governments will be asked to adjust the Mexican troubles by mediation.

The most significant thing bearing on the present strained relations between the Wilson Administration and the Government of President Huerta that became known yesterday was the announcement by the Navy Department that the scout cruiser Chester had been ordered placed in full commission and will leave Philadelphia in a day or two for the east coast of Mexico.

The Chester is fitted with the most powerful radio-telegraph apparatus of any ship in the United States navy. It is believed that she would be able to communicate by wireless from Vera Cruz to the Pensacola navy yards, and perhaps be able to send messages to and receive them from the naval radio station at Arlington, Va., a few miles from Washington.

To Capital Under Guard.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 6.—The members of the special Mexican mission to Japan, recently placed under arrest, will be taken to Mexico City today under a heavy guard.

BY CARELESSNESS

Government Dredge Broken on Rock When the Tide Went Out.

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—It is reported here that the loss of the new Government dredge, the Port Nelson, in James Bay, was due to the lack of precaution on the part of those in charge.

According to the latest advices, the dredge was hauled up on the beach at a high tide that the valuable piece of apparatus might be placed beyond the chance of damage by ice. The plan was to let the dredge down on the soft mud and take it off in the spring.

Unfortunately, those who had charge of the work failed to pick out a spot that was all soft. The dredge was hauled out at high tide. When the tide fell it was found that the dredge had been placed directly upon a big rock. The result was that the weight of the machinery and hull broke the back of the dredge.

The result was that the dredge, which cost a quarter of a million dollars, lies on the shore of Hudson Bay twisted out of shape and probably a total loss.

The Port Nelson was built at the Polson Iron Works, Toronto.

SUFFRAGETTE FORCE WILL DEFEND WOMEN AND LABOR

Sir Francis Vane, Boer War Veteran, Says He Will Lead Troops Modelled on Ulster Citizen Army.

Sylvia Pankhurst Fools the Police and Holds Her Meeting in Spite of them in London.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—By a clever stratagem, which completely hoodwinked the large force of police sent to prevent her from speaking, Miss Sylvia Pankhurst was enable to announce at the Bow Baths, in the east end of London, last night, the formation of a volunteer corps, organized under command of Captain Sir Francis Vane, a Boer war veteran, for the protection of militant suffragettes and labor unionists.

Miss Celie Emerson, of Jackson, Mich., presided over the meeting. Just as the meeting was called to order the statement was made that the residence of George Lansburg, Socialist member of Parliament and a warm supporter of the militant suffragettes, was surrounded by police. The crowd rushed from the Baths and found a large number of foot and mounted police around Lansbury's house, with a taxicab in front of the entrance.

Mr. Lansbury arrived on the scene and was uproariously greeted as he entered his home. The report was spread that the preparations portended the arrest of Sylvia Pankhurst.

The lights in the house were extinguished and suddenly a woman rushed from the doorway and sprang into the taxi, which, surrounded by mounted police, proceeded to Bethnal Green. Then Miss Daisy Lansbury, daughter of the ex-Socialist member, stepped out of the taxi much to the discomfiture of the police.

Meanwhile Miss Pankhurst entered the Baths practically unobserved. The only disorder was caused by an attack by the women on a few reporters whom they suspected of being detectives. Mr. Lansbury and Sir Francis Vane followed Miss Pankhurst to the platform. The Boer veteran explained that he proposed to establish a labor training corps. Waving aloft a huge knotted club, Sir Francis said he was prepared to use that weapon wherever he saw women injured, and in labor disputes, or wherever the oppressed needed aid.

The general staff of the organization will be drawn from officers who have seen war, and both men and women are eligible for the ranks.

Miss Pankhurst said the plan was based on the Ulster model, and she expected the same immunity from Government interference as Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster leader, enjoyed.

When Miss Pankhurst left the meeting she was surrounded by a bodyguard of east-enders, and made her escape after a lively battle with the police, who were compelled to draw their clubs. The crowd retaliated with sticks, and the result was that several of the belligerents were injured.

CAUSE AND EFFECT

The other day our evening contemporary published a long and tortuous article on the administration of the Curfew Law, and referred to the dangers of the darker outlying streets of the city as being the cause of the increase of the social evil in Peterborough.

It is time something plain was said upon this subject, and while our contemporary was dealing with the subject it might as well have got at the basis of things and said what it knew of the facts. These dimly-lighted and lonely streets are not the cause of the evils referred to. The complaints that have been made about the conduct of young people of the baser sort have come from defined quarters and refer, in one instance, to a certain notorious resort of young people.

The proprietors of this place, described by one writer as the "devil's school," have so far remained silent, despite the accusations that have been hurled against it. The Review has received a number of letters which have had to be withheld as they were definitely libelous and contained insinuations which were far from complimentary to certain persons.

The Review has no axe to grind and is without malice in this matter and would be glad to be rid of this unclean subject. But as the public health and the welfare of the young life of the city are involved, this agitation must go on until the truth is out and the fair name of Peterborough is cleansed of this vile stigma.

It is particularly gratifying to note that the mothers of Peterborough are taking this matter up seriously. Here is a sphere where women can work without a vote. If Mrs. Pankhurst had attacked some of the social problems of England, instead of wasting time and property in belaboring cabinet ministers and burning down railway stations, she might have "made herself an everlasting name." Instead of merely gaining a bit of cheap notoriety she would have wrought some lasting good for the people.

The future of the children lies to a very large extent with the parents. But the civic authorities must do their part in seeing that these "trap-doors to hell" are not allowed to exist.

A WHIRL-WIND CANVAS

They do things in their own way "over the line." After all that has been said in exposure and condemnation of Sulzer the people have again taken him to their bosom. This is dear Democracy.

It is said that Sulzer's canvas was "a whirlwind affair"; that after all is the best way to canvas when you have not got a clean case. Reason and argument are too slow and risky. The people take a delight in being hustled, and they worship and adore a hustler.

But from all accounts it was a choice of evils, and one side was as good or bad as the other, and when you cannot decide it is well to leave the matter to "Fate" and let the biggest whirlwind carry the day.

TOPRY-TURVY VISION

A boy in a school in Durham, England, has been found to possess an "inverted brain." He sees things up-side down. When he writes he forms his letters standing on their heads, and the same thing happens if he is set to draw a picture of any object.

It is a question whether the brain has anything to do with the topsy-turvy vision of this boy. It would be more a question of optics than of the position of the grey matter. It is said that his reading is not affected, and though he sees the letters upside down they make apparently the same impression upon his mind as upon the mind of an ordinary boy. This would seem to prove that an optician ought to be able to put the boy right with an arrangement of lenses.

This peculiarity of vision is rather unfortunate, but there are many people who cannot "see straight," and some who even see the wrong end up, whose vision it would be impossible to adjust with a pair of spectacles. Because in these cases it is a matter of an inverted intellect which nothing but a mental earthquake could rectify.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The moving picture show can sometimes serve a very useful purpose. It brought two long-parted and lost brothers together. A Toronto man while at a picture show, recognized the face of his brother on a moving picture of a motor race in Colorado and got into communication with him by writing the governor of Colorado.

A Canadian Unionist League has been formed, the object of which is to enlist all Canadians who are willing to assist the Unionists of Ireland. The movement is said to spread throughout the provinces. A pledge is signed by members, and on the card of membership is printed the Union Jack and the motto. "Ulster's flag is our flag."

Sir James Whitney stated that the East Middlesex bye-election would be held on November 27th, and nominations on the 20th.

There is some discussion going on in London papers over the Dominion House proposition by the ex-Governor General Earl Grey. Some writers think that the committee dealing with the matter is not representative enough.

Mr. J. R. Mott says that more students commit suicide in Russia annually than throughout the rest of the world.

Dr Jameson, of the famous raid, and now Sir Starr Jameson, is reported to have arrived at Capetown the other day looking well, although he was almost a wreck when he left two years ago.

THE CURFEW LAW AGAIN

A Reader Tries to Locate the Dangers That Beset Young People

To the Editor of The Review.

Dear Sir— According to The Examiner of November 3rd., the Curfew Law is "ridiculous," "fatuous," "utterly useless," "defective," and "a mockery;" all because the word "may" appears where "shall" ought to be. But, we are told "even if the law were perfect" it would still be a "dead letter" for want of extra police to patrol the residence streets and outlying districts.

The law empowers police and Children's Aid Society officers to enforce it. If they do not enforce it within reasonable areas over which they have jurisdiction, then clearly it must be because they do not want to. In other words they evade a duty the law contemplates and expects them to perform, because performance is optional.

Leaving aside for the present the Examiner's inconsistent attitude, let me devote some attention to the location of those dangers that beset the neglected of both sexes.

I beg to disagree with the Examiner as to the relative dangers of residence streets, outlying districts, etc., in the promotion of social evil. True, such secluded places are most used after the schooling process has been completed elsewhere.

Now, this schooling process is not so much an affair of the streets as it is of another kind of place to which the street, at its worst, is only second. Children and young folks come and go as they always did to school, to church, down town, or to visit by way of the streets. What harm? Elderly or responsible or wise, or, at least, decent people are to be met with in these or any similar situations. Even the idle walkers of George street by lamplight are restrained by their constant exposure to the observations of people older, wiser, more critical or more responsible than themselves.

The development of ill-manners, coarse tastes, contempt of law and decent social usages, lax morals, vice and criminal tendencies does not for the most part take place in the streets. This development occurs only where such restraints as the above mentioned are wanting. In a public resort for example, where neither elderly nor respectable people are found, where entertainment is coarse and noisy, manners bad, behavior hoodlum, where frequenters are not selected, where the vilest may enter, where the ignorant inexperienced and immature may mingle with the already idle coarse and vicious, without parent, patroness or chaperon. This is the school from which the "sweet girl graduate" goes for her diploma to the outlying parts of the city at night.

The residence and outlying streets will not serve to call away attention from the real centre of corruption.

NEW CONVENIENT TRAIN TO WINNIPEG

Canadian Pacific

The popularity of Canadian Pacific service, and the excellence of that road's equipment, has been so greatly appreciated by the travelling public that it has been found necessary to put into service an entirely new Through Standard Express Train between Toronto and Winnipeg.

Commencing Sunday, October 27th, the "Gate City Express" will leave Toronto at 2.30 p.m., and will run daily thereafter, arriving Winnipeg at 8.00 a.m. second morning. The train will consist of the highest-class modern equipment; Compartment Library Observation Car, Standard Sleeping Cars, Tourist Sleeping Car, Dining Car, First-class Coach and Colonist Car. This will be found the most convenient and best train between Toronto and Winnipeg on account of the daylight departure from Toronto at an hour when the Union Station is not badly congested, and also on account of the early hour of arrival at Winnipeg.

The present "Vancouver Express" will continue to leave Toronto at 10.20 p.m. daily and will consist of the same equipment as the 'Gate City Express.' This train is the best to take for points west of Winnipeg but for Winnipeg and east the "Gate City Express" is the right train to travel by.

Full particulars from any Canadian Pacific Agent, or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto. 50

THE UNDERSTUDY

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS

A train of cars stopped at a station. A young man came aboard and looked about for an empty seat. There was but one vacant, and he sat down in it beside a handsomely dressed, middle aged lady, who moved aside to make room for him, changing at the same time the position of certain articles of hand baggage.

"You are very kind," said the young man.

"Not at all," replied the lady. "I am simply not especially selfish."

"It is a case of selfishness that causes me to make this journey," remarked the young man.

"Indeed!" said the lady in a tone that seemed to invite further confidence.

"Yes. My sister is an actress. She has been an understudy for the leading lady at the theater with which she is connected. My sister has a natural talent for the kind of acting required in the part and became understudy for it, hoping that she might get an opportunity to play it and make a bit in it. She has already done so in private theatricals. But the leading lady has not been obliged to give over the part to her understudy once during the whole time she has been the understudy. I didn't wish Bess to go on the stage, and now that she has become discouraged by her long wait I have persuaded her to give up trying to be an actress and come home. If the leading lady would but give her one opportunity to show what she can do it is quite possible that Bess might get an engagement at a fine salary."

The lady listened to this with considerable interest and at the end said:

"You didn't say with what theater your sister is connected."

"No. I have no wish to openly accuse her principal of selfishness."

"It doesn't matter. I am acquainted with a number of theatrical persons and know that Elizabeth Twining is understudy for the leading lady at the National, who plays under the stage name Helen Wadsworth, but who is really Miss Stanforth. I'm glad you have told me of this case of your sister. It puts the matter of an understudy in a different light from the way theatrical persons see it. They consider an understudy some one who is prepared to take a part in case the actor or actress must be temporarily laid off. They are a selfish lot, and I don't suppose it has occurred to this Helen Wadsworth that by giving up one night's profit she might enable your sister to make her fortune."

"If you know her I trust you will not mention what I have said."

"I do know her and, I thought, very well, but from what you say I have not known her as well as I supposed. I shall suggest to her to give your sister one night in which to play the leading part. She doubtless receives something like $500 for each performance, and, though the amount is considerable, it would be only about a sixth of her weekly income. The only excuse for her not having given way in favor of your sister is that the purchasers of tickets pay to see Helen Wadsworth and not Elizabeth Twining."

"I never thought of that," said the young man.

"If it is an excuse it is a poor one."

Young Twining was very much pleased with his rencounter and what it promised. The lady did not say that she would secure his sister the opportunity she desired, but she intended to try. Twining begged her to approach the subject gingerly, to which she readily agreed, assuring him that on no account would she make any trouble. However, she cautioned him against raising any hopes in his sister that might not be realized.

Twining arrived in the city in the morning, and the same evening word was sent to the manager that Helen Wadsworth had taken a cold and her voice had become so husky that she would not be able to play her part that night. Miss Twining, who expected at the end of the week to go home with her brother, was hopeful that her going might not now be necessary.

She hardly did herself justice, being agitated at assuming so important a role. But Helen Wadsworth sent word that she would doubtless be confined to her room for several days and perhaps longer, so the understudy had more opportunity. On the second night she did her best, making a pronounced hit, which was maintained in the other performances. Then Helen Wadsworth returned to her work.

On the last night that Elizabeth Twining played the principal part, after being called before the curtain again and again, she found an invitation in her dressing room to sup with Helen Wadsworth and bring her brother, who, the hostess had heard, was with her. The two were driven to the hotel where the actress was stopping, expecting to find her with her throat wrapped in flannels. But she advanced to meet them with no signs of illness and with an extended hand for Mr Twining.

She was the woman he had met on the train.

"Permit me to thank you," she said, "for showing me that selfishness in myself that I have previously seen only in others."

Elizabeth Twining soon after secured an engagement for a leading part and Helen Wadsworth took another understudy.

London Elects Lancastrian.

Sir Thomas Vansittart Bowater, who was recently elected Lord Mayor of the City of London, is the first Lancastrian to attain to that high position. Sir Thomas Rawlinson, who was Lord Mayor of London in 1705-6, is described on the records as "of a Lancastrian family," but this is a doubtful case, and it is safe to say that no previous lord mayor was born in the County of Lancashire. After Sir Thomas, however, cession of Lancastrian lord mayors, for Sir Charles Johnston, who will succeed him, was born in Liverpool, and Sir Charles Cheers Wakefield and Sir William Dunn, who are next in rotation, are natives, respectively, of Liverpool and Clitheroe, in Lancashire.

Respectability Killed Him.

There was a hermit in the centre of London only a few years ago. His hermitage consisted of a cellar — the sole vestige of a house in Clare market pulled down and forgoten by its owners. He lived there for a long time, supported by scraps of food from the tradesmen of the neighborhood, and might have lived there longer still if a journalist had not "discovered" him. He was interviewed and photographed to death, for the workhouse authorities, nearly next door, who had hitherto, turned a blind eye toward him, were compelled to oust him from his hermitage and make him clean and respectable—a process to which he succumbed.—London Mail.

Chloroform and Stains.

Paint, grease or other stains can be removed from colored garments or from materials the colors of which are not fast by the use of chemically pure chloroform. Take the garment into the open air and lay it upon a flat surface with a piece of clean white blotting paper or absorbent cloth under the spot. Then pour on a few drops of the chloroform and pass through the stain. Do not rub hard and be sure the chloroform is chemically pure. The spot will come out readily and without injury to fabric or color. This treatment has proved efficacious where gasoline, benzine, naphtha and other cleaners have entirely failed.

Perhaps joy cometh in the morning, but none to the chap who has made a night of it.

LITTLE STOMACH.

Little Stomach wakes up bright,
Feeling good—slept well all night.
Master rends his breakfast down—
Bacon, eggs and coffee brown.
Little Stomach goes to work
To digest without a shirk.
Breakfast scarcely finished when
Here comes lunch for two brave men
Little Stomach onward toils
Through the fricassee and broils.
Then, as if to get his goat,
Comes a dinner table d'hote,
Everything from soup to nuts.
Master is the king of mutts.
Dinner measures two hours long,
'Twixt the courses wine and song.
Not the sparkling champagne drink,
But a wine a la red ink.
Little Stomach knuckles down
To his task without a frown,
Works like fury there below
While good master sees a show.
Table d'hote is stowed away.
Little Stomach's earned his pay.
"Now I'll rest till morn," says he.
But, alas, that's not to be!
Just as he curls up to sleep
Comes a highball broad and deep,
Crying: "Cheer up, little Tum!
More to follow! Here I come!"
Then the Brothers Gin stand pat.
Tom and Gordon are their names.
Most illustrious are their frames.
Lobster salad is the next.
Little Stomach is quite vexed.
Holy smoke! Hang Haman high!
Splash a quart of extra dry!
Little Stomach now is peeved,
Hurt, indignant, sorely grieved.
Joke's a joke when it's at par,
But this joke has gone too far.
Little Stomach thus doth quote:
"By my sacred stomach oath
I'll get even with this gink
For this too excessive drink!"

(The Morning After.)

"Oh, my poor, dear, aching head!
Would to goodness I were dead!
Oh, so very sick am I
Joy 'twould give me just to die!"
Little Stomach laughs with glee:
"Serves him right! Ho-ho! Tee-hee!"

Dr. Johnson Hated Baths.

Swinburne evidently found baths a source of inspiration, for he told Mr Edmund Gosse that "Baudelaire" was written in a Turkish bath.

Dr. Johnson, on the other hand, regarded them with suspicion. When an old Lichfield friend, showing him over a house built specially for him, dilated on the advantages of the bathroom the doctor said. "Sir are you well?" "Quite well, thank you, doctor," was the reply. "Then, sir, let well alone. I hate immersion."—London Spectator.

An Opportunity Lost

By MARGARET BARR

In feudal times, when the now ruined castles on the river Rhine were alive with people, there lay dying in one of them Count Hallenstein, its owner. There had long been a feud between the count and Baron Hafstrom, a neighbor, who, learning of his enemy's illness, designed, as soon as he, the latter, died, to step in and take possession of the castle and estate. The count's son and heir, Herman, was at the time of his father's illness returning from the university where he had been studying and had been recalled to his home.

The messenger who summoned him also informed him that Baron Hafstrom was watching for him to waylay and make him a prisoner, that at his father's death there would be no head to the Hallenstein vassals to offer resistance and that he might hold the heir to do with him as he chose. Herman set out on horseback with the messenger, Ludwig Ritter, to return to his dying father. In order that he might outwit those lying in wait for him, he concluded that Ritter should personate a knight, and he, Herman, would act as his servant. So they changed garments and proceeded in this fashion, Herman riding behind Ludwig.

One evening when they were not far distant from Hallenstein castle they stopped at the house in the center of a large vineyard, whose owner, August Bauer, entertained them hospitably, according to the custom of the country. Gretchen, Bauer's daughter, was a comely girl, eighteen years old, an age at which young girls are especially interested in the opposite sex. She could not but notice the difference between the two strangers, the master being ill at ease in playing a role that was novel to him, and the courtly manners of his servant.

Herman before setting out had instructed Ludwig not to defer to him in any way—indeed, to treat him rather harshly, the better to carry out the deception. Bauer told Ludwig that Baron Hafstrom's men had been to the vineyard that day looking for Herman Hallenstein, and Herman, fearing that he might be taken for the master instead of the man, instructed Ludwig to redouble his harsh treatment, whereupon Ludwig, while Herman was waiting on him, feigning to be displeased with his servant, rated him soundly, indulging his pretended ire so far as to strike him

Herman bore his treatment meekly, but Gretchen's eyes flashed fire. She said nothing at the time, but when alone with Herman sympathized with him and offered, if he wished to leave his master's service, to ask her father to give him employment in the grape culture. It occurred to Herman that it might be well to accept the offer and send Ludwig ahead to find a passage through Baron Hafstrom's men So Gretchen went to her father with the request, which was granted, and Herman was set to trimming vines, while Ludwig, after abusing his man for leaving his service, went on.

Gretchen, who was infatuated with Herman, went out to where he was at work and spent a great deal of her time chatting with him. This angered her father, who was a wealthy man and had no idea of permitting his daughter to become involved with a servant. He reprimanded her, but it was too late. Young hearts need but a spark to start an unquenchable flame. Since Gretchen could not meet Herman openly she met him in secret.

On the second day after Ludwig's departure he returned. He had found an unguarded avenue to the castle. The count had died while he was there, but he had instructed the countess to keep his death a secret till Herman had arrived. Ludwig now proposed that Herman should obtain clothing from Gretchen and proceed as a girl. So Herman told Gretchen that he was a political fugitive and asked her to let him have her clothes by which to make his escape. She readily consented and brought him what he needed. Arraying himself in her belongings, painting his cheeks and powdering his face, he started. Gretchen accompanying him till he had traversed the more frequented part of the distance and passed several bands of men watching for him. The two journeying together so aided the deception that Herman asked her to go on with him till his safety had been assured.

Leaving the main road, they entered a defile in the high hills that bordered on the Rhine, which Ludwig had found unguarded. A band had since occupied it, but the travelers climbed a hill and passed on above them. In this way they avoided several parties and at last entered the castle.

Gretchen was much astonished to see her companion, when he had thrown off his feminine apparel, receive the homage of his vassals. After an interview with his mother and the funeral of his father he placed himself at the head of his retainers, sallied forth and scattered the bands that had been looking for him.

Baron Hafstrom, seeing that the opportunity had eluded him, gave up the idea of appropriating Hallenstein castle and withdrew his forces. Gretchen became Herman's wife and brought him a fine fortune, with a part of which he strengthened the defenses of his castle and otherwise bettered his condition.

HE NOW BELIEVES IN "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Because He No Longer Suffers With Headaches

TAYLORVILLE, ONT.

"I was a sufferer from Fearful Headaches for over two years. Sometimes, they were so bad that I was unable to work for days at a time. I took all kinds of medicine, was treated by physicians, but yet the Headaches persisted.

A short time ago, I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives" and I did so, with I must confess, very little faith. But after I had taken them for three days, my Headaches were easier and in a week they left me.

After I had taken a box of these tablets, my headaches were quite cured. My appetite was always poor and my stomach bad—and now my appetite is splendid and my digestion excellent.

I had become thin and weak from the constant Headaches but now not only have I been cured of all these awful Headaches, but my strength is growing up once more and I feel like a new man"

MRS. WARD IS ALIVE AND WELL IN ROCHESTER

It will be no doubt to the utmost joy of many citizens to learn that the report of the death of Mrs. (E Ward, chronicled in yesterday's issue, was erroneous. The local agent of the Metropolitan Insurance Company was about to transfer Mrs. Ward's policy and when he communicated with Miss Agnes Ward the message was misinterpreted. The girl became excited and formed a hasty conclusion that her mother was dead. On wiring to Rochester to learn particulars it was ascertained that Mrs. Ward was very much alive.

GAVE LIQUOR: WAS FINED $29.55

Mrs. Doig Gives Her Evidence Against Moher

Found guilty of supplying liquor to Joe Findley, a black lister, Thos. Moher was fined $29.55 to be paid in ten days, at police court this morning. Moher pleaded not guilty. The case was brought up yesterday before his worship, but owing to the absence of Mrs. Doig, one of the witnesses, the case was enlarged until this morning, when Mrs. Doig gave evidence to the effect that she saw the defendant give the liquor to Findley and also that she warned Moher that Findley was on the list.

His worship contended that there was no doubt but that the defendant knew that Findley was on the list.

John Maher, charged with vagrancy, pleaded not guilty and was let go on suspended sentence. Besides getting himself into trouble Maher managed to get "Sunny Jim" Wilson started on the war path again by getting him liquor. Wilson had been making an extra effort at becoming a good citizen. He had the assistance of the Salvation Army.

Jas. Barron and Alex. Brunette charged with being drunk and disorderly were each fined the usual $5.75.

SURPRISE FOR DICK.

Once more Richard McBride appeared before his worship on the charge of being drunk. The court handed Dick a surprise by discharging him.

ALGONQUIN PARK

By a recent order-in-council of the Provincial Government of Ontario, the name of the Algonquin National Park of Ontario has been changed to Algonquin Provincial Park. This Park is one of the wildest and most fascinating of the government reservations in Canada, and has become most popular for the ever increasing army of summer tourists, anglers, and the lovers of the wild, who are annually looking for a summer playground. The Park is situated at an altitude of 2000 feet above sea level and covers an area of 1,344,000 acres, or approximately 2,100 square miles. The Grand Trunk Railway is the only transportation company reaching this district, and in addition to its being a favorite summer resort, it is now looked upon as one of the most attractive winter resorts in America. The hotel, the Highland Inn, which is operated by the Grand Trunk Railway System is open the year round for the reception of guests. 13.

(17) Waterloo Station (L. & S. W. Rly.

The above illustration, taken from Westminster Bridge, shows the magnificent and unique site, the option for which Lord Grey has secured for the Dominions Overseas, should the idea appeal to them to erect thereon a great Imperial building and which will be as visible, suggestive, and inspiring as St. Paul's.

As will be seen in the illustration, the site is in the very centre of the Metropolis—halfway between St. Paul's Cathedral and Trafalgar Square, flanked by the Courts of Justice Somerset House, and the other great institutions of the city. With the exception perhaps of the Mansion House, probably more people pass this point during the day than any other in London, while north of this great island site is a splendid new street, Kingsway, which in ten or twenty years time (a very short span in the life of a nation) will be one of the finest streets in Great Britain. The amount to be paid for this site is, according to a leading Montreal paper, "a surprisingly low one, a price at which land could not be got on St. James' or St. Catherine's Streets."

The money expended would be by no means all outgoings, for after securing what would be undoubtedly the most impressive headquarters in London, a considerable return would accrue from the large amount of remaining space which would be rapidly filled by institutions and business concerns connected with Canada, many of which have expressed a keen desire to become tenants the moment the scheme matures.

London is not only the centre of the Empire, but is becoming more and more the magnet of the world. Tens of thousands, not of needy aliens, but the leading citizens of both hemispheres visit the city every year, and pass this spot in the heart of her busiest thoroughfare.

As does a business house, so must a nation advertise her wares, and no one can accuse Canada of not having set the pace. Here we have an opportunity of taking a leading part, in not temporary exposition, but in a great monument in stone, which will secure a permanent exhibition of her vast resources and which would focus Imperial trade in a manner otherwise unobtainable. To quote the Australian World, "Such a colossal building as the one contemplated, with its commercial administrations, aims and possibilities, would come to be regarded as the embodiment of the Empire in such a way that even the most unimaginative, unthinking and unreflecting person would be forced to realise what the British Empire is, and what it means."

It rests with the people of Canada to say "Yes," or "No."

THREE STOREY HOTEL TO GO UP AT TRENT BRIDGE

Plans for Proposed Build- Prepared by Toronto Man

The Havelock Standard has been reliably informed that plans have been prepared by a Toronto gentleman for the erection of a three-storey hotel at Trent River next summer. The proposed site is directly south of the old Free Methodist Church building, and adjoins the river. Mr. Macdonald also intends enlarging his dance hall and erecting a promenade and refreshment booth.

Canada Won First Prize

Paul Gerlach, a German-American farmer near Allan, Saskatchewan, on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, won a separator valued at $1250.00, at the International Dry Farming Exhibition, Tulsa, Oklahoma, for the best bushel of wheat. This was the first prize in open competition with farmers of the world. Mr. Gerlach's exhibit was of the Marquis variety and weighed seventy-one pounds to the bushel. The event is a good advertisement for Western Canada and demonstrates the wonderful richness of the valuable soil contiguous to the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific. 9

MILK VENDORS DECIDE NOT TO BOOST PRICE

Several days ago it was announced that the price of milk had been increased. At the meeting of the Milk Vendors' Association, held last evening, the question was threshed out, and it was decided not to make an increase. The price will remain 6 cents for public institutions and 7 cents for private families. It is predicted that the prices will remain the same during the winter season.

Some of the vendors had increased the price.

A very pleasant evening was spent on Monday evening, November 3rd, when the members and friends of the Anglican Young People's Association met together. The program for the evening consisted of songs, recitations, character contests and other games, after which refreshments were served.

Mr. Wm. Blewett who has spent the last six months at Grand Coulee, returned to the village on Tuesday.

Mr. C. S. Carter of the High School staff is spending a few days at hunting.

Mr. Edward Jory, who has been a resident of Douro for about forty years, has leased his farm for a number of years to Mr. H. Dunsford. Mr. Jory intends going out West, where he will join his daughter, Mrs. W. Crawford. Mr. Jory has been a councillor of Douro for a number of years and his many friends wish him every success in his new home.

INJURED WHEN HORSE RAN AWAY

Mr. John Kelly and His Niece Met With Mishap

When Mr. John Kelly, who resides near Norwood, and his niece, Miss McCabe, were driving to the city yesterday, the horse became frightened and ran away.

Both occupants were thrown from the vehicle and Miss McCabe was painfully injured. Farmers gave assistance and after some delay, the trip was continued to the city and Miss McCabe received medical attention.

Cannot Redirect To Canada.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Aigrettes and other plumage denied importation under the new tariff act, cannot be received by a firm in this country to redirect and forward to Canada or other countries.

The Treasury Department so ruled yesterday in a decision for Postmaster-General Burleson. No objection would be raised, however, if the packages remain in the custody of the postal officials and be forwarded by them.

"HOGTOWN" CRIES NORWOOD REGISTER REGARDING THE CENTRAL FAIR SCHEME

The Norwood Register says: Friday's Peterborough Review contained an article, in which it said that that cities is advocated by some parties as the home of a big Central Fair, thereby doing away with the small fairs in the district, including Norwood, Millbrook, Lakefield, Keene and probably others. The argument advanced is that the one fair would do away with the taking of exhibits from place to place in order to show them, and would thus lessen the expenses of the exhibitors.

If our fairs have come to such a pass that all the exhibitors are a bunch of ringers going from place to place as the above would imply then our fairs are merely stopping places for travelling demonstrations. But even if they are no better, experts consider this an excellent way of imparting knowledge and send out demonstration cars throughout the land every year. Why then lessen the little usefulness these ringers may now possess by hanging up fatter prizes and only getting one show in return.

As regards to the expense, is it not more economical for a score or so exhibitors to travel around to the people at different points and make a little money and also get considerable free advertising, than for thousands of people to journey miles farther to them?

However, we do not belive that ringers do predominate. Each exhibition has a host of its own small exhibitors to whom the small fair has an immense educational value Its end is not merely to gather together the finest exhibits obtainable in the province, but more to encourage the people within its immediate district to produce the best their circumstances will permit. The government is setting aside their grant for societies has fixed the maximum grant obtainable by any society at $800 in order to save the small fair and thus do the greatest good to the largest number.

The small fair, however, is a school from which exhibitors may graduate into the big fairs. But in the instituting of a big fair and furthermore more doing away with the small ones, the average exhibitors that compete at their local fairs would be crushed out by the specialists in the different lines. Few exhibitors ever make their first exhibits at a large show. If we want a large exhibition for the highest priced class of products, we have the Canadian National, the Ottawa Central and the London Western, but to do as our friends propose would simply mean to lose the value of the smaller fairs without acquiring the value of the larger.

While we wish the Peterborough gentlemen every success in their ambitions to build up a big fair becoming to a city of 20,000 people, is it not ludicrous that they should talk of other fairs closing up shop that they may have "a show?" Indeed it almost savors of hogtown tactics.

SAFETY FIRST AT CROSSINGS

Warning to be Alert and Careful at These Points

The Grand Trunk Railway system are surely giving the new organization known as Safety First a very solid foundation. During the past months there have been lectures given at the various centres on the Safety First movement, and the company are calling upon the public to assist them in this work.

On every gate at the various crossings the words "Safety First" is painted in black letters on the white background. This is to call the attention of pedestrians to impress on them the great need of being careful. There are many accidents at level crossings which could no doubt be easily averted had persons been in the habit of being extremely careful. It is a general practice for vehicles and autos to rush past a crossing and never stop, or even slacken speed. If an auto is approaching a crossing at which gates are installed, and the man in charge moves to lower the gates, nine times out of ten the driver of the auto will try to get across before the gates are let down. This same custom holds good with people walking or driving horses.

BUDDHISM

Discussed at the Y.M.C.A.

The weekly meeting of the Study Circle met last evening at the Y.M.C.A., under the Presidency of Mr. Hainsworth. Several papers were read on the subject of Buddhism, and a very interesting time was spent. Next week there will be a short debate upon the same subject, led by Mr. Grant and Mr. Milligan.

The class meets every Wednesday from 7.30 to 8 p.m., and all interested are invited.

FORMER TEACHER OF THE COLLEGIATE

Dr. Horning is Well Known in This City

When Dr. Horning, professor of modern languages at Victoria College, gives his lecture at the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall, Friday night, his audience will no doubt include many people with whom he is personally acquainted. Some of his pupils of twenty-five years ago may also be present.

Twenty-five years ago Dr. Horning was on the teaching staff of the Collegiate Institute, which building is now being used for the Evening Technical Classes.

DYING AMID THOUSANDS.

Huge Hoards Left by Misers Who Lived In Squalor.

The miser presents a strange problem to the student of human nature. Surrounded by dirt and squalor, these singular creatures are often possessed of wealth sufficient not merely to provide the necessities of life but such luxuries as only the rich can afford.

It was only recently that the discovery was made at Hull (Eng.) of two women, both possessed of considerable means, who died amid the utmost squalor and poverty. Both had their abode in hovels in some vile slum, and ate just sufficient food to keep them barely alive.

When one died her hovel had to be disinfected, and upon the paper of the room being stripped from the wall, a mouse-nibbed bankbook which showed the possessor to be worth £500, was discovered. The case of the other woman was even more extraordinary. She died of malnutrition — and yet was worth £2,000!

A short while ago the authorities at St. Petersburg were engaged in distributing the vast sum of £100,000, which had been bequeathed to various churches and monasteries in very singular circumstances.

No fewer than 200 churches and other institutions benefited through this money, which had been hoarded up by an old woman—an eccentric character who might have been drawn both by Dickens and Balzac. Her name was Madame Kolobova, and when she died it was thought she was a pauper. She was, indeed, buried as such. Some talk as to her having saved a fabulous hoard led, however, to her rooms being searched.

In almost every nook and cranny, pockets tightly bound up were discovered. Those that did not contain banknotes were filled with valuable share certificates or title deeds.

In previous year Madame Kolobova had lived with her sister. Every Sunday she received any beggars or priests who might care to call, and gave liberally to both. Upon the death of her sister, she changed her life completely; became a recluse, developed miserly habits. For twelve years she never opened a door or a window. During this period she lit one fire only. Her house looked like a prison, and she had double alarm-bells on each door.

Those who lead strange lives often die strange deaths. A woman recluse named Emma Pritchard was found, some time ago, at her house in Cheltenham street, Bramley (Eng.), stretched out on a white sheet spread carefully over the carpet and attired in a white nightdress with a white pillow-slip over her head. By her side was a bottle, the contents of which—ammonia—she had taken. For years she had lived in the most miserly fashion, and yet it was discovered that she had £300 invested in Leeds Corporation stock, —160 in a Leeds building society, and £30 in the Postoffice Savings Bank.

You can't flatter a man by calling him a sad dog, but call him a measly cur and he'll try to alter your map.

NORWOOD NEWS

Special Correspondence.

NORWOOD, Nov. 5.—Norwood, as usual, has supplied its quota of hunters who have gone out to try conclusions with the nimble deer.

The readers of the Review will ere this have almost memorized the introduction to an article such as this about the enthusiastic hunter handling his beloved rifle and trying the locks and inspecting the details of the mechanism of the various parts to see that everything is in perfect order, so we will dispense with this, and hasten to report, as nearly as memory will serve the personnel of the various parties who have struck the trail for the haunts of the antlered monarchs of the forest." Mr. J. Fred Pearce is as usual at the head of a part hunting in the vicinity of Millbridge, in North Hastings. Accompanying Mr. Pearce from Norwood are Messrs. George J. Keefer and Jack Rathwell. They expected to be joined at Central Ontario Junction by Mr. E. Knox, of Picton, and several other gentlemen of that town. The party usually give a good account of themselves.

Mr. Walter Crowe, of Stoney Lake, is at the head of a party of eight, who are camping north of Stoney Lake in the neighborhood of Jack's Creek. In this party is the old and tried hunter, Mr. Stanley Hendren, who is a valuable acquisition to any party of hunters who may be fortunate enough to include him in their number. Besides him is Mr. Arthur McKenty, from here, who, although not so old and experienced a hunter, is a first-class fellow and a good sport.

Two other parties composed of hunters from Norwood and vicinity, occupy grounds adjacent to the Crowe camp In theset two parties are included Mr. Daniel Sedgwick, of Peterborough, an old Norwood boy, and a right good fellow, as well as Messrs. R. N. Kirk, Alex. Kempt, Ernest and Georrge Baptie, of Centre Dummer; Alex. Davis, of Norwood, and several others. Altogether in the three parties there are about twenty guns. We are expecting good reports and big yarns about the hunt, especially about the big ones that got away. We wish the boys lots of sport and a good supply of venison.

Messrs. T. A. Searight and Hartley Ivey, of the Union Bank, Warkworth, visited their homes here on Sunday of this week.

On Monday evening of this week the Norwood Board of Education met with the following members present: Messrs C. E. Pakenham (Vice-Chairman); D. MacNaughton, Wm. Cuthbertson, E. P. Cuffe, E. C. Squire, John Doherty and J. F. Elliott.

Mr. Lawlor's suggestion for a class in Agriculture in the High School was left over for future consideration

The following accounts were passed: Jbn [illegible], express charges, 55c.; C.P.R. agent, express charges, $7.25; Samuel Wildman, teaming, $11.25; Bell Telephone Co., $2.00; Dominion Radiator Co., $14.47; C.P.R. freight 73c,; Wm. Doucett, brick work, $48.15; E. J. King, board (W. Doucett) 2 weeks, $10.00; Alf, Reynolds work (cement) $19,68; D. W. Rollins, balance contract, $149.14.

Moved by Messrs. Squire and Elliott, that certain books asked for by Mr. Trenouth, P.S. Principal, be procured.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Duffe and Squire, that a porch be built over the entrance to the boiler room in P.S.—Carried.

Norwood High School football team went to Campbellford on Saturday last and tried a team of that town in a friendly match. Overtime was played without either team scoring any goals. A return match is expected here on Saturday afternoon of this week.

Miss Winnie Rorabeck and Miss Marjorie Johnston both took part in the program at the church entertainment given at Cotesloe on Friday evening last.

The young people of Norwood held an informal dance in the Town Hall on Friday evening last. Those who attneded had a splendid time. Miss Louise Smith, of Toronto, manipulated the piano for the occasion to the delight and entire satisfaction of all present.

Mr. Frank Parker, of Roseneath was in Norwood this week with three waggon loads of apples in all about 45 barrels. The apples were of different varieties including spies, russetts, sweets and belle flowers. He had no difficulty in disposing of the whole lot at a good price. In fact he could have easily disposed of as many more. The apple crop in this vicinity this year was almost an entire failure and the people of Norwood are experiencing almost a famine in regard to that article of consumption.

The Mission Band of the Norwood Methodist Church held a very successful bazzar on Friday evening last in the basement of the church. The different booths were well stocked with various articles, both ornamental and useful. Supper was served at the moderate sum of fifteen cents, and a large crowd was accommodated. The proceeds amounted to somewhere in the neighborhood of sixty dollars. This is considerably in excess of any former year and those who conducted the affair are delighted with the results of their enterprise.

Mr. George Laing, of Peterborough visited his brother, Mr. E. J. Laing, Peterborough street, on Sunday afternoon last.

Messrs. D. Sanders and Parsens, of Toronto, are spending a few days in and around Norwood.

Mr. W. J. Miller, manager of the local staff of the Bank of Toronto, was in Havelock on Monday.

Messrs. Earle Laing and J. Heaney spent Sunday in Keene.

Miss F. Nicol has returned to her position in Toronto after an extended visit with her parents here.

Mrs. (Dr) Frederick, of Peterborough, was a guest at the home of Dr. Sutton last week.

Mr. J. Doris, of Peterborough attended the dance here on Friday night.

Mr. E. Ivey has gone to Peterborough where we understand he has secured a good position.

Dr. Robertson and his daughter, Mrs. Burkes of Peterborough were in town on Monday.

Mr. E. Craig, of Campbellford, was in town on Sunday.

DEATH

The sad news has been received of the death of Mrs. James Leach at the home of her son, Mr. J.H. Leach of Matawatchan, who had passed the allotted span of life, being at the time of her death in her 79th year. Four years ago a slight stroke of paralysis impaired her physical abilities, but with a little assistance she was still able to go about. She was much attached to her old Matawatchan home, and although she had visited a great deal among her daughters here and there her strong desire was to spend her declining days with her son at Matawatchan. Deceased was a native of Ireland, she came to this country when a little girl nine years of age. Several sisters came with her. In the year 1855 her fortunes were linked in marriage with those of James Leach. They had a family of ten children three of whom died in infancy, two sons and five daughters surviving viz., Mrs. David Boyle, Lanark Township; Mrs. Dr. Vanluven, Watertown, N.Y., Mrs. Ephraim Wilson, Peterboro; Mrs. John McFarlane, Keene; Mrs. Stewart Babcock, Matawatchan; George Leach, at Moyie B.C., and James Henry Leach, Matawatchan, Ont,

Mrs Leach was a member of the Methodist body and lived a consistant life; her domestic life was a beatuiful example of parental love and devotion, and the children caught from her the inspiration of affection, each being interested in the others' welfare. Her passing leaves a vacant place in the family circle that can never be filled.

Diatoms and X Rays.

M. Pierre Goby appears to be the first to obtain photographs of very minute specimens by the use of X rays such as diatoms and the like, which have about the size of a grain of sand This he does by placing the specimen directly upon a photographic plate and allowing a perfectly vertical beam of the rays to fall from a bulb above through a special tube so as to properly direct the rays on to the object. In this way he secures a very minute photograph of the interior structure of the specimens, and this can be enlarged many times so as to obtain a large view, in which the structure is clearly visible.—Scientific American.

Talking Clocks.

Clocks without hands or faces are now common in Switzerland. The timepiece stands in the hall, and, when a button is pressed, by means of phonographic arrangements it calls out "Half past 5," or "Five minutes to 9," as the case may be.

Dried apples are delicious served with pork chops.

JUDGE BARHORST DOES HIS DUTY TO RHEUMATIC SUFFERERS

If you suffer from Rheumatism and don't read this advice, then the terrible disease must have robbed you of your power to be fair to yourself. Read it:

"I, John Bathorst, Justice of the Peace of McLean Township, Ft. Loramie, Ohio, do certify that after treatment by three doctors without result, I have been cured of a very bad case of Rheumatism by using two bottles of RHEUMA. It is now two years since I used the remedy, and I am still as well as ever. Previous to using RHEUMA I was a cripple, walking with crutches, and I feel it my duty to let other sufferers from Rheumatism know what it will do. The result seems almost miraculous to me. I have advised RHEUMA to at least a dozen persons, and each one speaks as highly of it as I. I will advise any one suffering from the disease if a two-cent stamp is enclosed."—May 31, 1912.

You can secure a bottle of RHEUMA for only 50 cents at the Warne Drug Co., and they say, if not as advertised, money back. It's just as good for Gout, Arthritis, Lumbago and Sciatica.

Drug-Yielding Plants.

Ground is now being prepared in the new National Botanical Garden at Cape Town for some experimental work in regard to buchu and other drug-yielding plants. Public attention has been called to the desirability of the systematic cultivation of buchu in South Africa, where the plant is indigenous, and the opinion has been advanced that the crop is capable of becoming as remunerative as that of ostrich feathers. A field of buchu will practically take care of itself, and 75 cents a pound, it is pointed out, will always be realized for an article well grown.

Pioneer Boer Dead.

An old South African, Mr. Dirk Pieters, the owner of the farm upon which is situated the famous Pieters Hill, where the Boers made their last great stand prior to the relief of Ladysmith, is dead. Mr. Pieters was one of the few remaining "voortrekkers" from the Cape Colony in the late thirties, and was present at the Weenen massacre and at the battle of Blood River.

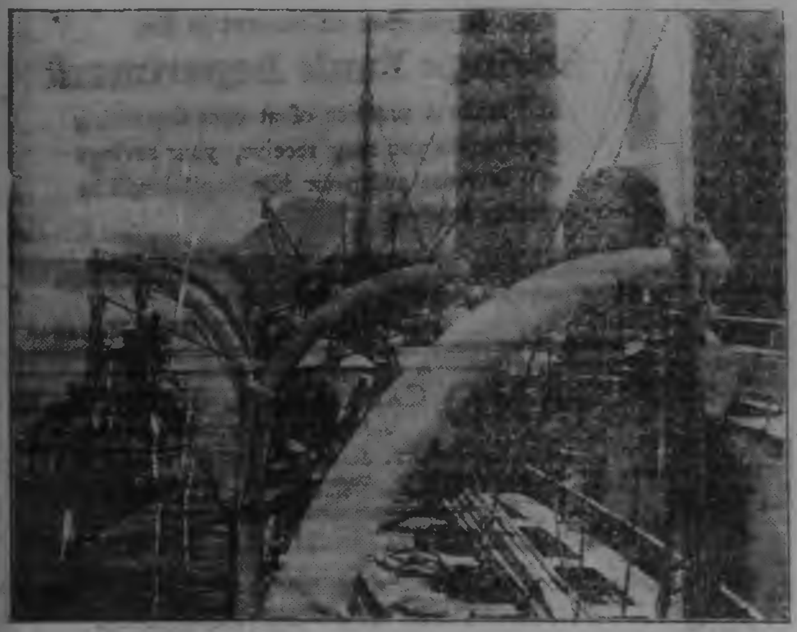
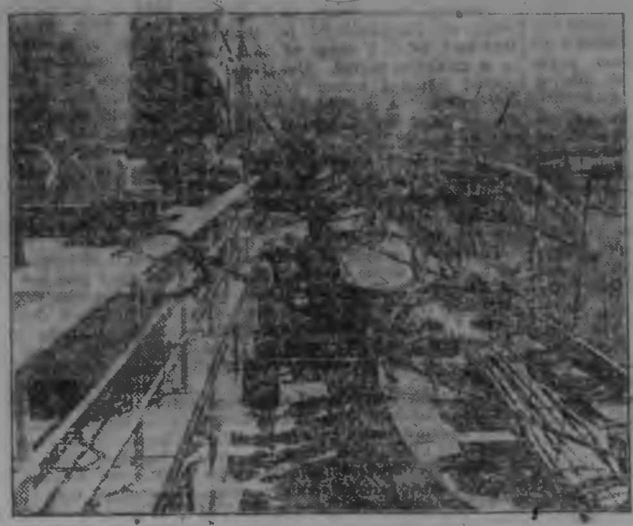
HOW CANADIAN STEAMSHIP OWNERS PROTECT PASSENGERS

SAVING LIFE AT SEA:

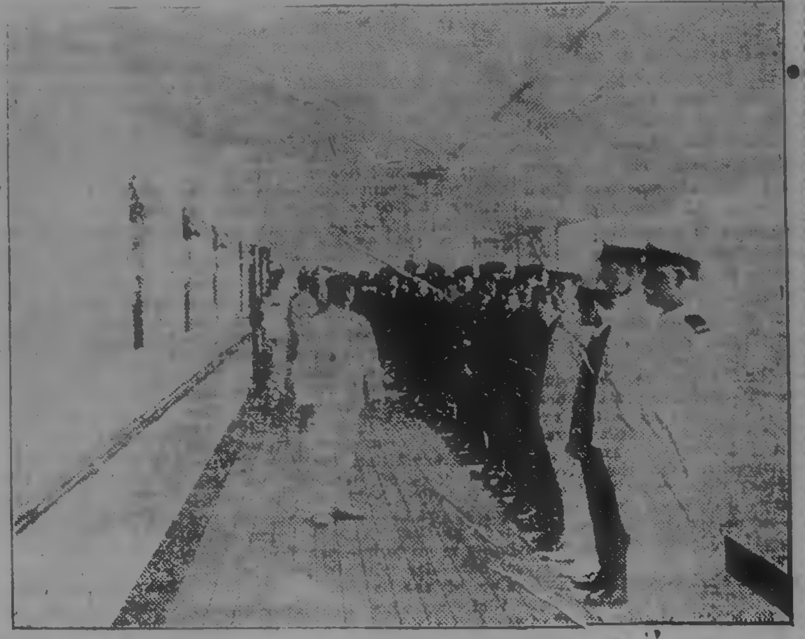
BY WILLIAM P. BROWN.



Lowering and Manning Life Boat.



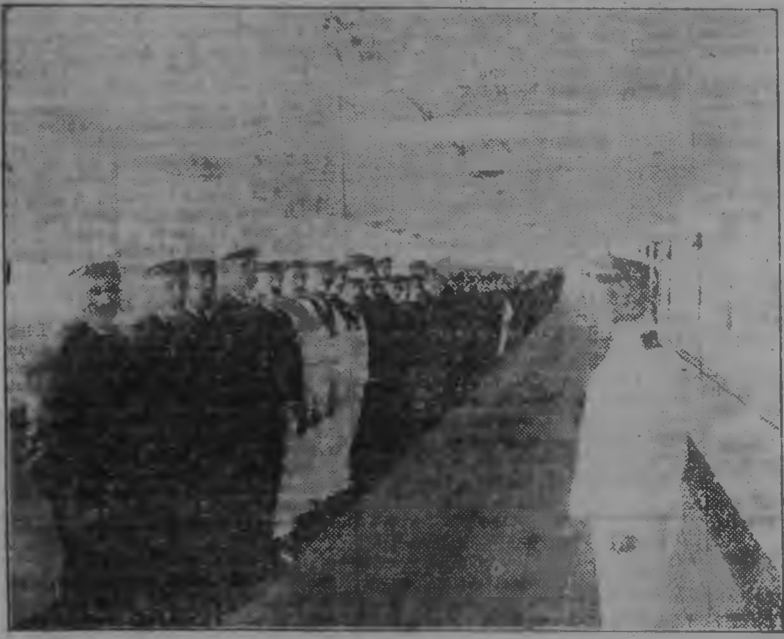
Empress Crew at Boat Stations.



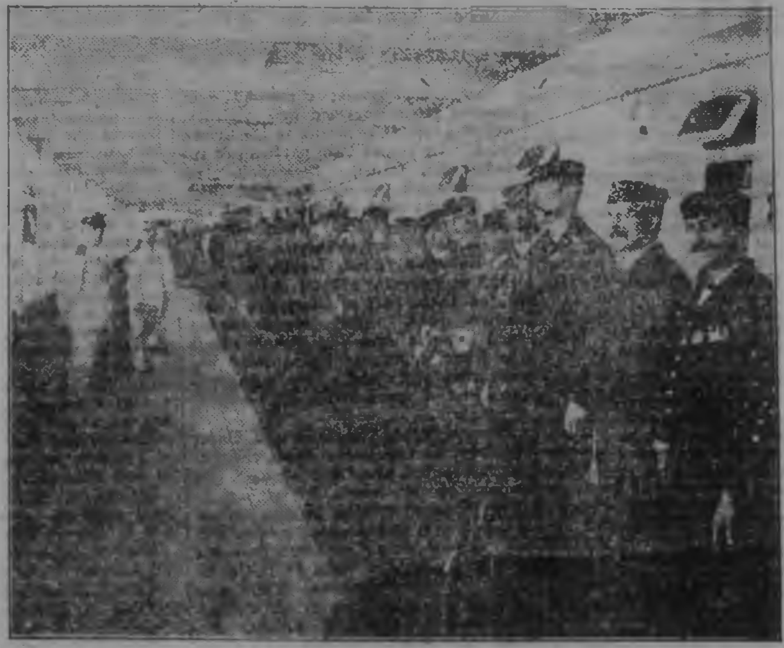
Commander Inspecting Steward's Crew.

In the following article the writer ives a vivid pen picture of the up-to- ate methods taken by Canadian teamship owners to secure the saf- y of their passengers on the Great akes as well as on the Atlantic and acific oceans. It has been well said at passengers in Canadian bottoms e as safe at sea as in their own (Ed.)

In the old days on the high seas, e merchant ship could be distin- ished from the man of war if by hing else than the lack of discip- ne among the crew. Of course, ere was a certain amount of discip- ne existing owing to the superiority rank, but there was not that dis- ctive orderliness in the work of e crew which is now a noticeable rt of almost every ship. Since the me when men first went down to e sea in ships, the science of sea- anship has been developing, and e of the lessons learned is that dis- pline among the crew is all import- t. Go aboard a modern ocean mship and you will see the crew dled on almost the same lines as board a Dreadnought. This is the eral rule with all the larger ship companies, and especially it so with British lines, who insist at their ships be run on almost litary lines, for the protection of ir passengers. In all cases, the tter has received particular at- tion, largely because some of the ps have been designed for use in of war if necessary. Many of ocean limits are so built, that h a few days' notice they can be ly equipped with guns and other ting equipment. Being big y boats, they could easily be e to be very formidable in time war, and this along with the fact t the crews of the ships are large- composed of Royal Naval Reserve has given their decks a martial that has spread throughout the le of the great merchant fleets. on board one of the C. P. R. Em- es as it leaves Quebec for Liv- l or across the three thousand es of continent to the Pacific t and board the Empresses of la, Japan or China, and you will once be struck with the general of orderliness and discipline. rything is "spic and span." There a place for everything and every- g is in its place. The decks are clean as a ball room floor and un- ess is not tolerated. When an r is given there is no hesitation the part of the crew before obey- the order. Every man under- ds just what is expected of him, each man is drilled and instruct- in his individual duties until the e crew work together like a of well-oiled machinery. If h were not the case it would be cally impossible for the steam- companies to handle the large passenger traffic that they now do. Take for instance the Atlantic traffic that has developed between Liverpool and these shores. Practically every boat landing at St. John, Quebec and Montreal during the last three months has brought with it at least 1,600 passengers, and the safe handling of such a heavy traffic would be impossible were it not for the precautions taken to ensure that the crew is always ready to meet any emergency that may arise.

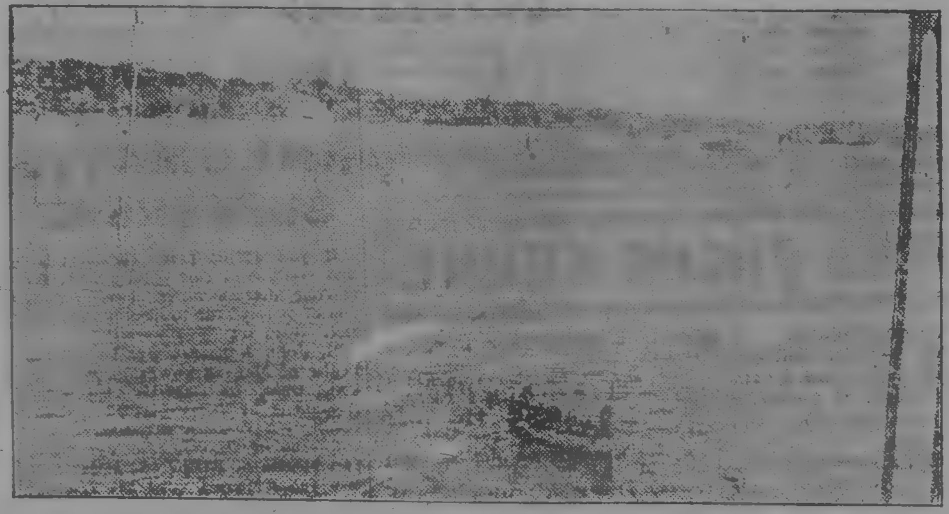


Waiting for Inspection.



Deck Crew Mustered for Inspection.

On board the same steamships these precautions take the form of drills among the crews, and by constant practise a high state of efficiency has been attained among the men. Every Thursday afternoon, preceeding the sailing of a boat from either end of its route, general muster and inspection of the crew is held by the Commander and his staff. On the Atlantic ocean, most steamers "spend a week in port after each trip and as it takes approximately seven days to cross the "Big Water," it follows that these inspections and musters are held every three weeks. These inspections perform a threefold function. First of all, they ensure that the vessel will not sail from the port short-handed as during the inspection it is an easy matter to locate any missing men afterwards to promise substiutes. Then too, the commanding officers know that the ship is in good shape to receive her passengers and that everything is clean and in good order, and finally, it ensures that every man knows his proper place, and what to do in the event of any of the emergencies arising, which are incidental to a voyage at sea. This latter item is all important as without an individual knowledge of what is expected of him, a man cannot intellegently act in unison with the rest of the crew. Every possible accident that can be thought of is supposed to be taking place on board the ship and they are all ably met by various parts of the crew. Everything is done with the utmost regularity and accuracy. The drills are performed smartly and aptly and the whole crew which is composed of something over four hundred men takes part.



Life Boat Returning to Ship.

On board mail boats the inspections take place at two o'clock in the afternoons of the Thursday before sailing. With the ship's buglers in attendance the "General Assembly" is sounded and the whole of the ship's company fall in for inspection on the upper promenade deck. The several departments of the deck, engine room, and stewards, fall in their appointed places, all arranged according to rank. Everyone of the crew, including even the twelve stewardesses, must be present, with uniform neat and tidy and with his boat badge which indicates his exact position on the life boat to which he would be assigned in the event of its being necessary to leave the ship. The importance of the part played by these badge numbers in the boat drills can be readily understood as it is essential that in the bustle and confusion attending a hurried departure from the ship that no time shall be lost owing to a lack of knowledge as to just where each man is expected to be at a given moment, after the signal to leave the ships has been given. With each man having his own distinctive number corresponding with a place in a boat, he knows at once just what is expected of him and as a result much valuable time is saved.

After the Commander has inspected the crew, they all march past him in order, and then to the sound of the bugle they fall in in their proper order around the life boats in the positions indicated by their badges. One life boat, which is picked out without notice, is then swung out, lowered into the water, and the crews start off on a short criuse around the ship. Each man is provided with a life preserver and these they fit on in quick order. Finally the crews return to the ship and the boats are hoisted back into place. By picking the boat which is to take part in these exercises indiscriminately, it provides that all the crews will be ready to perform their duties when called upon. The men are very keen on this part of the drill and there is considerable rivalry among the various crews as to which will do the work in the shortest possible time, and at the same time in a smart and seamanlike manner.

While this boat is being lowered into the water and put on board again, another portion of the crew is told off to lower the collision mat to cover an imaginary hole in the hull of the ship. The position of this imaginary hole is determined by the Commander, and a different part of the ship is designated each time so that the men learn how to handle the mat under all sorts of difficulties. For the spectator this is one of the most interesting of the many drills. The crew take a mat of heavy canvas, pass it over the bow of the boat and then pull it along until it covers the imaginary hole, and is then made fast. The mat being held up tight, against the side of the vessel, stops the heavy rush of water and prevents the vessel floundering while a more secure patch is being put on from the inside. This operation is completed in a wonderfully short time considering the difficulties to be overcome.

Then comes the spectacular feature of the inspection. After the mat drill, the fire alarm is sounded, and on the instant each man of the crew springs to his special station. The fire hose at the particular point indicated is put into service, and soon a number of heavy streams of water playing into the waters around the ship. A certain portion of the stewards of the crew are told off to carry buckets and blankets for use in smothering the fire, and a number of others are told off to attend to the provisioning of the boats in case the fire should go in such a hold that it would be necessary to leave the ship, and take to the life boats. All details are carefully considered, nothing is left to chance and as a result so systematic is the drill that an observer is led to aver that such organization would make short work of a fire, should one break out during a voyage. Every man of the crew, except those engagd in running the boat at the time has some duty to fulfill in case of fire, and by these practises he is taught to do it thoroughly and effectively.

After fire drill is completed and the Commander and his various officers see that everybody understands their position and their duties in the event of these emergencies arising, the passenger quarters of the vessel, are then carefully inspected in detail, in order to see that the rooms are clean and tidy, beds properly made, electric bells, lights, fans, etc., all in proper working order. In the course of this part of the inspection the watertight doors, which divide the vessels into compartments, with a view to confining leakage to one small section, are closed and opened by signal to show that they are not only in proper working order but that the men whose duty it is to attend to these matters, are in their stations and understand the signals, when they are given. Every hole and corner of the ship is carefully gone over, from the first class dining saloon to the steerage lavatories and hospitals.

These emergency drills and the inspection usually occupy from one and a half to two hour's time, and if everything is found to be satisfactory, the men are generally rewarded with a half holiday. This is not only much appreciated by the men, but has a tendency to keep them up to the mark in carrying out these requirements of the company.

stripes indicate a lieutenant, an eer-lieutenant, a surgon, or a ster — always having regard to gold circle on the uppermost pe, for the lieutenant, or the pur- red, or white cloth between the pes, and no circle, for the other aches. Three stripes, of which the one is only half the thickness e other two, indicate a senior ant or senior engineer, a staff- , or a staff-paymaster; while stripes all of the same thick- denote a commander, a fleet- n, or a fleet-paymaster. captain has four stripes. Offi- of admiral's rank have always broad gold stripe nearest the , and from one to four thinner stripes above it. Thus, a rear- iral has the broad stripe and one stripe above it; a vice-admiral has two above, an admiral has three, while an admiral of the fleet — of whom there are only five on the active list, one of whom is King George —has four. An admiral always wears A aiguillettes, as do the officers on his staff, such as his flag-lieutenant or his secretary.

Midshipmen have no stripes, as they are not commissioned officers; but they have a small square of white cloth on the front of the collars of their coats.

Further census returns show that there are 1,178,317 females in excess of males in Great Britain. The figures however, would be greatly reduced if the soldiers and sailors abroad were counted. Females continue to increase faster than males, as they have consistently since 1821.

Life wouldn't be so uncertain if it wasn't for the sure things.

ELEPHANT HUNTING.

Took Only Half an Hour to Shoot $2,500 Worth of Ivory.

W. Buckley, the great English elephant shot, in talking of his favorite game says:

"There are three curious things about the elephant.

"First, although he is the biggest animal in the world, he is the hardest to see, for he is the same color as the forest.

"Second, for all his vast area there is little more than a square foot of him that is vulnerable to a bullet.

"Third, all elephants are "left handed," as is proved by the fact that the left tusk is always shorter, being worn away with work.

"My biggest bag of elephants in one day was ten, but the most profitable was a day when I shot eight, and their tusks weighed 766 pounds. It took me half an hour to shoot them, and the ivory was worth $2,500. Of course that was an exceptionally good day.

"The tusks of the biggest elephant weighed 282 pounds —the right tusk 147 pounds, the left 135 pounds.

"The elephant is a very blind animal. From tests carried out he cannot see further than 170 yards, but he can scent a man for half a mile, and can distinguish between a white man and a black man. When he charges he always makes for the white man."

A Portrait of Cerbantes found

What is believed to be an authentic portrait of Cerbantes, painted by Juan De Jauregin, has been found at Nieco. It is a panel, and is dated 1600. The features are quite different from those of the familiar picturs of the Spanish writer.

ROYAL TASTES IN DRESS.

Kaiserin dresses more fashionable than Queen Mary.

It was noticeable during the visit of the German royalties to London that the Kaiserin did not share the prejudices of Queen Mary in regard to certain styles. The two ladies drove everywhere together and always Queen Mary wore the modest little toques of which she approves, while the German Empress favored large and much plumed headgear of the sort which Queen Mary has declared against.

Princess Victoria also revelled in large hats and even wore fairly tight skirts, not of the hobble variety but much skimpier and more clinging than those England's Queen considers suitable for court wear. One good old fashion all three ladies clung to, and that was a pocket in place of the bag which women carry nowadays.

Queen Mary always has capacious pockets in her skirts and underskirts, even her coronation gown had a pocket concealed in the panel down the front, and it was noted that the German Empress and her daughter dived down into a side recess of their skirts when they sought handkerchiefs, small change, etc., during their expeditions around London.

Opium Traffic to End in 1917.

The China-British agreement provides for gradual extinction of opium culture and traffic in both China and India, to become complete in 1917.

Shefket Pasha has issued a proclamation promising amnesty to the Albanian revolters if they will lay down their arms within ten days.

FORESTRY IN JAPAN.

Authorities Believe in Conservation—Been planting for 1200 years.

Japan has longer than any other country practiced technical forestry. With extraordinary skill and absolute success the authorities have for 1,200 years planted and cared for the forest trees. "The results," writes a correspondent, "have been really wonderful, for through the extremely sedulous management and the knowledge of skill by degrees attained the financial gains have been very large, indeed. Not a twig is ever wasted. The trees are regarded as almost sacred property, and not a particle of any one of them is regarded as rubbish, so close is the uilization. Thinning and all departments of arboreal culture are very carefully conducted. At the end of [illegible] years from planting a wood lot is thinned by experts, and then every five years the process is repeated for 120 years, the average period of the cultivation of a set of trees.

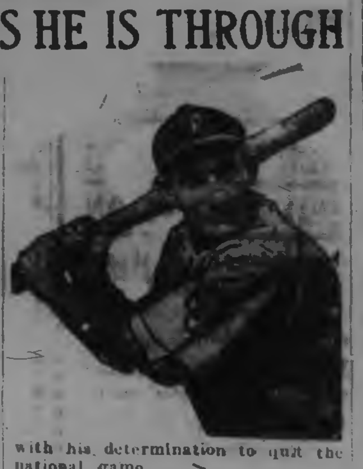
WAGNER, THE GREATEST OF ALL SAYS HE IS THROUGH

Pirate Shortstop Has Other Interests Which Need His Attention



Pittsburg, Nov. 6—Honus Wagner, the greatest shortstop the game ever knew, yesterday afternoon announced that he had played his last game of professional baseball. Wagner has retired before, but this time it is believed that the "Flying Dutchman" is on the level and that he is lost to major league baseball.

The reason given for quitting the game is that Wagner has so many businesses in this city and at Carnegie that he cannot afford to leave them as much as he has done in the past. Wagner has a nice fat fortune tucked away. He has made hundreds of friends among prominent steel and business men here, and it is understood that they have tipped him on many a good thing and he has turned his earnings as a ball player over many times through good investments.

Wagner also has a farm, in which he is greatly interested, and the care of this has had a lot to do with his determination to quit the national game.

While Hans played fine baseball last year and the season before, he did not equal his record of former seasons, and even his greatest admirers were forced to admit that the big Dutchman was "slipping." He also was injured in the early part of last season and forced out of the game for some time. Only the clever work of Bonesetter Reese enabled the Pirate shortstop to get back in the game, and it is believed that his leg has again gone back on him.

MILLER SIGNS WITH MONTREAL

Montreal, Nov. 6.—That the Wanderers hockey club will have practically the same team in the N.H.A. series this season as a year ago is due to the fact that seven of last season's players have already signed their contracts and returned them to President Lichtenhein. The only holdouts now are Art Ross and Harry Hyland, who are expected to sign almost any time. The team will therefore consist of Roberts, Miller, Cadoite, Boyes, Russell, the two Cleghorns, Atkinson, Ross and Hyland.

Why Do Women Suffer

When They Could Be Well?

It is so easy to be well and strong and able to enjoy life, that it is surprising how many women drag themselves through the day suffering tortures from lame back due to kidney trouble. Mrs. Wilcox found the way to cure herself and gladly writes about it so that others may be induced to use the same remedy.

CRUSHING REBUKE.

Palmerston Honored the Independent Briton But Not the Snob.

In the early days of railways, on some of the lines smoking was not allowed at all, either in the trains or on the station buildings.

One day a station-master at a large station, a man noted for his conceit and pomposity, deserted a gentleman pacing the platform with a cigar in his mouth. He at once accosted the offender and requested him forthwith to stop smoking. The gentleman took no notice of this command, but continued to walk emitting a silvery cloud.

The station-master asked him to stop smoking more peremptorily than before; but still the owner of the Havana maintained a provoking disregard. A third time the order was repeated, accompanied with the threat that if the obstinate sinner did not obey he would be handed over to the tender mercies of the porters.

The stranger took no more heed than before; so at last the official completely losing his temper, pulled the cigar out of the smoker's mouth and flung it away.

This violent act produced no more effect than commands and threats and the peripatetic philosopher continued his walk quite serenely.

Presently a carriage and four drove up—an equipage well known to the station-master as the Duke of Beaufort's. To his inconceivable horror, the refractory smoker entered the chariot and drove off to Badminton.

The railway official made inquiries as to who the stranger was, and felt ready to sink into the earth when he found out it was Lord Palmerston. He at once ordered a chaise and pair and drove to Badminton.

Arrived there, he sent in his card and urgently requested a private interview with his lordship. Lord Palmerston soon appeared, and the station-master began a most abject apology for having so grossly insulted his lordship; had he known who his lordship was, he would not have so treated his lordship for the world.

The Premier heard the station master out; then, looking down upon him sternly, with his hands in his pockets, said:

"Sir, I respected you because I thought you were doing your duty like a Briton; but now I see you are nothing but a snob."

Dogs and Moving Pictures.

A moving picture show was recently given in London to determine what effect a cinematograph picture had on the intelligence of animals. A series of motion pictures were reeled off in a darkened room before an audience of prize dogs. First some pictures of a dog show were run through. The dogs walked up and had a look at it, and turned away, obviously bored and uninterested. Evidently the subject was too familiar. They woke up, however, when an elephant came splashing into a pool of water and appeared to be walking into the room.

A massive bulldog made a dash for the screen. With his head up and ears pricked, he got ready to attack, and the whole audience barked and bayed in blood-curdling discord. Pictures of birds also irritated them, but when other animals were shown they quickly recognized that they were not looking at the real thing, and in a few seconds quieted down completely. The general result of the experiment seemed to be that dogs do not understand still pictures, but that they appreciate motion, though it very largely depends upon the nature of the thing moving.

The Sun From a Balloon.

At the height of two miles the sun shines with a fierce intensity unknown below, where the dust and the denser air scatters the rays, which, thus diffused, lose their intensity while illumining every nook and corner of our houses. At heights exceeding five miles this diffused light is mostly gone, and the sun shines a glowing ball, sharply outlined in a sky of which the blue is so dark as to approach blackness. At the outer limits of the atmosphere the sun would appear a brilliant star of massive size among other stars, and if one stepped from its burning rays into shadow he would enter Egyptian darkness.

A ONE MAN CRUSADE

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.

Just before graduating for the ministry Bruce Stevens spent four days in the town of Newbern as a part of his vacation.

Mr. Stevens found a political boss and a political ring in the town.

He found one-half too many saloons for a town of its population.

He found the sheriff of the county and his deputies and the constable in cahoots with the tough element.

The justice of the peace was the keeper of a saloon and passed drinks over the bar, and he protected his own sort when it came to legal troubles.

"Why don't you do something?" he asked of a merchant of the town who was a representative of the better element.

"And get boycotted and driven into bankruptcy?" was asked in return.

"Is it as bad as that?"

"The gang has us by the neck and has us scared. We have no leader."

A few weeks later, when ready to take up his ministerial duties, Mr. Stevens asked to be sent to Newbern.

"But we have a minister there," was replied.

"But he has lost nearly all of his congregation."

"Yes, the reports from that parish are not at all cheering, and I believe Brother Baker would welcome a transfer. You know it's one of the hardest towns in the state."

"I have spent four days there."

"The cause of religon is reported as very lukewarm."

"I didn't know that there was any there at all," smiled the minister.

"Well, you'll be appointed to the place. I hope you may stir things up."

The Rev. Mr. Stevens arrived. He started out with a sermon that jolted and jarred. He spared neither Christian nor sinner. While he criticised the former for lack of backbone, he plainly told the latter that the crisis had come. The crisis meant decency and reform without any shame about it. After the sermon he lingered to talk with members of his congregation. He found them looking forward with great timidity. If he started a crusade he must not expect any active help from them. They were thoroughly cowed.

"This is to be a one man crusade," he answered them. "I did not expect your aid, and so I'm not disappointed."

Monday morning the crusade opened. Mr. Stevens visited the sheriff and, without any beating around the bush, he said:

"Sheriff, I am the new minister."

"Yes?"

"I am going for your crowd tooth and toe nail."

"Why do you call it my crowd?" was asked.

"Because it is. There are violations of the law every hour of the day, and you stand by without interference. You drink in every saloon, and you comrade with every lawbreaker. It's the same with your deputies and the constables. It's got to stop. You have got to do your sworn duty."

"Another reformer struck the town, eh?" was the insulting reply.

The sheriff went from saloon to saloon and laughed at the reformer and said there should be no interference from him. Within two weeks he was removed and another man named by the minister was in his shoes. The citizens of Newbern were stunned. It seemed incredible.

The Rev. Mr. Stevens visited the justice in his saloon and said:

"It's for you to enforce the law, and here you are among the lawbreakers! The others are depending upon you to dismiss any complaint made against them. What course are you going to take?"

"None of your business!"

The next day the minister complained of nine saloons which had violated the law. Each one of them was dismissed. Inside of twenty days the old justice was out and a new one in.

There were ordinances against Sunday sports. They had not been enforced in five years. They came to the front now. No more baseball or horse racing.

"Beat the meddler up!" was whispered, and a shake purse was made up to reward a scrapper for doing it.

He started out with great ardor to make a two minute job of it, but it lasted only half that time. The minister knocked him out with a jab on the jaw and then had him arrested and fined for disorderly conduct.

Then a public meeting was called at a hall, and the minister did some tall talking. He put heart into the decent citizens so strongly that they came out boldly to his support, and the opposition saw that their cause was lost.

One thing more. The Rev. Mr. Stevens from his pulpit raked the citizens of Newbern as they had never heard a minister talk before. They owed a duty to God and to man. They must show up at church, whether they were Christians or not. The Sunday school must be resurrected. There must be church work. Religion and politics must mix until every office in the county was filled by a decent man. The devil had had possession of Newbern long enough. Now he must be knocked down and dragged out.

There was no devil there a year later. A stranger stopping at the inn of a Sunday would have looked around him and mused:

"A clean town—a nice town—a respectable town. Everybody seems to be going to church, and I guess I'll go along too."

Did You Ever Stop to Think

What a Great Proportion of a Newspaper's Readers Read Its Classified Columns

Every Person can be an Advertiser.

Suppose you want a Situation, or want Help—turn to the Classified Columns. There you will find "Situations Wanted" and "Help Wanted" headings over advertisements which properly belong under those classifications. The COST of such Advertising is MODERATE. The RETURNS from such Advertising are practically CERTAIN.

Suppose you don't want a Situation or don't want Help—maybe you are looking for a "Business Chance," or have a coal or cook stove you would like to sell—maybe you want to buy or sell a sewing machine, a piano, a typewriter or an automobile.

No matter what you want, you can sell or you can acquire by being a Classified Advertiser.

The Classified Columns of THE REVIEW

Are the natural market place for human wants.

Try them—next time you have a want, advertise it in the Classified Columns of The Review.

You'll be surprised and delighted with results.

A CHALLENGE TO "ONE WHO KNOWS"

And to All Who Know and Are Willing to Have Their Knowledge Used

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—For a considerable time rumors have been abroad regarding immorality in our city. There have been numerous anonymous letters on the subject and of late these letters have increased in number and outspokenness. Since it became known that the laymen of the city were organizing an aggressive missionary campaign several have taken a slap at that movement. Is anything gained by this? Why not do both? Let the Laymen's Missionary Conference and banquet be the success they deserve to be. And let us get to the bottom of what lies behind the rumors of immorality, and the anonymous letters and the editorials for there have been editorials.

To this end I challenge the author of the letter signed "One Who Knows" and I challenge all who know facts bearing on the said immorality of this city to meet me at Andrew's Manse, beside St. Andrew's Church, corner Brock and Rubidge streets, on Friday evening of this week, to organize—to plan— to gather further information and to keep on the job until conditions are vastly changed. If the rumors are false they are a crime against our city. If they are true the city should be cleaned up. I am willing to take any place on the job, no matter how inconspicuous it may be, and to remain on the job until something is done. Remember the place, St. Anderew's Manse, and the time, Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Faithfully yours,
JAMES ROLLINS.

Since writing the article on this subject which appears in our editorial column, we have received the above letter from Mr. Rollins, which we commend as a straightforward appeal to all straightforward people. Mr. Rollins is in dead earnest about this matter, and if other men, lay or otherwise, will stand by him something definite might be done.—Ed. Review.

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED FOR THE KING'S DAUGHTERS

Resume of Work Accomplished During the Year

—Balance on hand

The annual meeting of the King's Daughters was held on Monday when the following officers were re-elected —

President— Mrs. Hazen Ritchie.

Sec.-Treas.— Miss Margaret English.

Hospital Committee— Mrs. Travers and Miss Pearce.

Home Committee — Mrs. Harvey and Miss Munro.

The secretary reported that considerable work had been accomplished by the Circle during the year although the demand for help was not as large owing to the mild winter and the abundance of work.

Some fifty calls were made by the members of the local branch on families in need of sympathy and material help and the Hospital and the Home were very regularly visited by the energetic visiting committee. Over seven hundred baskets of Christmas cheer were sent out and delivered by the Boy Scouts.

The funds of the club were increased by the proceeds of a lecture given by Mr. F. Dobbin, and through the annual Charity Ball, which was well attended.

The Circle lost one of its most interested members by death in the person of Mrs. George Rubidge.

Through the courtesy of the Library Board the meetings were held once a month in the Board Room of the Public Library.

The Treasurer's report was as follows:—

RECEIPTS

Open Air Estimating Contest

Two Tons of Hick's Screened Scranton COAL FREE

SATURDAY AFTERNOON, NOV. 8th

OUR NEW COAL ELEVATOR at the corner of Bethune and Charlotte Streets, will be in operation and open to inspection of the public, from 3 to 4 o'clock, in order to give a demonstration of our improved methods of handling and screening Coal.

AT 3.30 O'CLOCK we will draw off a waggon load of Screened Scranton Coal, when every adult resident of the city, male or female, over 18 years of age, will be given a chance to estimate the weight of the load. Estimating cards will be distributed on the grounds, and the person estimating the nearest to the weight will be entitled to Two Tons of Screened Scranton Coal, delivered FREE to any address in the city.

Only one estimate to each person. In the event of more than one person estimating the nearest to the weight, One Ton of Coal will be given to each of the three nearest. Our own employees and coal dealers and employees are barred from the contest. Estimates will only be received from those on the grounds who have inspected our methods of handling Coal.

FINE PROGRAM FOR AT HOME

Held by Sodality of Sacred Heart Church

With ideal weather and a record-breaking crowd, the at home held last evening in St. Alphonsus Lyceum under the auspices of the Sodality of the Sacred Heart, could not fall short of a shining success. The members of the committee, who were indefatigable in the discharge of their duties, were, Misses A. Meagher, E. Brioux, Marie O'Dette, A Grady, C. Carson, J Barnett and M. Boyle. The winners at the cards were Mr. P O'Donnell and Miss M. Powers. Refreshmnets were served after the cards.

The dancing program which was subject to several enthusiastic encores, was danced to music rendered by Miss Olive Letellier, pianist, in a very efficient manner.

FIVE IN ONE FAMILY HAVE TYPHOID FEVER

M.H.O. Does not Think City Water is to Blame

That a slight epidemic of typhoid fever has struck Peterborough is quite evident as already several cases have broken out and the patients confined to the hospitals. Five members of one family residing on McDonnel street are down with the fever and are confined to the St. Joseph's Hospital. Two of the patients are from out of the city, while the others are residents of the city.

Interviewed this morning, Dr. McPherson was strongly of the opinion that it was not the city water that caused the outbreak. Owing to the fact of people going from place to place and drinking the water, it makes it extremely hard to arrive at the cause of the outbreak.

"The water in the city, during the past three weeks has been very good and I certainly don't think that our city water is to blame," said Dr. McPherson, "but then there are one hundred and one different ways that one may get typhoid fever."

Except for the typhoid fever the city is free from sickness of a malignant nature. There is only one case of diphtheria.

MIGHT MAKE GOOD DOG CATCHERS

They Caught Runaway Horse When it Fell

In the deserted village we are given a very vivid picture of an old soldier "shouldering his crutch to show how fields were won," but in The Review office to-day he was outdone then two employes, namely James Anglesy and Harold Follis, described the manner in which they stopped a run-away to-day, at noon.

About 12.40, an employe of the Bell Telephone had a livery horse and was about to start out on an afternoon's work. He stepped into the office on Hunter street for an instant and when he returned the horse was down near Aylmer street and breaking all speed records. The animal ran as far as Rubidge and turned southward. It was going at break neck speed when it passed Sherbrooke street, and then the two "heroes came onto the scene. A carter was driving south, at a much slower rate, and when James ran out to try and catch the oncoming beast the horse dodged his stalwart frame and plunged into the carter's truck. With the speed of "Eddie Colins" James grabbed at the animal's neck as it stumbled and brought it to a stop. The other Review man came to his assistance and they succeeding in extricating the horse from the demolished rig.

WERE LOOKING FOR TROUBLE

After the entertainment at Downer's Corners last night, which was such a success and enjoyed, and as the gathering was leaving a couple of "drunks" from town arrived with the intention of raising a disturbance. They were quickly turned back and they will be dealt with by the proper authorities.

ANNIVERSARY AT DOWNERS CORNERS

Col. Miller Gave the Address to Orangemen and Friends

L.O.L. No. 321, last evening celebrated the anniversary of the "Gunpowder Plot," by their annual supper, entertainment, and the burning of "Guy Fawkes." The affair was a grand success, the hall being filled with over 200 people.

Col. Miller was the chief speaker of the evening. His warm patriotic address, which is always so characteristic of the Colonel, was very much appreciated and warmly received by all.

Supper was served from six to eight, after which the following program was given, with Mr. Ernest Kitney, Master of the Lodge, in the chair:

Chairman's Address.
Recitation—Mr. J. Bunnett.
Song—Mr. T. Hendry.
Address—Col. Miller.
Recitation—Mr. J. Johns.
Phonograph Selections—Mr. J. Robinson.
Sketch—Taking the Census.
God Save the King.

PERSONAL

Mr. R. Wilson, of Renfrew, is a guest at the Oriental.

Victor Aloysuis, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs Carmine Asta, 515 Parnell street, passed away last evening. The funeral will take place to-morrow morning to St. Peter's Cemetery.

St. John's choir will hold the festival practice for the Dedication Festival (Sunday next) to-night in the church at 8. Boys assemble at 7.30.

A regular meeting of the Royal Templars of Temperance was held last evening in the Knights of Pythias Hall, Simcoe street. About twenty members were present. After the business of the Lodge was completed a social hour was spent, during which refreshments were served and a short program rendered.

Mr. Ben Shortley received a deer to-day from his son, Mr. Orville Shortley, of Ottawa, who is hunting with a party about 160 miles north of Ottawa. The animal is a fine specimen and is on exhibition at Mervin's butcher shop.

Owing to the centre pier of the Nassau bridge undergoing repairs, the bridge will be closed to traffic for a few days. The heavy ice of last spring shattered the pier considerably.

No longer will Mr. John Cronin, the flag man at the Quaker Oats, Hunter street crossing, have to brave the perils of the cold winter weather as a watch house has been constructed.

The Board of Works meet in regular session to-night at the usual hour.

Members of the Horticultural Society are reminded of the meeting to-night at 7.30.

The work of raising the huge smokestack for the new incinerator was commenced this afternoon under the supervision of Chas. Baker of the Wm. Hamilton Company of this city. The smokestack weighs five tons is ninety feet in length and was manufactured by the Wm. Hamilton Company.

Section No. 5

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and marked "Tender for Section No. 5, Welland Ship Canal," will be received at this office until 12 o'clock noon on Tuesday, November 18th, 1913.

Plans, specifications and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on or after this date at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Engineer in Charge, St. Catharines, Ontario.

Copies of plans and specifications may be obtained from the Department on the payment of the sum of fifty dollars. To bona fide tenderers this amount will be refunded upon the return of the above in good condition.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind, that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque on a chartered Bank of Canada, for the sum of $100,000 00 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals, must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

SIGNAL HONORS PAID TO THE EX-AMBASSADOR

Bryce Replies to His Critics, at Distinguished Gathering.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—A large and distinguished gathering welcomed the Rt. Hon. James Bryce, late ambassador to Washington, at the dinner given in his honor by the Pilgrims last night. The American ambassador, Walter Hines Page, read messages from the President of the United States, John H. Choate, former ambassador at London, and others.

A large part of Mr. Bryce's speech was devoted indirectly and directly to replying to criticisms made by the Conservative papers of his work as ambassador. He emphasized the idea that the British ambassador to the United States had to deal with problems between Canada and the United States, for Canada's interests were as important to the Empire as were England's. He then made a direct reply to these criticisms, saying that he would not have noticed them except for the important principle involved.

An ambassador to a foreign country, he said, acted merely as the agent of his Government and carried out the instructions of his Government. The critics acted in ignorance, because the only persons who knew what the ambassador was trying to do was his Foreign Office and himself. The danger was that criticisms of an ambassador by the press of his own country had the effect of weakening his status and prestige with the country to which he was accredited.

He had been criticized for being absent from Washington. The criticism amused him, but be hoped the bad precedent would not be set of criticising servants of the crown when absent upon business abroad, thereby injuring the public service itself.

THIS IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY

To procure regular $3.50 to $5.00 gold filled spectacles and eye-glasses for $1.50 at C. M. Moncur's drug store 407 George street, Peterborough on Saturday and Monday, Nov. 8th and 10th. These glasses are just the same as are sold regularly from $3.50 to $5.00. Remember you get a genuine gold filled frame with very best quality lenses and your eyes properly tested by Mr. W. S. Hughson, of Toronto, a graduate optician with over 20 years' experience in prescribing and fitting glasses. Mr. Hughson has visited this store regularly for the past two years and can furnish first-class testimonials in this vicinity. Come early and take advantage of this great opportunity. Notice—Don't forget the dates.

MEMBERS OF ROYAL HOUSEHOLD TO COME

Will Visit Peterboro the Last Week of This Month

A party from the Royal Household Ottawa, will be visiting Peterboro during the last week of this month. Rev. James Price of St. George's church has been informed that the party will visit the Bazaar while in the city. The Duke of Connaught will not be able to come.

A full list of the heads of the various booths at the Bazaar will be published in a few days. This Bazaar promises to break all past records in this line in Peterboro.

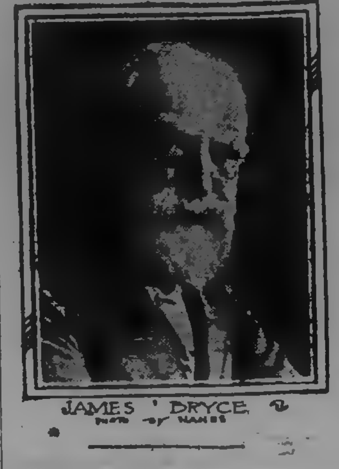
At the time of going to press Judge Huycke had not given judgment in the Innis case.

The case may be settled by a marriage.



DIED IN POLICE CELL

Another Toronto Tragedy Occurs Through Error

TORONTO, Nov. 7. — Thought to have been suffering from the effects of alcoholism a man who, from papers found in his possession, is believed to be one Levine of Cleveland, Ohio, died yesterday morning in No. 2 Police Station and the police are now endeavoring to locate his relatives. An inquest will be held this evening at the Morgue.

Levine was found on York street by Constable Norton, who summoned the patrol wagon as he thought also that the man was in an advanced state of intoxication.

Sergt. Crowe of No. 2 Police Station sent him to the General Hospital, where the case was diagnosed as one of intoxication and the man was sent back to the police station.

The station duty man made him as comfortable as possible, but shortly afterwarsd found him in a dying condition. Before he could be sent again to a hospital he had died.

Several similar cases have occurred in the past few years.

BEILISS IS IGNORED.

Prosecutor In Summing Up Avoids Mention of Prisoner.

KIEV, Russia, Nov. 7.—The name of Mendel Beiliss, the man standing trial for the alleged murder of the Christian boy, Andrew Yushinsky in March, 1911, was barely mentioned in the speech of counsel for the prosecution yesterday. This was remarked by those present in court as the same thing that happened when counsel delivered his opening speech on the indictment. Toward the end of his address to the jury, however, prosecuting counsel expressed his profound conviction that Beiliss was guilty.

M. Zamislovsky, counsel for the Black Hundred, followed, repeating the prosecutor's arguments, but, contrary to expectation, in a tone of great moderation. His restraint is generally attributed to powerful external influence.

Father of Wireless Dead.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The death occurred yesterday of Sir William Henry Preece, known in England as the "father of wireless telegraphy." He was in his 80th year. Sir William introduced both the telephone and talking machine into England and was the inventor of many patents connected with the telegraph and the telephone. For several years he was engineer-in-chief and electrician to the British postoffice and was at one time president of the Institute of Civil Engineers.

Nine Conspirators Executed.

ALLAHABAD, British India, Nov. 7.—Nine ringleaders of an abortive plot recently discovered against the reigning Ameer of Afghanistan, Habibullah Khan, have been executed at Kabul, the Afghanistan capital. The conspirators were blown from the mouths of cannon.

NOT GUILTY

Jury Acquits Mrs. Beemer of the Charge of Poisoning Her Husband--Hands Were Clapped After the Verdict

WOODSTOCK, NOV. 7—The Beemer murder case went to the Jury at ten minutes past twelve, after the charge by Mr. Justice Kelly which seemed to lean strongly in the prisoner's favor.

WOODSTOCK (Later)—At twenty-five minutes past one, the Jury returned to the court room and presented a verdict of not guilty.

Some of the audience clapped their hands but were promptly checked.

MADEROS ARE IN CUSTODY

U. S. Will Watch to See What Becomes of Them

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—No new developments, good, bad or indifferent—this was the word that came from the White House late yesterday as to the status of the Mexican situation, following the presentation to Provisional President Huerta of the wish of the United States that he resign.

The news from Mexico that Huerta would reject the United States demands for his elimination was received in official circles without comment. Secretary of State Bryan had a long conference with President Wilson, and Chairman Bacon of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was an early White House caller. Talk of lifting the embargo on arms was revised in Congressional circles with considerable vigor.

Manuel Madero, uncle of the late President of Mexico, and several relatives who were recently arrested at Saltero and placed on a Mexican gunboat supposed to be bound for Vera Cruz, have been taken to Mexico City. Consul Canada, who, under instructions from the State Department, has been watching for the party's arrival at Vera Cruz with the purpose of seeing that they were fairly treated, has reported that in some way they were taken to the interior without passing through Vera Cruz. Charge O'Shaughnessy, who has already made representations to the Provisional Government in the interest of the prisoners, will continue to watch developments in the case.

Money Is Seized.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 7.—One hundred and eighteen boxes of silver pesos, each valued at about $3,000, forwarded here by Hugo Scherer & Co., bankers of Mexico City, for shipment on the steamer Mexico, were seized by Government officials yesterday. It is asserted by the authorities that under the law prohibiting such exportation, the money is liable to confiscation.

The same steamer has on board more than half a million in gold and silver bars, shipped by banks of Mexico City.

Engineer Is Held.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—The Minister of Commerce yesterday refused the request of the French Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers for the release on his own recognizance of Dumaine, the engineer of the Paris-Marseilles express which collided on Tuesday evening with a local train at Melun and caused the death of thirty-nine people.

Dumaine was arrested after the accident, and the Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean Railroad Co., affirm that it was through his inattention to the signals that the disaster was brought about.

GENERAL DIAZ IS STABBED

GEN. DIAZ IS STABBED.

Mexican Leader Wounded by Compatriot In Havana.

HAVANA, Nov. 7. — Gen. Felix Diaz, the Mexican general who fled from Vera Cruz on the American warship last week, was attacked by five men last night and stabbed, one or more times. The wounds were not serious. Gen. Diaz, with a party of friends, was attending the band concert in the plaza at the time. The attack created tremendous excitement.

Gen. Diaz was wounded behind the ear and in the neck, besides receiving several blows on the head from a cane. Diaz was removed to a hospital. His assailant, a Mexican, was arrested.

McIntyre Gets Two Years.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 7.—William McIntyre, former accountant of the Bank of Nova Scotia here, pleaded guilty before Judge Forbes in the county court yesterday to stealing $10,000 of the bank's funds. He was sentenced to two years in Dorchester Penitentiary at hard labor, but the judge said he would willingly recommend to the Department of Justice that McIntyre be released on parole.

It is understood a petition will be sent to the Minister of Justice along these lines, and that the bank authorities are ready to join in the petition.

Valparaiso Is Hopeful.

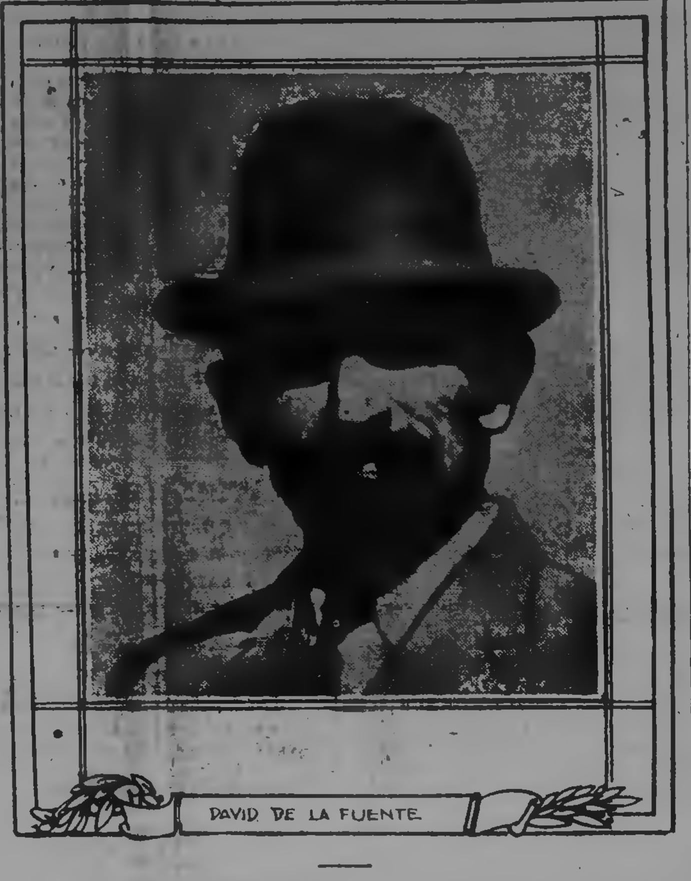
VALPARAISO, Nov. 7.—A record number of steamers passed through the Magellan Straits in the ten months from Jan. 1 to Oct. 31 this year, according to an official statement issued yesterday. The traffic comprised 221 steamers from the Atlantic and 137 from the Pacific.

Officials here are of the opinion that the number of vessels using the Magellan Straits will not be affected by the opening of the Panama Canal, and that Valparaiso will continue to be the principal port in the southern Pacific.

Unlikely To Reimprison Miller.

OTTAWA, Nov. 7.—That R. C. Miller of Montreal, last session's state prisoner, will be subjected to further imprisonment at the coming session of Parliament is not believed in official circles here. Miller, it is pointed out, was confined in the tower for contempt rather than on any charge. The case in which Miller was involved is now in the courts.

WILL HE BECOME MEXICO'S NEXT PRESIDENT!



There is a report current in Mexico City to the effect that General Victoriano Huerta had offered to resign the Presidency in favor of David de la Fuente, formerly Minister of Communications and the nominee of the liberals in the recent election.

IRONWORKERS' SECRETARY ARRAIGNED AT WHITBY

Engineer Black Testifies That He Saw Prisoner Act Suspiciously While Sitting on Coil of Rope and Later Throw Away Shining Object.

WHITBY, Nov. 7.—The trial of Stead M. Gamble of Toronto, financial secretary of the Structural Iron Workers' Union, on a charge of damaging a rope used to support a workmen's trestle on a C.N.R. bride, while a strike was on, began here yesterday.

The crown desired to delay the opening of the trial until Dr. Rogers, provincial analyst, who has been at Woodstock in the Beemer case, might be present. In order to get on with the case the defence admitted the contention which Dr. Rogers was to be caleld to prove, namely that a bottle which was found contained sulphuric acid, and that the damage done to the rope was caused by sulphuric acid.

Gamble appeared in the court room with his wife and two children, and seems to be quite confident. He pleaded not guilty.

An engineer named Black testified that on June 16 he saw Gamble and a man named McCaig in the vicinity of the bridge; McCaig left Gamble and went on toward the bridge, while Gamble sat on a coil of rope. Witness saw him moving his hands over the coil, but imagined he was whittling a piece of wood. Then he saw him throw over his shoulder something which glinted in the sun, and which he presumed was a flask. On June 27 the coil of rope was discovered to have been damaged, and the actions of Gamble came to his mind as being suspicious. Gamble had also thrown stones in the direction of the bottle he had tossed away.

Cross-examined by Mr. Dewart, Black held to his story. He admitted that at the time he had not suspected Gamble, but was really more watchful of McCaig. Mr. Dewart endeavored to show that there was ample opportunity during the period between June 16 and 25 for many other men to damage the rope. Gamble did not appear to be afraid of detection in his movements.

MAY HAVE CAFES

Quebec Expected to Institute War on the Bars.

QUEBEC, Nov. 7.—The gradual abolition of the bar in hotels, the collection of revenue, not by the sale of licenses for a fixed amount, but on a percentage basis, and the reduction of licenses in the cities and towns of the province, it is believed will be recommended in the report the license commission appointed by Sir Lomer Gouin to consiedr the liquor question in Quebec is now preparing, and which the session of the Legislature, which opens on Nov. 18, will consider. Legislation dealing with these points is expected to provide an interesting struggle in the House.

The exact nature of the recommendations that the commission will make will not be known until its report is tabled, but it is taken for granted that they will suggest legislation of a most drastic character. It is thought that, instead of the bar, hotels will be compelled to establish cafes, with tables and chairs, after the fashion of the European resorts.

WOMAN MAY DIE.

Revolver Went Off In Hands of Brother—Latter Missing.

TORONTO, Nov. 7.—Mrs. Ethel Parrington, of 39 Delaney crescent, lies at the General Hospital in a serious condition with a 22-calibre bullet in her back, fired from a revolver in the hands of her brother, James Koeninske, aged about 19. The shooting is believed by the police to have been accidental and happened at 11 o'clock yesterday morning in the woman's kitchen, where she was working while her brother was engaged in cleaning the revolver.

According to an eye-witness of the affray, Miss Marion Hall, of 52 Delaney crescent, the young man pointed the revolver at his sister's back, and, evidently not knowing it was loaded, pulled the trigger. There was a report and the woman fell to the floor. Koeninske has disappeared.

TROOPS CALLED IN

National Guard Invades Indianapolis to Suppress Disorders

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 7. — Indiana's entire National Guard, consisting of more than 2,000 soldiers are encamped in different parts of Indianapolis last night, ready for duty in the strike of the employes of the Indianapolis Traction & Terminal Co. Special trains yesterday brought troops under hurried orders, and they were detrained in the suburbs, virtually surrounding the city. Great secrecy was maintained as to the movement and arrival of the militia, and few citizens even knew that they had been called out until late yesterday.

The trains bringing the troops were stopped outside of Indianapolis by officers of the National Guard, and given directions. All companies were held when they arrived until they were of such number that it was deemed safe to bring them into the city. This was done to prevent any clash with the strikers, who, after learning the troops had been called out, were on the downtown streets in large numbers.

Two Sentenced To Death.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 7.—Herman F. Clarke and Frank Davis were yesterday afternoon found guilty of the murder of Police Constable James Archibald on a brush-covered lot on Powell street on May 28 when he surprised them in the act of packing their burglar tools after having committed a burglary. They will be hanged at New Westminster on January 15.

Pastor Gets Fat Check.

GUELPH, Nov. 7.—Rev. H. E. Abraham of St. Andrew's Church was a surprised man when he opened his morning mail yesterday. One ordinary-looking envelope, with a city post mark, when opened showed him that he was richer to the extent of $500, a check for that amount having been sent him by his congregation as an expression of their appreciation.

WITNESS SAYS HE SAW MRS. BEEMER PUT THE POISON IN EGG CUP

Foul Play Suspected.

WATERTOWN, N.Y., Nov. 7.—County officials are investigating what they believe to be the murder of John C. Byer, a veteran of the civil war, aged 70, whose badly decomposed body was found in his house about three miles from Cape St. Vincent, on Lake Ontario. He had been dead about a month, according to the coroner, and a considerable sum of money he is supposed to have had on his person is gone.

Canada Unkind To Asiatics.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—(C.A.P. Cable.) A meeting held to protest against the treatment of British Indians in the dominions arraigned South Africa, as the chief offender, but Canada was also included in the resolutions which threatened retaliatory measures.

IMPROVE BANKS

India's System Will be Reformed to Check Panics.

CALCUTTA, Nov. 7.—The continued failure of banks in India is causing much alarm, and the Government is contemplating legislation restricting the use of the term "bank" in this country. The Government has no intention of posing irksome restrictions on solid banking institutions conducted by either foreign or domestic concerns.

Some of the clauses of the new measure approved by the Marquis of Crewe, Secretary of State for India, bear striking resemblances to many of the provisions of the currency bill now before Congress in Washington, and it is believed that the India Government has availed itself of information furnished as the result of the Senatorial hearing on banking and currency.

India also has banking problems peculiar to herself. The Indian public is lowly substituting for the time-honored custom of burying its gold, the more lucrative practice of making bank deposits, bearing interest. The Government considers that this practice should not only continue until checked, but should be encouraged by legislation, which will make the deposits as safe as possible.

For years the world's supply of silver has been appreciably lowered by the Indian habits of burying savings, but the abundance of this metal has rendered this practice comparatively harmless as far as the rest of the world is concerned.

Lately, however, with increased prosperity the East Indians have begun to bury gold with alarming results on the world's gold supply. Hence the anxiety of the Government to give India an irreproachable banking system.

SECRET INQUIRY PLANNED

Toronto Social Survey Commission Will Probe City's Morals.

TORONTO, Nov. 7—The secret life of the people of the city is to be secretly surveyed by inspectors appointed by the Social Survey Commission, in an endeavor to obtain information as to vicious habits of the populace. When this has been done the commission will put their heads together and suggest ways and means of perhaps curing and in any way preventing it.

The first secret meeting was held yesterday afternoon. Con. McCarthy presiding. In addition there were present Mrs. A. E. Huestis, president Local Council of Women; Miss Neufeldt, Dr. C. J. Hastings, Hamilton Cassels and Commissioner Starr of the Juvenile Court.

Refrigerator Ship Burned.

CURLING, Nfld., Nov. 7. — The steamer Alcona, a floating refrigerator for the Gloucester boats engaged in the herring fisheries on this coast, sank in Curling harbor yesterday after it had been swept by flames for eighteen hours. All the crew of fourteen escaped, although some were thrown in the water when the steamer went down.

The Alcona was valued at $100,000. She was owned by the Gordon-Pew Fisheries Co. of Gloucester, Mass., and was partly insured. The refrigerator ship had just been put in order for this season's fisheries about to begin, and it will require much time before another boat can be secured to take its place.

MITCHELL TO QUIT

BUTTE, Mont., Nov. 7.—John Mitchell, for fifteen years actively connected with the work of the American Federation of Labor, and for years one of its vice-presidents, announced here yesterday at a banquet given in his honor, that he would withdraw from official connection with the federation at its meeting in Seattle next week.

Accused Declares There Were No Egg Cups in the House.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 7—The Beemer trial was resumed at the court house yesterday morning at nine o'clock. Mrs. Beemer appeared, looking comparatively fresh after Wednesday's hard day.

Much interest attached to the evidence of John Mason, one of the central figures of the case. He testified that he had been employed by James Smart and was sent by his employer to render aid to the sick man's family by cutting wood.

Upon his arrival there, the witness said, he found Beemer suffering extreme pain and asking for water. He was sent to summon the doctor, and on his return found Mrs. Beemer pouring some white stuff from a small bottle labelled "poison" in white letters into an egg cup which stood on the table, after which she threw the bottle into the stove. She was apparently mixing what he thought was salts in a tea cup. Upon receiving the medicine, Beemer had remarked that it tasted very bitter, to which Mrs. Beemer replied that it was the same as he had been taking.

The witness had protested at the doctor's leaving poison around, and Mrs. Beemer remarked that it had been in the cupboard for several years, although she had previously told witness that the doctor had given her the medicine. He had not given this story at the inquest and did not make mention of it until the report of the analyst at Toronto was received, his reason being that he was not sure of his own judgment that Beemer had been poisoned.

Mason acknowledge to the defending lawyer that he had been convicted more than once in England; one charge being that of theft, and that he was sent out here by his father and a missionary who attended criminal courts to make a fresh start.

In direct contradiction to Mason's story was the evidence of Mrs. Beemer, who testified in her own behalf.

She declared that she had never kept egg-cups in the house, and that Mason was untruthful when he asserted that he had watched her empty poison into an egg-cup, which, it was alleged, she subsequently dumped into a dose of salts for her husband. She said she had no poison in the house, and had not purchased strychnine for over two years. It was a mystery to her why Mason should make such assertions, because she had positively dispensed no other form of medicine, salts or tablets, except that prescribed by Dr. Woolner. She entertained no fear of serious results until her husband had remarked, "Would you look after the children if anything happened to me?"

She had pondered over the remark and concluded that he was only joking, because he was desirous of living.

Cross-examined by Mr. Ball, Mrs. Beemer denied having heard her husband say in the presence of two of the crown witnesses that he felt like a man that had been poisoned.

"Do you suspect he took it himself?" queried the crown prosecutor.

"It is hard to believe it! I certainly did not do it," she replied.

Dr. Woolner, of Ayr, testified concerning his visits before and after Beemer's death, and said he had refused a burial certificate on the ground that the patient had been poisoned.

J. Rogers, the Toronto chemist who made the analysis of the stomach and liver of the late Frederick Beemer, stated that in the stomach he had found strychnine poisoning.

Dr. Jukes Johnson of Toronto expressed no doubt that death had been due to strychnine poisoning.

Dr. B. F. Henderson of Toronto was of opinion that strychnine had been the cause of death.

Dr. Mitchell of Drumbo submitted the poison book in his store, showing that Mrs. Beemer had purchased 12 grains of strychnine in February, 1911. He said that Beemer also had been in the habit of buying this poison.

Theresa Beemer, the 16-year-old daughter of Frederick Beemer, and the crown's last witness, corroborated the former evidence that Beemer had recovered from his first attack of illness. She stated that there were no egg-cups in the house, but that after her father's death had heard her mother say: "Thank God, I didn't buy any strychnine when he wanted me to kill mice."

Charles Coham was the first witness for the defence. He related a conversation he had with Beemer the latter part of March, shortly before his death, in which Beemer seemed very much worried over his financial affairs.

John Milton of Galt and George Buchanan of Galt, an uncle of the deceased, also testified that Beemer had complained to them of his poverty and poor health. He would be better dead than alive.

Mrs. David Troup, a neighbor of the Beemers, and Mrs. Bright of Galt stated that the relations between Beemer and his wife were always of the best.

(We imagine that a dumb barber would be even more satisfactory than a dumb waiter.)

SACRIFICE

The further revelations contained in the diary of Captain Scott, while it adds to the horror of the story of that fatal polar expedition, adds also to the honor and fame of those heroic men who were faithful unto a slow and awful death. More awful because of its gradual character, conscious as they were of the creeping surety of it.

To this the spectacular valor and death of a soldier in the wild delirium of the battle is as nothing in comparison. To suffer long and be kind is said to be the essence of charity. To suffer long and be true to the noblest traits of manhood, to die a natural death with the means of speeding mortality and ending the terrible journey of life with an opiate, this is surely the top of human endurance, and is worthy of everlasting remembrance and fame in the annals of the human race.

It may be said, without boast or exaggeration, that no one but an Anglo-Saxon or a Celt could have done this. There is something in the nature of the Northern Europeans which bids them dare the severest test that this old earth can offer them. What is the good of it all? some will ask. What is the good of any sacrifice? What was the good of that supreme sacrifice in Palestine nearly nineteen centuries ago?

THE BERLIN DECREE

It seems that the Public Library Board of Berlin, Ont., has banned the Sentinel at the request of the Catholic clergy. The Catholic Record is of course received into the Library and placed on the library reading-room table.

Both are received in the local public library. But why exclude the Sentinel? The Berlin people will only arouse the antagonism of right-thinking Canadians by banning a paper, not for its indecency or treasonable utterances, but simply for its opinions. We would plead just as hard for freedom to read the Catholic Register as for freedom to read The Review, not because we are quite so much interested in it as because people must be free to form their own opinions.

CANADIAN'S BIRTH RIGHT

(The Standard.)

"Australia now takes the foremost place among the Dominions of the Empire in regard to naval defence. She has risen to the full height of her Imperial responsibilities and has made a really splendid contribution to the naval strength of the Empire." Thus said Lord Denman, the Governor-General of Australia, when the new Australian warships, Australia and Sydney arrived at Sydney.

And thus could Canada have said had the Borden Naval Policy been carried, for then we should have had three Dreadnoughts of our own, to form a part of the great Imperial fleet, and at the same time to form a Canadian fleet, did we so desire it, since Canada could recall these ships for use here at any time she saw fit.

Canada has sold her birthright for a mess of dirty partisanship.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Canadians are now taking up the matter of the Dominion House proposed by Earl Grey and have petitioned Mr. Borden to acquire the Aldwych side in the Strand. Among the signatories are the managers of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, the Royal, the Union and the Dominion Banks, the Norton Griffiths Company, Ferrand Limited, Sperling and Company stockbrokers, the General Electric Company, the Maclean Publishing Company, the Agents-General for British Columbia, Quebec and Nova Scotia, and the Naval and Military Emigration League.

Sylvia Pankhurst has followed the example of Sir Edward Carson in forming a regiment of Amazons to defend— What? But it is not defensive, evidently, for the women have never yet been attacked and are not likely to have any of their liberties taken from them. But if Sir Edward Carson is such a bad man as she makes out, why imitate him?

NEW CONVENIENT TRAIN TO WINNIPEG

Canadian Pacific

The popularity of Canadian Pacific service, and the excellence of that road's equipment, has been so greatly appreciated by the travelling public that it has been found necessary to put into service an entirely new Through Standard Express Train between Toronto and Winnipeg.

Commencing Sunday, October 27th, the "Gate City Express" will leave Toronto at 2.30 p.m., and will run daily thereafter, arriving Winnipeg at 8.00 a.m. second morning. The train will consist of the highest-class modern equipment; Compartment Library Observation Car, Standard Sleeping Cars, Tourist Sleeping Car, Dining Car, First-class Coach and Colonist Car. This will be found the most convenient and best train between Toronto and Winnipeg on account of the daylight departure from Toronto at an hour when the Union Station is not badly congested, and also on account of the early hour of arrival at Winnipeg.

The present "Vancouver Express" will continue to leave Toronto at 10.20 p.m. daily and will consist of the same equipment as the 'Gate City Express.' This train is the best to take for points west of Winnipeg but for Winnipeg and east the "Gate City Express" is the right train to travel by.

THE MARKET

Latest Quotation in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 6.—The wheat market opened under realizing ¼ to ⅜ lower, being induced by the lower American cables yesterday, and the weakness in Winnipeg. Advices from the Argentine are generally favorable with cheaper Manitoba offerings and larger Australian offers. Spot market opened generally half lower with cargos rather pressed for sale. Winnipeg receipts continue large.

During the morning there was some disposition shown to support on the decline and prices reacted, gaining ⅛, with near at hand Manitoba offerings firmer. At 130 the market was easy and ⅛ to ⅜ lower than yesterday with the pressure in May.

Corn—The market was generally erratic and after opening a half lower further declined ⅜ and then advanced. Pressure at the opening was due to lower American cables, weakness in Buenos Ayres and expectations of large Argentine shipments this week. Later the recovery was attributed to the prominent firms supporting.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Bull activity, based on belief that wheat had been oversold, lifted prices today, the close showing a net advance of 3-8c to ½c. Covering by shorts sent corn up to a net gain of ¼c to ⅝c. Strength in Canada helped oats here to a net improvement of a shade to 3-4c. Provisions rose 10c to 30c on good speculative buying.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Flies and Dust.

One of the chief reasons why stomach complaints are more frequent in summer time than in the cold season of the year is the great prevalence of dust and flies. Dust is simply dirt and oftentimes the most filthy and fatal kind of dirt and is usually loaded with excretory matter and germs. All foods and drinks should be most rigidly protected from dust, whether in the shop, the pantry or on the dining room table, if one would avoid infection and disease. The fly must be looked upon as one of the greatest enemies of mankind and should be kept out of the home and away from all foods and drinks.

Lovers.

They hold each other's hand, and then they kiss
(Caresses hot as warm winds from the south).
As they repeat it o'er and o'er there's bliss,
It seems, in living thus from hand to mouth.

In the Palace of Content.

In the palace of content
There dwells a princess fair,
The sunbeams from the sky were sent
To nestle in her hair.

Her smile is gay as a Maytime day
And sweeter than the rose,
And many a smile upon the way
She scatters as she goes.

Her eyes, like evening stars, are bright
(And brighter, I opine),
And with the same soft, kindly light
Of evening stars they shine.

O princess fair, O princess fair,
How does her garden grow?
Why, many happy thoughts are there,
All planted in a row!

Now, who can read this rime with care
And guess just what is meant?
Are you perhaps the princess fair
In the palace of content?

How An Artist Obtained Recognition

By F. TOWNSEND SMITH

Alan Vail when a schoolboy was constantly scolded for covering his books with pictures. The flyleaves and the margins of the pages were covered with heads of persons with all sorts of expressions, besides the bodies of dogs, horses, cats, elephants and other animals. One could easily tell by referring to his schoolbooks how much and how little each subject interested him. For instance, his reader, the lessons in which were well selected, was quite free from sketches, while his arithmetic and grammar were full of them. He was interested in the reader, but he detested grammar and arithmetic.

Alan determined to be an artist. His father, who was a practical man and had a large family to support, shook his head at his son's choice of a field of labor, but since Alan seemed fitted for nothing else than an artist he consented. He could not afford to send the boy abroad to study, so he was obliged to prepare himself for his profession in America. A part of a course in an art school was all the instruction he received. Then he began to try to pick up a living as best he could by making pictures.

Like most persons of artistic nature, he first flew high. He painted on canvas, but no one cared to buy his pictures. Then he tried to get an order to illustrate books; but, the field being occupied, he sank to an illustrator for a third rate newspaper. At this he made just enough to keep body and soul together.

One day Alan saw a baby sleeping in its crib. He was much impressed with the relaxedness of the little one and wondered if he could transfer it to paper. He tried and was eminently successful. The child slept just as sleepily on paper as he did in his crib.

"I'll tell you what you do with that, Alan," said a friend. "Send it to a baby food company and ask for an order to put it in oils for an ad."

Alan shuddered at the suggestion. Was he indeed reduced to applying his art for business purposes? But he needed money to pay his room rent, so he acted on his friend's advice. The company quickly returned the picture with the order he had solicited, offering him $100 for his work. When the picture was finished every one who saw it remarked:

"How pretty!"

"Dear little thing!"

"Sound asleep, isn't he?"

These remarks and other such ingenuous criticisms so pleased the artist that he forgot that the picture was to be degraded as an advertisement. But when he sent it to the food company and received it back again with instructions to put in it a baby's bottle with the words "Perkins' Food" on it he almost cried.

However, the promise of a check as soon as the picture was returned with the "essentials" painted in helped to sweeten the dose, and Alan got himself down to the task. He received the check, paid his room rent, bought himself a new outfit of clothes and a good meal. Thus improved in body and mind he bethought himself what next to do.

Art is art, even on a sign or an advertisement, and not a few of the world's great artists have been obliged to apply their abilities in this way. To get that relaxedness on canvas or in marble that Alan had transferred from the sleeping child is one of the main features of genius. Persons who saw the Perkins food advertisement saw simply a sleeping child. Here and there one who knew the picture's intrinsic worth supposed that the work of some great artist had been appropriated.

Alan knew he had produced something that he had only seen in drawings which were exhibited as treasures of art. He determined to try it again with a dancing girl. Between the model when placed on the canvas and other pictures of dancers was the same difference as between two girls the one of whom is born graceful and the other is not. He continued to work in this vein till his $100 was exhausted, but by this time one of his pictures was sold, for a song, it is true, but it produced money. This was the first encouragement of a practical kind that the young artist received. That first bank bill paid him, though but a tithe of the price paid him for his ad., was far more grateful to him. But this was a matter of sentiment.

One who saw the picture that Alan had sold and who recognized it for what it was really worth wanted one by the same artist. This led to another sale, and these two led to others, and it was not long before dealers would say to inquirers, "Oh, that's an original Vail, and his pictures come high."

But these earlier prices were dwarfed by those Alan obtained ten years later. In one respect his work did not improve, but in other respects it did.

A genius for portraying figures with absolutely no stiffness about them was born in him. The accessories were an accumulation of experiences. But the main reason why his pictures commanded a high price was because they were advertised. In other words, he found that their worth, as well as Perkins' food, depended on their being shown to large numbers of persons, and in advertising that article he had advertised himself.

OLD GORDON'S UMBRELLA

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.

Jonas Gordon, who was generally spoken of as old Gordon, lived in the village of Wayne and had got to be sixty-five years old. He had a daughter, who was his housekeeper, and she was engaged to a young carpenter named Henry Billings.

All went well till the old man decided to build a hog pen.

To build a hog pen you must have lumber and nails. Both were to be had in the village, but when that point was reached the old man cried out:

"No, sir-ee! The last pound of nails I bought of Smith he was three nails short, and the last lumber I bought of Jones there were seven knots in one board. I'll show 'em that I'm not to be swindled. Take the horse and buggy and drive over to Acton and get what we want."

It was seven miles to the town named, but Henry took the ancient rig and set off cheerfully. In the back of the buggy and unknown and unnoticed by him was the tragedy. It was an old gingham umbrella. Just how old it was there was no authentic record, but old Gordon had time and again declared it was the veritable rain shedder carried over the head of General Washington when he crossed the Delaware.

Old Gordon wasn't a church member, but he attended the Methodist services regularly and was prompt with his pew rent. On one occasion the minister doubted the age and adventures of that umbrella, and for the next two years he lost the attendance of the owner and $30 a year pew rent.

Henry Billings pursued his way to the town of Acton with all the innocence of an unshorn lamb. On arriving there he hitched old Dobbin to a post and went to see about the lumber. A stray cow was wandering about the streets, and the idea came to her to investigate the buggy. There she found the umbrella. She had never tasted gingham, and she took a gingerly bite. It was good. She hauled the article out of the buggy and was chewing the remains of it when Henry returned. Not knowing the presence of the umbrella, he did not chide the cow, nor did he pick up the ribs and handle and carry them back. He drove home whistling and was proceeding to tell what a hog pen bargain he had made when the father of his loved one rummaged in the back end of the buggy and cried out:

"Where in smoke is that umbrell?"

"W-what umbrell?"

"My umbrell."

"I haven't seen it."

"You are a liar! It was in the back end of the buggy. I always keep it there to keep it from the rats. Where is it?"

"Why, over at Acton I saw a cow chewing the rags of an umbrella, but it didn't occur to me that"—

"Oh, it didn't!" shouted the old man. "Well, lemme tell you that something else will occur to you right here and now! Don't you ever darken my door again!"

Of course young Billings could not force his way into the house against the wishes of the father. Every one predicted an elopement, but none came off. The lovers met at intervals for a minute outside the house, but both thought it better to wait for the old man to wear his grouch out. More than a year had passed, and he showed no sign of giving in, when a tin peddler came along one day who knew Billings and said:

"If you were smart you'd have had the knot tied long ago."

"You know the old man, do you, and how set he is in his ways?"

"I'll bring the old man around as slick as grease if you'll invest $5."

"It's a go!"

The peddler was in Acton the day of the tragedy. He had picked up the handle and ribs of the umbrella, calculating to have a new cover put on. It took him a week, calling from house to house, to find a housewife with a piece of old gingham thrown away in the garret, but he found it and had a cover made of it.

One day the peddler drove up and said to old Gordon:

"I haven't come to ask you to buy tinware, but it's a case of conscience."

"I don't believe it!" was the grouchy reply.

"I stole your old umbrella out of the buggy at Acton."

"By thunder!"

"I am a great admirer of Washington and wanted a souvenir of him, but my conscience won't let me keep what I stole. Here it is."

"By John, but it's her!" exclaimed the old man as he received and inspected it.

"Same one I stole. You can see that there's a 'W' cut into the handle."

"Of course there is. I've seen it a million times. Washington cut it with his own hand that winter at Valley Forge."

"And you'll forgive me?"

"Kinder, but not quite. It was a durned mean trick of yours. Going into the house?"

"I'll step in a minute to see if Sarah don't want a nutmeg grater."

"Then you may tell her that there are three fools in town—you for bringing back the umbrella after you had got away with it; Henry Billings for thinking a cow chawed it up; me for ordering him out of the house. And, say, tell her that if she and Henry are not married within a month she'll be the fourth fool."

CARE OF THE PIANO

The paino, to be kept in good condition, should not stand against an outside wall, nor should it be placed very near a fire. It should be kept free from dust inside and out. If the keys become yellow, make a paste of whiting and potash, lay it on them and leave for 24 hours, then polish. Heavy articles on the top of the piano disorder the sound.

The Case of A.B.Smith, Retailer.

A. B. SMITH has a dry goods store in a certain Canadian city. He does a good business, but wants to do more. He believes that Advertising in his local newspaper is the way to get more business. So he advertises—every now and then.

This is where our friend Smith is wrong—in advertising every now and then. He should advertise regularly—as frequently as his local newspaper is published.

Smith says he wants to advertise regularly, but he can't always find the time to prepare advertisements, which is true, for he is his own buyer, sales-manager, director of store service, credit man and half-a-dozen other things.

What Smith should do is this: If he is located in one of the smaller cities, in which there are no advertising agencies giving a local copy service, and he has no one among his own staff qualified by instinct or experience to write the daily announcements, he should go to the publisher of the newspaper in which he means to advertise, requesting his help. In nine cases out of ten, the publisher, through his advertising manager, will be only too glad to give Smith the assistance desired.

If Smith is located in one of the larger cities he should secure the services of a recognized advertising agency which will take over the work of preparing his advertisements.

In this way Smith can be sure of having his advertisements prepared regularly and intelligently, with no more trouble to him than the supplying of the information required by the writer of the advertisements.

So Smith can do more business, and more business means a larger income for himself, to say nothing of other gains that go hand in hand with the doing of bigger business.

This man Smith---do you know him?
Are YOU Smith?

If you are doing a local business talk over your advertising problems with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

If you are doing a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have the counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency. A list of these will be furnished, without cost or obligation, by the Secretary of Canadian Press Association, Room 503, Lumsden Building, Toronto.

Sidewalks Are Injured When Leaves Are Burned — Oil and Gasoline Damages Street Pavements

SAME SYSTEM FOR SNOW PLOUGHING

The Board of Works engaged in regular session last night, with Chairman Buller presiding. On motion of Ald. Johnston and McIntyre the City Engineer was instructed to advertise for tenders for the snow cleaning of the coming season. One of the members inquired if the districts were alright. The Mayor informed the Board that the districts were O.K., but that some of the men were rather lazy.

Ald. Johnston was of the opinion that it would be better to get the men to do the work in their own districts.

Ald Johnston also spoke of introducing a by-law for the purpose of having the citizens cleaning their own fronts. After varied discussion the matter was dropped and the affair left in the same old way.

Wm. Madill wrote the Board, to the effect that he would hold the city liable for any damages cuased to his store, owing to the fact that the gutter in front and the side of his store being raised to almost the level of the sidewalk. In the event of a heavy fall of rain or quick melting of snow, the water would surely go over the sidewalk and into the cellar in question.

After a discussion the City Clerk was instructed to write the Toronto Loan and Savings Company to the effect that, unless they took precautions such as putting in prison glass in the grating or other precautionary means, the City would take measures to protect themselves.

City Engineer Parsons expressed his opinion that the parties having grates should assume all risk of accident caused by the grates. City Clerk Armstrong and the City Engineer will look up some by-laws of 1879 and submit a report of same at the next meeting.

J. J. Turner & Sons' request for a metal ring and cover to be placed in front of their store was left in the hands of the City Engineer.

City Engineer Parsons advised the Board of the ill-effects the spilling of oil and gasoline will have on the new pavement.

After hearing the City Engineer's report, the Board decided that he and the City Solicitor submit a by-law to be presented at the next meeting of the Board.

Chairman Buller also spoke of the great damages and injurious practices of some of the residents in burning leaves against the burbing of the sidewalk. He also mentioned an instance on Cambers street, where a tar pot had boiled over and made a large hole in the pavement.

City Engineer Parsons also pointed out the injury to the pavement by the spilling of oil and gasoline.

The Board decided that the citizens would have to be precautioned against this habit, and a by-law will be prepared to prohibit the practices.

CHILDREN'S HOUR AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

This new departure in library work will be started on Tuesday next, November 11, at 4.15 p.m. All children between the ages of seven and ten are eligible to be present on that occasion. The object of the Children's Hour is to interest and instruct the young. The meeting next Tuesday will be more or less of a preliminary character in the way of telling the children just what they may expect to hear and learn during the hour. It has not yet been fully decided as to how often the meetings will be held but when the scheme is fully launched and in good working order, a regular schedule will be adopted.

REPLY TO THE CHALLENGE BY "ONE WHO KNOWS"

Refers Mr. Rollins to the Mothers Who Petitioned the School Board—Strong Words on Foreign Missions

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Just one word in reply and I leave the field to those who read the every-day horrors of the white slave traffic while they rejoice over their own good work somewhere else. Why does Rev. Mr. Rollins "challenge?" Is that his view of things? And why does he "challenge" Mrs. Rollins who was the admirable spokeswoman for the mothers who begged the School Board to take measures to protect the young? The Rev. James Rollins is an excellent man but he must know that when conditions at home are as they have become it is no time to advocate the continuance of those conditions while we enjoy a thrill at their expense. I will not accept Mr Rollins' "challenge" contenting myself with saying that for laymen or any other man (or woman for that matter) to get up a whirl-wind campaign for China or Timbuctoo when they cannot be induced to do half that to remedy the diabolical evils right here in Peterborough is a crime. And when I say crime I mean crime.

I am horrified at Mr. Rollins' ignorance of the situation. The Review and Examiner have done noble work in trying to call attention to the fast-spreading ruin of the young but with the "religious" mind fastened upon far distant hills of what use are their efforts? If Mr. Rollins were not equally blind he would see that something terrible must be wrong when mothers have to visit the school board about it. Yes, I say "organize" but not always for somewhere else. The city is in a sad state. Ask the Children's Aid Secretary. Ask the Magistrates. Ask the Chief of Police. Ask the Charity Officer—and ASK THE MOTHERS. Postpone your Fiji jubilee until you have rescued at least a few of the perishing at home. No more terrible indictment of Mr. Rollins' convention could be imagined than the complaint of the mothers and the foundation for it. The Ministerial Association of Ottawa has decided to man the polls at election times. That is something like it. Honest representation is the foundation of Society. It is helping out the home town.

I have known people to lecture on how to get the Chinese to Heaven when their own children were going and dragging others with them straight to Hell. What sense is there in going into rhapsodies over the lepers of India when we ignore the worse than leprosy that is rife at home? Are we mad? When the patient fails to appreciate his own peril he is hopeless. When people can believe that being exacting members of a club kept up for them by others instead of loyal members of a church is Christianity, what hope is there for them or it? If self-sacrifice is true service, are we supposed to look for it amongst the pampered few, the dear young men who refuse to be good unless provided with toys and comfits. But I will say no more. I will leave the mothers whom Mr. Rollins "challenges" to reply to him. God bless them and him and cause His light to shine upon him.

La Diva NON-RUSTABLE CORSET

Before and after your 30th birthday —watch your figure—

Today's fashions enhance the necessity of skilful corseting to disguise where art is helping nature,—for the styles prescribe a natural seeming figure, an almost corsetless effect, and this result is most successfully attained by this year's models of the famous D. & A. and La Diva Corsets.

D. & A. and La Diva Corsets, thanks to absence of duty and splendid manufacturing facilities sell at from $1.00 to $3.00 less per pair than imported ones and being made specially for Canadian Women they give more comfort and longer wear. There is a model for every figure. Our catalogue—sent free on request—will help you to choose the best for yours.

DOMINION CORSET CO., - - QUEBEC. 14-13

No. 609 La Diva Reducing—shown in cut gives both comfort and style to full figures. The price is $3.00 and $3.50, and no better corset is offered at any price.

Choose One of the 100 New Coats, Specially Displayed on Saturday

And surely a selection of 200 will provide ample choice for the most exacting.

Then too, one should remember when looking through this handsome array, that we bought fifty per cent. of these coats from the makers at about half price. And this means that after adding the profit necessary to do business, we can offer them a great deal cheaper than the regular prices.

This is clearly an advantage both to you and to ourselves.

We have bought the coats, confident of their fine cloths, design and workmanship, and they will be placed out for your choosing on Saturday. At $8.00, $10.00 and $13.75, the values are exceptional.

$1.49 a Yard Never Secured Better Value, Than in these Coatings

To begin with they are newly arrived from the mill, and every yard is this season's production, whether it be Chinchilla or Boucle, Blanket Cloth or Diagonal; or any other one of the many heavy coatings now in vogue.

And in this new purchase of 200 yards or thereabouts, one is confronted with every fashionable color, in a material stoutly woven of sound woollen yarn. We would like to attach samples to this advertisement to assure the reader of their good value, but this being impossible we shall put a number in our centre window, the rest being displayed in the dress goods section. Let us say again that $1.49 a yard never bought better coatings than these.

GOOD WORK DONE BY THE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

OFFICERS ARE RE-ELECTED

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Horticultural Society was held last night in the city council chambers. President H. Beal occupied the chair. In his opening address the president reviewed the excellent work done by the society during the past year which consisted mainly of laying galvenized iron pipe in Central Park; perfecting the cinder paths, repairing the fountain in Victoria Park, removing several dead trees in an effort to resuscitate the flower beds and the purchasing of 400 feet of hose. The installing of the new pipes in Central Park was a much needed step and the trouble encountered in former years by frost will be entirely done away with. The parks of the city are as the many interested citizens know, in much better shape than they ever were and especially Victoria Park where many minor improvements such as building a tool house under the bandstand and repairing the bandstand itself, were made.

The Secretary-Treasurer, C. H. Williamson then read the following financial statement:

1914 OFFICERS.

After some deliberation as to increasing the salary of the secretary the election of officers for the year 1914 took place which resulted as follows:

President—H. Beal
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs H. Ritchie.
2nd Vice-Pres.—F. Wise.
Secretary—C. H. Williamson.

Board of Directors—Messrs. Peter Campbell, D. W. Dumble, R. Denne, W. Stocker, H. O. Fiske, W. J. Kennedy, H. B. Cowan, S. Jordan, W. H. Young and J. Ridley.

Park Board—Messrs. F. Wise, P. Campbell, G. E. Wainwright, W. Stocker, W. J. Kennedy and W. Lyttle.

Auditors—T. A. S. Hay and R. M. Glover.

The caretaker, Mr. W. C. Cree, than gave his report for the year which was very creditable and as Mr. Stocker remarked afterwards Mr. Cree has proven himself to be the best caretaker the society ever engaged. One point Mr Cree dwelt on was the guarding of Victoria Park from the rampages of school children. Every year the park suffers at the hands of these boys and girls. It was decided that the secretary write to the Board of Education requesting that body take some steps in the direction of restricting the children from destroying this property.

AFFILIATION.

Mr. H. B. Cowan stated that he wished to see this society affiliated with the Ontario Horticultural Association and that the local society would send delegates to the convention in Toronto which will be held toward the end of this month. The meeting thought this a very wise plan and named the president and the secretary as delegates.

BANQUET IN JANUARY.

Before the meeting closed it was decided to have a banquet some time in January at which an address by some well versed horticultulist will be given. The committee in charge of this is Messrs. H. Beal, R. Denne, W. Stocker, C. H. Williamson and H. B. Cowan.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS READ

An Enthusastic Meeting of the Poultry Association

The Poultry Association had a record attendance at its monthly meeting held last night. It certainly must have been very gratifying to the officers to have such a turn out of the members. President Holmes called the meeting to order at 8.15 and it did not adjourn until 11 p.m. After general routine the chairmen of the different committees were called on for their reports. It was plain to be seen that the committees had not lost any time in getting down to work. Some of the reports were lengthy but all were of a very encouraging nature. If enthusiasm and hard work are a forerunner of success, then we have no hesitency in saying that this association will see its banner show in January, 1914.

There were also several good birds on exhibition last night. Messrs Edwards and Abbott showed some very fine specimens of white and black leghorns, also a barred rock pullet, which the judge pronounced very fair specimens. After discussing the different merits of the birds on exhibition, the meeting adjourned to meet next Wednesday, Nov. 12th, at 8 p.m.

Life of Eskimos

An illustrated lecture on the Life of the Eskimos, by Dr. Marsh, of Springville, will be the feature of tonight's usual Friday social evening at the Boys' Department of the Y.M.C.A. A musiocal program will also be rendered. The School Boys' Bible Class meet to-morrow morning at the usual hour.

Freight Sheds

With the construction work rapidly nearing completion, the C.P.R. freight sheds will be ready by the end of the month. The lighting system has been installed. With a large gang of men on the work, which is being pushed with all possible speed, the inside sheeting will soon be finished.

SHOULD GROW THICKER SKINS

Suggestion by Magistrate in Dismissing Case

Three local young men, Chas. Powell, Walter Vass and John Henry, appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning on the charge of misconducting themselves on Chamberlain street. They pleaded not guilty and were discharged on the evidence taken. Constable Weller gave evidence to the effect that he was on duty on Chamberlain street and the men were coming up the fields towards the P.G.E. He had just warned a couple of people for trespassing on the tracks and these men commenced jeering and hissing him and calling out his name.

The men denied the charge and claimed that they were laughing among themselves about some jokes and that they had not spoken to Weller.

Magistrate Dumble dismissed the case. "Constables," he opined, "should not be so sensitive, and that they should grow thicker skins so as to be impervious to the jeers and jokes of men and boys."

Pasteurized Milk a Guarantee Against Disease

"There are two things the sanitarian and public health officer must demand of milk producers and milk dealers: That milk should be clean and that milk should be safe. In other words, milk should not contain dirt, and it should not contain disease.

"The modern methods of clarifying and pasteurizing milk gives us a sure guarantee that no harm can come from such milk, and when the public realize this fact there will be a greater demand for this milk, and a decrease in sickness, especially amongst children." Extract of an address by Dr. North before the N.Y. Milk Committee.

Our milk will stand the most rigid inspection and it is positively safe.

THE BUCCANEERS

By F. A. MITCHEL

Some 200 years ago piracy was much in vogue on the ocean. The buccaneers of that day arose in this way: The English and the Spaniards were at war, and the English fitted out privateers to prey on the Spanish ships bearing treasure from Spain's Mexico possessions. When the war closed the privateers continued their depredations illegally under the flag of the skull and bones instead of the cross of St George. After awhile the attention of the British navy was directed to eradicating them, but it proved a slow process and had not been entirely achieved at the beginning of the last century.

One afternoon the English merchant ship Petrel, Captain Stoughton, sailing down the east coast of Mexico, passed a corvet also bearing the British flag and was asked if she had seen anything of a low cut, rakish vessel. Captain Stoughton replied that he had not and passed on. An hour later, coming to the mouth of the Rio Grande river and the waters not being as well charted in those days as now, he concluded to run in a short distance and lay at anchor till morning.

Now, when the Petrel entered the river the low cut, rakish vessel mentioned was lying a trifle farther up stream. Captain Stoughton brought his glass to bear on her and didn't like her looks. But it was nearly dark when he discovered her, and he did not dare attempt to regain the ocean in the darkness.

Nevertheless as soon as the anchor had been dropped he called his first officer into his cabin, told him that he suspected the craft he had seen to be a pirate and directed him to take a boat and six men, go northward, find the corvet and report the vessel's presence in the mouth of the river.

Meanwhile the captain of the pirate lay low during the night, intending as soon as daybreak to make a prize of the Petrel, put the crew and every one else on board to the sword and loot her. Captain Stoughton, knowing that if the vessel near him was what he suspected this would be the result, awaited the dawn with great anxiety, hoping his messenger would bring the corvet.

But when light came a heavy fog came with it. This brought disappointment to the pirate captain, as well as to Stoughton, though the latter was not certain whether it would be a disadvantage or an advantage to him. It certainly brought delay, and delay meant suspense. Before break of day he awoke all on board and, telling them of his suspicions, directed each and every one of them not to make the slightest noise, even to speak in whispers. There were women and children on board, and the dread was so great that the order was obeyed. The children were shut in the cabins, where they would not be heard.

Half an hour after daybreak the sound of oars was heard. They must be either from the pirate or the boat sent to the corvet. That they were from the pirate was soon evident from a volley of oaths spoken by the captain who was in command of the boat and in search of the Petrel. The women all went to the cabins to make sure that if a child made a sound it should be muffled, while the men stood in a group on deck armed with such weapons as the ship afforded, that they might sell their lives as dearly as possible.

The pirate commander had noted the direction of the Petrel and steered by compass. In his yawl were twenty men armed to the teeth. They passed the Petrel some 500 yards astern and, reaching the shore, turned and this time passed under her stern 100 feet away. Every man on the Petrel's deck stood mute, listening to the orders in the boat, which they could hear as plainly as if spoken on the Petrel's deck. Every man thanked heaven for the density of the fog and prayed that it might not lighten. The women in the cabin heard almost as plainly as the men, and every child too young to understand the danger was covered with blankets.

The boat passed without detecting the ship, and it was fortunate that it missed by so narrow a margin, for when it turned again it went a hundred yards too far above. Captain Stoughton felt temporarily relieved, but every moment dreaded that the fog would lift and the ship's presence be detected. But as the sounds from the boat receded he felt that the evil was at least deferred.

When the fog passed it was blown out to sea, first exposing the pirate boat, next the Petrel. When the boat's crew saw the ship they gave a bloodcurdling yell and pulled for her. But suddenly they ceased rowing. As the fog passed out it revealed the corvet nearer the Petrel than were the pirates.

That was the last of the latter. Being upstream, there was no escape from the man-of-war. Panic stricken, their captain was for a time unable to unite them in an effort to get away. Some insisted on pulling in one direction, some in another. The corvet quickly lowered three boats, each containing as many men as the pirate yawl. Before the pirate leader could get his men to obey him these boats were in the water and making for him. Then in his haste he ran aground.

One of the corvet's boats made for the pirate ship, which was captured with all on board. They, with the boat's crew, were taken ashore and every man hanged.

FULL MANY A DREAM.

A GOWN FROM PARIS.

And How the German Empress Came to Wear and Praise It.

The question whether the German crown princess ought or ought not to have ordered a dress from Paris has been hotly argued in Germany recently, and apropos the following story has been told in a German paper. It happened some years ago at the Kiel regatta. This fashionable festival had united the emperor and the empress and their suit and some French people of the highest rank. Wilhelm II. was charmed by the elegance of the Parisian toilets and asked Princess Radolin, the wife of the then German ambassador in France, how it was that she was able to dress so well.

"Oh, your majesty," was the answer, "I say to my dressmaker, 'Make me a dress!'"

"I should like the empress to wear a dress as elegant as those you Parisians wear, but she will never consent to have her clothes made in Paris. How can I manage it without rousing her suspicions?"

"Your majesty," replied the princess, "it's very simple. If you would give me a dress which fits the empress perfectly and if the empress will open an account with X. I will see to it."

Accordingly some time after a large box came to Potsdam from the Rue de la Paix. The emperor had it opened and presented the dress to the empress, requesting that she would favor him by wearing this "Berlin made dress" at the next opera. The empress consented without enthusiasm.

A few days after when she entered the opera a murmur of admiration ran through the house. The ladies of the court admitted to the imperial box hastened to compliment the empress upon her superb toilet, to whom the empress replied:

"There, now! And there are people who pretend that one can only be well dressed in Paris!"

THE SPORTING WORLD

YOUNGSTOWN AFTER THE BRANTFORD FRANCHISE

BRANTFORD, Nov. 7.—Brantford may be without a Canadian League ball team here next year. Developments in the Canadian League recently are such that there may be a big change before the winter of 1914 goes up. An offer has been made to President Nelson of $3,500 for the franchise, which it is proposed to transfer to Youngstown, Ohio.

Jimmy Murphy, the Toronto lacrosse magnate, is behind the deal, and the Brantford President is disposed to let go as the game has not proved a paying proposition here. However, there is a chance that Mr. Nelson may be bought out by a local syndicate. Rather than have the franchise transferred from this city there are numerous sports willing to form a joint stock company and conduct the business.

That there is a strong possibility of this is evident by the fact that Brantford is considered a good proposition to have in the league by every other club. There never has been any talk of cancelling the Brantford franchise here as in the case with Berlin and Guelph.

OLD BOYS OF COLLEGIATE TO MEET THE 1913 FOURTEEN

P.C.I. Old Boys! That name would include an enormous crowd. From that large crowd there is a rugby team being selected, and arrangements are being made for a game on Saturday afternoon, November 15 with the present P.C.I team.

Gibson, Meldrum and Minorgan will be out, and claim to be in first-class shape. Many of the old P.C.I. team that won honors for the garnet and grey a few years ago are out of the city, but those in charge declare that they will bring out other "old boys," who were just as good.

The garnet and grey will be trifle heavier than the old boys' aggregation, but the "cripples" will be out to win, so a good game is looked forward to. There will be no practice of the "old boys" till "Punch" Meldrum has completed his theatrical engagement.

SPORTING GOSSIP

It is some years since a public or Separate school of this city claimed a rugby team, but the gridiron sport has been resuscitated, and at present Queen Mary's and St. Peter's have teams, and arrangements have been made for a game between them on Saturday afternoon. 'Diamie' Larkin has been coaching St. Peter's this past week, and they are confident of breaking into this line of sport with a win.

A meeting of hockey supporters is to be held shortly for organization purposes. The last team the town had made a good showing, having played with Peterborough in the finals, and it is hoped to form another this season that will prove a winner.—Campbellford News.

The Biggest Mushroom.

Described as the biggest ever seen in Covent Garden, a remarkable mushroom was shown in the Floral Hall in London recently. In order that its dimensions might be further admired, it was displayed on the auction stand of Messrs. Jacobs & Sons. It had been grown by a nurseryman at Warham, in Dorsetshire, and consigned to Mr. Southwell, of Bow street, London. It measured 47½ inches round, and weighed 8½ pounds. "Is it good to eat?" one inquirer asked. "It is undoubtedly of the mushroom species," came the reply. Taken to an alcove and carefully guarded, experts discussed what ought to be done with it. Some were in favor of putting it up to auction, but it was decided to give it a chance of being sold by private arrangement, and perhaps finding a home in a museum.

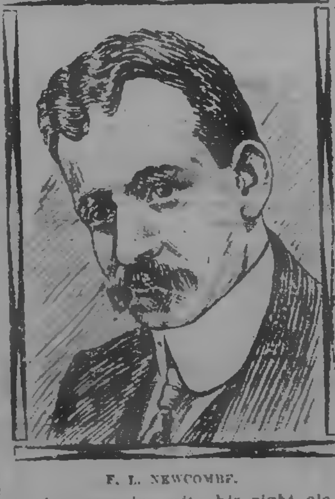
HIGHEST PAID DEPUTY

E. L. NEWCOMBE DRAWS DOUBLE THE USUAL SALARY.

Permanent Head of the Department of Justice at Ottawa Gets Ten Thousand Dollars a Year for His Services—He Is the Man Who Straightened Out Copyright Bill and Revised Statutes.

On that morning a few weeks ago when the plan was laid which put Harry Thaw back on American soil, where he belonged, no doubt one of the chief planners of the coup was Edmund Leslie Newcombe, C.M.G., Deputy Minister of Justice, says Frances A. Carman in Toronto Star Weekly. Hon. C. J. Doherty and Hon. Arthur Meighen are fine lawyers; but the permanent head of the Department of Justice is not outclassed in their company. His opinion is always listened to with respect, whenever a difficult legal question is up for discussion. He had made a name before he entered the Government service, twenty years since, and he has added to his laurels on many occasions in the interval. So that, without detracting anything from his political chiefs, there is little doubt that he had a considerable hand in ridding the Dominion of the "undesirable" Thaw.

Edmund Leslie Newcombe is a lawyer in every inch of his nearly six feet. When one sees him pleading a case before the Supreme Court there is a distinct feeling of surprise and disappointment that he does not wear the wig of dignity so dear to the English barrister. He is as dignified as Mr. Tulkinghorn, the trusted family lawyer and guardian of the Dedlocks in Bleak House. He must appear in quite his right element when he dons wig and gown before the Privy Council in old London.



E. L. NEWCOMBE.

Like many another wise man, the permanent head of the Federal legal department comes from the East. He was born in Cornwallis, Nova Scotia, on February 17, 1859, so that he is now just a little beyond the half-century. He was educated at Dalhousie College—one of the oldest colleges of the Dominion—and at Halifax University, and was called to the bar at the age of twenty-four. For the next ten years he practiced his profession in Halifax, winning a high place among the lawyers of his native province. When only twenty-eight he was made a governor of his old college, and later lectured to her students on insurance law. The man who picked him out for the Dominion service was Sir John Thompson, himself one of the greatest masters of the law Canada has ever produced. Subsequent years have shown that Thompson knew men as well as law.

One of the special problems which the new deputy attacked was the tangled skein of the law in regard to the publishing of books. The relations on this subject as between the Dominion and the Imperial Parliament are highly involved, and have been the subject of much negotiation—negotiations which have sometimes been rather bitter and which have been marked by the disallowance of Canadian laws by the Imperial authorities. Two years after he came to Ottawa Mr. Newcombe was sent as the representative of Canada to confer with the Imperial Government on this subject. Afterwards there were many conferences, and in them the Deputy Minister usually had a part. The problem was settled shortly after the Laurier Government went out of office, but the solution has never yet been put into statutory form.

Another outstanding service which Mr. Newcombe has been able to perform for the country was in connection with the last revision and consolidation of the Dominion statutes. For four years he and his seven fellow-commissioners were at work. They had before them the task of consolidating all the laws passed by the Dominion Parliament from the previous revision in 1886, and when they had finished their work was put in three compact volumes—the index to it alone made a fourth volume. Until this work was done lawyers had to search through all the Acts of each year to find the law; now the compendium of 1906, enacted into law by the Dominion Parliament, is the final source. This is a great saving to the lawyers and their clients, for if the lawyers had to spend more time on a case, one may be sure the client would pay the bill. His salary is $10,000 a year.

TOLD WHO SERVED HIM

Blacklister Supplies Court With the Information

Herbert Landry, charged with being drunk while on the blacklist, was fined $10 and costs at this morning's session of the Police Court.

Questioned by the Chief as to where he got his liquor, Landry claimed that he got it from 'Billie' Hamilton on Sunday while out driving with him. Landry said that he met him at Jones livery stable and that Hamilton asked him to go for a drive. He had known Hamilton for a few years. He didn't think that Hamilton knew he was on the "list" when he offered him the liquor out of the bottle he had in the rig.

"Where did you get your drink from on Saturday, then?" asked the Chief.

"Why, I never had any drink on Saturday," remonstrated the witness. The Chief informed him that he had proof that he did.

"Do you think anything of your oath, to get up there and tell a lie like that?" remarked His Worship.

After considerable questioning on the part of the court, Landry admitted getting liquor from a young man. Witness was of the opinion that the man was aware of the fact that he was on the blacklist.

AWARD OF $5.40.

Judgment was given in favor of the complainant in the Donovan vs. Doig case, in which the complainant claimed $5.40 wages due him from Geo. Doig, the defendant.

TEN DAYS IN JAIL.

As a result of his re-appearance at Police Court this morning on the same charge, that of being drunk, James Barron was given ten days in jail, and with a warning from his worship to get out of the city when he was released from jail. If he came before the court again it was Central prison for him.

MILKMEN LOSING MORE.

Hamilton Boycott Grows and Is Scaring Toronto Dealers.

HAMILTON, Nov. 6.—The chief item of discussion in Hamilton at the present time is Mayor Allan's determined fight against the high cost of living, and to say that his worship is meeting with success would be terming it mildly. Tuesday the milk dealers announced that their sales had decreased about fifteen per cent. Yesterday it was said that the decrease had reached twenty-five per cent. Several representatives of Toronto milk companies were in the city yesterday and approached the mayor in connection with his campaign. It was said that they asked a lot of questions with the intention of discouraging him in his fight, but his worship evidently does not intend to bother his head about the affair from a Toronto standpoint.

It is figured that those in the Queen City are afraid of the present agitation spreading there, and are also standing behind the Hamilton dealers, whose aim, it is declared, is to boost the price of their commodity to ten cents per quart.

Two Asphyxiated By Gas.

MONTREAL, Nov. 6.—Returning home Tuesday evening, slightly the worse for liquor, according to the story of his landlady, George Sicotte, 2705 West Notre Dame street, turned on the gas, but did not light it. Sicotte and his son, George, were found dead in bed yesterday morning, both having been asphyxiated.

Mayor Nathan Will Quit.

ROME, Nov. 6.—Mayor Nathan and the aldermen of Rome after a heated discussion yesterday decided to resign from office. This action was due to the defeat on Nov. 2 in the second ballot of the general elections of the two candidates in Rome supported by the municipal "bloc."

Scientific Problems.

"Yes; and look at all the energy that goes to waste in chewing gum. If we could only harness the gum chewers, eh?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

It Is Often So.

ORDER PRESERVING ESTATE GRANTED

Mr. O'Connell Successful in Application to Court

A WILL CASE

Mr. D. O'Connell was in Kingston yesterday acting on behalf of Mrs. Mahoney, of Ottawa, a former resident of Peterborough, and who is a sister of the late Father Brophy, who died recently, leaving an estate valued at $177,000.

The validity of the will is being questioned. Mr. O'Connell was successful in securing an order to preserve the estate intact until the question in dispute is in course of litigation.

The case is attracting considerable attention owing to several clauses in the will itself and the large amount of property involved, and the case promises to be an important one.

The Obliging Prince.

When Prof. Vambery, the famous Orientalist, whose death was recently announced, was staying at Sandringham, he rang the bell in his bedroom for some hot water. No one came, so he rang again, and yet again. Then a youth, after knocking at the door, entered the room. "Do you want something, professor?" he inquired. "Yes," replied Vambery, "I have been ringing for some hot water." "Oh," said the youth, "wait a moment and I will get you some." Two or three minutes later the boy returned with a can of hot water which he placed on the professor's table. The obliging boy was King Edward's second son, now King George V.

Culture.

Culture is a word we often fight shy of by reason of certain unfortunate connotations. Here is a masterly definition of culture by the English philosopher Bosanquet:

"The habit of a mind instinct with purpose, cognizant of a tendency and connection in human achievement, able and industrious in discerning the great from the trivial."

Twenty-seven words are enough to fix this noble conception of a noble quality.

CHAPTER OF MISFORTUNES THIS YEAR IN HOME OF QUEEN STREET FAMILY

CHILD HURT BY AUTO ON HUNTER STREET

While crossing from the north side to the south side of Hunter at the Queen street crossing yesterday afternoon about five o'clock, the little four year old girl of Wm. Hoffman of Queen street, was struck and knocked down by a Ford car driven by a lady who refused to give her name to the parents of the little girl, but assured the girl's father that she would stand liable for all damages. The little girl was apparently crossing the road from where she had been playing at the St. John's Church lawn, when she was struck by the car. She was immediately removed to the home of her parents on Queen street and Dr. Eastwood attended her.

As result of her accident the little girl is suffering from a very painful wrench and bruise on her ankle while she also sustained other slight injuries about the body. The police were informed of the matter and will probably be taken up by them.

As Mr Hoffman says, bad luck certainly does not come in small batches to him by any means. At the present time his wife is a patient at the Nicholl's Hospital and also one of his children, while he has had considerable sickness among the family all summer. A month or so ago the little girl who was injured in the accident last night, fell some fifteen feet as result of the collapse of a balcony. A girl older than this one fell down stairs shortly before this and broke her arm, while it is only about a year ago that he himself lost a leg in a railway accident at Port Hope. The year has been a most unlucky one for him and his family.

NOTED MISSIONARY WORKERS ARE COMING

In connection with the Laymen's Missionary Campaign now under way in Peterboro practically all the pulpits of the Protestant churches in the city will be occupied by Missionary speakers on Sunday. Some of the most noted missionary workers in Canada will be in the city for the day. While the work is sometimes criticized it is claimed by those connected with it that the criticism is directed generlly by people who have not studied the great results that have been achieved in the missionary cause and who only need to be shown the real facts to become its warm supporters.

The banquet next Thursday evening promises to be by far the largest event of the kind ever held in Peterboro. 1,000 tickets have been issued. In order that there may be plenty of accommodation various churches are contributing chairs. Among the speakers at the banquet will be Judge Hodgins, of the Court of Appeal, Toronto, and Dr. J. Y. Ferguson of Formosa.

To-night the general committee, of the representatives of all the Protestant churches in the city will meet in the Y.M.C.A. to hear reports from committees and complete further arrangements.

MILE A MINUTE TO MAKE TRAIN CONNECTIONS HERE

Paralleled by Casey Jones was the run made yesterday from Lindsay to Peterborough via G.T.R. The time required to cover the distance, which is something over 23 miles, was 22 minutes.

The Railway Commissioners' Engineer and Superintendent Coyle were in Lindsay and had to make connections with the C.P.R. 4.33 going ing west. An engine and Pullman made up the special, which was in charge of Engineer Jeffrey and Conductor Halpin. They left Lindsay at 4 o'clock, and it was exactly 4.22 when they came to a stop at the diamond.

Your Estimate May Bring You

2 Tons of Coal 2

SATURDAY AFTERNOON, NOV. 8th

OUR NEW COAL ELEVATOR at the corner of Bethune and Charlotte Streets, will be in operation and open to inspection of the public, from 3 to 4 o'clock, in order to give a demonstration of our improved methods of handling and screening Coal.

AT 3.30 O'CLOCK we will draw off a waggon load of Screened Scranton Coal, when every adult resident of the city, male or female, over 18 years of age, will be given a chance to estimate the weight of the load. Estimating cards will be distributed on the grounds, and the person estimating the nearest to the weight will be entitled to Two Tons of Screened Scranton Coal, delivered FREE to any address in the city.

Only one estimate to each person. In the event of more than one person estimating the nearest to the weight, One Ton of Coal will be given to each of the three nearest. Our own employees and coal dealers and employees are barred from the contest. Estimates will only be received from those on the grounds who have inspected our methods of handling Coal.

"The Land of Golden Dreams" is the land of nursery rhymes and fairy stories, and a great many older children refreshed their memories of the fairy story books of their babyhood last night, at the Grand Opera House.

For an entirely amateur production it was certainly a good show, and Miss Leonard is to be complimented upon the way in which each scene was carried through. The costumes and the scenery were very fine. The "Sleeping Beauty" scene the "Palace" scene, and especially that representing the four seasons, were particularly beautiful.

All the nursery rhymes and stories were represented; Jack and Jill, the House that Jack Built, even to the cow with the crumpled horn was there, also the cock that crowed in the morn, along with the three bears, Cinderella, Alice in Wonderland and a host of others. The Sleeping Beauty was awakened by the Prince. This gallant Prince had an unrehersed encounter with a portion of the descending scenery. One or two people came on too soon and there was a collision or two; these were unforseen incidents, and caused a little merriment on the part of the players as well as the audience.

Most of the dancing was very clever and graceful. Miss Blewitt, as the Spanish Girl sang and danced very gracefully; Mr. Huycke was quite unrecognisable as the Spanish Man. Cinderella looked as charming among the cinders as in the ballroom. The Ugly Sisters were not quite convincing as they were not at all ugly. The Fairy God-mother struck Willy on the head with the mouse-trap, quite accidentally, and laughed at poor Willy's discomforture. Jessie Spence and Mr. Affleck made a happy couple. Little Mildred Morphet and Gerald Paterson fell down the hill as Jack and Jill very comfotably and seemed none the worse for the accident. Marguerite Sanderson and Fred Jamieson kept things alive wtih their little pranks. The cow was a very intelligent animal, the wolf and the bear were quite tame. Blue Beard was a terrible husband. Most of the songs were sensible enough but some of the girls' love songs were not quite in keeping with the simplicity of the cast.

The "All Nations" scene was very prettily arranged. Each nation as it came in represented the girls dressed in appropriate costumes, was cheered in turn; but Canada came in for the great ovation and she deserved it for the simple grace of her dance and modesty of her costume.

Altogether, the Land of Golden Dreams is a clever piece of work. It must have entailed an infinite amount of trouble and painstaking to train the young people for the parts.

COLLEGIATE GIRLS TO GIVE FINE PROGRAM

On November 28th in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute there will be held what is expected to be one of the most enjoyable events of the season, a promenade and concert, under the auspices of the Girls' Athletic Association.

In connection with the program there is to be a short play given by the pupils of the Collegiate, under the direction of Mrs. L. J. Pettit. The majority of citizens ing to programs superintended by Mrs. Pettit, and those who had not had this pleasure may rest assured that a very great treat is in store for them. Another outstanding feature of the program will be a piano solo by one of Peterborough's Brilliant musicians, Miss Bernice Giroux, A.T.C.M., who formerly at-Collegiate.

The girls of the Association are preparing two booths. One of these is to be adorned with the familiar garnet and grey of the Collegiate, and at it various articles pertaining to the school, such as P.C.I. pennants, Cealendars, note paper, etc., will be sold. The other booth, in Peterborough's colors, will be devoted to the sale of delectable sweetmeats. Also there will be an ice cream parlor, under the management of Miss Madeline Morrison.

The girls on the various committees in connection with this promenade are working enthusiastically, and no part of the evening's amusements augurs better for the enjoyment of the public than the refreshments to be served in the Physics Laboratory.

Girl Taken Home

The fourteen-year-old Tweed girl charged with being a common prostitute appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning, and was let go on suspended sentence. The girl's father was present and took the girl home.

JURY FAILS TO AGREE; GAMBLE TRIAL GOES OVER TILL THE SPRING

After Five Hours Jurors in Trial of Iron Workers' Secretary Return and Report a Deadlock—Ten Said to be For Acquittal and Two Against—Mrs. Gamble Has Attack of Hysteria.

WHITBY, Ont., Nov. 8.—For five hours yesterday afternoon those interested in the case of Stead M. Gamble, of Toronto, financial secretary of the Structural Iron Workers' Union, waited impatiently while the jury wrangled and argued in an attempt to reach an agreement. At 12.40 Mr. Justice Britton concluded his charge, and without waiting for dinner the jury filed into the jury room. As the afternoon wore on hope of a unanimous verdict being reached was abandoned. At 5.40 the jury again appeared.

"What is your verdict?" asked the court.

"We have not been able to agree, your lordship," replied the foreman.

"Is there no hope of an agreement?" the judge asked.

"None whatever."

Judge Britton thereupon dismissed the jury. It is understood that two jurors held out for conviction and ten for acquittal.

Gamble's counsel, Mr. H. H. Dewart, K.C., Toronto, has arranged for bail until such time as the case shall again be called, which at the earliest will not be until next spring. In the meantime it does not seem likely that any new facts can be brought to bear upon either side. Gamble was charged with damaging a rope that was to have been used in connection with bridge construction work. A strike was in progress at the time.

Mr. A. E. H. Creswicke, K.C., who prosecuted as crown counsel in conjunction with Col. J. E. Farewell K.C., county crown attorney, in addressing the jury yesterday morning was the unintentional cause of a sudden hysterical outburst on the part of Mrs. Gamble.

"Can Gamble's story be believed?" asked Mr. Creswicke. "If he is guilty would he not deny the crime in order to save his skin, if I may use this phrase?"

"Oh, don't let him talk like that!" exclaimed Mrs. Gamble, repeating over and over the same words, her voice rising until it became a scream.

Friends tried to soother her, Mr Dewart and her pastor attempted to reason with her, but still the flood of tears and the hysterical wail kept on, "don't let him talk like that."

Persuasion proving to be of no avail, Mrs. Gamble had to be removed from the room, this being done as gently as possible. Even when outside she continued her cries and the court was disturbed more than once until she could be taken to a sufficient distance. Her little son, who was with her, cried too, in sympathy with his mother. After some time a physician succeeded in quieting the woman with a narcotic. She rested fairly well in the afternoon and had recovered from her hysteria.

NO FAULT TO BE FOUND WITH VERDICT SAYS JUDGE

Mrs. Beemer Was Sure That Jury Would Pronounce Her Innocent.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 8. — Mrs. Grace Beemer, seated in the prisoners' dock, her head bowed and tears in her eyes, did not change her attitude in the least when the jury yesterday afternoon acquitted her of the charge of having murdered her husband. A few in the audience clapped their hands and attempted to start a demonstration, but officers put down the attempt with a firm hand.

Justice Kelly, in discharging the prisoner, said that in view of all the circumstances there was no fault to be found with the verdict. On the evidence it might have been possible to bring in another verdict, but in his opinion the jury had exercised their right satisfactorily to all parties.

Mrs. Beemer was led out of the dock by the deputy sheriff, and she walked alone to the sheriff's office, where she immediately picked up her five-weeks-old baby.

In an interview afterwards, Mrs. Beemer said: "My one great desire is to find seclusion that has been denied me for so long. It was an awful ordeal to pass through, but I felt sure from the beginning of the trial that the jury would pronounce me innocent. I am going back to the farm at Drumbo for a rest. I am so happy that I cannot talk about it. It was an awful stain to be thrust upon my character and reputation in the neighboring settlement, but I am going to try like a faithful and honest woman to live the whole thing down."

T. W. McMullen, summing up for the defence, showed that no arrest was made at the close of the inquest. Although John Mason had been a witness he did not tell his sensational story about seeing the prisoner with a poison bottle at this inquiry; he did not tell the police, he did not tell the crown attorney, he did not tell any person until some weeks later, when he told the story to Dr. Woolner in his office at Ayr.

This, in Mr. McMullen's opinion, was remarkable. The defence counsel attempted to set up the idea that suicide had been the cause of death, by pointing to statements made shortly before his death by the deceased to friends.

Mr. McMullen argued that there was absolutely no evidence regarding any motive for murder on the part of Mrs. Beemer. Neither was there any evidence showing that Mrs. Beemer had purchased any strychnine since 1911, when strychnine was purchased to kill crows which were bothering the corn.

Mr. Meredith, in summing up for the crown, laid stress on the fact that all the medicine given to Beemer was given by his wife, and that it was following these doses of medicine that the severe pains occurred which finally resulted in Beemer's death. Mr. Meredith sought to discredit the plea of the defence that Beemer's death was due to suicide, by showing that Beemer at all times expressed a desire to get better.

Mr. Meredith contended that it was not necessary to show any motive in the case. It was impossible to look into the hearts of men and women. In the Beemer case, he said, it was hard to find a motive. Perhaps Mrs. Beemer had thought that there was more money in the estate than there was. Perhaps she, being a young woman, was tired of the man, who was many years her senior. Perhaps she thought she could do better without him.

The case went to the jury at 12.10 after Justice Kelly had summed up

HERRING DISEASE CAUSES ALARM

QUEBEC, Nov. 8.—Capt. Samuel Cote of the schooner Maria Anne, who has arrived here from Gaspe, gives out alarming news about the herring family that must in time spread to other fish. The disease rots the entrails of the herring, and the captain says there are thousands of barrels of this year's catch lying rotting on the Gaspe beach and north shore.

Robbed of Twelve Thousand

AUSTIN, Minn., Nov. 8. — The safe of the State Bank at Waltham, about twelve miles north of here, was blown open by robbers early yesterday and more than $12,000 taken. The bandits are supposed to have entered the town in an automobile and escaped by the same means.

BIG DREDGE SAFE

"Port Nelson" Lies in Good Berth on Shore of James Bay

TORONTO, Nov. 8.—Following a hurried trip to Ottawa, where he held a lengthy consultation with Hon Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, Lieut.-Col. J. B Miller, manager of the Polson's Iron Works, yesterday made a further denial of the reports that the dredge Port Nelson, which the company built for the Dominion Government for use in the development of Port Nelson's harbor, had broken her back because of being beached on a "hump" at her winter quarters.

"We have had word from Mr McLachlan, Government engineer in charge of the harbor works; Capt. Freakly, marine superintendent of the Railways Department, and from Capt. H. B. Saunders, American representative of the Salvage Association of London, Eng., who took the dredge to the Hudson Bay," said Col. Miller, "and they all declared that she is intact and safe. In fact, we received a despatch on Wednesday from Capt. Saunders declaring the the boat was in the same condition as when she left here, and that steam was 'up' as a test for days after she had settled down on her bed for the winter."

"The berth was 'hand-picked' in every sense of the term by the engineers, and all boulders, etc., which would be liable to cause damage were removed. In order to take further precautions, Capt. Saunders waited for the October fall tide, which is three feet higher than any ordinary tide. This left her high and dry. Not content with this, and in order to reduce the chances of destruction to a minimum, the captain ballasted her down with tons of weight. She now lies two hundred feet above low-water line."

VETERAN BRITISH SCIENTIST

Alfred Wallace Dies in His Ninety-First Year.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—The death occurred yesterday of Alfred Russel Wallace, O.M., LL.D., D.C.L., F.R.S., one of the leading British scientists, in his 91st year. He published many works of world-wide reputation on the theory of natural selection, the geographical distribution of animals and other branches of science. He was a great authority on the land question and was a strong advocate of land nationalization. He traveled in every part of the world in pursuit of his studies.

Dr. Wallace was born at Usk, Monmouthshire, on Jan. 8, 1823, and was of Scottish descent on his father's side. He was educated at Hertford Grammar School. His first work was published sixty years ago, under the title "Travels on the Amazon and Rio Negro." His subsequent works include: "The Malay Archipelago" (1869); "Contributions to the Theory of Natural Selection" (1871); "The Geographical Distribution of Animals" (1876); "Miracles and Modern Spiritualism" (1881); "Land Nationalization" (1882); "Man's Place in the Universe" (1903).

While in the East Indies in February, 1868, there suddenly flashed upon his mind the idea of "the survival of the fittest." He drafted the theory and posted it to Charles Darwin, who, on receiving it in England at once recognized his own theory in the manuscript essay sent by the young and almost unknown naturalist in the tropics, then a stranger to him. Darwin wrote Sir Charles Lyell on the same day saying that he never saw a more striking coincidence. "If Wallace had my M.S. sketch written out in 1842 he could not have made a better short abstract! Even his terms now stand as the head of my chapters."

Regarding his book "Contributions to the Theory of Natural Selection," it has been said that next to Darwin's "Origin of Species," no single work has done so much to promote clear understanding of natural selection and confidence in its truth. Wallace differed from Darwin on certain points, one difference being that he contended that man has not, like the other animals, been produced by the unaided operation of natural selection, but that other forces have also been in operation.

MAY SECURE VOTE

But Suffragists Must Discountenance Militant Methods.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Decided efforts are being made to induce the British Government to come to an agreement with the suffragists, whereby a measure for the enfranchisement of women can be made a section of the official program of the Liberal party now in power.

Some of the suffragist leaders admit that this movement has obtained considerable headway, and a significant feature of the conferences, which have been held, is the presence at them of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Pethick-Lawrence, who left the fold of the Women's Social and Political Union, the militant organization, at the request of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, and who took with them their paper, "Votes for Women."

It is known that the Government will consider only a compromise based on an unqualified repudiation of the Women's Social and Political Union, and all of its militant methods.

Bad Weather on Superior.

FORT WILLIAM, Nov. 8.—A high wind accompanied by rain turning to hail and ending with snow, broke over the Twin Cities and Lake Superior during the day, but calmed down at night while the temperature dropped.

The steamer Sarontic, of the Northern Navigation fleet, started out but turned back at Thunder Cape on account of the high seas, while her wireless reports told that the C.P.R. steamer Alberta was lying anchored at Whitefish Bay.

A severe thunderstorm at Tobermorey, near the Soo, was reported by wireless.

LIVED 100 YEARS

Canadian Press Despatch.

GUELPH, ONT., Nov. 8.—Mrs. John Mitchell. who died last night in her one hundredth year, was a life-long resident and her memory was stored with events of the early history of Guelph and Wellington County. Several months ago a son of her's died. and a singular event was witnessed of a man of eighty being buried from his mother's house.

GUELPH AUDIENCE IN PANIC WHEN JOISTS SUBSIDE SIX INCHES

Hall Was Packed to the Doors But no One Was Hurt.

GUELPH, Nov. 8.—With the new trades and labor hall in McDonald street packed to the doors last night, on the occasion of the annual concert of the Iron Moulders' Union, and with President William Parker about to open the program, the floor at the rear of the hall sank six inches, with a noise that could be heard all over the hall.

There was confusion at once, and someone yelled fire, whereupon a grand rush was made for the door, but Alf. King and R. S. Cull had presence of mind enough to block the way and called out for everyone to stop, an order that was obyed. The crowd was then allowed to file out one by one, and not a single person was injured.

The hall had been opened a week before and was considered perfectly safe. If the floor had gone through, the drop would have been about fourteen feet, and doubtless a terrible loss of life would have resulted.

"The concert, thus interrupted, will be held in the City Hall same night next week.

Nanaimo Rioters May Get Bail.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 8.—Chief Justice Hunter yesterday intimated that the 127 defendants who are in jail awaiting trial on charges connected with the riots in Nanaimo and Ladysmith, should be allowed out on bail.

So far as he could see, said his lordship, the evidence against the accused was such as would warrant him in releasing them, but he would take up the cases individually before giving a final decision on any of them. The probability is that bail will be granted.

Cannot Exclude Hindus.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 8.—A rule nisi was obtained by J. S. Baird, barrister, yesterday before Chief Justice Hunter, returnable next week, for thirty-eight Hindus who are at present under an order of deportation at Victoria. Mr. Baird claimed that the order-in-council, providing that such Hindus must have $200 before being allowed to land, was ultra vires.

Sheep For Crown Lands.

VICTORIA, B.C., Nov. 8.—Thousands of sheep and hundred of cattle will be brought into British Columbia early next spring to graze on crown lands, as the result of the policy recently inaugurated by the Provincial Department of Lands of throwing open grazing privileges at nominal fees.

REPUBLIC MAY FAIL

Chinese Legislators Urging Strong Stand For Rights.

PEKIN, Nov. 8.—As neither House of the Chinese Parliament is able to form a quorum, the leaders of the other parties are endeavoring to persuade the Government to return their credentials to the less hostile members of the Democratic party, all of whom, about 300, had been expelled from Parliament by Presidential proclamation. The party was formerly led by Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the first provisional President of China, now in exile.

The Speaker of the Assembly, Tang Hua Lang, has requested the remaining members of Parliament to stay in Pekin and strive for the maintenance of the Parliamentary institutions, as he states that the termination of these will mean the ending of the Chinese republic.

It was reliably reported yesterday that the Chinese military leaders had been urging, President Yuan Shi Kai for months to assume control, arguing that Government with a Parliament in China was impossible.

NEARLY WRECKED

Canada's New Island Almost Causes a Serious Disaster.

MONTREAL, Nov. 8. — Captain Maskell of the Direct liner Serrana, just in from the West Indies, reports having narrowly escaped running foul of Canada's new sand island, thirty miles northeast of Sable Island, during a heavy fog. Sounds were taken, showing only twenty fathoms of water where the charts called for sixty.

Astounded at this discovery, Captain Maskell steered further to the eastward, examined his compasses, worked back on his charts, but was unable to figure out the phenomena. being sure that he had followed the prescribed course clear of Sable Island.

Continued soundings were taken, showing only thirty-five fathoms where the ocean should have been unfathomable, or nearly so. Considerable relief came to the captain and crew when the coast of Cape Breton Island was sighted. However, it was not until he reached Montreal and read of the discovery of the new island that the mystery of the discrepancies in soundings was cleared up.

Made Police Chief.

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 8.—William Davis, for one year chief of the Lethbridge police force, and previous to that for a period of twenty-five years a member of the Toronto police department, was appointed yesterday to succeed the late Daniel Tidsbury as deputy chief of the Edmonton police department.

MR. HARTLEY NOT READY TO GIVE STATEMENT

But He Has Mayoralty Question Under Consideration

"I have as yet no statement to make as to my accepting a nomination as a candidate in the mayoralty contest," said Mr. J. J. Hartley to a Review reporter last night, although he admitted that he had the matter under consideration.

CADET MORRIS WON RACE AT MONTREAL

Won, Billy.

This brief telegram was received by Mr. W. R. Morris this afternoon. The explanation is that his son, Cadet F. W. Morris of R. M. C., Kingston, won the Inter Collegiate Harrier's Race, this morning at Montreal. The distance was five miles.

SILVER IS SCARCE

Mexico City Merchants Are Issuing Credit Slips.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 8. — Silver was the most elusive thing in the capital yesterday. The price of foreign exchange stiffened and a few merchants resorted to the plan of issuing vouchers in the place of silver when making change. At some of the city banks the bank notes of certain state banks were refused. This caused a slight panic among the holders of such paper.

The credit slips issued by the mercantile houses have no legal standing and in many cases were refused. In cases where they were declined the business houses were forced to hand back the bank notes to would-be patrons without having made a sale.

These slips are written on various sorts of paper on which appears in ink or pencil "Good for ——" with the amount due specified. Below this usually the merchants stamped the slip with the ordinary rubber stamp bearing the firm names, in numerous instances these slips passed as currency, not only at the houses putting them out, but in neighboring stores friendly to the store of issue. As yet the public has placed no premium on paper money.

POTATO CROP IS SPOILED

BANGOR, Me., Nov. 8.—Losses totalling from $500,000 to $1,000,000 are estimated to have been caused to the potato growers of Maine by rains and frost. In consequence, the supply, it is said, will be smaller, and the price much higher than was expected early in the season.

Three weeks of rain in October. followed by freezing weather, delayed the harvesting of the crop. Fields turned into swamps by the rain were frozen over by a cold wave, so that digging by the usual methods was impossible. Throughout Eastern and Northern Maine thousands of acres of potatoes still remain in the ground.

May Protest South Bruce.

OTTAWA, Nov. 8. — Although it was stated the other day that the Conservatives of South Bruce had decided against protesting the election of Reuben Truax, it is said in high circles here that the election will be fought out in the courts.

Against Rates Tribunal.

OTTAWA, Nov. 8.—That H. L. Drayton, chairman of the Dominion Railway Commission, will report adversely on the proposal to form a tribunal to regulate ocean freight rates is the impression here.

Boy Shot Himself.

TRURO, N.S., Nov. 8.—Randolph Edwards, 15 years of age, whose home is believed to be in Halifax, shot and killed himself with a revolver here last night. No cause can be assigned for the act.

Suit For Lost Baggage.

OTTAWA, Nov. 8.—Lt.-Col. E. W. B. Morrison, director of artillery, has entered action for loss of baggage when the Royal George grounded below Quebec on Nov. 6, 1913.

WILL STUDY THE INDUSTRIAL CONDITIONS

ALFRED MOSELY.

Alfred Mosely, a member of the Executive Committee of the Tariff Reform League of Great Britain, is on his way to-day to California, where he will continue his study of American industries. The leading British protectionist declares that the free trade party is now holding sway in England, and predicts that the British government will soon face a free trade test. With Mr. Mosely are several mechanics, who came to this country with him to study labor conditions.

CHAMPIONS OF CHURCH UNION PLAN TO GET LEGISLATION

Important Conference Will be Held on Dec. 11—To Draft Bill.

TORONTO, Nov. 8.—Toronto will next month be the centre of interest for the Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists as an important Conference of the joint committee on church union will be held on Dec. 11.

The church union committee appointed by the Presbyterian General Assembly will meet in the Confederation Life board room on Dec. 10.

Hon. Thomas Crawford is taking an active interest in the church union movement and is a member of the Methodist committee. He said yesterday that the Methodists and Congregationalists had now reached a point where they could begin to talk details.

It was learned from an authoritative source that the leaders of the union movement in the Presbyterian Church propose drafting a bill to be passed by the Dominion Parliament, authorizing the proceedings for organic union, and which will avert such litigation as succeeded the union in Scotland and caused trouble over the ownership of the church manse and other properties.

The bill will provide adequately for Presbyterian congregations which are not ready for union. It was pointed out that the maximum opposition to organic union, as shown by the referendum, was only eighteen per cent. of the total membership. Since then many notable additions have been made to the ranks of those favoring union. As the opposition vote of eighteen per cent. was scattered over the whole membership it is computed that the number of congregations having an actual majority of members opposed to union will be very small.

Husband Is Shot.

IPSWICH, Mass., Nov. 8.—Crying hysterically that she had killed her husband, Mrs. John E. Hayes rushed into the Ipswich police station last night. She said that Hayes was struck by a bullet from a revolver which he was handing her to shoot a rat.

The officers went to Hayes' home and found the man dead on the floor with a bullet through the heart and then took Mrs. Hayes back to the police station, where she was locked up for the night.

John Lowe Dead.

OTTAWA, Nov. 8.—John Lowe, ex-Deputy Minister of Agriculture, died here last night in his 90th year. He was born at Warrington, Eng., in 1824. From 1850 to 1870 he was senior editor and proprietor of The Montreal Gazette, in the latter year entering the Dominion public service as census officer and later as assistant and Deputy Minister of Agriculture. He retired in 1895.

TRIED TO BURN HER

Miscreant Bound and Gagged Girl on a Fire.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—Gertrude Hanson, a 16-year-old servant, employed in the home of Otto Johnson, was found bound and gagged and burning rubbish in the basement of the house yesterday. She was unconscious, but detectives expressed the opinion that she had been attacked and that the perpetrator had taken desperate measures in an attempt to conceal his crime.

Miss Hanson's clothing had been saturated with kerosene and papers and other rubbish nearby set on fire. The smoke attracted neighbors, who rescued the girl before the flames reached her.

Tried Hanging In Vain.

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 8.—Ernest Clark, of Ridgeway, a prisoner at the jail, made a second attempt at suicide. Clark tried to hang himself from the bars of his cell, using his shirt. Before life was extinct he was cut down, and he has since quite recovered. He will be taken to Welland to-day for sentence on a charge of holding up the ticket agent at Ridgeway.

Dominion Federation of Women.

OTTAWA, Nov. 8. — Application will be made to Parliament next session for an act to incorporate the National Council of Women of Canada for the purpose of uniting in a Dominion federation all societies and associations of women interested in philanthropy, religion, education, literature, art and social reform, for the betterment of conditions pertaining to the family and the state.

Car Strikers Go Back.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8. — The strike of the employes of the Indianapolis Traction & Terminal Co. was settled late yesterday through the efforts of Governor Samuel M. Ralston. The employes on their demand for arbitration, but nothing is said about recognition of the union in the terms of settlement.

Ended Life With Rifle.

SACKVILLE, N.B., Nov. 8.—R. D. Polly of Upper Cape shot and killed himself with a rifle in his home on Thursday night.

FIRE AT COLLEGE

Nine Horses Destroyed in Stables of Oakville Institution.

OAKVILLE, Nov. 8.—A fire, believed to be of incendiary origin, destroyed the barn and gymnasium of Appleby College last night. Nine valuable saddle ponies and horses, owned by pupils of the college, were burned.

The local fire brigade, which has been kept busy of late, owing to the frequency of mysterious fires, responded quickly to an alarm which was sent in about ten o'clock, and succeeded in saving the adjoining buildings after a hard fight. The loss will amount to about $35,000, exclusive of the horses and ponies, which were high-bred animals.

Narrowly Escaped Drowning.

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 8.—E. C. Tribune, a prominent citizen of Athens, together with L. Livingstone and H. Hawkins, narrowly escaped being drowned in Charleston Lake. They were crossing from the main shore to Tribute Island in a heavy sea, with material in two skiffs, lashed together. The boats swamped and with difficulty the men kept afloat until they attracted the attention of persons on shore, who put out to the rescue. All three were more or less exhausted and greatly chilled from a long stay in the water.

ENGLAND AND GERMANY

In our news columns we publish an account of a lecture delivered at the Collegiate Institute last evening by Dr. Horning of Toronto. As will be gathered from the report it was a very able contribution to a very important subject. It will do much to clear many minds and enable them to grasp the situation and to judge more justly as to the relations between England and Germany which have been the cause of much controversy in Canada as well as in Great Britain.

While it was quite inevitable it is at the same time unfortunate that any talk of emergency should have entered into the consideration of the naval problem in this country. It is not very complimentary to Canada to think that she had to wait until the Old Country was in danger before she would do what is after all a common duty. But, as Dr. Horning's historical survey shows, England owes her strength and preparedness to-day to the recurrent threats or attempts that have been made to invade Great Britain. This so-called scare is only a repetition of the days of the Armada and of the Napoleonic terror, and that England will emerge the stronger from this emergency is certain. The Napoleonic "scare" was not so much a scare to the English people as it was to a scare to Napoleon. It was not a symptom of cowardice, or of cravan fear; it was an awakening to responsibility and vigilance, and it brought out not only the fighting qualities, but also those qualities of patriotism and desire for freedom and supremacy which are essential to individual, national and Imperial progress.

Where would the world have been to-day but for the enterprize of the much threatened inhabitants of the British Isles? God has not pampered the British race. He has not spared the rod and the breed is the stronger and better disciplined for it. If Canada dreams that she is going to get scot free and can stand aside from the struggle she is mistaken. The baby gets kisses in abundance, but the kisses will cease and the testing of manhood comes in due season.

The Gospel of Peace which Dr. Horning preached is a very laudable one, and the nations as well as the hearts of men are aching for peace. But it is to be feared that it is not yet to be. To build an Hague Temple of Peace is a comparatively easy matter. But it will take a great many doves, and pretty fierce ones, to scare, and subdue the German eagle. Dr Horning must admit that Germany has no need for so large a navy, and that the chief reason for her naval enterprize is to beat England, and that the motive force is one of envy. The doctor quoted Tennyson's famous lines—

"When the war drums throb no longer"—

But he over-looked the context which speaks of the —

"Ghastly dew from the nation's airy navies grappling in the central blue."

That is part of Tennyson prophesy, and from the way in which Germany and other countries are developing these airy engines of slaughter, it would seem that the Armageddon is to come before the "federation of the world."

MR. DELA FOSSE'S OMISSION

Mr Dela Fosse in his most interesting review of famous women, in another column, has made at least one most inexcusable omission. Among the brilliant galaxy of stars in the crown of womanhood, which he displays to his readers, no place is found for that dazzling gem of modern femininity, Mrs. Pankhurst!

Names such as Hannah More and Florence Nightingale are truly great: but what are they to that apostle of hunger, Mrs. Pankhurst? What are the accomplishments of those women of the old school compared with the achievement of this, the latest and greatest of them all?

Who can estimate the cost of the railway stations, tea-rooms, theatres and bungalow's burned down and blown up!— not to mention the valiant attacks which this woman and her militants have made upon golf links! Have not these gentle creatures way-laid and assailed cabinet ministers and dared a phalanx of Bobbies with hat-pins?

Space forbids to do more than mention the window-smashing crusade and the brave onslaughts on fierce blood-red letter boxes, the fatal encounter with a race-horse, etc.

The history of this movement which owes its inception and its promulgation to this Queen of Women is full of heroic deeds, and she surely deserves a place on Mr. Dela Fosse's roll of great women.

EDITORIAL NOTES

General Booth compliments Ontario in having "the liquor traffic well in hand." He thinks in this respect we "lead the world." He ought to be in a position to judge. At the same time the Conservative Party must not be content. We must see that the present liquor laws are observed and give every encouragement to the slow but sure method of abolishing the bar by means of Local Option.

The Postmen of Great Britain are preparing for a strike. These couriers have so far been an uncomplaining lot of fellows and have been well treated as compared with many other British working men. They have security of office and are not subject to casual employment as a great many of the unskilled laborers are.

The Montreal Herald says:

> "We may have several things on our conscience, but we proudly draw attention to the fact that The Herald is the one paper in Canada which has not made a pun about a lemon when commenting on the Liberal defeat in Peel."

The Herald is too confident of its splendid isolation. The Review can claim equal distinction with the Herald. Never once have we made a pun on the name of Peel. We appeel to our readers to confirm this statement.

Speaking of puns, a young man came into this office the other day and committed the following on the Mexican situation:

"I would not accept the Presidency of Mexico if Huerta offer it to me. A man can Diaz easily in Mexico——"

The punster did not finish the atrocity, as his life was in almost as much danger as if he had accepted the Presidency of Mexico. It will be noticed he pronounced the name "Hu-er-ta." Most people pronounce it "Hur-ta."

Women and Gossip.

It is more important that a woman should be a good gossip and tell pleasantly and smartly of common friends and the thousand and one nothings of the day and hour than that she should speak with the tongue of men and angels, for awhile together by the fire happens more frequently in marriage than the presence of a distinguished foreigner to dinner.—R. L. Stevenson.

Cured By Thunder.

Thunder cured a man of deafness at Heidelberg, Australia, recently. The man, William Ilton, aged seventy, an inmate of a hospital, twenty-six years ago was struck deaf and dumb during an attack of paralysis, suddenly regained his speech and hearing after a "deafening" peal of thunder.

THE MARKET

Latest Quotation in Grain, Dairy Products Live Stock, Etc

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 7.—The steady American wheat cables and the strength in Winnipeg caused renewed covering by shorts at the opening and values were ¼d higher. Following the opening there was a further advance of ⅛d to ¼d with speculative support on the firmer Manitoba offers, strength in spot and our Argentine advice. Russian offers are still firm with actual shipments disappointing and reports from India are very bullish with Indian wheat held above an export parity. World's shipments other than America are expected to be moderate. At 1.30 the market was firm and ⅜d to ⅝d higher with May leading the advance.

Corn opened ¼d higher and further advanced ¼d to ⅝d. The firmer American cables and a better spot demand, effect of liberal Argentine shipments. Argentine offerings for shipment are firmer and arrivals at the ports in Argentine are in a bad condition, being a very low grade and the result of an urgent demand. At 1.30 the market was firm and ⅝d to ⅞d higher than yesterday.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Strength of foreign markets helped wheat bulls today and the close, tho easy, was a net advance of 1-4c to 1-2c. Prospects of unsettled weather put back bone into the corn market, which closed strong at a net gain of 1-2c to 3-4c. Good commission house buying lifted oats 1-8c to 1-4c. Provisions finished steady to 7 1-2c lower on liberal selling.

Captain Pembroke and Mr. Effingham

By JULIUS M'BRIDE

Captain George Pembroke of the royal engineers, when there were British troops stationed in Canada, wrote his fiancee that he was ordered home to England. The lady, Emily Collins, who was a New Yorker, was somewhat surprised at a request made in the letter that she should sail from that city, meet him in London and marry him there. Miss Collins would have considered this an impertinence, but, reading further, saw that the order was imperative that the officer report at once, and, since a steamer sailed from Montreal the evening he received it, he would sail with her.

Now, this was all a tissue of deception. Pembroke, ten years before a young lieutenant, had met Miss Collins, a girl of seventeen, in England; had flirted with her, but the two had drifted apart. After he came to Canada he opened a correspondence with her that led to an engagement. Instead of sailing from Montreal he purposed going across from New York and in the same steamer as his fiancee. Having grown ten years older and raised a full beard, he did not believe she would recognize him. He would endeavor to win her under another name, then confess that he was Pembroke himself.

This was a pretty scheme—that is, if he succeeded in winning the girl away from himself.

When the ship sailed in which Miss Collins was to go to England, Captain Pembroke in mufti, under the name of Guy Effingham, was on board. He was a handsome fellow, of an aristocratic bearing and quite a lady killer. He did not recognize Miss Collins, who had considerably changed, but succeeded in securing some one to point her out to him. An introduction was secured, and the captain and his fiancee were soon sitting next each other on deck in steamer chairs engaged in a desperate flirtation.

The word flirtation is generally used in connection with women, and we do not associate it with persons on the lee side of middle age. But both Pembroke and Miss Collins were flirts.

The night before reaching port while steaming up the channel the captain gave Miss Collins a fictitious account of himself, stating that he was related to a duke; that he had an income of £8,000 a year and was going home to stand for parliament.

Having thus prepared the way, he told her that the moment he saw her on the day they sailed he knew that she was destined to have a marked effect upon his subsequent life and he had since realized that he was madly in love with her. Then he offered her his heart and hand. She hid her face on his bosom and whispered "Yes."

Pembroke was shocked. It was not that he had won the lady from himself, but that she should show so little sense of honor in thus deserting one man for another. He expected that she would say something about complications with another lover, but she maintained silence on the subject, and he could see no evidence of the slightest qualm of conscience at her dishonorable conduct.

Pembroke, of course, knew where he could find Miss Collins in London, but he asked for her address and when he received it put it carefully in his pocketbook. When they separated it was understood that he should call the evening of his arrival. The final parting took place on the upper deck behind a great wind funnel, where there was no one to see. So exuberant was the caress he received that he went away as delighted with his success as Guy Effingham as he was enraged at the treatment of George Pembroke.

"You'll not disappoint me tomorrow evening," she said, "will you?"

"Certainly not. Why do you doubt me?"

"You men are so uncertain. I have known you only ten days. It seems that my happiness is too intense to be real. I must be dreaming."

"I assure you mine surpasses it."

"Well, then, goodby. I shall expect you early."

Miss Collins was to go to London with her people, while Pembroke went alone. On the way it seemed to him that he had been caught in a whirlwind that had turned him not only completely round, but upside down. What should he do? Accept the slight put upon him as Pembroke and give way to the ecstasy experienced by Effingham, or, as Pembroke, hurl back the love she had lavished on Effingham? He was not quite sure whether he was a jilted or an accepted lover.

When he went to see her in London he had not made up his mind what course he would pursue. When she advanced to receive him his heart fluttered. Throwing her arms about him she looked up into his face with a glad smile and said:

"Oh, George, dearest George, how happy I am to be with you again!"

"George?"

"Yes, George."

"You know"—

"Your personating another to win me again was just too lovely for anything."

"But—but how did you know?"

"Stupid! I recognized you long before you saw me at all."

"Well, well, what a donkey I have been! Do you know I've been half crazy as myself and in the seventh heaven as the other fellow."

"And just think. I have been loved by two different men at the same time It was delicious."

Points for Mothers

Child's Knowledge of Art.

A teacher was surprised one morning to see a pupil who had come to school for the first time showing a remarkable interest in the reprints of great paintings which she had arranged along the blackboard. Unobserved she drew near the child and was further astonished to hear her exclaim delightedly, "There's 'Baby Stuart,' the 'Sistine Madonna' and 'The Horse Fair.'"

This teacher mentioned the occurrence to another teacher, who told her that the child's brother and sister had likewise surprised her by the knowledge they had not only of masterpieces in painting, but of sculpture and architecture as well. Later the teachers met the children's mother and were shown the playroom.

Instead of the highly colored pictures that one so often sees in playrooms, there were several good paintings illustrative of the time honored childlore and the ever new fairy tale. One could readily see that considerable time and money must have been spent on these pictures. The visitors particularly admired the imaginative suggestion and harmonious coloring of a painting of Cinderella. "That picture," said the mother, "is the best we have in the house. My little daughters and I sacrificed our new spring bonnets at Cinderella's shrine the first time we caught a glimpse of her."

Numerous prints of great paintings were arranged in groups according to subjects around the room. These pictures were mounted on mats of uniform size and color, and each one was plainly labeled with the name of its author and its subject.

"The pictures in the various groups are constantly changing," the mother explained. "If any one finds a picture which appeals to him it is brought in for consideration. No picture, however, gets the coveted place in the group if any of the children raise a valid objection to it. This censorship not only develops the children's observation and judgment, but keeps the groups of pictures from becoming too large and usually insures survival of the fittest.

"At different seasons the interest is transferred from one group to another. At Christmas the Madonnas claim most of our interest; later, when the children are enthusiastically building snow houses and fashioning snow men we naturally turn to the groups headed by the Coliseum and Michelangelo's David. In the spring we are all enthusiastic about the flowers, birds and trees.

"We are always careful to encourage even the youngest member of the family to contribute to the changing collection. Occasionally we allow our judgment of a picture to be influenced by our hearts rather than our heads. This was the case when little Ned brought in a highly colored picture of Santa Claus which he evidently admired and astonished all by requesting us to hang it beside the 'Sistine Madonna.'"

The "No Toy" Theory

There was a woman, rather prominent socially, who had a pet theory on which she always fell back. Her slogan was "Sticks and stones for children." She believed, in effect, that children could get along quite well without any toys save sticks and stones, that the fewer playthings they had the better off they were. She argued very convincingly. Of course when you found out that she had no chick or child of her own, but was moreover, a spinster, your faith in her theory perhaps was somewhat shocked. The theory was right nevertheless, as you doubtless are forced to admit when you ponder on the happiness of the children you know. Without a question toys do not mean happiness.

If you are a believer in the no toy theory the summer is the best time to put it into practice, for in summer there are many things which an out of door loving child can find to take the place of toys. Doubtless the child who has only a limited number of toys and is therefore forced to amuse itself without them most of the time has a better chance to develop its resourcefulness and imagination and its power of getting happiness and amusement wherever it may be than the child who is surfeited with toys.

LIFE'S STRUGGLE WITH ILLNESS

Mrs. Stewart Tells How She Suffered from 16 to 45 years old—How Finally Cured.

Euphemia, Ohio.—"Because of total ignorance of how to care for myself when verging into womanhood, and from taking cold when going to school, I suffered from a displacement, and each month I had severe pains and nausea which always meant a lay-off from work for two to four days from the time I was 16 years old.

"I went to Kansas to live with my sister and while there a doctor told me of the Pinkham remedies but I did not use them then as my faith in patent medicines was limited. After my sister died I came home to Ohio to live and that has been my home for the last 18 years.

"The Change of Life came when I was 47 years old and about this time I saw my physical condition plainly described in one of your advertisements. Then I began using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot tell you or any one the relief it gave me in the first three months. It put me right where I need not lay off every month and during the last 18 years I have not paid out two dollars to a doctor, and have been blest with excellent health for a woman of my age and I can thank Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for it.

"Since the Change of Life is over I have been a maternity nurse and being wholly self-supporting I cannot over estimate the value of good health. I have now earned a comfortable little home just by sewing and nursing since I was 52 years old. I have recommended the Compound to many with good results, as it is excellent to take before and after childbirth."—Miss EVELYN ADELIA STEWART, Euphemia, Ohio.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

ILLS OF CHILDHOOD

Every mother should be able to recognize the symptoms of the little ailments that attack her children. She should also be in a position to treat them promptly. To do this she should keep a supply of Baby's Own Tablets in the house at all times. The Tablets never fail to be of help to little ones. Mothers who are anxious for the welfare of her little ones will receive free for the asking a valuable little book on the care of infants and young children. Concerning the Tablets, Mrs. G. L. Bonham, St. George, Ont., says: "I can recommend Baby's Own Tablets as a safe and sure medicine for little ones. I have raised four babies with their aid and would not be without them." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Summer Clothing For Baby.

In summer the baby's clothing needs especially to be light in weight and loose fitting, says Good Health. It goes without saying that it should be clean and sweet. The young child is exceedingly sensitive to change of temperature, and his clothing should be subject to the surrounding atmosphere. In the chill of the morning he needs warm garments, but swathed in flannel in the heat of the day he becomes overheated and perspires to excess. It takes time and thought to watch his comfort in this matter, but it does much toward insuring freedom from disease.

A Useful Box.

A box for children's toys can be made much more useful if two strips of wood an inch and a half wide are nailed across the bottom of the box, one at each end, and a small castor is put in each of the four corners. When picking up the toys the box can be moved across the room, besides serving as a little wagon for the children.

An Infant Scholar.

Perhaps the greatest infant prodigy on record was Christian Heinecker, born at Lubeck in 1721. At ten months he could speak and repeat every word spoken to him; at twelve months he knew by heart a great portion of the Bible; at three years he spoke and read French and Latin as easily as his native tongue. In his fourth year he employed himself in the study of religion and church history, and his fame as a scholar spread so that the king of Denmark sent for him and was astonished at his learning. Just before he was five, however, Heinecker fell sick and died.

BROOKLYN TABERNACLE

BIBLE STUDY ON CONSIDER ONE ANOTHER.

—Nov. 9.—Romans 14:7-21.—

"It is good not to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor to do anything whereby thy brother stumbleth."—Romans 14:21, Diaglott.

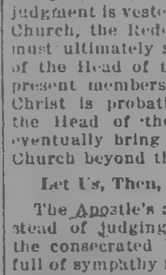
THIS lesson makes, perhaps, the strongest appeal of anything in the Bible in favor of total abstinence from the use of intoxicating liquors. True, it is addressed only to Christians, as is the entire New Testament. Nevertheless, many can appreciate the argument here; and to many such it will appeal—not along the highest Christian lines, but along the lines of the Golden Rule.

To make a distinction between the Golden Rule, the acknowledged standard for all mankind, and a Christian's rule of life will be considered by many, doubtless, as a distinction without a difference. But this is not true. The Golden Rule is a simple rule of justice, which all should follow.

The rule of Christian living, as taught and exemplified by the Master, is far more exacting than the Golden Rule. Christians are, of course, subject to the Golden Rule, but their Covenant with the Lord is that in doing His will—doing righteousness—they will ever stand ready to sacrifice even life itself.

"None of Us Liveth to Himself."

As for the world, they do live and die to themselves. Their own personal interests stand first with them. Only to Christ and the Church could these words apply; for none have entered into such a Covenant of self-renunciation, giving up present interests in exchange for a promise of a spiritual life hereafter, in the resurrection.



Giving up present interests.

All these, by the terms of their Covenant, are to live unto the Lord—to do His will and not their own, to serve Him and not self, to lay down their lives in fighting against sin. All these, when they die, will be dying unto the Lord, in the sense that every member of the Body of Christ must die to the flesh before the entire Body can be glorified beyond the veil.

The Apostle proceeds to show that we who constitute the Church are not judges one of another; that all judgment is vested in the Head of the Church, the Redeemer of all. Each must ultimately stand the inspection of the Head of the Church; for our present membership in the Body of Christ is probationary. Loyalty to the Head of the Church now will eventually bring membership in the Church beyond the veil.

Let Us, Then, Judge Ourselves.

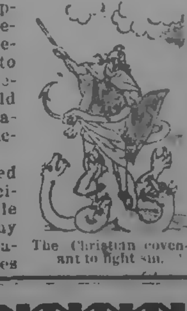
The Apostle's argument is that, instead of judging fellow-members of the consecrated Body, we should be full of sympathy for them. We do not know thoroughly their trials, their difficulties, their environments, their heredities. Our keen sense of justice should find its principal exercise in self-criticism and in watchfulness not to do anything to stumble a brother—to discourage him or to cause him to fall away from the faith.

How many find it easy to excuse their own weaknesses, while they are very critical respecting others' shortcomings. How the Lord warned His people against such an attitude. Those who are hypercritical, and wish to measure others up to the full standard of perfection, are thus recognizing a high standard; and that recognition will make it proper for the Lord to measure them by that standard. If we could but remember that the merciful will obtain mercy, how gladly we would be merciful to others!

"Nothing Unclean of Itself."

The Apostle's argument is that to the Jew who died to all hope of attaining eternal life through keeping the Law Covenant and who became united to Christ, the restrictions would have no application when he accepted Christ.

Having stated this broad principle, the Apostle admits that if any man had his reasoning faculties so twisted on the subject that he thought himself under obligations; he would be responsible according to his judgment. For such to violate conscience would be sin, as he would be wrong in doing what he thought to be wrong, however harmless the matter might be in itself.



The Christian covenant to fight sin.

The Apostle's argument seems to be that the brother who is strong mentally, morally and physically, should gladly abstain from whatever would stumble another. If Christ so loved the world as to die for sinners, should not we be glad to lay down life for the brethren? And if so, should we not be much more ready to abstain from using comparatively trifling liberties for the sake of our weaker brother, for whom Christ died? This is a strong argument.

"Let not your good be evil-spoken of." Your appreciation of your liberty is a desirable thing; nevertheless, you should so govern your exercise of that liberty that none will understand it and think you an evil-doer. Rather increase your influence by abstaining from everything that might appear to be an evil in the sight of others, however correct your own judgment of the Divine Law on the subject.

Constituency For Montague.

WINNIPEG, Nov. [illegible].—It is said that Hon. W. H. Montague, newly sworn in as Minister of Public Works, will be offered the constituency of Centre Winnipeg, Taylor, the present member, being appointed as federal collector of customs here.

Wives To Blame Too.

LACROSSE, Wis., Nov. [illegible].—"Some of the homes I have seen almost justify the husbands running away from them," declared Mrs. Catherine L. Van Wyck of Milwaukee, president of the State Conference of Charities and Corrections in concluding yesterday her annual report before the convention.

"The wife who does not know her job," she said, "must take her share of the blame for the many cases of wife desertion."

To teach woman her work, she advocated compulsory domestic courses in the public schools.

Taking things philosophically is easy if they don't concern you.

THE DRESS OF A BUSINESS LETTER

To judge quickly, to discriminate at a glance between good things, and bad, is what most men who receive business letters have been trained to do. It is not an exaggeration to claim that the success of many business letters often depends on the paper.—By HARRISON COURTNEY in "System."

SOME REMARKABLE INSTANCES OF CHEAP LIGHTING IN HOME TOWN OF ADAM BECK

Business With Small Returns Cheerfully Accepted in London — Stove is Named "Adam Beck" Because "It Does All it is Represented to Do."

(From the Toronto Telegram.)

LONDON, Nov. 8.—"A gentleman to see you sir."

The door leading into the private office to Mr. H. J. Glaubitz, general manager of the Waterworks Electrical and Parks Department of London, was held wide open with these words and a collarless, trembling old man in shabby coat and patched trousers ushered in.

"We want to get Hydro-Electric connection" explained the caller in quavering tones.

"My daughter's busy and her man's at work, so they sent me."

"Grandfather's the business man of the family, eh?" commented the manager genially. "How many rooms have you to light?"

"Three, sir."

And forthwith his order was booked.

Four-roomed cottage at 8 Nelson street, London, where average lighting for past year was 11c a month.

The Power Minister

HON. ADAM BECK.

A BIG ORDER

"What would his bill amount to?" a caller asked.

"Oh, a trifle—perhaps only 25 cents a month," was the answer.

"Do you mean to say the Hydro here goes after business that small?"

"Certainly," replies the general manager. "This is cheap light for all classes. It's for the masses. We get twenty-five cents a month, perhaps, from this old man's house; twenty-five or thirty from the one next door, and that or a trifle more from another neighbor till the whole district is honeycombed."

It began to dawn on the caller why London, with one tenth the population of Toronto has 6,200 Hydro customers, Toronto, with 80,000 or 90,000 families, has only 22,000 Hydro customers. Moreover, "small business" in London is not only tolerated It is welcomed.

DOUBLE TORONTO'S DISCOUNT

"Density of custom is one of the reasons," continued the London manager, "why we can afford to give twenty per cent off instead of ten per cent as they do in Toronto, and still keep our prices down to Toronto's rate of four cents service charge per hundred square feet area and three cents per kilowatt hour for electricity.

"Even at that rate we have a surplus of $40,000 from last year's business, so Mr. Philip Pocock, Chairman of the London Hydro Commission, is promising a still further reduction."

SOME SAMPLE CUSTOMERS.

"It's wonderful density of connection in every area that makes such prices possible. Come and see for yourself the varied home we reach."

Out through South street he leads the way, pointing to cottage after cottage of the three or four-roomed variety with Hydro wires entering over the front doors.

At 441 1-2 South street he halts at a one-room shack of weather beaten boards.

"You haven't Hydro here!" you exclaim incredulously.

"Yes, we have, and it only costs us 25 cents a month," proudly answers Alex. Nichols, the head of the house, switching on the light of the single lamp. Swinging from its flexible tube it lighted every corner of the 12 x 14-foot home. Seven people were in the place. "But just me and my missus and three children live here," exxplained the tenant, who seemed wide awake to the value of the light hygienically, for he added: "It doesn't burn up the good air. We can see a lot better than when we used coal oil or even gas, and it doesn't cost as much."

LIGHT FOR THE EXILE'S LOT.

"Shure she couldn't talk Irish," vouchsafed a small girl, pickle in hand, who had scampered heedlessly across the mud on Clarence street, to see why Mrs. Soebesky, at Number 22 was being interrogated. "She can't say even good day to a body."

Isolated and wan the speechless foreigner leaned against the gay green doorway of the little yellow house she lived in, and gazed listlessly at her callers. She was sick. She had no neighbors who could talk to her. She was not interested. She was home-sick in a foreign land. Suddenly her wistful eyes brightened. By signs she showed she understood the conversation. It was about the bright light carried by the two wires stretched above her head. That light was good. It was one of the comforts which compensated her exile. She had a smile for those who talked of it, even though they spoke in a foreign tongue. Into the hearts of her Canadian callers she planted a real gladness that this city of their land could put good light within even the reach of the poorest foreigner. The Soebesky's electric bill per month only averages 52 cents.

THIRTY CENTS A MONTH

There was no need of a Hibernian interpreter at a house just around the corner—No. 8 Nelson street. It was a little vine-covered white brick cottage, overlooking a pretty turn of the Thames River. "You'll not be mindin' the litter," said its owner, said its owner, Mrs. Calder, ushering the callers in. "It's a quilt O'im makin."

The place was dark for twas a gloomy day. "Click," came the familiar sound of an electric button and light-flooded the room, revealing a parlor beautifully clean, with white crocheted antimacassors, starched curtains, gay patchwork on a table and a bright "In God We Trust" motto on the wall.

"The loight is it?" enquired the thrifty housewife, "It's chaper than coal oil, an' no work at all! We've four as thim. 'Twas thirty cints last month, and it's not to bed with th' chickens Oi go. Oi sit up a dale too late!"

The year's lighting bill for this 684 square feet section of Spotless Town averages 41 cents a month.

In No. 6 Nelson street, a modest clapboard house next door, there are eight rooms and a family of seven. Its September lighting cost 72 cents.

When the threatening rain fell heavily Mr. W. Wyatt, one of London's Hydro Commissioners, brought his motor to the investigator's rescue. Through lakes of mud he guided it two miles and a half to New street where he said a contented woman could be found. At a picturesque rambling cottage close to the ever-winding Thames he stopped. An apple tree overhung the gateway, and asters still stood by the white-painted clapboards off the house. Hubbard squash carrots, cabbages and celery ran in tidy rows towards the river.

It was Charles A. Finch's market garden.

"We're too far out for gas," explained Mrs. Finch. "But the Hydro didn't hesitate to come.

"I do all our baking with it, including bread for a family of five, at an average cost of six cents a day. That's $1.80 a month.

"We used to burn coal oil. It cost us eight cents a day, and I did not bake bread then. Just look at my loaves!"

Opening the door of the electric stove for a second a delicate whiff of fresh-baked bread escaped, and a glimpse of beautiful browning crusts justified the pride in her tone.

"The current's been off 20 minutes," she continued. "and the heat hasn't come down any yet. It will be hot enough to put the next batch right when this is done. I had the current on about half an hour. Less than that will keep the heat up enough for the second lot.

"I can prepare my dinner and put it in the stove. By setting the clock to have the current come on and off as I want it I can go away, and leave the meal to cook itself. It would cook as I wanted it to, and stay hot for two or three hours afterwards, if we were delayed— and not be spoiled by staying there, either. The moisture does not escape from the oven, and things don't shrivel.

"I've never had such comfort since I've kept house. I call my stove "Adam Beck," she concluded, laughingly "because it does all it is represented to do."

Even this one-roomed shack at 441½ South street, London, boasts Hydro light.

Chas. A. Finch's home on West street, London, where electric stove bakes bread and cooks meals for five people, at cost of 6c daily for fuel.

FAREWELL TO DR. AND MRS MATHER

Their Friends at Tweed Are Sorry to Lose Them

The following from the Tweed News will be of interest to a number of Peterborough people as Dr. and Mrs. Mather have numerous friends in this city:

On Friday evening Mrs. (Dr.) Farrell gave a charming little farewell party in honor of Mrs. (Dr.) Mather who is leaving this week for a few weeks' visit among friends before permanently taking up the family residence in Toronto.

About forty of the friends of Dr. and Mrs. Mather were present and a delightful time was spent together. Those present from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Knight, Kingston; Dr. and Mrs Frank Mather, Belleville.

During the evening, advantage was taken of the occasion, by the ladies to present Mrs. Mather with a handsome cut glass rose bowl and silver tray.

Mr. S. B. Rollins had been asked to take charge of the evening's proceedings. He briefly indicated the mission of the gathering and called upon Dr. Tottle for a short address.

The doctor expressed his personal regret at the removal of Dr. and Mrs. Mather and very graciously touched upon the many excellencies of hand and heart of Mrs. Mather both in her own home, in the church and in the social life of the community and in this connection he tenderly associated the name of Miss Ana, who is now pursuing her studies so successfully in the distant city.

On behalf of the ladies he requested her to receive the token of their esteem and love. Mrs. S. B. Rollins made the presentation.

Dr. Mather rose to reply on behalf of Mrs. Mather. He spoke of their coming to Tweed, first to Stoco and after a year and a half's residence there, then to Tweed. He had nothing but good words to say of Tweed and its people and he felt that no matter now where they might go "there would never be so dear a spot as Tweed to them." He thanked the friends for their many expressions of confidence and esteem and especially for this token of their regard.

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL

Notes by the Official Scribe

The regular meeting of the Trades and Labor Council was held on Wednesday evening last, the President in the chair, and a good representation of members present. Routine business was transacted and plans discussed to make the meetings interesting during the winter months. A letter was read from Secretary Hammacott, who is on the sick list, tendering his resignation, but the Council would not accept this at present, hoping that the secretary will soon be all right again.

The following letter is self-explanatory:

Peterborough,
1st Nov., 1913.

The Secretary of the Trades and Labor Council, City:

Dear Sir.—I beg leave to offer to appear before your Council at any time you may see fit in order that you may instruct me upon any matters coming before Parliament or likely to do so at the ensuing session of interest to you. I have been in touch with all the other branches of industry in the constituency, and have expected that your Council might wish to confer with me upon some legislative topic, but as you have not given any intimation to that effect. I venture to suggest it to you as desirable in the interests of us both. There is no way that I know of for the representatives of Trades and Labor of any constituency to reach the place where they make laws except through their representatives for the time being, who ever they may be, and of what ever political creed they may be, and therefore I feel that for you not to consult me, and for me never to consult you is treatment on both sides not likely to produce good results. On my part I am most anxious to be of service to the working men, not wholly from political motives, I assure you, as my record will show. I have done my best to pursue honest and straight-forward methods, which I fancy, is the one thing upon which the future of labor most chiefly rests, and I had hoped that in view of the fact that however much some of you might disapprove of the principles of the party to which I belong, nevertheless that the cause of labor had been treated fairly enough on my part to attract your attention to the desirability of some communication with me upon that point. However, of course, this is at your own option, but I take the liberty of making the suggestion.

Yours truly,
J. H. BURNHAM.

As a result of the receipt of this letter, the President appointed a committee, to be strengthened by a representative from each of the locals, to discuss topics of importance, so as to present an interesting business agenda at a meeting to which will be invited the local Dominion House representative.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

Names to be submitted for Aldermanic and Mayoralty honors next January were mentioned, but action was deferred to the next meeting.

ENTERTAINMENT FOR THE BOYS

Instructive Illustrated Lecture by Dr. Marsh

Over eighty boys gathered last evening in the large hall at the Y. M. C. A. and enjoyed an interesting and instructive lecture by Dr. Marsh of Springville. The lecture was profusely illustrated by slides taken by the lecturer, and was descriptive of a trip taken by Dr. Marsh and about 50 others to Labrador and Ungava in the summer of 1905. The object of the expedition was to view the solar eclipse which took place at that time, to get the magnetic variations of the inland sea and to establish a base of survey for Labrador and Ungava.

The light in those regions, as the doctor explained, was not ideal for the making of slides, but many of the views shown were excellent and the comments of Dr. Marsh were all that was needed to make them interesting to his audience of young hearers. This was the fourth of a series of free entertainments arranged by Mr. Galley to take place every Friday evening during the season under the auspices of the boys' department of the Y.M.C.A. In addition to the lecture there was instrumental music by Gordon Lamb and H. Lewis Vernon Fisk successfully operated the lantern.

Fat Is Ridiculous

Overfat men and women, mortified and humiliated by the publicity of conspicuous rolls and billows of fat, are gradually learning that through the discovery of an eminent physician the burden of overfatness is taken from them, leaving the figure attractively proportioned, the flesh firm, the skin smooth, and the general health vastly improved, without dieting, exercise or resulting wrinkles or flabbiness. There is no equal and no substitute for the famous Marmola Prescription, but there is a new and more convenient form —a tablet form of this safe fat remover. Marmola Prescription Tablets contain the same harmless, effective ingredients as the original prescription that has enabled so many thousands of uncomfortable men and women to reduce their weight evenly and steadily at the rate of a pound or more a day. An exceptionally large case of these Marmola Prescription Tablets is sold by all druggists at 75c or sent you direct by the Marmola Co., Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich., on receipt of price.

Welland Ship Canal
Section No. 5
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and marked "Tender for Section No. 5, Welland Ship Canal," will be received at this office until 12 o'clock noon on Tuesday, November 18th, 1913.

Plans, specifications and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on or after this date at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Engineer in Charge, St. Catharines, Ontario.

Copies of plans and specifications may be obtained from the Department on the payment of the sum of fifty dollars. To bona fide tenderers this amount will be refunded upon the return of the above in good condition.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind, that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque on a chartered Bank of Canada, for the sum of $100,000.00 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals, must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,
L. K. JONES,
Asst. Deputy Minister and Secretary.

AT ST. JOHN'S

Rev. W. F. Fitzgerald to Preach Morning and Evening

The Dedication Festival will be continued at St. John's to-morrow, when the Rev. W. F. Fizgerald, M.A., of Kingston, will preach sermons appropriate to the occasion, the subject of Missions being reserved to a later date. Mr. Fitzgerald is one of the most widely known clergy in Eastern Ontario, especially through his lecture on "Ireland and the Irish." He was born and educated in Ireland and began his ministry there. He is Grand Chaplain for Eastern Ontario of the Orange Order, being re-elected last spring in Peterborough at Grand Lodge, where he took an active part in the discussions. Mr. Fitzgerald will preach both at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

MEETING OF THE MINISTERS

Ministerial Association Meets Next Monday Morning

A meeting of the Ministerial Association will be held in the Y.M.C.A. Monday at 10 a.m. An introduction to Dr. Euckens' Main Currents of Modern Thought will be discussed. Rev. F.J. Sawers, president; Rev. J. N. Clarry, secretary.

Y.W.C.A. NOTES

Sunday, Nov. 9th, begins the week of prayer in the Y.W.C.A. and throughout the week services will particularly deal with the work in foreign fields, where so many difficulties and such great needs are met with by our workers. Difficulties which we, in a Christian country cannot realize or fully appreciate. The liberty, beauty, comfort and joy proclaimed by Christianity is our birthright. Let us guard it carefully as the greatest treasure we possess and let us by our prayers ask the Giver of Eternal Life to so bless and encourage His servants among His children in soul bondage that the result of the coming year's harvest may indeed be most bountiful.

We take this opportunity of inviting and urging as many as possible to join us at these services.

Sunday Vesper service at five o'clock at which Mrs. Kendry will speak and Miss Dawson will contribute the vocal selection.

The "Loyalty Club" is one of the most interesting clubs in the Y.W.C.A. and great interest is being taken by the girls in the study of the various poets. If there are stranger girls from the Homeland who have not joined us, we hope they will come to the office on Simcoe street and meet us. They are always welcome.

NEW CONVENIENT TRAIN TO WINNIPEG

Canadian Pacific

The popularity of Canadian Pacific service, and the excellence of that road's equipment, has been so greatly appreciated by the travelling public that it has been found necessary to put into service an entirely new Through Standard Express Train between Toronto and Winnipeg.

Commencing Sunday, October 27th, the "Gate City Express" will leave Toronto at 2.30 p.m., and will run daily thereafter, arriving Winnipeg at 8.00 a.m. second morning. The train will consist of the highest-class modern equipment; Compartment Library Observation Car, Standard Sleeping Cars, Tourist Sleeping Car, Dining Car, First-class Coach and Colonist Car. This will be found the most convenient and best train between Toronto and Winnipeg on account of the daylight departure from Toronto at an hour when the Union Station is not badly congested, and also on account of the early hour of arrival at Winnipeg.

The present "Vancouver Express" will continue to leave Toronto at 10.20 p.m. daily and will consist of the same equipment as the "Gate City Express." This train is the best to take for points west of Winnipeg but for Winnipeg and east the "Gate City Express" is the right train to travel by.

Full particulars from any Canadian Pacific Agent, or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto. 50

ADDRESS AT LABOR HALL

Capt. Collins to Speak on First Aid Work

The lecture by Capt. G. R. N. Collins, previously announced for the Y.M.C.A., will be given in the Labor Hall on Monday evening next.

The lecture is in the interests of a First Aid organization, which it is proposed to start in this city.

The lecture will be illustrated and all interested are requested to be on hand.

WILLIS CHIPMAN IS RECOMMENDED

Mr. Willis Chipman, who had charge of the engineering work at the local pumping station and the sewers, has been recommended by the Board of Works at London, as engineer, to prepare all surveys, plans and specifications for the storm sewer system and a sanitary system for the city.

BABY MIDSHIPMEN.

In the Old Days When Children Were Sent to War.

Among other improvements in the art of war as attained by the world in these later days is the abolition of the practice of sending children to sea, as was the case when the midshipmen of the old "oak walls" of England often were boys of less than fourteen years.

The Marquis of Dufferin and Ava in telling about the siege of Bomarsund, in the Crimean war, which he witnessed from the frigate Penelope, related this story of one of these little fellows.

"What pleased me most during the whole business," he says, "was the gallant behavior of a little midshipman, a mere child, thirteen or fourteen years of age. About the time when the fire became pretty hot I happened to come across him, and, as he seemed to be as much out of a job as myself, I touched my cap and took the liberty of observing that it was a fine day, to which he politely replied that it was.

"Encouraged by his urbanity, I ventured to ask him how long he had been at sea, to which he answered, 'I have only left my mamma six weeks, but I ain't going to cry on her majesty's quarterdeck,' a remark which I think is worth recording as many a one made by more illustrious heroes. Soon after this, however, a man was killed close to him, and the little fellow fainted and was taken below."

THE HALF-SPEED MAN AND WOMAN

What it Means When You Feel "All Out of Sorts."

You know what it means to feel "all out of sorts." Most people have felt this way at some time. Nerves out of order, irritable, languid, depressed. An aching head, a fagged brain, appetite bad and digestion week. With some people this condition comes and goes; with others it is chronic; they can't shake it off. It interferes with business, spoils recreation and robs life of all its joys. These men and women are only able to live and work at "half-speed."

Half speed people have lost that abundant natural vitality which enables others to go "full-speed-ahead" through life. Their energy and nerve power have evaporated—they cannot work long without breaking down. The trouble is nerve weakness and is caused by poor, watery blood. You can begin to improve your condition to-day by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They make rich, red blood once more pulsate through your veins, and your nerves thrill with fresh vigor. Here is convincing evidence that new strength and full health can be had through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Mr. Newton Mayhew, North Tryon, P. E. I., says: "I am a farmer and naturally have to work very hard. The result was that I found myself very much run down. My blood became thin and watery and my muscles flabby. I took doctors treatment but it did not help me and I grew so weak that I could scarcely work at all. As I found the medical treatment was not helping me I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and in these I found the medicine I needed, as in a short time I was restored to my old health and vigor. I shall always recommend these pills to all sufferers"

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers, or will be mailed, post free, at 50 cents a box mailed, post free, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DOWN WHERE THE APPLES GROW

Some day we're going back again
To where the apples grow,
Back to the kingly northern spy,
The astrachan and snow,
Some day within an orchard old,
'Neath branches bending low,
We'll find again a sweet content
Down where the apples grow.

Some day we'll listen to the voice,
Some day obey the call,
Some day again we'll be there when
The harvest apples fall,
Some day our dream will be fulfilled,
Some day again we'll know
The flavor that the apples have
Down where the apples grow.

Some day we're going back there when
The orchards are in bloom
To greet the sight of pink and white,
Drink in the sweet perfume,
Some day their beauty will be ours,
Some joyous day in May,
Some day we're going back again
Some day, dear heart, some day.

READING AND ITS PLEASURES

Biography Part III Famous Women

By F. M. Dela Fosse.

In dealing with the lives of eminent women one is faced by the unpleasant fact that the material at one's command is far from being as complete as it might be. There have been women famous for intellect, famous in war and in peace ever since the world began and it is a regrettable thing that there has been no such movement towards embalming their deeds in print as there has been towards the preservation of the recorded deeds of men. Even at the best, such records would have been meagre, and for one all-sufficient reason. Although it is many centuries since she was looked upon as a mere chattel it is only within the last sixty or seventy years that woman has emerged from a condition bordering on domestic servitude to one of comparative independence. Better educational facilities have provided for her with a wider outlook on life and she is now enabled to pass through the gateway to many a field of endeavor, which in the not distant past seemed absolutely unattainable. If in certain cases she has seemed to overstep the mark and invade avenues beyond her prerogative to enter it must be remembered that she has arrived fully equipped for the journey and strong in her determination to prove her ability to take part in the forefront of life's battle.

FITS AND FITNESS.

Shakespeare has told us that "Woman's fitness comes by fits," and Tennyson that "Woman is the lesser man," and now we have Sir Almroth Wright, the famous English physician, asserting, in a book just published that Woman by reason of mental, moral and physical inferiority is unsuited to engage in competition with Man in any field of labor. On the other hand, Confucius, one of the wisest of men, hails Woman as the "master-piece," and Herder, the German philosopher, almost defies her under the epithet of "the crown of Creation" so it is easily seen that even the greatest minds have their points of divergence on certain subjects. Casting entirely aside these contradictory statements, let us glance along our shelves, and we shall from within the circumscribed limits of the library ample proof to show that at all times, and under all conditions women have evinced their fitness to cope with the interminable problems of life, and have been instrumental in raising humanity to higher grades of usefulness and morality. In the short space of time since her emancipation she has shown in arts, letters, sociological questions and even in the wider spheres of endeavor engendered by missionary enterprise and travel in aptitude in thought and action for transcending that of many a man in possession of the right to vote.

It is impossible to give more than a brief sketch of a few of the matters in which women have interested themselves and rendered their names illustrious. Enough can, however be adduced to show that in many ways outside of domestic life Woman has proved herself a worthy help-meet of man.

HANNAH MORE AND OTHERS

About one hundred and fifty years ago Hannah More and her sisters, hampered by public prejudice and working under the greatest difficulties, started schools for the instruction of the daughters of laborers in the vicinity of Bristol. Their efforts for the higher education of the members of their own sex found full fruition in later days through the determined agitation of such men as Frederick Maurice and Charles Kingsley. Lady Mary Wortley Montague, about the same period, during her stay in Turkey, learned of the practise of inoculation as a preventive of smallpox. In order to test its efficacy she caused her son to be inoculated and on her return to England strove earnestly for the introduction of the practice by English physicians. She may very rightly therefore be hailed as the person who led Jenner to develop the idea and produce the treatment now known as vaccination. The Sunday school movement started by Robert Raikes of Gloucester, owes its great success to the unbounded enthusiasm with which it has been carried on by the women of England ever since its inception, and high in the roll of honor as one of its earliest and most devoted supporters must be placed the name of Sarah Trimmer of Brentford, known in her day as the most popular writer of books for children. Amelia Sieveking, a German, was the founder of Protestant sisterhoods; Florence Nightingale, Mary A. Livermore, were the forerunners of a vast army of noble women to whose tender ministrations in countless sick-rooms, on corpse-strewn battle-fields and in many a hospital, mankind is indebted for the alleviation of incalculable suffering. Frances Willard, in the cause of temperance worked wonders and to her is due the formation of the World's C.T.U., which to-day has branches in fifty countries with a membership of over half a million.

Wherever we turn our eyes there is the same tale to tell. We find women toiling in the far off mission fields, braving the most loathsome and dreadful of diseases in leper-haunted Molokai or facing the dangers of desert and forest as light-heartedly and recklessly as the most courageous of men. We see Rosa Bonheur in art, triumphing over all competitors and causing Landseer himself to dolefully exclaim "It's pretty hard to be beaten by a woman"; and lastly, we see Madame Curie, the discoverer of radium, honored as one of the foremost scientists of the century. It is impossbile to go further into details of what women have accomplished and are still accomplishing in these days of startling enlightment. For further information the reader must be referred to the library shelves where he will meet a diverse and wonderful company of great philosophers, great philantropists, great teachers, actresses, singers, political schemers, beauties, warriors, and travellers by flood and field. Their lvies are of enthralling interest and many of them of a character to supply a wholesome lesson for all.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Bathing to Reduce Weight.

For reduction of flesh a simple hot bath is supplied with four pounds of washing soda and one pound of bicarbonate of soda. First the feet and wrists are warmed and then gradually the body, so that the shock is not too great. The tub should be well filled Hot water should be slowly added as it cools. The treatment requires one to stay in the bath for twenty minutes. A flannel dressing gown, full length, is then slipped on, and the patient goes to bed between blankets. A glass of hot water is also taken at this time. Profuse perspiration naturally follows, and one should stay in bed for an hour or longer. After leaving the bed care should be taken to keep out of drafts and to remain indoors for the rest of the day, as the pores are open, and a slight chill might result in a cold or something more serious. These baths are somewhat weakening, so must be used sparingly. A hot bath without the addition of soda will frequently break up a cold that is just starting. The above precautions should likewise be carried out.

CONFESSION

The subject of the evening sermon at Murray street church tomorrow will be "Confession."

The pulpit will be occupied in the morning by Dr. E. Ralph Hooper. Dr. Hooper is a medical man and comes to the city as one of the deputation in connection with the Laymen's Missionary Movement Field Day. The pastor preaches in the evening.

The Bar Wins

It costs money to put soap into cakes and it doesn't improve the soap.

See this: One bar of N.P. SOAP at 15 cents weighs more than four 5¢ cakes of soap —more than 5 cakes of some.

And ask any woman if N.P. isn't the best soap. 9

CORNELIUS RYAN GOES TO JAIL

He Visited Jim Wilson to Buy a Stove

While There, He Says Young Man Brought Bottle

This morning was "blacklisters'" morning at the Police Court, when two "Indians" appeared. Con. Ryan charged with being drunk while on the "list" was remanded to jail for one week owing to his apparent forgetfulness as to who supplied Sunny Jim Wilson with the liquor.

Wilson was fined $10 to be paid in 10 days. Ryan gave evidence that he called on "Sunny Jim" last night about nine o'clock for the purpose of buying a stove. Shortly after his arrival a young man came into the house with a bottle, leaving it on the shelf. Wilson suggested looking on the shelf, that there was something good there Witness said that he took the bottle from the shelf and that Wilson took the first drink. Both started drinking, but afterwards the Salvation Army officer came in and made them stop.

Chief Thompson—"You have had liquor before this week."

"Well, if I did you have to prove it." said Ryan.

"You have also had drink several times since you were on the list?"

"I certainly won't answer that question."

"The Army officer then stopped you from getting away?"

"Do you think that that man could stop me if I wanted to get out," returned the witness.

"Well, he certainly did last night any way."

"Because I didn't want to go."

As a result of the witness' refusal to tell anything more, he was remanded.

Wilson said that Ryan called on him last night and that shortly afterward another young man came in and produced a bottle. He did not know the man. Shortly afterwards the adjutant came in and stopped them drinking. The younger man escaped when the police were sent for, but the officer would not let Ryan go.

Adjutant McElheney in the box told how on going to Wilson's house he found Ryan, Wilson and another young man whom he did not know He then sent for the police when he saw they had been drinking

Wilson had been keeping straight since the first of July

The coffee pot should be cleaned once a week in the following way: Put a tablespoonful of washing soda into the pot, fill it nearly full, of water and let boil for a little while, then rinse thoroughly with hot water.

Prescription for Headache!

If you should go to your family physician and ask him for a prescription for headache, and he knew the very latest discoveries in medicine, he would prescribe the ingredients of ZUTOO tablets.

Yet he might not get the happy combination of the ingredients secured in ZUTOO tablets after long trial and experiment.

The ingredients of Zutoo Tablets are prescribed for headache by the very best physicians of the day.

Praised by all users, thousands gladly testify to the merits of this reliable cure for headache. 25c at dealers Try it.

Presence of Mind.

In front of his Chelsea house Sir Thomas More had a garden and gatehouse, and, as there was a pleasant view from the summit of the gatehouse, he used frequently to sit there, accompanied only by his dog. Here it was that he was found one afternoon by a wandering maniac, who crept upstairs and saw the feeble old man dozing.

"Leap, Tom, leap!" he cried, and at the same time tried to throw him over the battlements. More had not physical strength enough to resist, but he had the wit to say:

"Let us first throw this little dog over."

The man immediately threw down the dog.

"Pretty sport," said the Lord Chancellor. "Now, go down and bring him up; then try again."

While the madman went down for the dog More made fast the door behind him, and so managed to hold the fort until deliverance came.

Exactly How Far.

Sir Frank Lockwood was on one occasion conducting the defence of a person charged with cattle stealing and was pressing a witness in cross-examination to ascertain how far he was away from the animals at a certain time.

"How could you tell they were beasts?" he asked.

"Because I could see 'em!"

"And how far off can you tell a beast?"

Witness looked calmly at Sir Frank, and said, "Just about as far as I am from you!"

Coming to Herself.

On one occasion Dr. Francis Warner of the London hospital was trying to bring back to complete consciousness a woman who had had a paralytic stroke. His efforts seemed likely to be in vain. For a long time her utterances were only the ravings of delirium. But all at once she sat up in bed and, looking straight at Dr. Warner, she cried out, "Oh, you funny old man!"

"Ah!" said Dr. Warner cheerfully, "Now she's beginning to talk sense!" —London Tit-Bits.

HERO AND A MARTYR

Trifling Theft at a Banquet Discloses Unfortunate Situation of Great Judge.

By MARGARET HODGES.

A beautiful young girl and a grand looking old man were about to cross the street in front of a second-rate city flat building. Suddenly the girl paused, halting her companion as well. She ran back into the building as if she had forgotten something.

"Take care, there!" shouted a voice filled with alarm, as the old man abstractedly stepped from the curb straight in the path of a speeding automobile.

The speaker was an athletic young man, who had been scanning the fronts of the buildings as if locating some address. His warning came too late, but his activity saved the situation. He made a superb dash. Just in time he drew the imperilled man back, but rather rudely shaken up.

"Are you hurt, Judge Folsom?" anxiously inquired a neighbor, rushing up to the spot.

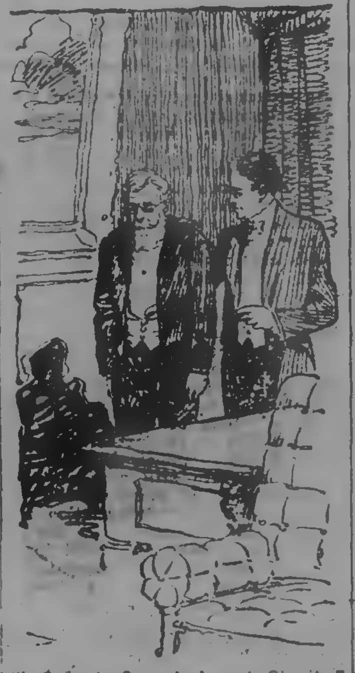
"Judge Folsom—Judge Hiram Folsom?" spoke the young man quickly, touching his hat courteously.

"That is my name," replied the old man with a quiet dignity that well became the careworn but finely intellectual face. "I must thank you greatly. I told my daughter, Marcia, I was growing old and careless and—useless."

The speaker sighed. The face of his auditor showed a sympathetic nature. He had noticed a few moments previous the faded gentility of father and daughter. No one could help but observe Marcia Folsom. Even in her plain, much-worn but gracefully fitting suit she was a marvelously attractive young woman.

Now she came hurrying, pale and breathless, from the house, having caught some fleeting rumor of her father's peril. She glided to his side and viewed gratefully the young man, who had drawn a sealed letter from his pocket. The respectful homage indicated in his true, honest eyes appealed to her warmly, and her face softened to commendation and interest.

"I was looking for your home," explained the young man. "I am the private secretary of Judge Warner. He is to be here in a few days, and the government district judges who were on the bench with you and himself twenty years ago, before he became governor, are to give him a banquet. I came on in advance of him. He expressed a special wish that you, his oldest friend, should be at the banquet. I deliver to you the invitation as an honored guest, and his letter to you."



"I Cannot—Cannot Accept Charity."

Lift up thine honored head, upright and noble jurist of the past—though threadbare in attire at the present! It was marvelous, it was pathetic, and yet it was awe-inspiring as that bent form came erect, as the old fire of genius and pride illumined the faded eyes. For a moment the judge seemed electrified. Once more in imagination he was a man among men. In fancy he saw himself a member of that splendid coterie on the bench who had received the highest honors in national jurisprudence. Then the flashing eyes dimmed as they fell to the darned gloves, to the patched footwear and the shining clothes. With a quiver of the lip the words came slowly:

"I thank you, sir, but I have retired from all judicial and social functions."

"Father—no—!" the fair girl placed a loving hand on the old man's arm. "Sir," to the messenger, "my father accepts your kind invitation with pleasure."

Percival Ward bowed as though to some honored Lear and his loyal Cordelia. The dignity, the pathos, the infinite pity of the occasion appealed to every noble instinct in his generous nature.

"What have you done, my child," remonstrated Judge Folsom in an agitated tone. "I cannot shame myself by appearing among my old friends in our present unfortunate conditions," and tears of humiliation sprang to the eyes of the speaker.

But Marcia led him gently into the house and to the three bare but neat rooms they occupied. She aroused his pride and interest in a function where he belonged by right of his record and past usefulness.

She hid from him the fact that the hiring of a dress itself took all her little surplus cash. Poor child! She had never told him how really small were her brave earnings as attendant in a suite of physicians' offices. She hid from him the sparse larder, saving for the grand [illegible], and all the time smiling and [illegible] as though they were [illegible] in a palace.

It [illegible] the heart of the old judge that first hour at the banquet, when cherished friends he had not seen in years vied with one another to do him honor. Then he listened to the speaker in a sad, spiritless way. He got to comparing his poverty with the riches of those about him. The thought of loyal, self-sacrificing Marcia tortured him. How long she had been deprived of the costly viands scattered about here in profusion! He fingered his napkin nervously, almost stealthily, under cover of a toast. When the group had adjourned to the hotel parlor, its proprietor approached him as he stood in a secluded corner.

"Judge Folsom," he spoke in a low undertone, "you must forgive me, but I must speak on a very painful subject. A set of nut picks, valued not for their intrinsic worth, but because they are part of a famous Elizabethan set, are missing from the table. I know your circumstances, sir; I am your friend; I will gladly assist you, but—please return the articles quietly, and nothing shall be said about it."

Astounded, in amazement, then in absolute horror, the old man drew up to his fullest height. Into his noble face rushed the suppressed emotions of years. He sprang at the speaker.

"You dare!" he choked out—"you dare to accuse me of a theft?"

"My dear Folsom!" cried the astonished Governor Warner, arriving at the scene, "what in the world does this mean?"

The hotel keeper tried to explain while the governor held the struggling judge. He claimed that a servant had seen the judge secret something in his bosom.

Down went the silvered head. The face of the judge grew ashen. Confession, guilt seemed written in his face. Then he drew a napkin from his breast and handed it to his accuser. As it opened, there showed—oh, the pity of it!—a few dainties from the festal board. At that moment a servant arrived to breathlessly inform his employer that the missing articles had been found.

"Oh, my friend!" sobbed the great strong man beside the judge, "not until tonight did I know of your condition. A noble theft! Heaven certainly brought this about, that I should learn how, out of my great store, I can share with you, who started me on my career—you, who have been a hero, a martyr!"

His eyes were streaming, his whole soul in his face, glorified by a friendship akin to the love of a brother.

"I cannot—cannot accept charity," faltered Judge Folsom.

"And you shall not. Go, sleep for the last night under the humble roof that is honored by your presence!"

It was Percival Ward who conveyed to Judge Folsom the next morning a delicate loan and a life appointment as secretary of the great national law library.

It was Percival Ward who, one week later, offered his love and fortune to the loyal daughter of a man to whom peace and happiness had come at last in full and overflowing measure.

The Kaiser's Favorite Maxims.

The favorite author of the German emperor is Ludwig Ganghofer, a Bavarian. So great is the kaiser's admiration of his writings that he keeps the following extracts from his works framed in gold, continually on his study desk:

"Be strong in pain; don't long for what is unattainable or worthless; be satisfied with one hour of happiness for a thousand bitter ones; always do your best even though you may not be thanked.

"He that learns to do these things will be a happy man. We must consider every one an equal or superior till the contrary is clear. The world is so great and we men so small; thus everything cannot be happening about us. When we suffer an injury or are harmed who knows but that it is for the good of creation? In everything on earth, dead or alive, lives the great white will of the Creator; only we little beings don't realize it. Everything is for the best in the eye of the Creator."

For Cold Feet.

Many aged people and young children more than people of other ages, are troubled with cold feet. A sand bag is an excellent "comfort" for this trouble. Get some clean sand, and dry by heating it in an iron kettle over the fire, stirring until it heats through. Make a bag about eight inches square, of thick cotton cloth, fill with the dry sand and sew up the opening very closely; cover this bag with thick flannel cloth; this will prevent the sand from sifting out. When wanted, heat by laying on top of the warming oven, or other surface where it will not burn, and when hot through, use it for warming the feet. The sand will hold heat a long time, is always ready, and can be emptied and the sack washed at any time. Or the flannel can be removed while it is heating, and replaced at once.

Otters That Fish for Chinamen.

The far eastern nations are noted for their skill in training decoy birds, but it is not so generally known that the Chinese and Indians also make use of otters when on fishing expeditions, and by a curious method of training teach these animals not to swallow the fish they catch. The otter having been caught young, a collar is put round its throat. The little creature, finding itself unable for days together to swallow anything it catches, gives up attempting to do so, and seemingly develops the idea that it can only swallow such food as it receives direct from its master's hand. Accordingly it brings to the bank all the fish it captures.

Some men's ideas of holding a job is to go down to the shop often enough to make sure they haven't been fired.

AGONY ON OPERATING TABLE

Did Not Remove Stone In Bladder GIN PILLS Passed it.

JOLIETTE, P. Q. CANADA.

"During August last, I went to Montreal to consult a specialist as I had been suffering terribly with Stone In The Bladder. He decided on an operation and was assisted by another doctor. They said the calculus was larger than a bean and too hard to crush and they could not take it out.

I returned home suffering greatly and did not know what to do but was recommended by a friend to try GIN PILLS. I bought a box and found relief from the pain at once. I took a second and third box of GIN PILLS after which I went back to the specialist. He told me the calculus was reduced in size, still he could not relieve me of it although he tried for two and a half hours.

I returned home again and continued to take GIN PILLS as they reduced the pain very much, but I did not expect that they would relieve me of the stone but to my great joy, I passed the stone on October 3rd., and am now a well man and very happy.

I am sending the stone in to you so that you can see for yourself what a great work GIN PILLS did for me. GIN PILLS are the best medicine in the world and because they did so much for me, I will recommend them all the rest of my life."

J. ALBERT LESSARD.

What glorious news to those who are almost going insane from the pain of Stone In The Bladder! Here is ease and comfort! Here is relief! Here is a certain means of getting rid of the stone without being cut to pieces by the knives of a surgeon. GIN PILLS dissolve Stone or Gravel in Kidneys or Bladder because GIN PILLS are the greatest solvent for uric acid the world has ever known.

If your trouble is like Mr. Lessard's, follow his example and take GIN PILLS. Money refunded if they fail to give relief. At all dealers, 50c a box—6 for $2.50. Sample free if you write us, mentioning this paper.

A Lazy Liver

Upsets the Whole System. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Put Things Right Again.

His liver is to sluggish— his stomach bad.

A bitter taste in the mouth—coated tongue—dizziness on rising suddenly—bowels alternately loose and constipated—these mean that the liver is out of order.

Instead of flowing into the bowels, to regulate them and aid digestion, the bile has been going all through the system, upsetting digestion, leaving the bowels constipated, and making the sufferer perfectly miserable. This is biliousness.

The quick, safe and certain cure is Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills. They clear out the clogged-up system, stir up the lazy liver, cleanse the stomach and bowels and purify the blood. The bile returns to its normal course, the food is again digested properly and all the disagreeable symptoms vanish.

Doctors prescribe Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills and they are known throughout the world as a proven cure for all digestive troubles. They are equally effective in strengthening weak kidneys and curing rheumatism.

ADVERTISING

A STORE'S importance is rightly judged by its advertising. Not altogether by the size of the advertisement, but by size and tone, and quality of announcement.

What the store has to say is one thing. Quite as important is how it says it.

Given that the clerical force is competent and up-to-date, it will say, over the counter, the very best to be said in reference to the goods enquired for. It may, and should, suggest other goods, not in the customers view.

This implies that the customer is in the store. But what brings him or her there? The wish to buy and the belief it is a good place to buy at.

How is this learned of?

By advertising. The advertisement is a message, an intelligent middleman, doing service between seller and buyer. The space talks to thousands, even while the store is closed for the night.

Use The REVIEW and tell the story of your store and its opportunities for good service.

THE SPORTING WORLD

"PACER" WALLACE WENT TO SLEEP IN THE FOURTEENTH

But He Put Up Great Argument Before His Trip to the Land O' Nod

"Pacer" Wallace, who used to do a turn with the padded mits with local and other aspirants for ringed square honors, was put to sleep in the fourteenth round of a battle at Port Arthur this week. A newspaper report on the engagement says:

Billy Hughes, the Sault Ste. Marie featherweight boxer, won from the Western Canada champion last night when he knocked out Kid Wallace, of Calgary, in the fourteenth round. The boys gave one of the greatest scientific ring arguments ever produced in the two cities. It was give and take from the start, with both boys moving around the ring at a lightening clip. In the thirteenth round Hughes had Wallace just about out for the count when the bell sounded. In the fourteenth Wallace came back stronger than ever, and he appeared to have it Hughes, but the Soo boy was only stalling, and when he found his opening he planted a terrific right to the jew, which put the Western lad to dreamland.

MANY CHANGES FOR NEXT SEASON IN CANUCK LEAGUE

Peterboro Will Have New Manager According to Report

That 1914 will see many new managers around the circuit is positive. Peterboro has let Davey Rowan go, and is said to be angling for Frank Barthold, a former Tri-State league player. St. Thomas is after Harry Bemis, the ex-Cleveland catcher. George Ort, who managed the Saints last year, is in a Detroit Hospital suffering from an injury to his groin and is hardly likely to play again. London and Rube Deneau have fallen out, and it is probable Rube will handle Brantford next year. He demanded 15 per cent of the purchase money on Dunlop and the draft money on Neale. It may be Matty Matteson will lead the Cockneys in 1914. Guelph and Berlin are both looking for managers. Eddie Holly is pretty sure to be at the head of Hamilton and should give Tiger-town a crackerjack club with all of Toronto's surplus material to draw upon. — Ottawa Free Press.

SAILOR ARTIST ON GRAND TRUNK SHIPS

A sailor-artist has been discovered among the crew of the Grand Trunk Pacific steamer, Prince George, which runs between Seattle, Wash., and Victoria, Vancouver and Prince Rupert, B.C., in the person of Boatswain Harry S. Cowper, who last week won the gold medal and diploma at the Prince Rupert exhibition for the best oil painting of a local subject by a provincial artist. Mr. Cowper submitted three canvases; all of which were placed at the head of the competition, the gold medal being given to a canvas entitled "The Steamer Prince John in a Southeaster."

The picture had been painted on board ship for a diversion under the disadvantages of a 'tween deck studio lit by artificial light, and subject to the motion of the boat. But the disadvantages under which it was painted is not reflected in the painting which is full of artistic merit. Naturally Mr Cowper's shipmates are pleased at the honor which came to the "Prince George" with the winning of the prize. 13

LOCAL MAN GETS BUSINESS AT LINDSAY

LINDSAY, Nov. 8.—Lindsay has a new resident in the person of Mr. L. E. Stevens, of Peterborough, who recently purchased the long established bakery business of Mr. T. J. Allan on Victoria avenue, and who yesterday consummated a deal for the Walter Bates confectionery and pastry business on Kent street (Ferry's old stand.)

FAMILY IN DANGER FROM COAL GAS

Mother Very Ill From Inhaling the Fumes

To be suffocated by coal gas was almost the lot of Mr. George McFadden, the "Wall Paper King," his wife and family Wednesday night as they slumbered in their beds. As a matter of fact the deadly fumes were almost too much for Mrs. McFadden, who was the first to discover the existence of coal gas, and who is to-day in a delicate condition as a result of inhaling the poisonous fumes.—Lindsay Warder.

The National Hotel

There have been several very good offers for the National Hotel and the matter will soon be cleared up, according to information received this morning. Among those who have made offers for the hotel are W. F. Hamilton and George Graham.

Good Shooting

A wild goose, weighing 6 3-4 pounds was shot at Hales Bridge yesterday by Mr. A. Young.
